Mr. Romaine will place this machine in a corner as part of a super aerobic circuit where an 18 to 20 minute vigorous workout can be done rotating six stations, three minutes each — a good cardiovascular and strengthening workout for the upper and lower body on off days from the machines.

Vigorous exercise requires an expert massage for some, but many members take advantage of the seven massage therapists' talents just for the reduction of stress.

Diane Strano manages the two massage salons and seven certified therapists who offer Swedish massage, reflexology, trigger point work, and massages which complement chiropratic therapy. Massage therapy is a big business at Princeton Nautilus at $23 per hour, including a sauna, whirlpool, showers, and locker access. The therapists are skillful with injured patients (including Mrs. Knudson-Fitzpatrick, a champion skier who injured her knee last year) and often work at races, such as the recent Hilltop Road race where they massaged participants. The club points out that May Insurance Company is now reimbursing patients the cost

New Company. Mrs. Knudson-Fitzpatrick always seems to be on the move, if not downhill racing with her team at the nationals in Colorado, then in the business world. Her latest venture with her husband Brian, a financial consultant whom she met in the club, is a new company, the Princeton Corporate Health Management Group, which will work in concert with physicians, physical therapists, and all services of Princeton Nautilus to achieve executive health maintenance for companies in the area. Stressing preventative maintenance for desk-bound executives, the new company will virtually "take its show on the road." Clinics, seminars, exerdance, and evaluations given by Princeton Nautilus are a good investment for corporations, if one considers the cost of replacing an executive because of health problems.

"This is the direction of the club now, and I am tickled pink about it," says Mrs. Knudson-Fitzpatrick.

The club seems to attract creative staff in their twenties. Twenty-three-year-old Suzanne Sweeney, who began the expanding Exerdance program last November, was a champion gymnast and diver in Princeton as a child, won a scholarship to the Princeton Ballet Society and began doing her own choreography at 10. She has been doing it ever since. Ms. Sweeney, who does all of the choreography for the program which is divided into five-week sessions, studied with Alvin Ailey at age 15, choreographed shows in several productions in California, and taught in the South Brunswick High School.

"I get bored easily so I have to keep doing different things — growing" explains Ms. Sweeney. Her classes run several times a day, and consist of a 50-minute workout designed to increase cardiovascular strength combined with calisthenics and stretches put to music. The large carpeted studio is mirrored on three sides so that form can be checked. The stereo system resounds with the latest songs making the exercise more palatable.

A similar workout, called first step, is designed for beginners, seniors, and women who are pre- or post-natal. More than 50 men have discovered the joys of exerdance and find it just as challenging as the workout upstairs. A jazz dance class was begun this spring on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Exerdance classes begin at 6:30 a.m.!

The group recently presented the American Heart Association with a check for $4500, proceeds from the Dance-a-Thon which took place in Palmer Square where more than 50 dancers danced all day.

There is time for socializing at Princeton Nautilus since Le Petit Regime was installed last December. Freshly made juices of vegetables or fruits, protein drinks and "smoothies" which are almost a complete meal, plus bagels, sandwiches, salads, soups, and hot beverages, are available at the small cafe just outside the dance studio. Friends, new and old, gather for a few minutes before or after work to sit at the bar or at tables, a pleasant respite after a vigorous workout.

The club is now an active member of the community under Mrs. Knudson-Fitzpatrick's leadership, sponsoring the Princeton half-marathon and other activities aimed at well-being and fitness, such as the 1984 Executives Run Against Hunger at Scanticon which will take place on June 24 at 11 a.m.

Devorah Menasche, professional storyteller and translator for author Isaac Bashevis Singer, will highlight the program at the annual Strawberry Festival sponsored by the Princeton chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, Wednesday, May 30, at 8 at the home of Karen Schotland.

Mrs. Menasche performs all over the country, most recently at the International Jewish Storytelling Festival at New York University. She first studied storytelling at Bard College with Roberta Sklar who was a co-director of the Public Theater in New York. Mrs. Menasche later appeared at the Edinburgh Festival as a mime and storyteller. She studied Yiddish at Columbia University.

Devorah Menasche

New officers of the Princeton chapter of B'nai B'rith Women will be elected and installed. Refreshments will include a variety of strawberry desserts. For information or directions, call Beverly Glassman, 921-9207.

Delaware Valley Poets will present a program of readings Saturday, June 2, at 3 at the new Lawrence library, Route 1 at Darrah Lane.

Four area poets, all members of the group, will read their own work as well as poems from their anthology, "Stones and Poets." They are Coleen Smith-Schlaffer of Kendall Park, a recent Rutgers graduate, Louis Slee of Washington Crossing, Pa., Shirley Wright of East Windsor, and Jean Anderson of Lawrenceville.

The public is invited. The group also welcomes those who write or take an active interest in poetry to attend meetings at 8 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month, with the exception of July and December. For information, call Rick Ryan at 989-7628 or Pat Whitaker at 259-2773.

The Princeton Chapter of Sigma Xi scientific research society will welcome new members at a social meeting Thursday, May 30, at 6 in the Engineering Quadrangle on Olden Street. The meeting will include a buffet.

The Princeton Lions Club will sell coloring books Saturday morning, June 2, on Nassau Street between Vandeventer and Witherspoon Streets. The books have a wide selection of stories and sell for $3.50.

The Lions will also be selling chicken at the Hospital Fete, Saturday, June 9.

ART

EXHIBITS

The first exhibition in the United States by the Colombian painter Freda Sargent will be at The Princeton Gallery of Fine Art, 8 Chambers, from this Saturday (reception 5-7) through June 16. The exhibit, "Themes of the Hermit," is a group of expressionist portraits of the artist's parents as she remembers them.

"Along the Delaware," a collection of riverscape paintings, is now on view at Queenstown Gallery, 151 West Delaware Avenue, Pennington. The show, which will continue through June, has paintings in both realistic and impressionistic style depicting various pleasures related to the river including fishing and canoeing. Gallery hours are 9:30-5:30, Mondays through Fridays and until 4 Saturdays.

Carved sculpture by the Argentine-born artist Raul Farco will be at The Princeton Gallery of Fine Art, 8 Chambers, from this Saturday (reception 5-7) through June 16. Using indigenous materials from countries he has visited, Farco has executed works in such materials as ebony and dolomite. His sculpture is in several private collections.

Oils by Kate Seitz will be exhibited from Friday, June 1 through Saturday, June 30 at The Mary Jacobs Library, Rocky Hill. The artist has exhibited in juried shows at the New Jersey State Museum, the Coryell Gallery and Queenstown Gallery.

Subject: Princeton

Paintings, drawings or prints on the subject of Princeton are welcome at Art Masters Gallery, Spring Street. Artists are invited to take their paintings, drawings or prints of Princeton to the Gallery, either framed or unframed.

University Endows Coaching Position In Honor of Basketball's Pete Carril

Princeton University has established the Franklin C. Cappon-Edward G. Green Basketball Coaching Endowment. The first endowed coaching position to be established for an intercollegiate sport at Princeton, the new post will be filled by head coach Pete Carril.

Endowment of the position was made possible by gifts from Edward G. Green '40, Robert H.B. Baldwin '42 and other friends and supporters of the late "Cappy" Cappon, head coach of Princeton basketball from 1938 to 1943 and from 1946 to 1961. The $800,000 endowment has been established in memory of U.S. Senator Dewey F. Bartlett and Richard H. Mayo, members of the Class of 1942 who played under Cappon as undergraduates.

A member of the Princeton coaching staff for 23 years, Cappon was known throughout the intercollegiate sports world as the dean of Ivy League basketball coaches. During his coaching career, with time out for a Navy duty during World War II, Cappon's teams won five Ivy League championships and tied twice for the league title before losing in playoff games.

His overall Princeton record was 250-181 while his career coaching mark, including six seasons at the University of Michigan, was 339-246. He served as president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and in 1957 was named to the Helms Hall College Basketball Hall of Fame.

Edward Green played varsity basketball under Cappon and was captain of the 1939-40 team which placed second in the Eastern Intercollegiate League. After military service as an Army Signal Corps captain, he entered business and today is president and chairman of Pandick Press in New York City, a leading financial and legal printer. Green lives in Princeton and has remained an ardent fan of Princeton basketball.

The other principal donor of the Cappon-Green position, Robert Baldwin, played basketball under Cappon and was also a varsity letterman in football and baseball. In his senior year he was awarded the Winston Roper Trophy for General Proficiency in Athletics. A resident of Mendham, he is a former undersecretary of the Navy and recently retired as president of the investment banking firm of Morgan Stanley.

Pete Carril has coached basketball at Princeton for the past 17 years, compiling a 301-155 record that is second to none among his Ivy peers. In addition to his .660 winning percentage, he has led the Tigers to six Ivy League titles (1969, 1976, 1977, 1981, 1983 and 1984). Carril's teams have always been associated with defense and a patient offensive style that emphasizes high-percentage shots.

SPORTS

NOT MEANT TO BE

PHS Out of State Tourney. "It would have been nice but it was not meant to be," commented Princeton High baseball coach Ed Beacham Monday, after his Little Tigers had been eliminated by third seeded Manasquan, 9-4, in the first round of the NSIAA Central Jesey Group 3 state competition.

PHS has three games left. It will meet West Windsor Thursday and Hopewell Valley Friday in a pair of league games and then will end its season next Wednesday against South Hunterdon.

"They really had a fine club," said Beacham of Manasquan, and as for his team, he added, "we couldn't get the big hit when we needed it."

Jason Petrone hit a home run for PHS – his fourth of the season – for one of Princeton's runs and the Little Tigers added two more in the fifth. "That was the inning we had a shot," said Beacham, "but they got out of it."

Gavin Hulsman, the mainstay of the PHS mound staff, took the loss, allowing Manasquan to put a lock on the game when the Warriors scored five runs in the second to take a 7-1 lead. His record is 5-4.

Manasquan, ranked behind Wall Township and Ewing in the Central 3 division, raised its record to 16-4 with the win; PHS fell to 8-11.

TWO MORE LOSSES

For PHS Softball Team. Held to three hits by Hopewell Valley's unbeaten pitcher Kerry Corrigan (4-0), the Princeton High girls softball team went down to its thirteenth defeat in 15 games Monday, 23-1.

The streaking Hopewell team scored 17 runs in the first inning to breeze to its fourteenth win.

Last week, PHS scored three runs in the first inning as Monica Greenland and Marcy Murray drove in runs but the Little Tigers could not hold the lead and lost to visiting Nottingham, 8-3.

Tracy Hemmingway was charged with the loss, as PHS outhit the North Stars, 10-8. A two-run double by Nottingham's Chris Dilatush was the game's only extra-base hit.

PHS will entertain West Windsor on Thursday at 3:45 at Community Park.

PHS NETMEN ADVANCE

In State Tournament. Top-seeded Princeton High blanked Ocean Township, 5-0, Monday in the third round of the Central Jersey NJSIAA state tournament and will likely meet second-seeded and undefeated Bridgewater East in the next round.

In singles play against Ocean, Jacob Leschly won, 6-1, 6-0. Mark Leschly triumphed, 6-2, 6-1, and Bruce Ellis won 6-0, 6-2. In doubles play, Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott prevailed in the only three-set match, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. The victory was Princeton's eighteenth in 20 matches.

Last week in second round play, PHS also blanked eighth-seeded Bridgewater West, 5-0, as both Leschly brothers and Ellis all won 6-0, 6-1. Dunham and Elliott won, 6-1, 6-2, while Matthew Mack and Bret VandeBovenkamp took the second doubles, 6-2, 6-0.

In a regular season match on Friday, PHS defeated rival Princeton Day School, 3-1. The second singles was not completed.

Once-defeated Jacob Leschly (his only setback coming in the Newark Invitational to Wells-Roth, a nationally-ranked freshmen from Millburn) defeated Lyle Menendez, 6-3, 6-4.

Both doubles went to three sets. Dunham-Elliott outlasted James Stark and Jim Hall, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, while Mack-VandeBovenkamp lost to the Panthers' Jamie McLaughlin and Dave Supple, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6.

HUN NIPS ALUMNI

In Lacrosse. It hasn't been the best of seasons for the Hun School lacrosse team but the Raiders enjoyed a brief moment when they edged the Alumni, 6-5, on Saturday. The Alumni had won the annual contest the previous two years.

Hun, 2-8 in regular season play, was scheduled to end its season early this week with a makeup game against Rutgers Prep.

Last week, Hun was defeated, 10-5, by George School and was eliminated in the first round of the Prep School state tournament by Dwight-Englewood, 8-4.

George School used a six-goal second period as the cornerstone for its win, after Hun had led in the first period. Chris Goodyear scored twice for Hun, while teammates Chris Natale, Brint Dietrich and Greg Savidge added single goals.

Ed Gallagher and Natale with two goals each paced Hun in its win over the alumni. "We moved the ball around quite a lot," said Hun coach Dave Faus.

The alumni were coached by Hawley Waterman Sr., a former athletic director and football coach at Hun and director of the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League. His son, Hawley Jr. scored twice for the alumni and another son, Scott, also played.

Steve Chaykowsi, who captained the Hun team two years ago, also scored twice for the alumni and Jim Kopliner, who dates his playing days many years back, accounted for the alumni's fifth goal.

Here's a baseball oddity. The man who pitched in the most major league games in history never pitched at all in the majors till he was 29 years old — and yet, despite that late start, he wound up pitching more total games than anyone else ever has. Hoyt Wilhelm pitched in his first big league game at age 29 and then became the ONLY man EVER to pitch in over 1,000 big league games.

Here's an example of an athlete overcoming a handicap .. Did you know that one of the top golfers on the U.S. pro golf tour today is legally blind? .. Jim Simons, who's earned over a half-million dollars on the pro tour, is legally blind without proper corrective lenses ... Simons wears two kinds of contact lenses at the same time to enable him to play golf on the tour.

PHS Stickmen Blanked. What made the 1984 season memorable the Princeton High School boys' lacrosse team would like to forget.

When Boonton defeated PHS, 7-2, Friday -- co-captain Troy Norris scoring both PHS goals -- it marked the first season ever that the Little Tigers failed to win a single game.

"We never made it," said PHS coach Pete Larsen, "but we're looking forward to next year. We have pretty much the same team back."

The final contest with Boonton was close for a while, Larsen stated, "but the thing that has plagued us all year -- mental mistakes -- hurt us again." PHS had begun the week with a 13-7 loss to Johnson Regional. The final record was 0-10.

The team was co-captained by Norris, a midfielder, and defensemen Peter Gager.

Other seniors playing their last game include scoring leaders Chris Carrington and Sam Chambers. Also, Fergus McCormick, David Showalter, Jeremy Stein, Brook Trubee, David Gibson, John Bolster and Eric Bergman.

PHS NINE OUSTED

From Mercer Tournament. Lightning did not strike twice in a row for the Princeton High baseball team.

Dino D'Angelo, who pitched the Little Tigers into the Mercer County Tournament last week with a sparkling three-hit shutout of Trenton, did not have a second good game left. One good inning, yes, when he struck out the side in the first inning. "But that was the end of the ball game," noted PHS coach Ed Beacham.

Favored Notre Dame erupted for four runs and added seven more in the seventh en route to a lopsided 13-0 win. The (16-3-1) Irish combined a melange of seven hits, 10 walks, two hit batsmen, five PHS errors and a 7-for-7 stolen base effort for its runs. The loss knocked the Little Tigers out of the tournament.

We didn't hit the ball and we gave up a lot of runs," said Beacham. "It was one of those days when they played a much better ball game than we did. It happens but I feel bad for the kids."

Tom Foltiny ruined Kevin Crary's bid for a no-hitter in the fifth with an infield grounder that struck third base and caromed off into left field for a single. Crary had walked six in the first four innings but PHS, as it did after Foltiny's hit, failed to capitalize.

In the sixth, Jason Petrone lashed a one-out triple off reliefer Jamie Lynch but that was to be Princeton's second and final hit. Again, PHS failed to score but by then the Irish had its 13-0 lead.

Brian Winters Chosen

Retired Milwaukee Bucks great Brian Winters has been named the new assistant basketball coach at Princeton. Winters replaces Wayne Szoke who resigned to accept the head coaching position at Columbia University.

This is Winters' first coaching position. As part of a three-man staff including Carril and Assistant Coach Bill Carmody, he will have considerable varsity scouting and recruiting responsibilities. In addition, Winters will coach the Tiger junior varsity team.

Winters was an outstanding professional player. A first round draft pick of the Los Angeles Lakers in 1974, Winters was one of the players involved in the Kareem Abdul-Jabbar trade. In his first five years as a Buck, his average was never lower than 16 points per game, and he was one of the most deadly outside shooters in the NBA. During that time, Winters was twice an NBA All-Star team member.

A series of nagging injuries cut into his production in 1982-83. He missed 25 games and had the lowest scoring average of his career. He decided to end his playing career prior to the 83-84 campaign.

Petrone on the Mound. A league game with Hamilton the previous day was a gimme as far as PHS was concerned. Forced to play four games in five days because of overlapping of the Mercer County and state tournaments and regular season play, the Little Tigers, Beacham said, had simply run out of starting pitchers.

Beacham started outfielder Mike Petrone who had not pitched before on the mound. Although Hamilton won its sixteenth game in 21 starts, 6-3, Beacham was pleased with Petrone's performance. "I found out he could pitch," he said.

The Hornets scored four runs in the first when a nervous Petrone walked three but over the next five, Petrone and Dave Eccles, who pitched two shutout innings in relief of Petrone, allowed only two more runs, both are juniors.

The chance to experiment was not lost on Beacham, whose team is out of the running for league honors. "I'm going to pitch juniors and sophomores the rest of the games to see what I have for next year," he said.

Fails to Hold Lead. PHS failed to hold a 4-2 lead in the fifth inning against visiting Nottingham Thursday and ultimately bowed to the North Stars for the second time this season, 6-4. Both teams had eight hits.

A leadoff double in the second by Foltiny followed by singles by Mike Petrone, D'Angelo and Jon Sherin, sent two runs across for PHS in the second. In the fifth Mickey Carnevale singled home Jason Petrone and another single by DH Derrick Martin sent Princeton's fourth run home.

In the next inning, Nottingham tied the score, aided by two errors, and then went ahead on Gary Conover's two-run double down the left field line which was misplayed by Foltiny for Princeton's third miscue in the inning.

In the game, PHS had Beacham talking to himself; it would follow a brilliant defensive play on a difficult chance by making an error on a routine play. Starter Jon Sherin was charged with the loss.

Princeton (8-10) began the week one over .500 when it pounded McCorristin, 13-5, banging out 17 hits.

Jason Petrone collected three hits and drove in three runs while Martin had two RBIs. Winning pitcher Gavin Hulsman (5-3) contributed a triple to the PHS attack and Sherin added a double.

LOSSES END SEASON

In PDS Boys' Lacrosse. The Princeton Day boys' lacrosse season mercifully came to an end last week with a pair of defeats, locking the Panthers into their first losing season ever under coach Bob Krueger.

A 7-3 loss to Montville and a 7-4 defeat by Delbarton gave the Blue and White a 6-10 mark for the spring. Krueger's teams had never finished worse than 9-6.

"As little as two weeks ago, I thought it was possible to finish 9-7," Krueger commented. "It would have taken so little to get over the hump and we just didn't do it."

"Without any seniors this team wasn't expected to do much, but with the players we had, we should have won more games."

Things never went right from the start for Princeton Day, which lost its season's opener to Hill, when a couple of inexperienced referees made an incorrect ruling. Injuries, including two broken collarbones, sidelined players throughout the season. Even their home field was accidentally taken away from the Panthers, when a work crew began improvements on it a month too early.

However, the main problem, in Krueger's estimation, was his players' inability to play up to their potential. A team with more commitment to the sport, instead of viewing it as a social activity, could have turned the season around.

"The Montville game was a painful reminder of how far we have fallen," Krueger said. "It's the first time in 10 years they have beaten us." Montville came into the contest with a 3-10 record.

Delbarton on the other hand came to PDS last Friday having just won two big ones. It had nothing to prove, and turned up very flat against the Panthers, but PDS failed to take advantage.

A year from now Krueger will have virtually all the same players to work with, and he is hoping for a very different result.

PDS GIRLS VS. PEDDIE

For Lacrosse Championship. The Princeton Day girls' lacrosse team will end its season the way it began with a game against Peddie. This time, however, the two will be playing for the State Prep Championship. PDS won the first meeting between the two, 14-3.

The two teams will meet this Wednesday at a site to be determined, probably the Hun School field. They advanced to the final round with victories in the semi-finals Monday.

PDS blew out Dwight-Englewood for the second time this season, 15-1, in its semi-final contest. Birgit Enstrom led the scoring with four goals, Melinda Bowen had three, Lynne Faden, Karen Callaway and Maya Bermingham tallied two apiece.

PDS took 50 shots at the beleaguered DE goalie, but coach Kim Bedesem commented that the scoring percentage (30) was not very good. Hilleary Thomas stopped six of the seven shots that came her way.

Last week, PDS closed out its regular season with a 19-1 drubbing of an overmatched Hun team.

EASY WIN FOR PHS

In Girls Track. An easy 102-20 victory over Nottingham last week kept the Princeton High girls track team in contention for a possible three-way tie for the Colonial Valley Conference crown. The Little Tigers swept every event.

PHS will compete Saturday in the NJSIAA state sectionals to be held in New Brunswick.

Senior co-captain Dawn Gray was a double winner in the Nottingham meet, capturing the 100 hurdles and the 200 dash. Susan Gray won the 400 hurdles and the 3200, while Barbara Halvorsen was another double winner for the Little Tigers, in the shot put and javelin.

Helping PHS dominate the field events were Dorothy Mann who win the discus, Kim Johnson who won the long jump and Sarah Billington who led a PHS sweep of the high jump.

Meg Parsons triumphed in the 100 meter. Terresa DePerna in the 400 and Gail Woolston in the 800. Jenine Barnshaw won the 1600 in 5:33.5 and finished second to Gray in the 3200.

In the 1600 relay, Sarah Doig, Diana Hunt, Carolyn

PHS GIRLS TESTED

In Lacrosse Win. Tied 4-4 at the half, the Princeton High girls lacrosse team outscored host Montclair by two goals last week to capture a hard-fought, 9-7 victory – its 11th in 12 games.

Erika Gabrielsen was the game's leading scorer as she connected for four PHS goals and assisted on the go-ahead goal. Allison Fraker and Pam Jennings each scored twice for PHS and Jessica Fraker added a single goal. Laura Tarzynski had three-second goals to pace the Mounties.

Credit the PHS defense with a big assist in the win. PHS goalie Liz O'Donoghue had to make just three saves while her Montclair counterpart was credited with 14.

PHS which was scheuduled to to oppose Montville this week in its final regular season game will compete next in the annual state competition where it is expected to be named one the top-ranked teams.

The first round of the tournament will be played on Tuesday. The second and third rounds June 1 and 5 and the championship game on June 8. PHS finished second in last year's state tournament.

PRINCETON IS SECOND

In Soccer Tourney. The Princeton 1974A traveling soccer team finished second last week in the Southington Invitational Tournament held in Connecticut.

In the championship game, Princeton lost to last year's defending champion, Poughkeepsie, N.Y. "They all played very well," said Princeton coach Charlie Scozzaro.

Twenty-four teams comprised of 10-year-olds from across the country participated in the touranment.

HUN BATS ARE SILENT

Result Is Costly. "We picked the worst time of the year to go in a slump. Of all the times not to hit the ball hard..."

The bats of the Hun nine, which had pounded out 19 hits in an 18-6 win over Hopewell Valley High in the middle of the week, did indeed fall silent at the worst time. On Saturday, third-seeded Hun was eliminated from the Mercer County when it was limited to one hit by West Windsor's Dave Arendas. The Pirates advanced with a 1-0 victory.

The previous day, Hun collected just two hits in dropping a 2-0 shutout to Ewing. "I felt sorry for Petey and Richie (Hun pitchers Pete Stam and Rich Stout) because they pitched almost as well," commented McQuade.

Hun (11-8) will end its season on Thursday when it entertains Lawrenceville School at 3:45 in a makeup game. It was also scheduled to play a makeup game with Trenton High early this week.

"I have a lot of seniors on the bench who haven't played," said McQuade, who plans to use as many as he can to "give them some good memories to go out with. Let them have some fun.

"It doesn't matter now," said McQuade. "It's hard to keep the kids motivated when you're out of it."

Arendas Is Hero. West Windsor scored the only run in its tournament game with Hun in the third when Colin Ford singled, stole second and game home on Arendas' double. "He pitched an excellent ball game," said McQuade. "West Windsor played excellent defense and has nice team speed. That's the third time they beat us this year so I guess the best team won."

Hun's lone hit off Arendas was a leadoff single by Ted Bransfield in the fourth. For Stam, who allowed eight hits, the loss was only his second against four wins.

Against Ewing, Hun bunched its two hits in the sixth when Joe Scandariato and Stam hit safely, but the Raiders were unable to score against Ewing hurler Scott Cook who was making his first varsity pitching appearance. Ewing's Scott Paterson and Mark Rubino had run-scoring singles off Stout, who gave up six hits pitching with three days rest.

"Stout probably pitched the best game he's pitched all year," said McQuade. "He was never in any real danger; he pitched a super ball game." The loss evened Stout's record at 3-3.

Catcher Barry Landis connected for a triple, double and single and drove in two runs and Rick Brenner batted 2-for-2 to lead Hun in its rout of Hopewell Valley. Sophomore Tom Jingoli got the win, his second.

No doubt McQuade would have traded some of those hits for a few more against West Windsor.

4-0 START

For Sweet Jersey Corn. Last year's undefeated league and playoff champion in the Mercer County Women's A Softball League, Princeton-based Sweet Jersey Corn has gotten off to another good start this season. After four games, SJC has a 4-0 record and has outscored its opponents, 33 to 5.

Left fielder Debbie Smyth and third baseman Dee Vertucci are co-captains of the Corn, last year's USSA state champion and ASA runner-up.

Other returning veterans are Dee Discavage, first base; Beth Muzyke, second base; last season's MVP Sandi Hibbs at short; Donna Nicholson in left field and Carol Knapp in right. Clare Baxter and Louann Slocum share the pitching, while Grace Durland, last season's leading hitter for the Corn, is behind the plate. Andrea Perrine is an infielder and Mickey Morgan came out of retirement for the first few weeks to help out until rookie Doreen Ragazzo returns from college.

In its first four wins (9-2 over S&W Liquors, 10-0 over T&A Olden Carpet, 11-2 over Eyeglass Center, and 3-1 over Grove Plumbing) Smyth, Discavage, Muzyka, Hibbs and Durland have paced the Corn hitting.

On Thursday, SJC will face arch rival 3 Seasons at Mercer County Park's Field 1A. Starting time is 6:30.

REGISTER NOW

For Summer Lacrosse. All those interested in playing in the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League must register with the Princeton Recreation Department before June 1. Entrance fees for both the men's and women's leagues are $12 for residents and $24 for non-residents. Registration forms are available at the Recreation Department.

The men's league will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings from June 13-July 29. All those in high school as of this spring are eligible. The women's league will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings from June 21-August 2, and those entering the ninth grade as of September are eligible.

The leagues are recreational and no contact is allowed. Players will receive jerseys as part of their entrance fee. For additional information call 921-9480.

JUNE 1 DEADLINE

For Lacrosse Registration. June 1 is the deadline for registering for two summer lacrosse programs offered by the Princeton Recreation Department.

A junior program for boys and girls costs $12 for residents and $24 for non-residents. The boys will meet Tuesdays from 6 to 8 at the Valley Road field, starting June 19; the girls will play Mondays from 6 to 8 at the John Witherspoon School field, starting June 25.

Competitve Swim. Those interested in the competitive diving and swimming program offered by the Recreation Department can obtain applications at the Recreation Office.

The program is open to all residents and season ticket holders 6 to 17 and offers a wide range from long course training to recreational competition against other area swim clubs. Additional information is available at 921-9480.

SUMMER CLASSES SET

By Community Tennis. The Princeton Community Tennis Program's summer brochure listing summer classes and activities has been mailed.

Beginning June 25, the Program will offer eight weeks of instruction for both juniors and adults. There will be classes from beginner through advanced.

For students out of school early, a special early session is being offered for juniors from June 11-15 and 18-22. Those registering for this program will have a choice of attending three hours or six hours a day for a week. Instructional drills, matches, and games are designed to fit individual levels of play.

In addition to classes, the Community Program is planning tournaments, exchange matches, league play, a leader corps teacher training program and a fund-raising Tournament during the summer.

Those not receiving the summer brochure should call the tennis office at 924-4343.

and wonderful new tool. Others are still questioning."

One teacher later told Mr. McKenzie the workshop "primed the pump for me. It got me to risk writing again. It got me to get over any inhibitions I might have had regarding using a machine."

But another wrote "I do not feel that the word processor affected my composing to any great extent."

It's being done gradually. "Otherwise," Mr.McKenzie remarks, "it could create pressure that could distort the positive outcome. It wouldn't be a welcome friend, but a forced change."

data bases is quite a different approach for social studies teachers trained in history, Mr. McKenzie comments. Students will be looking at surveys and statistics and turning out papers in social "science."

This, in turn, has implications for the high school math department and this fall, a course in statistics will become part of the math curriculum. Statistics is rarely offered at the secondary-school level.

"But you can compute so easily with present software that a statistics course becomes possible.

"In five years, we see kids at the Middle School taught statistical reasoning, to know what a correlation is, for example, and how to build their own data banks.

"As the adult world increasingly turns to the computer for writing, researching, data analysis and problem-solving," Mr. McKenzie once wrote, "the schools' responsibility becomes clear: we must equip students with these same skills."

—Katharine H. Bretnall

"... You can relax about your initial outpouring, because you can simply dump out your thoughts, re-shaping them later, like a lump of clay."

Full of praise for teachers, the assistant superintendent says "it's a super staff — we're fortunate to have a staff like this, many of whom are already innovative. And often the people you'd least expect are excited and eager to explore computers."

The school board, Mr. McKenzie has found, is "unique in New Jersey in the resources provided for helping teachers learn new things. Other districts have almost no budget for training but in Princeton, the budget has been increased from $5,000 in 1982 to $100,000 for '84-'85. Without this, you can't pay to train the teachers."

Commenting on the system's philosophy of computer instruction, Mr. McKenzie says the schools regard the computer as "a tool box."

"There is no need to teach programming very much — it's not important, vocationally.

"We want students to use the computer as a word processor and to solve problems, to build a data base, make graphs, do calculations and numerical reports."

This points up another part of the future, because cultural change isn't solely in the English department.

the school cafe at the Hopewell Valley High School in Pennington.

Most Valuable Player awards will be presented together with scholarship awards given by the Booster Club to the best male and female athletes and the best scholar athlete for the year. A video tape of spring sports will also be part of the program.

Joseph Maly, president of the Bulldog Booster Club will present the awards. Tickets for the dinner must be purchased in advance at the school's athletic office.

PHS TRACKMEN LOSE To Even Record. The Princeton High School boys track team dropped two league dual meets in its last two outings, losing Monday to Hopewell Valley, 76-55, and to Nottingham last week, 75-56. The twin setback evened the Little Tigers' record at 4-4.

Sprinter Ed Katz was a triple winner for PHS against Hopewell, sweeping to victories in the 100, 200 and 400 meter events. Tom Perkins won the 1600 in 4:36.9 to nip the Bulldogs' Eric Espenhorst who was timed in 4:37.8. Nathaniel McVey Finney also forced Espenhorst to take a second when he won the 3200 in 10:30.5 to the latter's 10:36.5

PHS also won the 1600 relay but its only field event triumph came in the pole vault where Eric Rapp and Tim O'Gorman finished 1-2 with vaults of 11-0 and 10-6.

The pattern was repeated against Nottingham, as the almost identical score would suggest.

Katz won the 100 and 200 and Rapp won the pole vault (he and O'Gorman both cleared 11-0) and the javelin. McVey-Finney ran a fine 10:15.8 to claim the 3200 again and PHS defeated the North Stars by three seconds in the 1600 relay.

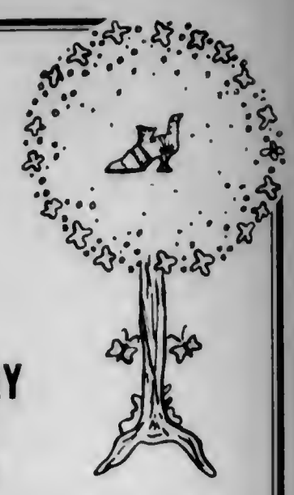
Like Hopewell, Nottingham won both hurdles events but also took firsts in the 400, 800 and 1600.

In the annual Mercer County Boys' Relays held Saturday at Steinert High, Trenton, as expected, dominated, winning seven of 15 events and setting four meet records in the process.

Princeton's best performance was a second in the 4x200 where Bruce Ellerstein, Mike Riddick, Tom Haggerty and Katz were timed in 1:34.0. West Windsor won the event in 1:31.9.

PHS came in third in the 4x1600 for its next best effort. Graham Trelsted, McVey-Finney, Ben Eiref and Perkins combined for a 19:02.2. Trenton won the event with a record-breaking time of 18:04.3. The previous record for the event set last year by Lawrenceville was 18:33.8.

The Little Tigers finished fourth in the distance medley, fifth in the sprint medley, javelin and pole vault and sixth in the long jump.



SPORTS PICNIC SET For PHS Athletes. An egg-catching and pie eating contest will be part of the All Sports Picnic to be held next Sunday, June 3 from 3 to 5 at the Valley Road School field when Princeton High's all-star athletes will be honored.

There will be free hogs, hamburgers and refreshment at the event which is sponsored by the Friends of Princeton High Athletics.

The juniors will challenge the seniors to a tug-of-war contest. A softball game will pit the PHS students against a team comprised of parents, coaches and reporters.

TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part or all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships and Griggstown. At all newsstands, including TOWN TOPICS' office, it costs 25 cents.

Gallup Poll Monitoring Close Race in State; Here's A Chance to State Your Preference

Okay, group, get your pens and pencils ready and gather round, because we are about to go head to head against the Gallup Poll.

That's right, Gallup, and why not? We're sitting here on the virtual eve of the first meaningful Presidential primary election in the state's history and George Gallup is a neighbor — has been almost since he revolutionized the public opinion business 50 years ago and will be until he gets zoning board permission to move from his cramped quarters at the corner of Bank and Chambers street to a proposed new office center in Montgomery Township.

The horse race for the Democratic nomination for President prompted your correspondent to spend some time over the past few weeks with the Gallup Organization to see exactly how one of the vaunted Gallup Polls is conducted — an experience that will be shared in just a minute.

But first let's take a minute to conduct our own poll, an official ballot for which is located at the conclusion of this article. Fill it out right away and either mail it or return it in person to the Town Topics office. We will tabulate all returns received by midnight next Monday (the night before the big primary election) and publish them in the paper published next Wednesday.

You then can compare the Town Topics readers' poll with the actual primary results. Even though Gallup has not conducted a poll specifically of New Jersey voters, you can still compare the readers' poll

Collins, Borough Are Closer to Agreement; Developer Wins First Round in Court Battle

A reported offer by Collins to increase the payment for air rights and perhaps capitalize a Housing Trust Fund for lower cost housing, has apparently brought the developer closer to its opponents than ever before.

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund and Collins' vice-president Gary Green both said this week — independently of one another — that negotiations between Collins and its opponents are moving ahead.

"We're farther along than we were before," Mayor Sigmund stated. "We keep talking, and I'm always hopeful."

"We've had very productive discussions in the last three weeks, and they never were productive before," Mr. Green said. "Mayor Sigmund is saying Borough Council wants to settle it, and we do hope to continue negotiations.

"I don't know why the turn-around," he added.

Last Friday, Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy ruled that Council did not have jurisdiction when it heard the appeals of four Collins opponents last month. Council had decided in favor of all of them.

R. William Potter, one of the four, notified Collins attorney Thomas C. Jamieson Friday morning in advance of the court hearing that he had filed no papers and was withdrawing.

After losing before Council, Collins went to court charging that, although a preliminary plan may be appealed to Council from a Planning Board decision, a final plan may not be, and Judge Levy agreed.

It is understood that last Thursday, Mayor Sigmund detailed to Council an offer by Collins to speed up the payment for air rights over Palmer Square East and add another $100,000 to the $120,000 already agreed on as payment to the Borough for those rights.

In addition, Collins might capitalize a Housing Trust Fund and possibly develop low-moderate-cost housing on two other sites — unidentified — in the Borough, working through the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation.

Asked about the proposals, Mr. Green said Collins wants to settle "everything, once and for all."

"If we give a penny" he stated, "it will be a contract arrangement, contingent on solving litigation problems. If somebody appeals the settlement, then the settlement will be null and void."

The proposals were outlined in executive session late Thursday night, only about 12 hours before the appearance before Judge Levy. If Council had agreed, presumably Friday's court appearances would have been moot.

But Council members, who had not heard the offers before, reportedly felt rushed. Also, members are said to have been divided somewhat in their reactions.

Mr. Green declined to confirm the amounts Mayor Sigmund is said to have given Council.

"We put some numbers on the table for the Borough to use as it sees fit, to deal with issues relating to Witherspoon Jackson's housing problems. We don't want to be 'donating' money to the WJDC, but to the Borough for the housing

Council Asked to Change Law on Overnight Parking

"Princeton is no longer a suburban town," Bank Street resident Joseph Capalbo advised Borough Council at its work session last Thursday, "and your 1929 ordinance prohibiting overnight parking on Borough streets (between 2-6 a.m.) is anachronistic — it doesn't contribute to public safety."

Half a dozen car-owners, accustomed to moving their cars around in what has ruefully become known as the "Moran Avenue shuffle" — or the Bank Street or Palmer Square shuffle, depending on where you do your shuffling — urged Council to change the ordinance.

Council member John Huntoon was ready to sit down with Borough attorney Walter Bliss, draft an ordinance and introduce it as soon as possible. But Mayor Barbara Sigmund, in effect saying "hold it ... " commented that once an ordinance is introduced, the process is fairly well along. She wanted more discussion, perhaps "in another forum."

20TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION: In keeping with its faith-centered goals and philosophy, Stuart Country Day School held a Liturgy of Thanksgiving in the Princeton University Chapel as the culmination of its 20th year. Here, middle school students follow banners into the chapel in the middle of a long processional that included lower and upper school students with banners, faculty, alumni and parents. Following the special Liturgy, a reception and alumnae reunion were held at the school. Three former headmistresses of Stuart were on hand, as well as many nuns who were formerly on the faculty. (Michaela McMillan photo)

Parking

Mr. Capalbo explained that he parks in the lot next to the library and walks home to Bank Street, perhaps carrying groceries and "I feel unsafe at one or two a.m." He suggested the Borough sell car decals at $5 a month, allowing street parking.

The lot behind the former Bellows store is isolated and not lighted, said Diana Radcliffe, who lives on Moran, a block away. To the argument that streets must be kept free of cars for snow-plowing and cleaning, she said pointedly that Moran "is the last street plowed, if ever. And safety outweighs street cleaning."

Winifred James, 59 Moran, a former resident of Cambridge, Massachusetts, described Cambridge's parking permit system, and said it worked fine. Geoffrey Rees, who lives in a Palmer Square apartment, told Council it was cold, walking the "one-third mile" from the Maclean Street lot, where he parks. He added that "women are petrified of parking yards."

But Borough residents fear that overnight parking would increase crime, reported Council member Jane Terpstra. "I was amazed at the reaction of people at the thought of doing away with this ordinance," she stated.

Mrs. Terpstra, who is now Police Commissioner, said she wanted comments from the police and discussion at a public meeting. Council member Richard Macgill also asked for more information before an ordinance is drafted.

He also suggested that residents, Mr. Huntoon, police and fire commissioners meet together and invite representatives of the Zoning Board as well.

Asked by Mayor Sigmund to comment, Borough engineer George Olexa sighed: "This comes up about every four years."

He reminded Council that a 30-minute loading zone was created on Bank, and said that, or perhaps two-hour parking, might be done elsewhere. And he added: "Nobody ever thinks their street is snow-plowed."

issues that relate to Mt. Laurel. If they think the WJDC is the vehicle, that's up to them."

WJDC Complaint Complete. Meanwhile, the WJDC has not yet filed its Mt. Laurel suit against the Borough and Collins. WJDC's lawyer, Glenn R. Cochran, of the Cochran & Schultz law firm, said this week that the complaint is complete, and ready to be filed. He declined to say what "if anything," WJDC is waiting for, but he added that an agreement with Collins or the Borough "doesn't appear likely."

Mr. Green doesn't think the court will accept a WJDC suit because, in his view, the non-profit organization is past the 45-day deadline.

The suit, if it is filed, will allege that the Borough hasn't provided for the housing needs of even its own lower-income residents, to say nothing of the municipality's fair share of the prospective needs of the area.

Regarding Collins, Mr. Cochran said the issue is whether the judge assigned to Mt. Laurel cases in this section of the state will include Collins in the remedies he sets forth. Mr. Cochran also cited the effects of high-income housing, such as Collins plans for its Hulfish North area, on the Witherspoon neighborhood right across the street.

Mr. Cochran said he has participated in the negotiation talks with Mr. Green, has con-

Drive-in Eliminated

Collins Development is eliminating Princeton Bank's drive-in from the Chambers Street garage. The drive-in, once the subject of heated argument between Collins and neighboring merchants, is being designed out because, according to Collins, the bank doesn't want it there any more.

Modified garage plans, minus drive-in, will go before the Planning Board at either the June 21 work session or sometime in July.

Meanwhile, at next Tuesday's meeting (7:30, Valley Road Building), the Planning Board will consider another drive-in bank, this one at the corner of land bounded by State Road, Mt. Lucas and the strip of roadway that connects the two roads. A laboratory once occupied the existing building.

One Cherry Hill Associates plans a 39,873-square-foot office building and drive-in, using the present building and adding to it. A parking variance will be required.

Also at the June 21 work session, the board will consider Medical Center plans to add to Princeton House, Herrontown Road.

The Annual Costume Party and Beer Bash Called 'Reunions' Arrives this Weekend

The annual four-day costume party and beer bash known as Princeton Reunions is about to overtake the community.

Out-of-town cars will vie for the rare parking space along Nassau Street, and restaurants will be taken over by mini-reunions of Princeton classmates, relatives and friends. Residents accustomed to the annual ritual will scarcely notice alumni in their midst, clad in orange and black pin stripes, tiger stripes, space suits, safari wear, prison garb, baseball uniforms, even coolie clothes — their wives and many children similarly clothed. Store window displays will take on a Halloween look.

Accustomed to the spring-summer-winter-fall presence of Princeton year in and year out, the town is both startled and touched each year at the legendary loyalty and the sense of continuity that brings alumni in such numbers back to the campus. Judge Harold C. Medina of the Class of 1909 will be returning for his 75th reunion, bringing with him an entourage of family members to celebrate an extraordinary occasion, a feat of survival.

But Judge Medina, although well-known, is not the oldest returning alumnus. According to the Alumni Council, that honor goes this year to Carl Hinrichsen '07 of South Orange. Both, by virtue of their seniority, will march with the Old Guard at the head of Saturday's P-Rade, right behind the 25th reunion class, those who graduated in 1959.

Along with the revelry and time for reminiscing, Reunions offer continuing education opportunities in the form of alumni-faculty forums on a wide range of topics. This year, the topics pose questions: "Is Disarmament Worth Fighting For?" "Transportation in the '80s: Does Government Belong in the Travel Business?" "Dos and Don'ts: Should Educators Teach Morality?" "Medical Care: Where Should the Dollars Go?"

Residents interested in these and similar topics in funding the arts, computer literacy, media influence, American architecture, and fiscal policy may obtain a full copy of the reunion schedule from the Alumni Council in Maclean House, next to Nassau Presbyterian Church on Nassau Street.

Some features of Reunions are perennial. Princeton University radio station WPRB will present Jean Shepard in concert for the 19th consecutive year on Friday and Saturday evenings, June 2 and 3, at 8 in McCosh 50. Hubert N. Alyea '24, professor of chemistry, emeritus, will give his famous discourse to laymen entitled "Lucky Accidents, Great Discoveries and the Prepared Mind" Saturday, June 2, from 10:30 to 11:45 a.m. in Kresge Auditorium, Frick Hall, Washington Road.

TOPICS Of The Town

Former and graduating students of Robert Hollander's course on Dante will gather for their eighth annual Dante Reunion Reception Friday, June 2, from 5:30 to 7 at Maclean House. Alumni will take on varsity in baseball and lacrosse and the 10th annual alumni track and field meet — said to be amateur track and field "at its best." The Katzenjammers will hold a 10th anniversary concert Saturday, June 3, at 11, the same hour that a musical tribute to Fred Fox '39, sponsored by the Princeton University Band, will be taking place on Cannon Green.

The event that draws townspeople, however, is the One and Only P-Rade, the class by class procession that forms in front of Nassau Hall Saturday at 2 and makes its way along McCosh Walk and down Prospect Street. Here in passing review are the gameness and gallantry of the Old Guard, the astonishing number of progeny belonging to the major reunion classes, inventiveness in costuming, ribaldry in the posters — the classic male WASP profile giving way to the ethnic diversity of the post-war years and then to women in the early 70s.

Finally, in a burst of ebullience, comes the Class of 1984, wearing their new beer jackets, which this year depict a tiger with the motto "Big Brother is Watching." Reunions is the prelude to their graduation.

The following day, Sunday, they will process more solemnly in caps and gowns along with the faculty, robed and hooded, into the Chapel for the Baccalaureate Service at 2. Paul Sarbanes, Democratic Senator from Maryland, will give the Baccalaureate address to the graduates and their families. Senator Sarbanes, a Democrat, is a member of the Class of 1954 and a parent of a graduating senior. Afterwards, President and Mrs. William G. Bowen will be the hosts at a reception for graduates and their guests at Prospect.

Monday is Class Day for the seniors, with Class Day ceremonies on Cannon Green at 10:30, department receptions all afternoon and the Senior Prom in Jadwin Gym that night. On Tuesday, June 5, beginning at 10, the University Band will play on the front campus while families and friends of the graduates find seats in front of Nassau Hall. The Academic procession will begin at 10:35, and the 257th annual Princeton University Commencement will begin at 11.

As a sort of coda to the whole proceedings, the International Center will hold a special Commencement luncheon for graduating friends, departing visiting scholars and their families at noon. But by then the major events of Reunions and Commencement will be over. With the bulk of out-of-state cars heading out of town, Princeton will turn to its next major event: the annual Hospital Fete.

$200 FROM COUNCIL

For Insurance. Protesting the $200 cost of the half-a-million liability insurance required by the Borough before a parade permit is issued, the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament found itself at the end of Council's work session last Thursday, with a $200 contribution from the Borough.

This Thursday, an estimated 50 to 100 people will hold a "March for Freedom" on the Nassau Street sidewalk from Harrison to the Nassau Presbyterian Church on Palmer Square, said the Rev. Bob Moore, executive director of the Coalition.

"We are exercising our First Amendment rights, and the insurance requirement is unfair," the Rev. Mr. Moore declared.

Shopping around, he said, the Coalition found that $200 is the cheapest liability insurance available. Two years ago, it was $50.

Borough attorney Walter Bliss explained that the insurance requirement has been made by the Borough "firmly and consistently," although it is not part of the parade ordinance directly. In the past, he said, Council has waived the requirement.

If it's waived this time, what next? asked Council member Richard Woodbridge. If there is a scuffle, or if someone should fall, the Borough would be part of the subsequent suit, he said. Mr. Bliss said Coalition insurance would protect the Borough.

Council member Peter Bearse said the $200 cost could hold back a group with siender resources and asked why any private group should have to bear these costs.

The Borough lost the Olympic Torch parade because the group refused to pay the insurance, Mayor Barbara Sigmund reported. Other towns did waive their insurance requirements. Incidentally, the torch group came through the Borough anyway, without a permit, she pointed out.

All six Council members agreed with Richard Macgill's motion to contribute $200 to the Coalition and study the policy further.

NEW PRINCIPAL?

Still Evaluating. Two finalists, one from within the Princeton school system and one from another district, are under consideration for the job of Community Park School principal, Superintendent Paul Houston said this week.

The school board could make the selection this Tuesday, next Tuesday or even as late as Tuesday, June 12, Dr. Houston said, adding that the twc candidates are so close in their individual strengths that decision is difficult. He declined to identify the candidate within the Princeton system.

The new principal will replace Norma Gumbiner who is resigning to join her husband in managing a Thomas Sweet franchise in Washington, D.C.

INDUSTRIAL PARK SET

For Walker-Gordon Site. A proposal is before the Plainsboro Planning Board for conceptual approval for the development of the old Walker-Gordon Farms as a high technology industrial park.

Walker-Gordon Farms was once the largest dairy operation in the area and the center of Plainsboro's farming history. It was also the home of the Rotolactor, a unique merry-go-round for almost wholly automated, round-the-clock, twice-a-day milking of the giant Walker-Gordon herd. Dairy operations at the farms ceased in 1971, although some beef cattle and grain farming are still being done there by Walker-Gordon and its Jeffwell Farms subsidiary.

Henry Jeffers III, descendent of the original Walker-Gordon owner, is president of Walker-Gordon Laboratory Co. that will seeks to develop a 234-acre portion of the family holdings. The tract is bounded on two sides by the Millstone River and Devil's Brook, and the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, Firmenich and FMC on the Plainsboro Road form the other boundaries.

According to Phillip Collins of CUH2A, architects for the project, 170 of the 234 acres will be developed, and the remainder, lying in the floodplain of the Millstone, will be retained as open space and for recreational use by the occupants of the sites. The 170 acres will be subdivided into 15-17 sites averaging 10 acres each.

The area is zoned industrial, and Mr. Collins expects that firms engaged in high technology, light manufacturing, assembly, research, data processing or warehousing will be attracted to the complex. He sees a "real need" for this kind of office park for smaller developing companies that have outgrown their original rented space and are ready to build their own facility.

He points out that although the complex is a "substantial project," it will differ markedly from Forrestal, Carnegie Center and other complexes along Route 1. Those centers consist of multi-tenant speculative office buildings, he says, whereas at the Walker-Gordon project, specific sites will be leased or sold to a corporate entity who will develop them or have them developed for specific uses.

Over the next 20 years, the $250 million complex is expected to produce some 1.5 million square feet of office space and may bring as many as 2,000 or 3,000 jobs into the area. This is somewhat less than the current zoning would allow, Mr. Collins points out. The Walker-Gordon Laboratory Co. will impose "strict requirements" on prospective builders as to height limitations, buffer zones, building materials and other standards, he says.

At the initial presentation before the Plainsboro Planning Board, questions were raised as to the traffic impact of the proposal. The CUH2A firm is in the process of selecting a traffic consultant to prepare a detailed traffic analysis. The Department of Transportation's plans for alleviating congestion on Route 1 will in turn have an impact on the project, Mr. Collins says.

If the project is approved, Walker-Gordon plans to start building the sewer connections and roads by next year. Construction of buildings will not begin before 1986, he notes.

AND IN BOROUGH HALL:

Running the Store. A list of housekeeping ordinances was introduced at Borough Council's work session Thursday, and public hearings set for Tuesday, June 12.

Affordable housing was not on Thursday's agenda. John Huntoon, co-chair of Council's committee, said no date had been set for Council discussion of the affordable housing report.

Ordinances introduced:

- Authorizing a professional study of building a fire-house in the Township — there is none at present — and rebuilding the asphalt apron at the North Harrison Street.
- Installing a traffic light at Alexander and University, installation and half yearly maintenance, including electricity, to be paid by Princeton University. Cost to the Borough: an estimated $200 annually. Mr. Huntoon voted against, declaring the University should pay all maintenance. Mayor Barbara Sigmund said re-negotiation would cost more in time spent than the Borough would save.
- Prohibiting parking on Chambers on the east side from Nassau to Hulfish, approving two-hour parking on Chambers north of Hulfish for 210 feet, a temporary move during garage construction.
- Renovating the interior of Borough Hall to provide for the handicapped and installing new ventilation in the police shooting gallery at a cost of $30,000.

Council member Jane Terpstra, the Borough's new Police Commissioner, said she had been introduced to the cardboard boxes of records "five and six deep" stored in the police department. She proposed buying microfilm equipment so records could be filmed and placed in a vault for fire-protection.

When she was head of Mercer County's legal services, Mrs. Terpstra said, she had gone through a fire and it was "living hell" to reconstruct records. Law requires that many records be kept by the Borough for 50 years. "They are valuable and irreplaceable," she commented.

Equipment, which might be bought jointly with the Township, could be used by several departments, perhaps including the public library, she suggested.

Administrator Mark Gordon was asked to find out costs.

NEW DORM PLANNED

By University. A gift of $1.3 million from a member of the Class of 1963 will enable Princeton University to build a new dormitory as part of Woodrow Wilson College, one of five residential colleges for freshmen and sophomores.

The first new dormitory to be constructed on campus since 1973, the structure will be a six-story tower and will house 40 students. It will be named in honor of the donor, David H. Feinberg, a real estate developer in Florida and Colorado who presently lives in New York. Mr. Feinberg has had a longstanding interest in the residential and academic life of Princeton undergraduates.

Construction of Feinberg Hall will not begin until next year and is expected to be completed by the fall semester of 1986. It will be located between Walker and 1937 halls in the southern part of the campus. Because it is in the E-2 or educational zone and more than 150 feet from a roadway, it will not have to be approved by the Planning Board or its subcommittee, the Environmental Design Review Committee. Plans will have to conform with state and Borough building codes, however.

101 BIRTHDAYS: Katherine Baker, subject of a Town Topics feature last year on her centenary, celebrated her 101st birthday Tuesday, May 29 at Merwick. Formerly a bookkeeper for the Cooper and Schafer roofing company and before that for Bamman's, a specialty grocery store that used to be at the corner of Nassau and Bank, Mrs. Baker retired from the business world ten years ago — at the age of 91.

The first four floors will contain suites consisting of two double rooms, a living room and bathroom. Floors five and six will be linked to form two six-person duplex suites. In addition to providing bed spaces for Wilson College, the new dormitory will make rooms in adjacent Patton Hall available to juniors and seniors, thereby improving housing options for upperclass students. Patton is currently occupied by freshman and sophomore members of Wilson College.

The new dormitory has been designed by Tod Williams, a 1965 graduate of Princeton and a principal of Tod Williams and Associates of New York City.

HOME IS ENTERED

On Linden Lane. Two camera lenses valued at $250 were all a thief managed to escape with after he was surprised last week by the owner inside a Linden Lane home. A video recorder, stereo receiver and other items had been placed in a suitcase ready to be carried out, police said, when the owner returned home at 11:37 Friday night.

Police are looking for a suspect described as an 18- to 25-year-old, thin, black male wearing dark shorts and a dark shirt with cutoff sleeves.

The owner told police when he enterded his home he noticed the odor of burnt matches. Then when he heard a noise in a bedroom, he ran outside the house towards the bedroom window. As he came around the corner, he saw someone climb out of a window and run south on Linden Lane. The owner pursued the suspect, police said, but lost him between other homes in the darkness.

He returned to his home and called police. An investigation revealed that a screen from a window off the front porch had been tampered with to gain entry. Inside, police found burned matches throughout the house.

A six- by nine-foot Persian rug valued at $600 was stolen between 12:15 and 3 Sunday morning from the first-floor foyer of the Colonial Club, 40 Prospect Avenue. The club was not locked and police say they do not have any suspects.

House Ransacked. A Sycamore Lane home was entered and ransacked between Saturday morning and 6:35 Monday evening.

According to police, the intruder stood on a lawn chair from the patio to reach and pry open a casement window above the kitchen sink. Once inside, he completely ransacked the house. Police said the intruder also removed soda from the refrigerator and deliberately splashed it against walls and furniture in the living room.

Police said they do not know what may have been taken and are awaiting a list from the owner. Ptl. David Funk is investigating.

CEMETERY IS VISITED

By Vandals. Vandals visited the Princeton Cemetery off Witherspoon Street overnight last week.

Someone burned two flags and stole a wreath at the grave of President Grover Cleveland, police said, and also burned purple candles on the grave site. At another grave a five-foot granite cross was pushed from its site. The cross, valued at $3,000, was not damaged.

Between 1 and 6 A.M. Monday, a beer bottle was hurled through a plate glass picture window of a Princeton-Kingston Road home. Located on the northeast side of the home, the 48- by 51-inch window is valued at approximately $300.

Driver Struck by Pellet. Although Township police have apprehended two in the area for firing pellet guns, apparently there are others continuing the dangerous practice.

Police report that, as a South Brunswick Township resident was driving on Roper Road last week, she felt a sharp pain in her neck as she approached the Princeton-Kingston Road. The victim stopped her car, looked around but did not see anyone. She continued on, thinking she may have been struck by a flying stone, police said.

Upon arriving home, her son noticed a welt on his mother's neck. A search of her car uncovered a BB pellet that had apparently been shot through an open car window, striking the victim in the neck. She was treated later at Princeton Medical Center and released.

Ptl. William Potts and Ptl. David Cromwell are investigating.

HITS PARKED CAR

Driver Is Charged. A 21-year-old driver has been charged with driving while intoxicated by Township police after he struck a parked car on Walnut Lane.

According to police, Daniel J. Emann, 4571 Province Line Road, crossed over the center line of Walnut Lane near the intersection of Hickory Court shortly before 4 a.m. Monday and struck the parked car of Albert Kahny, 271 Walnut Lane, head-on. Mr. Emann was taken to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated for a laceration of the face and released.

He had been charged with drunken driving after the investigating officer, Ptl. Robert Buchanan detected a strong odor of alcohol. Both cars had to be towed from the scene.

FILM IS SHOPLIFTED

Trenton Woman Charged. A Trenton resident, Christina Bondini, 26, was charged last week with shoplifting a large number of Polaroid film packs from the Acme Market in the Princton Shopping Center.

Ms. Bondini was pursued by the store manager and an employee and apprehended outside the store after a short chase. Police report that a male accomplice escaped.

The film was valued at $268, of which $119.60 worth was recovered from Ms. Bondini. She was later released in $500 bail, after being issued a summons calling for her appearance in Township Court.

Wanted on Warrant. Kenneth Goodwyn, 32, of Trenton, was turned over to Montgomery Township Police following his arrest on a motor vehicle violation in the Borough.

Goodwyn was stopped at 1 last Wednesday morning by Ptl. Michael Taylor and Ptl. Anthony Federico after the officers had observed his car weaving back and forth over a double yellow line on Nassau Street near Harrison. A check with the national crime computer revealed that Goodwyn was wanted by the Montgomery Police on a contempt of court warrant.

3 Juveniles Charged. Three juveniles, ages 13 and 14, were arrested Sunday afternoon in the rear lot behind the No. 1 Firehouse on Chestnut Street where they were allegedly trying to steal a large, plastic garbage can.

The youths, who had two six packs of beer in their possession, were charged with theft, possession of alcohol and resisting arrest. The youths, who attempted to flee when they observed Ptl. Mark Stillitano responding to a 3:39 call from a neighbor, were apprehended, charged and later released to their parents. Police said they resided in Pennington, Blawenburg and Hopewell Township.

4 Tennis Racquets Stolen. Four tennis racquets, two each on two separate occasions, have been shoplifted from The Competitive Sport, 179 Nassau Street. Combined, they are valued at $800.

Police identified the racquets as two Wilson Pro Staff worth $205 each and two Head Graphite, $195 each. Two persons who were seen acting suspiciously in the store are suspects.

A dog house valued at $100 was reported stolen last week from the rear yard of an Overbrook Drive home. Taken sometime between March 27 and April 6, the doghouse was described by police as large enough to require two people to move it.

A $550 moped was stolen last week while the owner, a resident of Crooked Tree Lane, was fishing in Stony Brook on Princeton Day School property.

The victim told police he had left the moped off the roadway on Dean Mathey Lane when he heard some voices and laughter. A short time later, he heard a moped being driven away. He ran up the bank to find his moped was missing. A search of the area was fruitless.

There were more bicycle thefts reported last week.

A Princeton High School student listed the theft of his $250 Fuji model from the rear of the Engineering Quadrangle where it had been chained to a post — someone cut the chain — and an unlocked 10-speed Peugeot was taken from a rear lot located on the Walnut Lane side of Princeton High School. A second bicycle, also unlocked, was taken Friday from the same Princeton High School area. Police described it as a $100 Raleigh 3-speed.

The first bicycle theft at the Community Park Pool complex, which opened for its first weekend this season, was reported on Saturday. Between 2 and 4 p.m., someone stole an unlocked, blue and silver Schwinn. The victim described the bike as "old and in poor condition" but still placed a $100 value on it.

REMEMBER WHEN: Alumni Day at Princeton Day School will be on Saturday, June 9, beginning with the alumnae lacrosse game at 11. Lunch will be served at 1 in the dining room, followed by a panel discussion in the theater and a cocktail party at 4. Alumnae from Miss Fine's School, such as this playground group, will join alumni from Princeton Country Day School and Princeton Day School for the celebration on the PDS campus.

A girl's unlocked, blue Schwinn 10-speed was taken early last week from the front yard of a Von Neumann Drive home. In its place, police said, the thief had left another bicycle. A driver's license number engraved on the frame of the latter led police to the owner who reported having donated the bike to the Princeton Day School auction sale.

1966 CAR DISABLED By Fire on Alexander Street. While a visitor from Moulton, Texas was driving last week on Alexander Street near Faculty Road, his 1966 sedan caught fire.

The fire, which began in a faulty carburetor, spread throughout the engine compartment and burned belts and hoses, disabling the car. One fire truck and approximatley 15 firemen responded at 11:46 a.m. and extinguished the blaze.

INNOVATIONS PLANNED In Fete Food. The food area for the Jazzy Fete on June 9 will include a new children's food tent, expanded booths, additional shaded seating areas and continued involvement from area businesses, civic groups, clubs and churches.

In response to Fete-goers' suggestions, the food area has made several changes. All food of the kind especially appealing to children will be housed, for the first time, under a large tent in the children's area of the field. These booths include Sno Cones, Sweet Shop (penny candy and gum), Ice Cream and Italian Ices, Cotton

Fete Refreshments, serving coffee, tea, juice, doughnuts, croissants, and bagels will have an additional booth near the auction tent for those waiting to bid. For those needing shade, a covered seating area will be available between Fete Refreshments and Sundaes & Banana Splits in the Connoisseur's Corner tent. In response to a request for nutritious drinks, Fete Refreshments will sell fruit juices and the Wine Bar will sell chilled bottled mineral water.

The food area for the Jazzy Fete has 23 separate food concessions with 28 booths. All but three of the concessions are operated by area civic organizations, businesses, clubs, scout troops, churches, business associations and school groups. New organizations, on the field for the first time, include the Business and Professional Women's Club of Princeton, Multimodal Therapy Institute, the Rusty Scupper restaurant, Park Lane Furniture, Princeton High School Student Council and the Princeton Presbyterian Church.

In addition to those already listed, food concessions this year include baked goods, beef raffle, beer, chicken, clam bar, fish and chips, frozen casseroles, frozen desserts, fudge-country store of Cranbury, hoagies, hot dogs, and hamburgers, pizza, strawberry patch, tacos and a pasta salad bar.

280 TO GRADUATE From Seminary. Princeton Theological Seminary will confer 280 postgraduate degrees at its 172nd Commencement this Wednesday, May 30, in the Princeton University Chapel.

One hundred seventy-three students, of whom 57 are women, will received the master of divinity degree, the basic degree in preparation for professional Christian ministry. Ten doctor of philosophy degrees will be conferred, of which three will go to women.

The Rev. Frederick Buechner, noted author and Presbyterian clergyman, will give the commencement address. A 1947 graduate of Princeton University, he is known as a novelist and essayist as well as an accomplished preacher. His most recent book, just published by Harper and Row, is entitled "A Room Called Remember" and includes essays on writing and religion, as well as sermons.

Thomas W. Gillespie, president of Princeton Seminary, will also address the graduates after conferring the degrees. The Seminary choir under the direction of David A. Weadon, director of music, will provide music for the service.

Graduates from the Seminary will serve in many denominations of the Christian church throughout this country and around the world as pastors, educators, and chaplains.

For June 18. Athletic events for older adults will be featured at the first annual Princeton Senior Olympics to be held on Monday, June 18, at the Community Park pool complex from 9 - 2:30.

The Princeton Recreation Department and the Senior Resource Center are organizing the occasion. The rain date has been set for Tuesday, June 19.

The Senior Olympics will be open to all Princeton residents who are 60 years of age or older. There will be no registration or admission fee.

In addition to athletic events, the program will include lunch for all participants, donated by Princeton Caterers, several short films on physical fitness, and square dancing. Free T-shirts and hats and other favors will also be distributed, through the courtesy of the sponsors, Princeton Bank-Horizon Trust, AMF-Head and Landau.

"Awards in most of the events will be given for skill rather than speed," said Jocelyn Helm, director of the Senior Resource Center. In tennis, for example, the competition will be for the most accurate serve, she explained.

Other scheduled events will include swimming, bocce, frisbee and softball throwing, hole-in-one, basketball toss, walking and horseshoes. Each event will be divided into age groups, with separate competitions for ages 60 through 64, 65 through 69 and 70 and older.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. with the opening ceremonies, and continue until 2, when the awards ceremony will take place.

"We are trying to promote awareness of the importance of physical fitness for older adults," said Ms. Helm. "We are hoping to attract average performers who enjoy athletic activities. Everyone is welcome."

Pre-registration is encouraged, so that the number of lunches can be accurately estimated, but it is not necessary. Registration forms are available at the Recreation Department, the Senior Resource Center and the YWCA. For further information, call 921-9480.

The committee in charge of the event is headed by Jocelyn Helm of the Senior Resource Center, Kathy Clarkson of the Princeton Recreation Department and Barbara Daume of the YWCA. It also includes Bob Sinkler, Sister Maggie Kilduff of Stuart Country Day School, Bayard Jordan, Eleanor Speers and Sue Fremon.

AT HOME SHOW

Take the Shuttle. A shuttle bus service between Palmer Square to the Route One Hyatt Regency hotel will shuttle guests to the Home Show of the Chamber of Commerce to be held this Saturday from 10 to 4 at the Hyatt. The public is invited and admission is free.

The Show has been planned, in the Chamber's words, "to acquaint business and the community with one another." There will be demonstrations, door prizes and information about decorating, financing, maintenance, home entertainment and related subjects.

Door prizes have been donated by several dozen corporations and merchants in the area, ranging from LaVake Jewelers to McGraw Hill.

ROAD WIDENING SET

For Mt. Lucas Rd. The portion of Mt. Lucas Road between Herrontown Road and the Princeton-Montgomery border is scheduled for improvement this summer.

The work will include widening the roadway to 24 feet, reshaping of the roadway embankments, improving the drainage, resurfacing, and putting topsoil and grass seed on the disturbed areas. The contractor was scheduled to begin work this week, after Memorial Day, and be mostly finished by the middle of July.

The roadway will be closed to through traffic during working hours and at certain other times at night. Access will be provided to property owners along the affected section.

CLOCKS ARE TOPIC

Of Rocky Hill Talk. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present "The Joy of Clock Collecting" on Thursday, June 7, at 7:30 with Hank Hirschmann from Hirschmann Antiques Restoration in Titusville.

The program will cover a short history of clocks, emphasizing American clockmakers, what to look for and SCOTCH PLAID AND VINTAGE CARS have apparently been part of the Princeton Alumni Reunions since the turn of the century — as this photograph from the Historical Society's glass plate archives attests. Can you date the car? Identify the house? or the Reunion Highlander? If so, the Historical Society would welcome a call weekdays from 1-5 at 921-6748 or a note sent to Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street. The photograph is one of a series appearing in TOWN TOPICS to elicit identification of people, places and businesses from the late 19th-early 20th century from those who may still remember back that far.

SUMMER SESSION SET By Hun School. A five-week summer session at The Hun School will run from July 2 to August 3. William McQuade is the new director of summer programs.

A graduate of Juniata College and a member of the Hun faculty for 13 years, Mr. McQuade is also chairman of the math department and varsity baseball coach. The summer programs located on the Hun campus will use the facilities of the school and be staffed by Hun faculty as well as other professionals.

In his new post, Mr. McQuade will oversee the administration of two coed summer programs: the summer school, which he will head, and a summer stock theater program taught by drama director Craig Evans. A coordinate day camp program, under the direction of Hun's athletic director, William Quirk, will also be offered.

Summer School, open to boarding and day students in grades 6 to 12, will offer enrichment and refresher courses in a variety of subjects, including reading skills, expository writing, SAT previews, middle and upper school math, science, history, foreign languages and typing.

Two enrichment courses in computer science will be offered, a beginning course in the use of BASIC language, which will teach commands and problem solving techniques, and a beginning course in the use of PASCAL language. The latter will serve as an introduction to the Advanced Placement computer science course defined by Educational Testing Service. All computer instruction will be on Apple IIe microcomputers.

The summer stock theater program, open to ages 6 to 12, will run weekdays from 1 to 4 p.m. The program is intended to give students an experience comparable to New England summer stock without subjecting them to the intense competition of professional theater. Workshops to sharpen stage skills will be paired with practical experience in staging a public performance.

IT'S NEW To Us

UPDATED TRADITIONAL LOOK: Alan Haines, new owner of Alan Royce (formerly the Country Squire) at 20 Nassau Street, is proud of his shop which has featured men's wear for the past 50 years. While continuing the best in Princeton's fine tradition in clothing for men, Mr. Haines has brought an updated look and a new spectrum of colors to town.

ALAN ROYCE

New Men's Store in Town. Blending the fine tradition of a respected clothier for men with the more updated look seen in city stores, Alan Haines has clearly enjoyed renovating his new shop, Alan Royce. Well-situated on the corner of Nassau and Chambers Streets, the location has housed a men's store for the past 50 years, the Country Squire for 15, and prior to that, Douglas MacDaid.

A native of Yardley, Pa., Mr. Haines has a fondness for antiques and delights in the fine cabinetry work he found for his shop. Handmade cabinets of solid oak with glass doors which pull out from the side, fine polo and hunting prints, an antique armoire from Mrs. Haines' family home, handsome green and tan carpeting, awnings, and a new stained glass window combine to create an atmosphere of old Princeton for Alan Royce, which has just celebrated its six-month anniversary.

"I couldn't resist this corner and the possibilities for display. I have always wanted to have my own shop. Now it's a reality and I love it," explains the youthful Mr. Haines with enthusiasm. He has been in the men's clothing business for 12 years, working part time in a men's shop in Yardley.

Fully aware of the hefty competition in men's clothing in town, Mr. Haines has tried to bring a new look to Princeton, selecting styles and designs which are traditional yet reflect a contemporary look. Mr. Haines is not label-oriented but selects certain brands for their pure fabrics. He prefers all-cotton and wool pieces to the blends, though there are some of the latter to be found in the shop.

Colorful Sportswear. Merona sportswear has brought a lively spectrum of color to the shop, where both men and women have been buying the comfortable pull-on shorts and pants with corresponding rugby sweaters and all-cotton shirts of stripes and solids. Delicious ice cream cone colors, such as raspberry, strawberry, and grape are combined with turquoise and white and soft yellows to make a super summer fashion statement. Mr. Haines has reordered Merona sportswear several times already — especially the men's small size which women are buying heavily.

The old oak armoire found in the 11-bedroom home of Mrs. Haines' aunt now houses Alan Royce's sweater collection. A stunning selection of cotton knit crew and v-neck sweaters in soft mauve, navy, grey and green, to mention a few, ranges from $30 up to a gorgeous handknit one for $75. Stripes, solids and argyles will make wonderful gifts for Father's Day, which is almost upon us.

A small gift section in the front of the shop will yield other good ideas for Dad: well-priced handsome gifts such as a money clip at $10, monogrammed blazer buttons, a reversible monogrammed belt buckle for $25, mother-of-pearl studs, a leather shoe horn and a large assortment of suspenders including the ultimate pair of lamb suede with alligator tips.

Alan Royce also favors pure cotton when it comes to shirting. Dress shirts with contrasting collars, button-downs and the English spread collars in solids and unusual stripes are popular items. Handsome broadcloth sport shirts for summer and colorful madras ones are good gifts.

Ready for Alums. Reunions will bring a steady stream of customers to Alan Royce, where the shop has revived the Princeton tiger mesh cotton shirt which can also be mail ordered. The tigers are put on with a laser so they will never come off!

Mr. Haines feels that one of his greatest assets is his tailor, Freddie Pisani, who has been with the shop for more than 31 years. "He's terrific, the best tailor around. He charts our customers' sizes so they don't even have to come in for fittings after a while," says the owner, who offers free alterations for pants for men and women. Monogramming is a useful service as well, taking only one week.

Princetonians will appreciate the fine quality of men's suits and trousers found at Alan Royce. This summer, 100 percent tropical wool is being featured, a good buy which can be worn all year round. Mr. Haines feels that it is important for men who travel all over the world to be able to take jut one set of clothes along.

Beautifully tailored blazers and sports jackets by Chaps and other makers can be ordered from a catalogue featuring swatches of handsome tweeds, camelhair, and even cashmere. The ones in stock will please the shopper, as will the pleated chinos, khaki, and dress grey pants at $37.50 which are hard to find in town.

Mr. Haines has discovered a need for fine tailored suits for business women as well, and expects to order several for his customers this fall.

Strolling by Alan Royce one will not only notice a colorful display window with a new look but some lovely old copper trim which the owner found underneath paint while renovating the shop. Something old and something new has appeal to many young men who are about to be married, according to Mr. Haines. Several have stopped by to shape up their wardrobes!

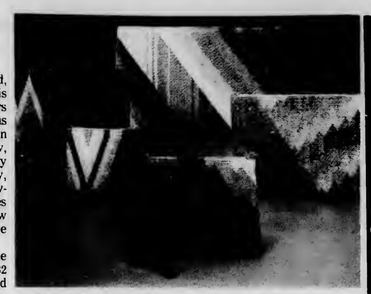
APTLY NAMED

Full House. Aptly named, Full House of Kingston is presently filled to the rafters with one of the best collections of contemporary crafts seen in the area. The current show, featuring distinctive jewelry from all over the country, fiber art, ceramic work, weavings, and painted sculptures on canvas, to mention a few categories, will continue through July 15.

The two sisters who own the attractive gallery located at 32 Main Street, Phyllis Kane and Ruth Sandler, have a flare for collecting the unusual and unique. Their adventurous spirit and contagious enthusiasm for contemporary crafts is evident in each show they bring to the gallery, now in its fourth year. Their combined years of experience in the art world and jewlery business assure their customers will always find a unique gift. The current show will be followed by an exhibition of paintings and sculptures with flowers as its theme.

Fortunately for the shopper with an eye for exquisite jewelry at reasonable prices, a fine selection of 14 and 18 carat jewelry is a constant at Full House.

Handcrafted gold jewelry and freshwater and cultured pearls are in ample stock and will make wonderful gifts for graduation or perhaps for a bride. A long strand is priced at $50. Slightly baroque cultured pearls, 8½ millimeters, of the finest quality, are priced at $625 per strand. Beautiful rings, earrings, pendants, and gold necklaces, identical to the designs found in large department stores, are discounted by 25% at Full House.



The room where jewelry is displayed in the gallery is a feast to the eyes. Crafts of all stripes, colors and textures can be viewed here. Colorful ceramic beads from Greece hang in decorative patterns on the walls amid European crystals which have become so popular. Adjustable suede belts fashioned with stunning buckles of silver plate, jade, agate, and mother-of-pearl (or in other stones to order) from Tucson, Arizona are well-priced at $100. Unusual silver and brass jewelry by Phyllis Redfield makes an important fashion statement.

A husband and wife team from Ohio have created glorious earrings and stick pins — handpainted designs on porcelain edged in 14-carat gold for only $18 and $8 respectively. Stick pins have made a comeback it seems. Antique ivory ones in the shapes of roses and tulips are good gifts for $18.

Holloware of brass and other metals begins at $20 and is handsomely displayed with handwrought silver jewelry by several different artists.

CRAFTS AS FINE ART is the theme of Full House, a gallery in Kingston which is currently exhibiting a wonderful collection of fine crafts in various mediums. These handsome double woven tapestry purses by Doris Louie of New Mexico are colorful and southwestern in feeling.

In Fiber. Moving on to the fiber art department, gorgeous handknits by artists from Princeton and weavings from several different states offset a small but wearable collection of summer cotton knit dresses. Reversible handmade double-layered weaving has been used by one artist to make beautiful jackets. Sweaters and sweater jackets from Oregon will catch the eye. These can be worn all year round.

Whimsical hats — some with large cabbage roses — in all shapes can be worn with the glamorous cotton knits. The useful dresses are available in a rainbow of colors.

Looking for a truly unusual craft to collect? You will find it upstairs at Full House where handmade and painted porcelain has been molded into Victorian-style beds complete with coverlets and real down stuffing. Some of the tiny beds have drawers which pull out. Other creative sculptures by the same artist include porcelains of tiny baby suits and dresses on hangers, endearing reminders of those happy days which go by so quickly.

Award-winning silk screen artist Pam Scheinman has done computer and germ warfare series which are colorful creations at $125 each.

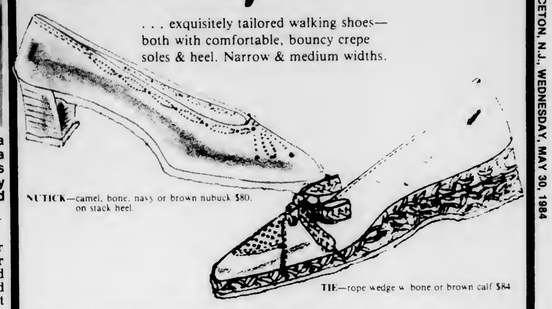
Beautiful handwoven rugs by Nancy Cramer and earthy weavings by Pam Richardson make handsome wall hangings. Other notable pieces by artists from this area include enamels by Pat Lange and stunning painted sculptures on canvas and totems of white by Hope Carter. Nina Gelardi of Clayphernalia is taking orders for her new ceramic buckles on display with suede belts.

Basket collectors will revel in the diverse assortment of well-priced baskets. Pastel potato baskets of reed with grapevine handles are only $22! Country shapes, such as the Appalachian melon baskets and the traditional egg basket are lovely pieces to display in any corner of the house.

Think about giving a bride some of the ovenproof ceramic bowls and souffle dishes or a graceful vase for that special occasion. Ceramic artist Yvonne Aronson has made covered bowls, oil lamps, honey pots and wall pieces.

Artist Ellen Eichel, who recently gave a one-woman show at the Pen and Brush club in New York, does glorious quilted hand-painted silks intertwined with brasses and threads and floats them in frames. The interesting creations of flowers and desert scenes are sensational in texture and color.

The major thrust at Full House is to present crafts as fine art, according to Phyllis Kane.



"We try to bring together creative people from all over the country forming a bond between painting and sculpture and other art forms," says the talented Mrs. Kane.

veyed their sense to the WJDC and will continue to attend discussions and report to his client.

"I haven't been in any active negotiations since 1:30 a.m. Friday with Council," he said on Tuesday with a smile, referring to the late-night executive session.

"It's obviously preferable to avoid litigation," he added, "but there comes a time when there is no other choice. If the same solution can be achieved without litigation, fine."

A Coalition, Perhaps. Mayor Sigmund said this week she hopes to meet Friday with Council to continue last Thursday's talks. She sees a kind of coalition between Collins and the Borough which would assemble a project designed to increase lower-cost housing and preserve what exists.

Collins would contribute money and the Borough would contribute its bond-floating powers, perhaps issuing revenue bonds which would not affect taxpayers. Bonds might be issued through the Borough's Housing Authority, and the WJDC could be the conduit for some kind of lease-purchase arrangement, she said.

Although it has been predicted that the WJDC might not want to join a package agreement with Collins, Mayor Sigmund said "I hope the Borough and the WJDC will mutually come to a workable program to save that neighborhood."

"The WJDC is quite correct," she emphasized, "that without a coherent strategy, instead of buying up one or two houses at a time, the death knell for that neighborhood will sound."

She also said that Charles Nathanson, the Borough's consultant, is "trying to find if there is anything left in Federal and state housing subsidies," and that the Home Ownership Group of Wilmington and New Brunswick, also has "some ideas that look realistic."

Negotiations began, according to the mayor, when she said publicly that she would be willing to go to Connecticut to talk with Arthur Collins. He advised her, in a letter, to confer in Princeton with Mr. Green, Mr. Jamieson and Alan Marcus, Collins' public relations consultant.

A May 3 letter to Mr. Marcus brought a reply on May 10 saying the firm was willing to talk. Before she could find out how the four appellants would feel about such discussions, she said, the WJDC announced that it might sue.

She also said that Greenholm residents are considering a suit, in light of last Friday's court ruling. "I'm hoping some accommodation can be made," she said, of the possible Greenholm action.

Gerald Boswell, whose air rights suit is farther along the path and is now in the Appellate Division of Superior Court, has also been part of the discussions.

Under consideration for production are Thurber's "Carnival," "Half-a-sixpence," or "Runaways," shows particularly relevant to young people. Prior to Hun's theater program, Mr. Evans will be directing the Pennington Players' production of "Li'l Abner," which will be presented at Washington Crossing Open Air Theater.

Day camp will be open to boys and girls ages 6 to 12 and will feature two-week sessions. Daily activities from 9 to 3 will include swimming, tennis, crafts, ceramics, ecology, soccer, fishing, softball, photography, woodworking, and archery. There will also be occasional overnight camp-outs.

Application may be made through the Hun Admissions Office, 921-7600.

HORSE SHOW PLANNED

At Hasty Acres. Hasty Acres Riding Club on Laurel Avenue, Kingston, will hold its 25th annual Spring Horse Show for its students this weekend. The horse show will begin each day at 9 and will feature a drill team demonstration at 12:30 during the lunch break.

Each week, some 200 people participate in the riding lesson program at Hasty Acres. Riders are of all ages, from children to adult, and at various ability levels, from beginners to advanced jumpers. Students are encouraged to take part in the show as a learning experience, and for fun.

The drill team exhibition will be put on by some advanced pupils, along with members of the Hasty Acres staff. Spectators are welcome to attend the show, free of charge. Refreshments will be available throughout the day, starting at 8:30.

NEW OFFERINGS SET

By YWCA. Wendy Panniker will offer a special course in natural cookery at the YWCA on Wednesday evenings, starting June 6. The series will include traditional Indian cooking and new presentations of vegetarian foods.

Another new offering at the YWCA during its summer session, is Carol Glatt's course entitled "Your Vacation: Making the Most of It." Linda Perlin will lead a two-session workshop on dealing with one's place in one's original family. Does being the youngest, elder, middle or only child in a family affect one's subsequent life? The session will begin Tuesday, June 5.

Registration is now in progress for these and 25 other classes in the YWCA's Adult Summer Session which begins Monday, June 4. The YWCA office is open for registration util 8 p.m. and also on Saturday mornings. For further inforamtion call 924-5571.

SNEAKER DAY SET

At Public Library. Readers from eighth grade downward are invited to put on a pair of sneakers and run to the Library on Monday, June 11, at 3:30 for the opening of the Summer Reading Club. The theme is "Run the World...Read!" and club members will find an olympic-style game waiting to challenge them.

Refreshments will be served to those who sign up, and Princeton's mayors (wearing sneakers, we trust) will cut the opening-day ribbon.

"Roaring at One Hundred": A Compendium Of Tiger Magazine Humor Has Been Published

That humor, verbal and visual, is a barometer of the times is amply demonstrated in Roaring at One Hundred, The Princeton Tiger Magazine Centennial Album that has just been published.

Anyone who ever spent time at Princeton University, either as a student or the date of a student, will get a chuckle from many of the puns, parodies, cartoons and limericks in this compendium from a century of output by the undergraduate humor magazine. Literati thumbing its pages will be bemused to see names like Booth Tarkington, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Whitney Darrow Jr., John A. McPhee, Ring Lardner Jr., and Frank Deford sprinkled through its pages.

"The precarious art of magazine publishing had been in existence for 178 years, Princeton University had been producing graduates for 136, and the college's colors had been embodied in a striped mascot for five, when, on March 7, 1882, the three institutions converged on a fourth that was eons older, to create The Princeton Tiger. The fourth was man's need to laugh — preferably at something else, but in a pinch, at himself."

Thus begins the introduction, "Here We Are," to the Tiger Centennial Album. That the album is coming out two years after the actual anniversary may be a joke understood only by the three primary collaborators, Jose Pincay-Delagado '77, Allen Scheuch '76 and Princeton resident-New Yorker cartoonist Henry Martin '48.

Or it may have taken that much time to select the best from the five time periods into which the editors have divided the history of The Tiger. Each section is preceded by a deftly written introduction outlining in swift sociological detail the moods and and happenings in the country at large and describing the ups and downs of publishing wit and wonderment. Thus the material progresses from a pre-World War I naivete that falls curiously flat today through the boom years of 1915-1931 in which the cartoons and jokes "despite the occasional flashes of narrowmindedness, carried with them the vitality and impudence of the youth of the time."

Then came 10 lean years, 1932 to 1942, when the magaine ceased publication for the duration of the war. "A lot of things happened to diminish the chicness of college humor magazines," notes Frank Deford in his preface. He cites the Depression — "Smart aleck stuff had a hard time playing off against that."

Then came World War II and the GI Bill. "After the war," Deford continues, "college humor didn't exist any more, inasmuch as college, essentially, didn't exist any more; that is, it certainly didn't exist as a specific culture, its inhabitants a separate subgroup. After the GI Bill everybody went to college" and "the college man" disappeared.

Nevertheless, "the new" Tiger of 1946-59 still seems to have had plenty to spoof and satirize, taking The New Yorker as its model and drawing on a wealth of undergraduate talent. But in the period from 1960 to 1982 the humor is darker, the cartoon characters uglier, the wit heavily barbed and socially and politically directed rather than at undergraduate life.

The final section, which probably also took two years to collect, is 82 Cheers, 100th birthday greetings in the form of cartoons by some of this country's best known cartoonists — 31 of whom are Tiger alumni, the rest "friends." Roaring at One Hundred, published in time for 1984 Reunions, is on sale at the U-Store and at H. Gross on Palmer Square.

Four Princeton residents have been accepted to participate in a Caribbean summer workcamp program for high school age students. The program is sponsored by Operation Crossroads Africa.

They are Steven Anderson, son of Mr.a nd Mrs. David Anderson of 280 Nassau Street; Kathy Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfe, 50 Hawthorne Avenue; Lesley Vannerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vannerson, 17 Hibben Road; and Hanna Crowley, daughter of Dr. Jack and Helene Reynolds of 83 Adams Drive.

Mrs. Oskar Ehaste of Jefferson Road was honored at the annual Awards Dinner of the Army ROTC Princeton University Corps of Cadets for 35 years of outstanding support to the corps.

Mrs. Ehaste is the tailor and seamstress who has fitted the uniforms of generation after generation of Princeton students in all branches of the ROTC units on campus.

Robin Glaser, Susan Hay, and Allie Delventhal, certified nurse-midwives with Familyborn, A Center for Birth and Women's Health in North Brunswick, attended the 29th Annual Convention of the American College of Nurse-Midwives in Philadelphia. The American College of Nurse-Midwives is the professional organization of certified nurse-midwives and has over 2500 members throughout the United States.

Jay Pyne, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Pyne of Russell Road, has been named Ivy League Co-Player of the Week for men's lacrosse.

A senior who plays goalie for the Dartmouth lacrosse team, he made 42 saves in Dartmouth's 14-10 win over Yale and made 18 more in an 11-7 loss to Brown. He is a converted midfielder playing his first season of extended action and had a save percentage of .652 for the season. He is currently ranked second in the Ivy League in that category.

Mr. Pyne is a graduate of the Middlesex School and a biology major at Dartmouth.

Jennifer Spicer, of 347 Cold Soil Road, received the Most Valuable Player Award for women's tennis at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa., where she is a junior.

Marlaine E. Lockheed, of Leabrook Lane, senior research scientist at Educational Testing Service, has been named the 1984 recipient of the Willystine Goodsell Award in recognition of her "scholarship, activism and community building on behalf of women."

Dr. Lockheed received the award at the annual meeting of the American Educational Research Association (AERA) in New Orleans. The award recognizes her numerous studies of sex equity in education and her current research on computer technology in the schools.

Dr. Lockheed was given the award in a joint presentation by the AERA Committee on the Role and Status of Women, the Research Group on Women and Education and Women Educators. She is vice-president of the AERA and heads that organization's division on the social context of education.

Peter D. Cripps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Cripps, 9 Coventry Circle, was honored for academic achievement at the fifth annual Honors Convocation at Lehigh University. The formal ceremony recognized the accomplishments of 217 juniors and seniors.

Eric Tamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Tamm of 328 Dodds Lane, and a 10th grader at Princeton Day School, has been selected to attend a national math-science honors enrichment camp at the Hockaday School, in Dallas, Tex. this summer.

Eric was one of 50 students selected throughout the country, based upon his academic work, standardized test scores and teacher recommendations.

Jerome G. Rose of Tyson Lane and James T. Hughes of Clover Lane were among the recipients of awards for distinguished accomplishment at ceremonies at the home of Rutgers President Edward Bloustein.

Prof. Rose, professor of urban planning, received the Lindback Award for Excellence in Teaching. The award was made "in recognition of his sustained record of teaching excellence at Rutgers for nearly two decades and his impact on the world of scholarship and public policy through research, editing and lecturing." The award carries a cash prize of $500.

Prof. Rose is editor-in-chief of the Real Estate Law Journal and has been a member of the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

Prof. Hughes, also a professor of urban planning, received the President's Award for Distinguished Public Service. The award was made to Prof. Hughes and Dr. George Sternlieb, jointly, "in recognition of their extraordinary mutual service in focusing public attention on major policy issues thorugh 11 jointly authored books and monographs, exemplified most recently in The Atlantic City Gamble, 30 other scholarly publications and numerous appearances before public bodies."

Jenny McPhee, daughter of John McPhee of Drakes Corner Road and Pryde Brown of Ringoes, is one of two recipients of a St. Andrews Fellowship for graduate study in Scotland. She is graduating this spring from Williams College.

The $10,000 fellowship awarded annually to Americans of Scottish descent, pays for a full year of study in any discipline at any university in Scotland. Recipients are chosen from a nationwide competition. Miss McPhee is the second winner from Williams in six years the school has been invited to participate in the competition.

An English major at Williams, she will attend the University of Edinburgh and will study early Scottish literature and Gaelic.

Vivian Miller, daughter of Robert and Judith Miller of Poe Road, and Tamar Shidlovsky, daughter of Igal and Ruth Shidlovsky of Shady Brook Lane, have been spending the past year in Israel under the sponsorship of Young Judea. Both are graduates of Princeton High School and members of the Princeton Jewish Center, active in Young Judea.

They began their year with four months of studies at the Hadassah Youth Center in Jerusalem. They then spent a month living with families on Moshav Kfar Yehoshva and Moshav Hodaya, respectively.

This spring Vivian has been living and working on the first Young Judea kibbutz, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year. Tamar, meanwhile, is on a more established kibbutz near the city of Be'er Sheva.

Upon her return Vivian will start her freshman year at Lafayette College, while Tamar will be a student at American University.

Eric Jensen, 65 Rollingmead, has won a letter in lacrosse during the 1983-84 season at Lake Forest College, where he is a sophomore. He is a graduate of Princeton Day School and a second-year letter winner in lacrosse at Lake Forest.

Nina E. McPherson, daughter of Philip E. and Judy T. McPherson of Longview Drive, has received a two-year teaching fellowship in the People's Republic of China from the Yale-in-China Association.

Miss McPherson, a graduate of Princeton High School, will assume her responsibilities as an English teacher in the Foreign Languages Department of Huazhong Normal University in Wuhan, a major city in central China. Huazhong Normal University is one of the six "key" teaching institutions affiliated directly with the Chinese Ministry of Education.

Miss McPherson majored in history at Yale, where she cofounded the Yale Students for Nuclear Disarmament and participated in several other social action groups. During the summer of 1982, she served as an intern with the Arms Control and Foreign Policy Caucus in Washington, D.C. She has travelled extensively in Europe and lived in France with her family from 1977-82.

She is fluent in French and speaks Mandarin Chinese and Spanish well.

The Carrier Foundation in Belle Mead has held its annual recognition luncheon for volunteers.

Princeton residents who were honored include Tere Batista, Gregg Buogiorno, Chang Cho, Dottie Chute, Anne Elliott, Harriet Fein, Daniel Goldman, Sola Kim, Lewis Kraft, Amy Kight-Law Nancy Irenas, Cynthia Mellor, Judy Morton, Nancy Pachana, Lisa Reeves, Steven Schoeffler, Ana Soto, David Stifel, Mary Sweeney, Beverly Thaler, Lester Tibbals and Glenn Trezza.

From Princeton Junction, Aimee McCullough; from Skillman, Mariagrazia Ursino and Nan Weiss; from Plainsboro, Robin Lang, and from Pennington, James H. Biggs.

Alice Ganoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ganoe, 458 The Great Road, and Ann McLusky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. McLusky, 89 Meadowbrook Drive, were members of the 1984 Hamilton College women's lacrosse team which concluded its sixth consecutive winning season with a 9-5 record and a fifth place finish at the New York State Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championships.

Miss McLusky, a sophomore, played defensive wing and had one goal and two assists with only one defensive turnover. Miss Ganoe, a center point, helped the Continental defense hold their opponents to only 84 goals during the 11-game regular season.

Patricia Dinella, Terhune Road, was named the Most Valuable Player of the women's tennis team for the second consecutive season at Haverford College. This spring she was presented the MacIntosh Award as the leading freshman student-athlete during the 1982-83 college year.

A graduate of Princeton High School, she was also the winner of the Wheelan & Wheelan Award as the leading intercollegiate tennis player in the Philadelphia area.

Thomas Predhome, son of Robert and Ruth Predhome of Bayberry Lane, has won a third place $1,000 award for his play, "Comedy in Exile," in a competition/new play festival sponsored by the Drama Department at Carnegie-Mellon University. A senior, he has also received a bachelor's degree in drama from the University earlier this month.

Rebecca L. Gurk, 26 Howe Circle, received the Evan Pugh Scholar Award for 1984 from Pennsylvania State University. The award is presented annually to all juniors and seniors who were in the upper 0.5 percent of their respective classes at the end of the fall semester.

Dr. Joan Goldstein, B-15 Lakeview Terrace, will conduct a weekend workshop on writing about wilderness and the environment on June 1-3. Sponsored by the Appalachian Mountain Club, the workshop will be held at the club's mountain retreat in Oliverea, New York.

The weekend will include field hikes, writing and editing, critiques, readings, and information on markets.

To enroll write Mountain Gate Lodge, McKenley Hollow Road, Oliverea, New York 12462, or call Dr. Goldstein at 452-1796.

Young Mercer County writers were honored at a reception at Mercer County Community College, where they were presented with copies of Aspirations '84, a literary magazine published by the college as a public service.

Ninety-two high school students from 13 schools are represented in the 72-page magazine, which will be sent free to libraries, schools and banks in the county.

The following students are among those whose work appears in the publication:

Hopewell Valley Central High School: Rebecca Gardner, Melissa Garrison, Catherine Pennington, Matthew Sked.

Lawrence High School: Caren Chiacchio, Heather D'Adamo, Melissa Garber, Karen E. Pape, Nikki Paratheras.

with the results of the last Gallup national survey and with the Gallup standard for accuracy in its 1,500-respondent national sample: 95 percent confident of being within plus or minus three percentage points of the actual outcome.

So there. If Gallup can do it with a randomly selected sample of 1,500 respondents, who knows what we can do with the diverse little collection of souls who find Town Topics on their doorstep every week. Maybe, just maybe, we have stumbled onto the nation's ultimate political barometer. Forget it, Dan Rather, this isn't one of your controversial little exit polls. You can wait until the paper comes out to report this one.

White Beans, Black Beans. Down on Bank Street, the Gallup professionals are shaking their heads in disbelief: Anybody who wastes a 20-cent stamp to buy into this game must be totally out of it. The Gallup people are thinking back to 1936, when the Literary Digest mailed out 10 million postcard ballots to names culled from lists of telephone subscribers and car owners. The survey showed that Alf Landon would defeat incumbent President Roosevelt in a landslide. Alf Who? Literary What?

Down on Bank Street they do polling the scientific way. The theory is this: If you have a big pile of beans — some white beans, some black beans, and some the color of Gary Hart's face after he cracks his latest New Jersey joke — you don't have to count all the beans to estimate the proportion of each kind. You just need a good representative sample.

But, as this correspondent witnessed during his tour, the Gallup process is also partly art and sometimes flat-out guesswork. When we checked in, the Gallup people were constructing the nationwide personal interview poll that was conducted the weekend of May 18-20. Just like most other political observers, they were trying to make sense out of the surprisingly persistent campaign of Hart. The candidate was telling Democratic voters he had the best chance of defeating Reagan in the fall, but did he really? Did the voters believe him and did that influence their choice?

On Friday, May 11, the top Gallup people (who include the still very much active George Sr., now 82, Alec Gallup, George Jr., company president Andy Kohut, and Gallup Poll managing editor James Shriver III) met informally to discuss the questions on the forthcoming poll, which would be known as 234G.

Many of the questions were pre-determined — since Gallup has been tracking the relative strength of the Democratic candidates in trial elections against Reagan, they didn't want to change one word in those questions. Moreover, they couldn't add too many new questions to 234G because it was already a big poll, consisting — as Gallup Polls do — of the political opinion survey and also a series of questions commissioned by outside clients. In the case of 234G, the Gallup interviewers would ask the national sample questions on behalf of a camera manufacturer, an educational association, a New Jersey college, an insurance industry group, and someone having some interest in the Kentucky Derby.

So at the May 11 meeting, the Gallup pollsters added only a few new questions. One was designed to measure whether the Mondale and Hart people were for their candidate or really demonstrating their opposition to Reagan. Another was pointed straight at the electability issue: "Regardless of your preference (for Mondale or Hart) which do you think has a better chance in November?" The question seemed straightforward then, and again on Monday, May 14, when the committee looked over the poll a final time before it was printed Monday night in preparation for mailing Tuesday to the interviewers who would find respondents in 362 different geographical locations (representing the population distribution as reflected in the 1980 census) the following weekend.

No Corner Houses. By then the responsibility for the poll shifted to Susanne White, the director of field operations, who operates with her staff in an office in Research Park on Route 206. (They really are being crowded out of Bank Street.) Mrs. White lines up the interviewers, usually part-timers who work for the minimum wage or more depending on their experience and the local standard of living, and makes sure the questions get to them and the answers come back.

Each of the interviewers is asked to complete five interviews, including two women and three men or vice versa. Since this is a scientific poll, the Gallup interviewers are told exactly where to begin knocking on doors (never at a corner house because that is assumed to be slightly more affluent than the average) and what route to follow until the assignment is completed. Because Gallup doesn't want to weight the survey against working men and women, no interviews of women can begin before 4 p.m on weekdays and men cannot be sought until after 6 p.m. (They presume working women are more likely to be home early than working men.)

The Official 1984 Town Topics Readers' Poll

(Trust the Poll that Trusts You)

1. How would you describe your political leanings?
Republican Democratic Independent Other
(Circle one.)

2. If you are a Democrat, are you registered?
Yes No

3. If you are a registered Democrat will you vote in next Tuesday's Presidential primary (Gallup has 11 questions to help get an accurate response, but we're just going to trust you).
Yes No

4. Regardless of your political leanings, which of the three Democratic candidates do you prefer?
Hart Jackson Mondale

5. If you are a Republican, which one do you think would run strongest against President Reagan?
Hart Jackson Mondale

Please return ballots to the Town Topics office at 4 Mercer Street or mail to Box 664, Princeton 08542. All ballots received by midnight Monday will be tabulated and reported in next week's paper. Remember: For a poll of 500 respondents, Gallup and the scientific pollsters are satisfied with a margin of error of five or six points. For a poll of 1,500 people, Gallup expects to come within plus or minus three percentage points of the actual vote outcome. If Town Topics readers do as well, they can claim to be as good a sample of public opinion as the most rigorous scientific poll.

The types of people most likely to be under-represented in a poll are the very poor and very rich. "Door-to-door interviewing is not easy," concedes Mrs. White, though she points out that the Gallup name on the identification card helps open doors. "Interviewers aren't so happy knocking on doors of some houses and the richest people are hard to get because of their locked up communities. I'm often on the phone trying to get superintendents to let our interviewers in."

Gallup interviewers are expected to be persistent, and not be deterred from an interview because of someone being deaf or speaking a foreign language. One interviewer earlier this spring had to suffer a lengthy tour of a man's rock collection before the interview could take place.

The only people systematically excluded are those who appear to be incoherent or mentally incompetent. (There the Town Topics poll has a decided edge: We welcome the responses of those who are incoherent, incompetent, or totally crazy. Since those traits fit many elected politicians, why should the survey sample be any more refined?)

Interviewing for 234G went smoothly, and the interviewers phoned in preliminary results Saturday and Sunday evenings to a cadre of operators stationed in the Gallup office on Route 206. Those results were tabulated first thing Monday morning, May 21, and sent in the form of computer printout to the office of Jim Shriver, whose task was to write three articles based on the results for circulation to the more than 100 newspapers subscribing to the Gallup Poll.

The immediate results seemed clear enough: Hart's recent victories appeared to have stemmed the erosion in his support. He also appeared to have strengthened his support among independents. But the electability question ("regardless of your preference, which candidate do you think has a better chance in November?") produced results that were, in Jim Shriver's mind, "contradictory. I can't make sense out of it."

The survey showed that Mondale's supporters believed overwhelmingly their man had the better chance of beating Reagan. But only about half the Hart supporters thought their man could do better than Mondale against Reagan. More than 40 percent of the Hart supporters said Mondale had a better chance.

A Weekend Revelation. Mr. Shriver held that result back until the third article, scheduled for release this Thursday, and then he buried it toward the end of the release. Meanwhile he kept wondering if the question itself was flawed in a way that would skew the response. "Is there something about the expression 'has a better chance' that I'm missing?" Mr. Shriver wondered aloud.

In the middle of the night it hit him: Many of the Hart supporters were basing their response to the question on the assumption that their man, the underdog, would not win the nomination. Therefore Mondale would have the better chance in November, since he would be the only Democratic challenger. The straightforward question turned out to be a screwball. Mr. Shriver made a Memorial Day weekend visit to the office and deleted the discussion of that question from the press release.

For the Gallup pollsters, that kind of second-guessing can be expected during an election year. Since his spectacular success in predicting the 1936 election, Mr. Gallup's poll never has been flat-out wrong — not even in 1948, when it managed to detect the last-minute surge that moved Truman ahead of Dewey. Since then Gallup monitors voters until just a few days before the election, though in 1980 the pollsters missed the extent of the final erosion of Jimmy Carter's following and failed to predict the landslide; they did correctly pick the winner, however.

"The hardest part," says Mr. Shriver, "is the turn-out question. We ask 11 individual questions designed to see how likely people are to vote. That's the trickiest part — finding out who will actually go to the polls, since so few do."

And so it is for the Town Topics readers' poll, as well. This poll especially is ripe for error, since it depends on the willingness of prospective voters to clip a ballot and return it to the polling place — a feat not even Gallup would attempt. But we want your response regardless of whether or not you will vote in the real poll next Tuesday and regardless of whether or not you are, on any given day, incoherent, incompetent, or just out of your mind. As they used to say in the precincts of Mayor Daley's Chicago: Vote early and vote often.

STUDENTS STUDY FUSION

In Experiment with PPPL. Twelve West Windsor-Plainsboro High School students took part in a month-long program involving physicists and engineers at the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory (PPPL).

The idea for the program grew out the involvement of PPPL physicist Ralph Izzo with a one-day energy symposium at West Windsor High School. Dr. Izzo met teacher Tom Ritter, whose senior science class usually studies fusion energy as part of its curriculum. Noting that scientists at PPPL study fusion — the joining of light atomic nuclei at high temperatures to produce energy — year round, Mr. Ritter suggested that his students work with PPPL staff to solve real problems that have confronted plasma physicists in designing fusion energy experiments.

SO THIS IS WHAT FUSION IS ALL ABOUT! West Windsor-Plainsboro High School students Margot Wray, left, and Mike Atkinson, discuss their research into plasma physics problems with Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory Engineer Milt Pelovitz, right. Physics students from WW-PHS worked with PPPL staff to solve real problems that have confronted plasma physicists in designing fusion energy experiments.

Dr. Izzo prevailed upon colleagues Milt Pelovitz, Phil Heitzenroeder and Doug Darrow to supply the students with appropriate problems — and the help in resolving them. Problems were presented to the class in the same step-by-step sequence scientists used to solve them. Vital pieces of each answer were withheld, however, and the students were expected to calculate or research their answers and fill in the blanks to derive the solution.

FIRM WINS AWARD

For Work in Concrete. The architectural firm of Geddes Brecher Qualls Cunningham received a merit award in the cultural category from the New Jersey chapter of the American Concrete Institute and the New Jersey Ready-Mixed Concrete Association "in recognition of their creative use of concrete in New Jersey."

The award was presented for the Marine Walk at Liberty State Park, Jersey City, to Hamilton Ross and Fred Brecher, principals of GBQC, at the 21st Annual Concrete Awards dinner held at the Hyatt Regency in New Brunswick. The firm was responsible for the comprehensive Master Plan for Liberty State Park.

PERSONNEL NOTES

William L. Horr Jr. of Montgomery Township has been named executive vice president and a principal of W.B. Howe Inc., a real estate and insurance firm.

Since joining Howe in 1975, Mr. Horr has been in charge of commercial/institutional sales, development and underwriting. He will continue his present role while assuming additional responsibilities in company administration and financial direction. He is a graduate of Baldwin Wallace College and before joining Howe was associated with The Insurance Company of North America.

Mr. Horr is a member of the Economic Development Commission of Montgomery Township.

Doris M. Bavol, claims manager for Walter B. Howe, Inc., has received the designation of Certified Professional Insurance Woman from the National Association of Insurance Women.

Mrs. Bavol, a resident of Hamilton Township, was recently elected a vice president of Walter B. Howe. She is licensed by the state of New Jersey for marine insurance and allied lines, including fire, casualty and health coverages. She has served as state vice president and president of the New Jersey Association of Mutual Insurance Women and is active in numerous civic activities.

OBITUARIES

Kenneth Schwartz

Kenneth Schwartz, executive vice president of The Roper Organization in New York City, the nation's oldest political public opinion research firm, died May 26 of a heart attack at Georgetown University, where he was attending his son's graduation. He was 55 years old and lived at 57 Jefferson Road.

Mr. Schwartz joined Roper and its parent firm, Starch INRA Hooper Inc., Mamaroneck, N.Y., in January. From 1972 through 1983 he was vice president of Opinion Research Corp. in Princeton and managing director of ORC's Public Opinion Index. He had also been a research associate with Gallup & Robinson here.

Prior to entering the public policy research field, Mr. Schwartz was a business journalist. From 1962-1972 he was special reports editor at Forbes magazine, and earlier, marketing editor at Dun's Review, now Dun's Business Month. He began as a newspaper reporter in New Rochelle and after a stint with United Press International was managing editor of Tide and executive editor of Television, two trade journals, both now defunct.

A native of Pelham Manor and a graduate of Grinnell College in Iowa, Mr. Schwartz was a visiting lecturer in public and international affairs at Princeton University and in business and government affairs at the University of California's Graduate School of Business Administration at Berkeley.

He was a member of the government and regulatory affairs committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber's council on business-consumer relations. He contributed articles to The Readers Digest, Washingtonian, New York, The Harvard Business Review and other magazines.

He is survived by his wife, Helen, art critic for TOWN TOPICS; a daughter, Lisa, of New York City; a son, Eric; and a sister, Jean Colwell of West Redding, Conn.

The service was scheduled to be held this Wednesday, May 30, at 11 a.m. at the Unitarian Church. The family will receive visitors at home. Memorial gifts may be made to Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa 50112.

J. Walter Moyer, 73, of Plainsboro Road, Plainsboro, died May 25 at his home.

Born in Hopewell, Mr. Moyer had lived in Plainsboro for the past 38 years. He was a former resident of Hopewell and retired 11 years ago as an accountant with Public Service. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro, the Elks Lodge of Hopewell and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. He also belonged to the Masonic Lodge, the Crescent Temple of the Shrine and the Scottish Rite of the Valley, all of Trenton.

Survivors include his wife, Marion Bunn Moyer; two daughters, Lynda Hafenmaier of Plainsboro and Marion Stults of Ringoes; two brothers, Edward Moyer of Skillman and Robert Moyer of Florida; a sister, Ruth Moyer of Hopewell; and four grandchildren.

The service will be held this Wednesday, May 30, at 3 at the A.S. Cole Funeral Home, 22 North Main Street, Cranbury. The Rev. Robert L. Slusher, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro, will officiate. Burial will be in Highland Cemetery. Friends may call Wednesday from 2 until time of service at the funeral home.

Contributions may be made to the Plainsboro Fire Company, or the Plainsboro First Aid Squad, Plainsboro 08536.

Lillian M. Brook, 86, died May 21 in the Kirkhaven Nursing Home in Rochester, N.Y.

Born in Somerville, she had retired as a secretary at Princeton University.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Margie Harding of Groveland, N.Y., and four grandchildren.

A graveside service was scheduled to be held this Wednesday, May 30, at 11 a.m. in Princeton Cemetery, the Rev. Carol Brandt of the United Methodist Church officiating. Contributions may be made to the Central Presbyterian Church, Genesco, N. Y. 14454.

Bertha A. Goldstein of Jefferson Road died May 21 in a Boston hospital after an illness of several months. She was a resident of Boston before moving to Princeton five years ago at the time of her marriage to Meyer Goldstein. Mr. Goldstein was the owner of Viedts Restaurant at 110 Nassau Street, now no longer part of the Princeton scene.

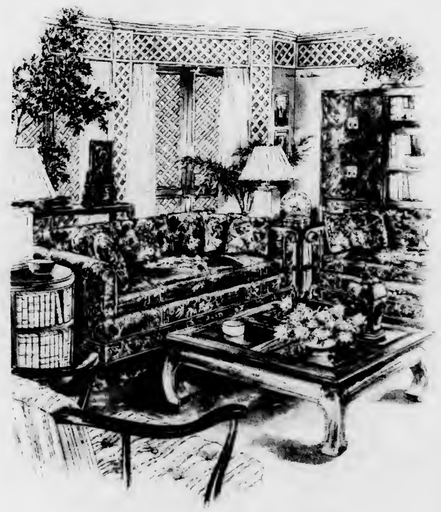
Mrs. Goldstein was a member of the Princeton Jewish Center, Hadassah and B'nai B'rith.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Barry Bornstein of Framingham, Mass., and a daughter, Cheryl Mazer of Gloucester, Mass.; four grandchildren; two sisters; two stepsons, a stepdaughter, and six stepgrandchildren.

The service and burial were held in Brookline, Mass. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, 44 Binney Street, Boston, Mass. 02115.

Martha Harbat, 77, of Hopewell Township, died May 22 in Princeton Medical Center.

Mrs. Harbat was born in Germany and since 1932 had lived in Hopewell Township, where she and her husband, and later her sons, operated a farm. She was a member of the Abiding Presence Lutheran Church of Ewing Township.



Wife of the late Emil Harbat, she is survived by two sons, Erwin E. and Henry E. Harbat and her daughter-in-law, Lidia Harbat, all of Hopewell Township; a Helen Glatz, 68, a former resident of Princeton, died May 28 at the American Oncologic Hospital in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Glatz was born in Schrumberg, Germany, and lived in Princeton for more than 25 years before moving to Pennsylvania. She was a retired waitress who had been employed at the Princeton Inn and at Lahiere's Restaurant.

Survivors include a son, Peter T. Glatz, of Milford, N.J.; three sisters in Germany; and three brothers, two living in Philadelphia and one in Brazil.

The service will be conducted from the Rogers Funeral Home, 169 North Main Street, Yardley, Pa. Friday at 8 a.m. Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 9:30 at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Princeton, with burial in the parish cemetery.

Harold A. Beatty, a chemist who was involved in the development of tetraethyl lead anti-knock compound, died in Key West, Fla. on May 21. He was the husband of the former Elizabeth Mitchell of Princeton, whom he married in 1932.

Mr. Beatty joined the Ethyl Corporation in 1931 after receiving a Ph.D. degree in chemistry from Princeton University, from which he graduated in 1926. For many years he was assistant director for chemical research in the corporation's laboratory in Detroit, Mich.

Following retirement in 1969, he moved from Grosse Pointe, Mich., to Annapolis, Md., where he engaged, as a volunteer, in historical research for Historic Annopolis. He had been a resident of Washington since 1976 and, recently, of Key West, Fla., also.

In addition to his widow, he leaves a son, George, a Washington attorney; three grandchildren, Eric, Ned and Julia Beatty; and two sisters, Mrs. William G. Ludlow, of Easton, Md., and Mrs. David Anthony, of Lynchberg, Va. Another son, David, died in 1958.

A memorial service was held in St. Alban's Church, Washington. Memorial contributions may be made to Washington Cathedral Tower Fund.

RELIGION

BULLETIN NOTES

The Jewish Center will hold a confirmation ceremony Tuesday, June 5, at 8 for high school students who have completed the continuing education program of the Religious School. The ceremony will take place at the Shavuot service Tuesday, Shavuot being the holiday that celebrates God's giving the Torah to Moses on Mount Sinai and the summer harvest in the land of Israel.

The theme for confirmation is "Freedom and Responsibility." Students will participate in the service and present music, readings and original pieces on the theme. A reception will follow. Shoshana Silberman is principal of the Religious School, Amy Kassiola is the teacher for the confirmands, and Ruth Sidlovsky is chair of the parents' committee for the confirmation.

Kenneth Glover and his "young crusaders for Christ" will give a concert Saturday, June 16, at 7:30 at John Witherspoon School. The concert is a fund-raiser sponsored by the combined choirs of First Baptist Church.

Mr. Glover and his group are from Los Angeles, California. He is said to be a very gifted singer.

Tickets are $7 in advance and $8 at the door and are available from church members. For information call Willie Mae Tadlock, 924-0254, after 3 p.m.

The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, the highest legislative and judicial assembly in that denomination, will meet in New Brunswick June 2-8. Some 500 delegates and church officials, representing the Reformed Church's 215,000 members in the U.S. and Canada are expected.

New Brunswick was chosen as the meeting site in honor of the Bicentennial celebration of the denomination's New Brunswick Theological Seminary. Founded in New York City in 1784, the Seminary is the oldest in the country.

Dr. Ernest Campbell, former pastor at Riverside Church in New York City, will deliver the keynote address, "Who Am I," Saturday, June 2, at 7 p.m. at the First Reformed Church, Neilson and Bayard Streets, New Brunswick.

A FINE GEORGIAN MANOR HOME

2 Elm Road, Princeton

We are pleased to present for your personal consideration one of Princeton's fienst Georgian Manor Homes situated on expansive, beautifully maintained grounds within walking distance of the Town and University.

Built of the finest materials, this elegant home features a spacious sunken living room with double French doors, a dramatic curved staircase, a library with hand-rubbed cherry cabinets and bookcases, and a graciously proportioned formal dining room with hand-carved marble fireplace from France. The floor plan is classic Georgian with spacious rooms off a central foyer, worthy of a statesman's penchant for formal entertaining.

The property includes a lovely circular swimming pool and a guest or pool house in the same Georgian style as the main house.

There are 3.50 beautifully landscaped acres with terraces and formal gardens, brick garden walls and iron gates. A 1.35 acre sub-divided building lot lies to the right of the main house.

All in all, a beautifully maintained, tastefully decorated estate in an incomparable Princeton location.

REALTOR MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE MLS

PRINCETON-LAWRENCEVILLE ROAD
Sloping down to picturesque Stony Brook, three acres on a cul-de-sac in western Princeton provide a perfect setting for this dramatic contemporary. Redwood siding assures low maintenance on the exterior. Light bright rooms assure comfortable space for every member of the family in the interior. Large foyer with half bath, living room with vaulted ceiling and outside deck, dining room, spacious family room, modern kitchen, four bedrooms, two baths and loft ideal for a studio. Centrally air conditioned.

CHERRYBROOK ROAD
Just north of Princeton and with a Princeton address, this loop road has the seclusion of a cul-de-sac with the advantage of two outlets. Adjoining a horse farm and with a barn of its own, this attractive Colonial has much to offer a growing family. Hall, living room, dining room, laundry, lavatory, eat-in kitchen opening to large redwood deck and family room with fireplace on first floor. Five bedrooms and two baths on second. Basement. Two car garage.

BALCORT DRIVE
So near - it's just a few minutes from town. So far - it enjoys the serenity of the countryside. This sparkling white colonial, big and beautiful, is perfect for a growing family. Inviting center hall with flagstone floor, powder room, gracious living room with fireplace, formal dining room, modern eat-in kitchen, den or office, family room with second fireplace opening to deck overlooking nature's landscaping of tall trees and boulders. Four bedrooms and two baths on second floor. Full basement and two car garage.

CLEVELAND LANE
A novelty on this western Princeton street when it was built, this handsome contemporary was soon accepted as a compatible neighbor by the nearby colonials. The exterior of redwood and stone is enhanced by professional landscaping. A circular driveway leads to the large foyer, spacious living room with a glass wall overlooking a beautiful formal garden, dining room, kitchen, two master suites each with bath, bedroom and bath and computer room.

TARQUIN FARMS
Magnificent estate in renowned hunt country just 14 miles from Princeton. This handsome 15 room stone Colonial is richly appointed with beautiful panelling, detailed woodwork, massive stone hearths, random width floors and high beamed ceilings. Two guest apartments and greenhouse. Beautiful rolling acres include pasture, woodland and residential lawns with pond.

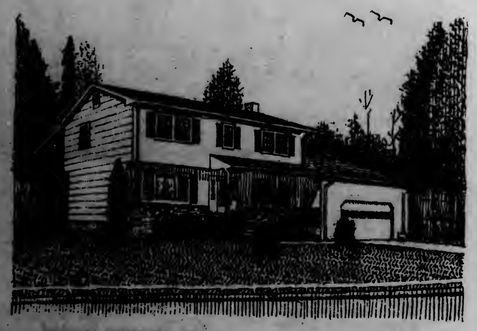
SURPRISE, SURPRISE!



That's what you'll have when you walk into this seemingly modest split-level. Four bedrooms, 2 tiled baths, a recreation room - all make for easy family living - but the really exciting feature is the stunning new Great Room added at the rear. Cathedral ceilinged, with Mexican tiled floor and second fireplace, it opens to a state of the arts gourmet kitchen and adjacent wet bar area - and then to a formal "parlor" or dining room. A most flexible plan to fit your needs or living style!

All set high on a hillside "in the Village" of Lawrenceville on a large deep lot - but within a block of New York and local buses. Absolutely heaven for a mother who's tired of car-pooling everywhere! $155,000

PRICED LESS THAN NEW!

THE WILLIAMSBURG at ROSSMOOR, a roomy detached townhouse condominium featuring living and dining rooms, den with fireplace, Florida room, 2 bedrooms and 2½ baths. Double garage with workshop storage area. Community pool, golf, tennis, entertainment hall. Like-new condition with wall to wall carpeting, washer, dryer, refrigerator, range, and dishwasher included in the sale price. Immediate Availability!
Now $144,000

Also offered as a six month unfurnished rental at $775.00 per month.

PRIME HAMILTON LOCATION

A lovely colonial featuring 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, living room, formal dining room, eat-in kitchen and adjacent family room with full width brick fireplace. Many nice extras include two fully finished basement rooms, oversize 2 car garage, central air conditioning and a partially wooded yard. Offered at $124,900

WHY BUY A TOWN HOUSE

when you can buy this pretty brick and frame ranch in Princeton Township. Living room with fireplace, formal dining room with bay window and built-in corner cupboard, newly remodeled kitchen, two large bedrooms and den or third bedroom - and a guaranteed to be dry, finished basement. Outside, there's a flagstone patio shaded by mature trees and lovely old rhododendrons. Perfect for the small family or retired couple. $169,900

ONE OF A KIND - Post modernist architect designed residence, 6 plus wooded acres. Light, airy, air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000 and all of downtown Princeton, we offer an expansive frame house with large living and entertaining areas and numerous bedrooms and baths. Set on almost an acre, this new listing on Bayard Lane has a location well worth exploring for its many future potentials and present possibilities. Call for further information.

WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF PALMER SQUARE

A LOT OF HOUSE FOR YOUR MONEY

and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.

31-Year Career of Reporting Princeton's News To End Tuesday for Town Topics' Kay Bretnall

This is one article we could not ask Kay Bretnall to write for Town Topics. After 31 years of covering just about everything else, we didn't have the heart to ask her to write about her own imminent retirement (June 5) from this newspaper.

Not that she couldn't have done it, and done it well in the same interesting, eminently readable style that has been such a major part of Town Topics for more than three decades. But while Kay could have provided an accurate rundown on her career here, the praise that she so richly deserves would be missing.

The words we sometimes hear around town are "Kay Bretnall IS Town Topics." That's really not fair to the many dedicated people who have labored long hours to produce an issue each week for the last 38 years, but the overstatement is understandable.

Kay has covered more municipal meetings, groundbreakings, press conferences, block parties, elections, you name it, in this town than anyone else who has written for this newspaper or any other. She's done countless interviews with Princeton's politicians, civil servants, teachers, businessmen, homemakers, anyone who has had an interesting story to tell.

More importantly, she has gained the respect (see box) of those she wrote about. Voluminous reporting is worthless without accuracy and attention to detail.

Along with it, she has always handled a share of the routine releases that are a part of every newspaper. In years past she also took classified ads, and ran a mailer on publication day. She has missed the sports beat, but that's about all.

The vast amount she has accomplished here came about mainly by her own choice, backed by an ability to turn out good, accurate copy under pressure. Given enough time, anybody who likes to write can organize and produce a decent story. But how about accomplishing the same feat in an hour? How about juggling two or three, often complicated, stories at once, knowing that a deadline is fast approaching?

REPORTER AT EASE: A picture of Kay Bretnall on the phone or pounding away on her word processor would have been more in keeping with the kind of day she puts in at Town Topics, but we caught her on a quiet Thursday.

Blessed with this ability, Kay gradually took on the large majority of the writing here. As others came and went, she picked up more assignments, and for many years she covered all the Borough and Township meetings, plus the school board as well.

Growing Together. Town Topics, Kay's responsibilities and her children all grew together during the 1950's.

To follow newspaper tradition accurately, she should have started out as a copygirl, but instead she began, more appropriately for a weekly, as a freelance writer. While editing the house organ for Educationai Testing Service, she heard the paper was looking for someone to take over its shopping column "It's New to Us."

She got the job, beginning in January, 1953, and spent a few hours each week writing about stores in the area. The early fifties was a time of continuous growth for Town Topics, which began publishing in March, 1946, and its editor, Donald C. Stuart, soon had Kay handling a few advertising accounts for stores on Nassau Street.

Next, she came in regularly on Tuesdays to help answer the phone and take classifieds. And then, it was discovered, in typical weekly newspaper fashion, she could knock off the church news, between phone calls. Her writing expanded more with an occasional feature, but there wasn't much space for features in those days.

As her children required less attention at home, Kay's job steadily expanded. In 1959, when the paper's managing editor, Ace Bushnell, departed, Kay's move to full time status was a natural one.

She started with the Township, covering all the municipal and school news, before the schools were consolidated with the Borough. Five years later, she took over the Borough beat, just about doubling the number of night meetings. In 1969, when the paper's co-founder Dan D. Coyle stopped writing Man of the Week, Kay began writing features for the front page.

What had begun as part time work had become overtime, but Kay enjoyed reporting the news of a growing town and her family made it easier. "I always had cooperation from my children," Kay recalls. "They never gave me any problems.

"And my husband, Bill,

Town Topics' Kay Bretnall Saluted By Town's Mayors, Past and Present

We, the present and former mayors of the Borough and Township of Princeton, whose terms of office span the 25 years of her reporting on our local governments for TOWN TOPICS, salute Kay Bretnall on the occasion of her retirement.

On behalf of ourselves and the 64 other citizens of our Princeton community who served on Council and Committee during this past quarter century, we thank her for reporting on the comings and goings of our local governments with clarity, honesty, accuracy, and a not infrequent bit of wit and good humor. She cares about our community and knew and reported on it well.

Thank you, Kay, for a job well done.

ART

LINE VANISHES

Between Arts & Crafts. At one time, there was a distinct aesthetic division between the "fine arts" and crafts. At times, in fact, the clear separation between the two worked hardship on both disciplines: "artists" rarely tried their hands at the more substantial craftsman's fare, while craftspeople were considered too practical to be "artists."

All that, of course, is history. In recent years some of the most interesting crafts have been the work of painters and the like. Roosevelt-based painter Gregorio Prestopino, for example, now uses pottery as a vehicle for his richly colored, complex figurative compositions. In addition, the craftsman's product is now considered to be at least the equivalent of, and sometimes even more highly developed as an art form than the work of the "fine artist."

The line between fine arts and crafts, grown thin over the years, seems to vanish at the current display of the work of more than 30 craftspeople at Full House Gallery. Even though all the traditional media — clay, fiber and wood — are in evidence, the variety of form and visual excitement created by the mixture of applications, materials used, and often original concepts, nicely illustrates the aesthetic range and artistic importance of contemporary crafts.

Practical objects such as bowls and teapots also function as sculpture; weavings — hung from a wall — are as visually meaningful as prints or paintings; the painter's canvas is combined with other materials to create three dimensional works; and fabrics such as silk have been treated in an ornamental fashion that resembles surface painting.

The collection is a study in contrasts and possibilities. This is especially evident in the impressive variety of work in clay. Yvonne Aronson's elegant use of the classical approach, apparent in assorted bowls, casseroles and teapots, is light years away from Adele Schonbrun's witty porcelain sculpture — opulent ceramic beds with removable bedclothes which often have hidden compartments — tiny drawers or an extra space beneath the bedding.

The variety of surface effects is an indication of the diversity that can be found within a single medium. Coco Schoenberg's hand-built, almost free-form, bowls and sculptural pieces combine the robust earthiness of the clay with a shell-like delicacy; a strong contrast with the sleek, finished brown glazes used on Don Williams' casseroles and mugs or the luminous, iridescent finish of Constance Bracci-Mcindoe's fired raku.

The same variety is apparent in other media, as well. Sleek silks interact with rougher textures of hand woven surfaces and the more substantial affect of Hope Carter's three-dimensional works in canvas; imposting built works that combine elements of several disciplines.

At the Gallery of Fine Art, Freda Sargent, the artist whose unusual collection of portraits is featured here, describes this display as "homage to the memory of my parents who are both dead." She goes on to explain that, in effect, she was looking for her roots and "I wanted to make a picture of them when they were young and happy ... and the series developed from that and (from) my later memories."

The artist's sequential

NEWCOMERS ARE OLDTIMERS: The YWCA Newcomers Club has been making those new to the area feel welcome for 25 years. Meeting to plan the Silver Anniversary Luncheon to be held Friday, June 14, at Scanticon are, from left, Elly de Boer, decorating; Sharon Sauvigne, hospitality; Scheryl LoMonico, chair, planning committee; and Sigrid Harnsberger, programmer. (Laurie Warner photo)

Clubs and Organizations

25TH ANNIVERSARY SET

By Newcomers. The YWCA Newcomers Club invites all newcomers in the area, as well as past and current members and their guests, to attend a Silver Anniversary Luncheon on June 14 at Scanticon. Cocktails with a cash bar will begin at 11 followed by a buffet luncheon at 11:45.

There will be a male fashion show sponsored by the Princeton University Store. Featured among the fashions shown will be "Polo University" lines by Ralph Lauren and "British Khaki" by Robert Leighton.

To make a reservation, send a check for $16 payable to Princeton Newcomers Club, to Cindy Urken, 54 Pine Street. The nursery will be open until 3:30 p.m. for this occasion only. Members are reminded to make nursery reservations early by calling Kathleen Robicheaux at 799-5407.

The West Windsor Lions Club will meet Wednesday, June 6, at the Dutch Neck Firehouse to induct new officers. They are, president, Walt Meyer; first vice president, Conrad Stout; second vice president, Fred Kohlhepp; third vice president, Ken Diener; secretary, Al Carson; treasurer, Pete Shaw; tail twister, Chuck Morrison; and Lion tamer, Bob Perrine.

The Mercer County Stroke Club will meet Wednesday, June 6, at 11 for a picnic at the Unitarian Church.

Newly elected club officers are, Sidney Walters, president; Mrs. George C. Crane, vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Charles Widman, secretary; and John Drury, treasurer.

The Stroke Club reminds members that a conference on "Improving the Quality of Life for Stroke Patients and Their Families" will be held Tuesday, June 19, from 1 to 4:30 at the Ramada Inn, Route 18, New Brunswick. The conference is sponsored by the Gerontology Institute of New Jersey.

The American Association of University Women, Princeton Branch, will hold its annual picnic on Wednesday, June 6, at 6:30 at Morven. Guests are welcome. Call Judy Hamilton, 799-1328, for further information.

There will be a meeting of the Homeschool Support Group Sunday from 3 to 5 in the Plainsboro Townhouse. The purpose is to share information about educating children in the home rather than at school.

Donald and Fran Owens of Lancaster, Pa., parents of eight children who have three years of homeschooling experience, will speak, and there will be a panel discussion of personal experiences of area homeschoolers and displays of available curricula, books and materials. Child care will be provided at $1 per hour per child, but must be requested in advance.

For additional information call Kathy Brewer at 799-3251 or Cathy Miller, 452-1140.

The picnic planned by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) for Friday, June 14, at the Shriner's Club on River Road has been postponed indefinitely.

The Astrological Society will meet Sunday, June 3, at 2:30 at the First National Bank of Central Jersey in Rocky Hill.

The guest speaker will be Mary B. Downing whose specialty is corporate astrology. Her topic will be "Practical Business Astrology Techniques." The public is welcome and a social hour follows the talk.

Art in Princeton

pictures of her parents, however, turn out to reveal a good deal about Freda Sargent as well. And, in fact, they are as much a study of the artist as they are portraits. For, without much effort it is possible to observe the complex array of emotions that shaped the results — a mixture that goes far beyond Sargent's initial description.

The paintings in this collection are, in the main, neo-expressionist in style. Brushwork is almost gestural and, at times, consciously crude. Color is frequently harsh. Sargent explains, "I like the use of color as a symbol ... not as local or descriptive color," adding that "...the paintings (deliberately) have a difficult-to-look-at feeling which enhanced the feelings I wanted to express ... human relationships, the general theme of marriage."

As such, although she began with a goal of happy memories, these paintings say a good deal more about the problematic nature of both art and life. They are, indeed, effective as an expressive vehicle and seem to exhibit as much pain and uncertainty as they do warm familial feeling.

Although the subject is both fixed and limited, the paintings encompass a variety of ideas and intimate feelings which are clearly expressed. Sargent includes stylistic variations that range from a sentimental and romantic portrayal of her mother to almost harsh, vacant and, frequently, tortuously distorted pictures of her father.

There is clearly a great deal of anguish in the presentation. Imagery appears to be made deliberately unclear and as the artist says ... color is often hard to take — certainly not the stuff of which happy memories are made.

As such, the collection is an especially interesting study of the expressive potential of content is fixed, form is used in an impressively versatile manner to relate the entire gamut of human feeling.

As in most collections of this type, this leaves a lot of room for interpretive looking and some personal projection, if you like. And, as such, the display offers a viewer an opportunity to second guess the painter and, if desired, a chance to play amateur psychologist, as well.

XEROGRAPHICS

In Slide Show. How photocopiers may be used as both camera and printer will be explained in a slide show of xerographic art to be given this Friday by Dick Torchia at 45 Stockton Street (the cinderblock building behind Borough Hall.)

The show will be given at 8 p.m., and follows an eight-week course sponsored by the Princeton Art Association and Triangle ReproCenter. Betty Ruth Curtiss was the teacher.

Mr. Torchia will show how photocopiers have been used in painting, sculpture, filmmaking, bookmaking, fabric arts and performance. Admission is $2 for the 90-minute presentation. Refreshments will be served.

WATERCOLORS INVITED

By Tri-County Group. Original works in water-based media are eligible for judging in the fourth annual Juried Watercolor Exhibit of the Tri-County Art Association to be held Sunday June 10 to Sunday, June 24 in the Gougaud Gallery, Old Cranbury School, Main Street, Cranbury.

Works should be taken to the Gallery this Sunday between 1 and 3. The judge will be Vincent Ceglia, artist and teacher. Detailed information is available by calling 448-8967.

MUSIC

PRINCETON CHILDREN'S CHOIR, Cheryl Sabetta-Moya conducting, will give a concert Sunday, June 3, at 2 in the Bristol Chapel, Westminster Choir College. A reception will follow at the Art People Place, 102 Witherspoon Street.

CHOIR IS READY

For Concert Sunday. The Princeton Children's Choir, a 25-member ensemble of boys and girls from age 8 to 12, will perform a Spring Concert on Sunday, June 3, at 2 in Bristol Chapel, Westminster Choir College.

Musical selections will include unison and two-part works, including rounds and canons, pieces by Bach and Mendelssohn, a Japanese folk piece and other selections for children's voices.

The concert is open to the public at no charge. A reception will follow at 3 at the Art People Place. The choir is under the direction of Cheryl Sabetta-Moya.

Auditions will be held in June for children wishing to join the choir in the fall. Plans include the formation of a boy choir division. For further information phone 924-8873.

PERFORMERS LISTED

For University Series. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, the Beaux Arts Trio, and Metropolitan Opera star Sherrill Milnes are three of the eight events scheduled for the 1984-85 season of the Princeton University Concerts series, "Virtuosi in Recital" and "Chamber Masterworks." Subscriptions at savings over single ticket prices are still available.

The Muir String Quartet will open the "Chamber Masterworks" series on October 22. Other artists in this series will be The Emmanuel Wind Quintet with Ursula Oppens, pianist, on February 11; The Beaux Arts Trio on March 25; and Pomerium Musices, presenting a program of music by Josquin des Prez on April 15.

The "Virtuosi in Recital" series will begin with the Dutch violinist, Jaap Schroder with Elaine Thornburgh, harpsichord, on November 5. On January 14, 1985, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, George Manahan, conductor, will feature Aurelia Mika Chang, the 15-year-old pianist who won the Orchestra's annual Young Artists Auditions this year, in a performance of Mozart's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in G Major, No. 17. Metropolitan Opera baritone, Sherrill Milnes will appear on March 11, and pianist Andras Schiff in an all-Bach program on May 13.

Concerts are held on Mondays at 8 p.m. at McCarter Theatre. Subscriptions are available until October 9 at the Concert Office, Woolworth Center, Princeton University 08544. For tickets write to this address or call 452-5707 or 452-4239 during business hours. After October 9, the remaining tickets to all concerts will go on sale at the McCarter Theatre Box Office.

MUSICALE SATURDAY

For Scholarship Fund. The Westminster Conservatory's "Spring Musicale!" will feature artist faculty members in a benefit performance for the Conservatory scholarship fund.

Music professionals who have distinguished themselves as performers and teachers will donate their time and talent so that the talents of young musicians may be recognized and encouraged. The performance, on Saturday, June 2, marks the establishment of the Westminster Conservatory scholarship Fund.

The "Spring Musicale!" will be held in Bristol Chapel, on the Choir College Campus, beginning at 7:30. The concert will be followed by a reception in Williamson Hall. Tickets for the benefit are available through the Westminster Conservatory office, or at the door the night of the concert. Tickets are priced at $10 or $5 for students.

Larger donations may be made in the category of "Friend" ($25-$49), "Sponsor" ($50-$99), or "Benefactor" ($100-$500). All donations are tax deductible.

'A Small Gem' of a Play at McCarter Sunday Reveals New Facets in Brilliant Production

THAT OLD GIN GAME: Restaged to play in almost any place — including gymnasiums and high school auditoriums where it has indeed been playing on its 'round-the-countryside tour — "The Gin Game" will come back home to McCarter for a single performance this Sunday, June 3. Penelope Reed and Robert Lanchester, of the McCarter resident acting company, have been making the spring tour with D.L. Coburn's Pulitzer-winning play. (Cliff Moore Photo)

The Gin Game is a small gem of a play that reveals new facets of itself with each viewing, and the McCarter Theatre Company production with Robert Lanchester and Penelope Reed — which this reviewer saw at a preview, and which will play McCarter on Sunday night, is brilliant.

D.L. Coburn's two characters are in what the man calls "an old age home," but this is not a play about aging. Weller Martin and Fonsia Dorsey, far from being senile or weary, are dynamic, combative, sharp-witted, and hungry: he for the power and she for the companionship that eluded them in their earlier years.

News of The THEATRES

To what extent it is a play about traditional maleness-vs.-femaleness you can decide for yourself. In any case, it is about many universal human problems, is emotionally believable and interesting, and the Lanchester-Reed version is by no means a carbon copy of the Hume Cronyn-Jessica Tandy one that took a Pulitzer and other prizes during its long Broadway run in 1977-'78. These McCarter regulars make it all their own, and electrically dramatic in new ways.

A dramatist takes a chance when he tries to catch and hold audience attention for an entire evening with two characters: and "senior citizens"?? In a "home"??? But those are the only chances Mr. Coburn took with his Gin.

Constructed in Layers. He built it like a superhighway, level on level: a foundation of broad comedy; then some documentary insight into life among the neglected elderly; some drama; a suggestion of romance; some explosive violence; some personal tragedy — all held together by suspense and surfaced by crisp and often witty, sometimes extremely funny, dialogue.

Gin carries echoes of many surefire works — from Punch & Judy, Jiggs & Maggie, Harry & Billie of Born Yesterday (who actually played a similar gin game) to almost any animated film cartoon in which the big greedy hunter gets his nose bloodied by his mousy little prey. But because it rings dead true to life, and to its two characters, Gin seems wholly original, and therefore never fabricated or contrived; or almost never.

It cannot rightly be called a two-character play because the irascible Weller and the deceptively submissive Fonsia undergo such changes, under pressure from circumstances and each other, that one has the impression of many people.

Like life, Mr. Coburn's play contains many morals and messages, but so embedded in the exciting action that Gin never seems preachy.

A Simple Story. On the face of it, the story is simple: Weller desperately needs to overpower someone. He chooses the only weapon available — gin rummy, at which he is experienced and thinks himself skillful; and the only victim at hand, the genteel and lonely Fonsia, who appears to be a born loser.

To tell more of the story might cheat those who will be seeing Gin for the first time, although knowing it in detail did not diminish in the least this viewer's enjoyment of the McCarter version, partly because Miss Reed and Mr. Lanchester — who also gets credit for a masterly job of directing — bring both new substance and new shading to it.

It has been said the body is the actor's face, and this is conspicuously true of the pair who give this Gin its fizz. Miss Reed IS Fonsia, physically, from her feet up, and her character changes as she goes from sloppy slippers to a pair of iron-gray shoes that, by themselves, should have put Weller on guard.

Mr. Lanchester's body is as slim as a sword and as ready for battle.

Despite their sad situations, both actors are innately attractive and appealing, and this gives special poignancy to the second scene, in which the two antagonists, having met by surprise on the home's back porch, he in ratty bathrobe and ankle sox, she in hair-curlers and no make-up, meet a week later — in their Sunday best, obviously to impress each other. Her over-made-upness is genuinely touching.

They seem years younger and trembling on the edge of a friendship that might light up the impending gloom for both of them. As in any good story, one aches for the reasonably happy ending that suddenly seems possible.

But Gin is a product of its time, in the sense that where happy endings once were mandatory in comedies, now unhappy endings are. The one implausibility in Gin is Fonsia's fantastic card luck, which dooms their relationship. One cannot help feeling that the author, and not fate, is dealing those cards and sending Weller and Fonsia back into the shadows for sound commercial reasons.

The fact that one rather resents seeing their slim hopes dashed by a plot device is a mark of how skillfully the characters are written and how effectively brought to life by Lanchester and Reed.

We give those two stars four stars: most highly recommended.

Nightly: THE SHOOTING STARS 7:30
AMARCORD 9:30

THE NIGHT OF THE SHOOTING STARS is a fascinating plunge into the Italian collective unconscious by the Taviani Brothers (Padrone). It is set in a Tuscan village and its environs during a summer week in 1944, when the American troops were only days away, and the Germans who had held the area under occupation, were preparing to clear out. The film is a series of vignettes and anecdotes as filtered through the memory of a woman who was six at the time, and who is now telling the story to her daughter. Comedy, tragedy, vaudeville, melodrama, they're all here, and all inseparable; terrible atrocities appear side by side with magical visions. The Tavianis dip in and out of different characters' minds, which allows events to exist both in the historical past and in the storybook realm of once-upon-a-time. Regardless of how many movies you've seen about World War II, you've never seen anything approaching this. It is the achievement of the brothers that we come to see and to share the dreams of the townspeople, finding humor and horror in each character, scene and shot. At the film's end, one feels as if one had dreamed it, just like the children in it. Italy, 1982, 106 minutes, R

AMARCORD is Fellini at the top of his form, full of wonder, affection and imagination. A moving reminiscence of his youth in a small town in fascist Italy, it combines the concerns of his early neo-realist comedies with the fantastic style of his later films. Full of tales–some romantic, some slapstick, some bawdy, some elegiacal–it is a sprawling, touching and often hilarious evocation of life. Fellini makes his points the way Picasso painted pictures, and this is a kind of personal dream machine of exhilirating beauty. Italy, 1974, 127 minutes, R

SAT. thru MON., June 23-25
Nightly: SHOOT THE MOON 7:30
KRAMER VS. KRAMER 9:40

SHOOT THE MOON is the story of Faith and George Dunlap (Diane Keaton and Albert Finney), who live with their four daughters in a handsome old farmhouse in California's affluent Marin County, outside San Francisco. Despite this idyll, their fifteen-year marriage is about to end. George is seeing another woman (Karen Allen), walks out on his wife early in the movie, and the film's subject is the intense emotional dislocation that follows–the wounds that separation inflicts on a family. Shoot the Moon is no soap opera however, but serious, unsentimental and novelistic in its focus on anecdotal detail, rather than melodramatic plotting. Director Alan Parker (Midnight Express) and writer Bo Goldman (Melvin & Howard) are especially good at dramatizing the small irritations of domestic life that suddenly grow into furious hurricanes. Together, they transform commonplace affections and miseries into something vibrant, moving, and even funny, a domestic comedy of sometimes terrifying implications about attractive, intelligent human beings and the way they respond to the realities of life. USA, 1981, 122 minutes, R

KRAMER VS. KRAMER is a superior soap opera about the death of a family that earns its tears honestly. And although it is as satisfying as a timeless tragedy about marital and parental love, it also travels across a minefield of contemporary social issues, many of which are not explicitly stated. Dustin Hoffman is Ted Kramer, a self-absorbed ambitious advertising executive insensitive to the needs of his wife, Joanna (Meryl Streep). He is stunned one day when she walks out on him and their seven-year old son (Justin Henry). Now compelled to concentrate on his son, he puts enormous love and energy into being a father, only to have a more self-assured Joanna return after eighteen months to claim custody. Kramer Vs. Kramer sharply questions established attitudes about custody, and its only "villain" is the fact that even with right on both sides, one side must lose. Writer-director Robert Benton gives his movie its depth and complexity by challenging the audience's preconceptions and snap opinions at every turn, and by clearing away the artifice that most American filmmakers use to shape human experience. USA, 1979, 105 minutes, PG

WED. thru FRI., June 27-29
Nightly: WOMEN IN LOVE 7:30
CARNAL KNOWLEDGE 9:45

WOMEN IN LOVE is Ken Russell's screen adaptation of the D.H. Lawrence tale of sexual uneasiness and doubt. Oscar-winner Glenda Jackson and Jennie Linden play two sexually mature and intellectually active sisters struggling against the confines of a rural English mining town. Alan Bates and Oliver Reed are the men in their lives, and the stories of the four explode with subtle frustrations, warped joys and bitter passions. Russell and screenwriter Larry Kramer have endowed their film with such an intense saturation of time and place that universality of behavior and its contemporary significance glitter throughout. England, 1970, 129 minutes, R

CARNAL KNOWLEDGE was the first–and by far, the most–mature American movie to attempt to deal with sex in our liberated cinematic times. Written by Jules Feiffer and directed by Mike Nichols, it spans over two decades, from the 40's to the 70's, in the lives of two friends–Sandy (Art Garfunkel), and Jonathan (Jack Nicholson)–and records their progress from sex-starved college students to sexually bewildered adults. With Candice Bergen and Ann-Margret as the women in their lives, this remains one of the more original, concerned and merciless film comedies of the decade, and a penetrating reflection on America's sexual mores. USA, 1971, 96 minutes, R

SAT. thru MON., June 30-July 2
Nightly: TENDER MERCIES 7:30
LOCAL HERO 9:15

TENDER MERCIES, the first American effort by Australian director Bruce Beresford (Breaker Morant) is one of those "ten best" movies that no one ever gets a chance to see, despite its Oscar-winning performance by Robert Duvall as Mac, a boozy, burned-out C&W singer-songwriter trying to make it back into music and into life. The focus is on his stoical struggle to come to terms with his songwriting, his vindictive country-star ex-wife (Betty Buckley, of CATS fame), and the teenage daughter he has left behind. Mac's salvation is the love of a widow, played by luminous newcomer Tess Harper, who runs a shabby, motel-gas station in Texas with the aid of her young son. Tender Mercies is a lovely film about smalltown life, loneliness, country music, marriage, divorce and parental love, and it is all with all these things in equal measure. Beresford's feel for character and atmosphere is unerring, and playwright Horton Foote's screenplay finds its pace and meaning in the slow tempo of rural Texas life. Once we have attuned to the movie's rhythm, we see wounds heal, friendship and romance open, and a bond is sealed between the filmmakers and the audience. USA, 1983, 93 minutes, PG

LOCAL HERO is the work of Scot director Bill Forsythe in which Peter Riegert plays MacIntyre, the front man for a Texas oil magnate (Burt Lancaster), who is dispatched to the tiny Scottish fishing village of Ferness to sweet-talk its residents into selling the drilling rights to their land for an oil refinery. Sound familiar? But wait–these villagers are eager to sell. Instead, Ferness casts its spell (like Brigadoon) over MacIntyre, and it is the outsider, succumbing to its charm, who ends up defending the village against everyone's greedy impulses. LOCAL HERO is an irresistible, benevolent fable about a happy interlude of cultural shock. Forsythe has a flair for for understatement —the tellingly incongruous detail—and for eccentric sidetracks and digressions. He immerses Riegert's computer whizkid in the hypnotic rhythm of life in a remote corner of the world, and the result is a genuine fairy tale of a movie. It's funny, yes, but with the kind of humor that induces chuckles, not belly laughs. And once you adjust to his quiet, lyrical point of view, you find that the film's surprisingly complex moods linger with a bittersweet afterglow. Scotland, 1982, 110 minutes, PG

TUES. thru SUN., July 3-8
TUES.-THURS.: WARGAMES 7:30
EMPIRE 9:30
FRI.-SUN.: EMPIRE 7:30
WARGAMES 9:40

WAR GAMES, in which director John Badham brings Dr. Strangelove into the computer age, was one of the more delightful movie surprises of last summer. Matthew Broderick is David, an ordinary, 17-year old high school computer jock, who is shy, serious, sweet with his girlfriend (Ally Sheedy) and bored with school–such a nice kid, in fact, that he deserves to be a movie hero. One lazy afternoon in his bedroom, he accidentally taps into the Defense Department's supersecret early warning system and innocently begins matching wits with the master computer in a video game called "Global Thermonuclear War." When he launches "fantasy" missiles, we're off and running in a pop apocalyptic nightmare. David is detected and arrested by government security forces who are convinced he's an enemy agent, and his responses are full of injured innocence and inventive ripostes. Only he knows that the Pentagon's computer is continuing to play the game. But since he's a teenager, no one will listen to him, and so he's off and running to save us all from Doomsday and World War III. Will David escape in time to find the scientist (David Warner) who programmed the computer and avert a nuclear holocaust? Tune in tomorrow, or better still, see the movie. War Games flirts with an E.T.-like charm before it takes off in a more obviously melodramatic course. But while it's aimed at a teenage audience, this is a film made with such skill and intelligence that its impact should be as great on a mature one. And it certainly confirms our worst suspicions about the susceptibility of computers to tinkering by smart kids. USA, 1983, 114 minutes, PG

Nightly: LAST TANGO IN PARIS 7:15
LOLITA 9:30

LAST TANGO IN PARIS remains the most powerfully erotic and sexually liberating movie of our time. Bernardo Bertolucci's employment of sex combined with passion and emotional violence was a real cinematic breakthrough of the 70's. Marlon Brando plays a middle-aged American widower living in Paris who, in despair, sets up an apartment with an anonymous young girl (Maria Schneider) for afternoons of pure sexual encounter. These sessions form the core of the film, during which she falls in love with him and he instructs her in sexual experiences that are still new in conventional films–scenes that are frenzied, furious celebrations of the ecstasies and limitations of sexual passion. Both Bertolucci and Brando dare to pull out all the stops, and the result still shocks, antagonizes and embarrasses. Italy/France, 1972, 125 minutes, X

LOLITA is Stanley Kubrick's adaptation of Vladimir Nabokov's classic novel, and it captures the author's black humor with ghoulish understatement. James Mason is delicious as Humbert Humbert, the college professor who marries a lonely widow (Shelley Winters) purely out of lust for her adolescent daughter (Sue Lyon). Humbert's prurient passion is fed by its fetters–and Lolita's pubescent sexuality is aptly intimated, rather than made explicit. Peter Sellers, as Humbert's foil, Quilty, plays several characters in one–all delightfully sinister. Nabokov wrote his own screenplay for this film that only grows better with time, and that, as an American satire, is as profound as the novels unforgettable cross-country motel tour-de-farce. USA, 1962, 152 minutes

WED. thru SUN., July 18-22
Nightly: ROAD WARRIOR 7:30
SEVEN SAMURAI 9:15

THE ROAD WARRIOR is Australian director George Miller's view of the not-too-distant post-nuclear future, when the only things of value left are moving vehicles–cars, trucks, cycles–and the fuel they need to keep moving. The few remaining survivors have assembled an oil refinery in a fortress, where they are besieged by a band of subhuman bikers and car-freaks, led by the "Humungus," the meanest and strongest man left on earth. Into this apocalyptic vision of cattlemen vs. homesteaders rides Mel Gibson (Gallipoli) as a kind of 21st century Shane-in-black-leather who makes a pact with the refiners to help them reach freedom. This is an extravagant film fantasy that looks like a sadomasochistic comic book come to life. Miller is the Diaghilev of demolition derbies: bodies, bikes and Buicks are hurtled at each other in an almost balletic series of smashups, culminating in a chase that has few screen equals for sheer visceral excitement. Be forewarned: Road Warrior has violence aplenty, and is definitely not for the squeamish. Australia, 1982, 94 minutes, R

SEVEN SAMURAI is Kurosawa's masterpiece, arguably the greatest of all Japanese action movies, and a candidate for anyone's "Top Ten Films of All Time" list. Pauline Kael has called it the greatest battle epic since Birth of a Nation, and its subtle interplay of feelings between villagers and warriors has inspired a host of imitators, from The Magnificent Seven (a western re-make) to Star Wars. It is the tale of seven knights hired to defend a village against forty mounted bandits, their pay a few handfuls of rice and the sheer thrill of vanquishing the plunderers of society. Toshiro Mifune plays the most colorful of the mercenaries, and Takashi Shimura is his stern leader, a man who embodies the eternal loneliness of the feudal samurai warrior. Fighting itself is the film's real subject, and the result is an epic on violence and action, a raging, sensuous work of such overpowering immediacy that it leaves you both exhilirated and exhausted. Japan, 1954, 141 minutes

WED. thru SUN., July 25-29
Nightly: LAST METRO 7:30
MEPHISTO 9:45

In THE LAST METRO, Francois Truffaut's focus is on a small theatre company trying to operate in German-occupied Paris during World War II. The Montmartre Theatre's Jewish director, Lucas Steiner (Heinz Bennent) has gone underground–quite literally, for his actress-wife (Catherine Deneuve), the company's star, has fixed up a secret apartment for him beneath the theatre's stage, from which he listens to rehearsals and directs a new production by giving notes to her during her nightly visits. The story is how she copes with a new leading man who is involved in the resistance (Gerard Depardieu), as well as with the play itself, its cast and crew, her husband's constant peril, and the movie's villain, a censorious critic who is also a Nazi collaborator. In a time when free speech is forbidden, the work of the artist becomes a true commitment, and Truffaut offers a penetrating view of how people survive and make do in times of stress, rise and fall to occasions, adjust their principles, and tend their egos with no more cowardice or heroism than ordinary mortals. France, 1980, 133 minutes, PG

MEPHISTO, winner of the 1982 Oscar as Best Foreign Film, is based on the 1936 novel by Klaus (son of Thomas) Mann. Directed by Hungary's Istvan Szabo, its subject is an actor's gradual betrayal of political and moral principle in return for professional advancement in Nazi Germany. In the title role, Austria's Klaus Maria Brandauer is nothing short of sensational in his manic, success-obsessed portrait of an actor's soul is a whirlwind of sound and fury as he claws his way from a regional stage in Hamburg to directorship of the state theatre in Hitler's Berlin. He becomes more sympathetic (or at least pathetic) as his actions become more repellent, and he slowly realizes that he has sold his soul to the devil–the very role that, as an actor, he is best known for playing. A vibrant metaphor of the conscience under siege, this is a film that through the sheer force of its imagery and its dazzling central performance is that rarest of artistic efforts, a moral act that is never overtly moralizing and always supremely artful. Hungary, 1981, 135 minutes

Nightly: THE LAST WAVE 7:30
JIMMIE BLACKSMITH 9:30

THE LAST WAVE began the Australian film "invasion" of 1978 and served notice that the cinema of the land "down under" was a new force to be reckoned with. Directed by Peter Weir (Year of Living Dangerously), it combines psychological thriller, courtroom drama, disaster film, and supernatural mystery in depicting the inner-hysteria of a man and his world-order gone awry. Richard Chamberlain plays a Sydney lawyer whose defense of five aborigines accused of ritual murder involves him in a series of bizarre and inexplicable experiences. The film's real subject is matters occult, and the plot makes much of the aborigines' tribal traditions and beliefs, particularly what they call "dreamtime," a nonstop spirit-life that for them is more real than the ordinary world. Weir has the ability to find the eerie in the commonplace; from this work, it's easy to see why he's still considered to be Australia's foremost film director. Australia, 1977, 106 minutes, PG

THE CHANT OF JIMMIE BLACKSMITH is perhaps the most remarkable and certainly the most powerful of all the films yet to emerge from the Australian film explosion of the 1980's. Based on a novel (by Thomas Keneally) which was based, in turn, on actual events, this is an epic work that re-creates a young, half-caste aborigine's one-man war against white society in turn-of-the-century frontier Australia. Director Fred Schepisi's film is a genuinely tragic vision of the brutal collision of two cultures and races, a collision embodied in its hero, Jimmie Blacksmith (Tommy Lewis), raised somewhat uneasily on the Christian tenets of a white minister and the ancient tribal legends of the aborigine culture he has left behind. Arriving at manhood only to discover he cannot gain acceptance in the white world, and victimized by a series of white employers, Jimmy suddenly explodes in a scene of violence as bloody and horrifying as any you're likely to encounter on the screen this year. Fierce in physical joy and suffering, with episodes of great overwhelming natural poetry, Jimmie Blacksmith churns up your insides and divides your sympathies. It's a nobly serious treatment of a frightening theme, provoking at once pity, terror and ultimately, a feeling of exhausted peace. Australia, 1978, 108 minutes, R

SAT. thru MON., Aug. 4-6
Nightly: BREATHLESS 7:30
SHAMPOO 9:20

BREATHLESS is Jim McBride's remake of the 1960 Godard classic (with Jean-Paul Belmondo and Jean Seberg) which inaugurated the new wave in cinema. With its virtually identical "plot" translated from Paris to Los Angeles, it becomes a very stylish and sexy film noir, a tale of obsessive love neatly balanced between exploitation movie and art film. McBride takes a great deal from Godard, but reverses the nationalities, making his film the story of an American gangster and a French girl. Richard Gere (An Officer and a Gentleman) plays a punk car thief who steals a Porsche in Las Vegas and, while driving it back to his fence in LA, accidentally shoots and kills a pursuing cop. Gere is all strutting postures and wild impulses, a desperate romantic who is willing to risk his life for the beautiful French student (Valerie Kaprisky) whose life he barges in on. The seedy neon glare of LA has never flared more luridly or luminously, and the highly touted sex scenes between Gere and Kaprisky deliver as promised. Breathless is a classic example of high cinema chic, but it never loses sight of its characters–which is why, even if you prefer the original, you can't accuse this remake of cynicism. USA, 1983, 100 minutes, R

SHAMPOO is a virtuoso example of sophisticated, kaleidoscopic farce, and a triple triumph for actor-writer-producer Warren Beatty. It is on one hand the story of the Beverly Hills crowd and its hustlers, and on the other, an assessment of the morality, mentality and mood of the Nixon-era beginnings. Beatty plays George, stud and male hairdresser to the stars, and we follow him through forty working hours as he makes his way from house to house and from woman to woman (including Julie Christie, Lee Grant and Goldie Hawn). A contemporary mixture of restoration comedy of manners and La Dolce Vita 1970's, the film's working metaphor is sex, and you're not likely to see it on home tv anytime soon. Directed by Hal Ashby. USA, 1975, 110 minutes, R

AGUIRRE 9:45

THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING found director John Huston (The Maltese Falcon, Treasure of Sierra Madre) back in fine form with this Kipling tall-tale of courage, camaraderie, gallantry and greed set in 19th century India. Michael Caine and Sean Connery play a pair of old-fashioned adventurers and con-artists who, upon discharge from the British army, decide to carve out their own kingdom in remote Kafiristan (now part of Afghanistan). Shot in glorious wide-screen in Morocco, the film has just enough romantic nonsense to enchant the child in us all. England, 1975, 129 minutes, PG

AGUIRRE was the 1973 precursor of Werner Herzog's 1982 epic Fitzcarraldo. Also shot entirely in Peru, it deals with Spanish Conquistadors searching in the Andes for the mythical El Dorado in 1560. When their expedition is stopped by mountains and jungle, an exploratory party is sent downriver on huge rafts to seek a way out, and what begins as a dangerous journey (including rapids, Indians and accidents), turns into a manifestly self-destructive one. The second-in-command, Aguirre (Klaus Kinski), foments a mutiny, declares himself the Emperor of El Dorado, and proceeds to tyrannize the ever-dwindling band. In the end, only he, truly mad in the best tradition of Shakespeare's Richard III, is left on a raft covered with corpses. This is no ordinary run-of-the-rapids adventure, but a meditation upon history and a magnificent image of the will to power run berserk. Herzog is a true poet of the cinema, and in this reflection on dictatorship, dreams of world rule and despots, the result is mesmerizing. He has us in his clutches from the very first shot, and along with Aguirre we are dragged into his demonic fantasy. West Germany, 1973, 93 minutes

Nightly: KING OF COMEDY 7:30
STUNT MAN 9:30

THE KING OF COMEDY is the latest collaboration between director Martin Scorsese and Robert De Niro, who also teamed up in Taxi Driver and Raging Bull. Conceived of as a comedy, it is funny, but it is also bitter, angry, and sometimes manic to the edge of lunacy. De Niro plays Rupert Pupkin (you'll never forget that name), a 34-year old messenger and struggling stand-up comic, who wants to be a talk-show host. He's obsessed with a Johnny Carson-type entertainer named Jerry Langford (Jerry Lewis), whom he sees as his mentor, but who gives him the brush. So with the aid of a rich, young, neurotic groupie (newcomer Sandra Bernhard), De Niro abducts Lewis and holds him captive, while he demands a guest spot on his late night TV show as ransom. Talentless, imitative, hollow, yet maniacally persistent, Rupert Pupkin is a kind of primal American schmuck, for whom immortality is a series of one-liners. Rupert is not just mediocre–he's demonically mediocre. The King of Comedy is clever, brilliant and ice-cold, and again confirms Scorsese's reputation as one of the most original voices of his film generation. USA, 1982, 108 minutes, R

THE STUNT MAN is a movie that plays fast, funny and loose–with ideas. At once it's an exercise in pop Pirandello, a scathingly funny satire on filmmakers, and a moral tale about the perils of paranoia. Newcomer Steven Railsback plays a fugitive on the run from the police who stumbles upon a movie company on location. Its flamboyant and egotistical director (Peter O'Toole) hires him to replace–and to impersonate–a stunt man killed during the filming of his bizarre World War I epic. But movie stunts are based on an absurd–or existential–mix of reality and illusion, and not even the stunt man is told where one ends and the other begins. Director Richard Rush keeps the audience in a state of hallucinatory suspense, never revealing more than the stunt man-fugitive knows, constantly changing the rules of the game as he shifts from melodrama to tragedy to farce. This is a "trip movie," of constantly shifting perceptions, with a dazzling cast of superb stunt sequences and deftly satirical behind-the-scenes bits about movie-making. USA, 1979, 129 minutes, R

Nightly: SEVEN BEAUTIES 7:30
MARIA BRAUN 9:30

SEVEN BEAUTIES established Lina Wertmuller beyond any doubt as one of the most important woman directors working in films today. In the film that propelled her into the highest reaches of cinematic art, Giancarlo Giannini plays Pasqualino–a great loser, imitation bandit, breadwinner, lover, soldier–whose only grip on selfhood is his macho code of survival, itself a grotesque imitation of the codes of civilization. Seven Beauties is a handbook for survival, a drama of shattering impact, and one of the most astonishing and profound black comedies since Dostoevski–and he didn't even make movies. Italy, 1975, 116 minutes, R

THE MARRIAGE OF MARIA BRAUN is the late Rainer Werner Fassbinder's mixture of soap opera, sexual politics, offbeat comedy, epic romance, current history, social satire, and period piece into an amazingly coherent whole. Fassbinder uses the story of his prodigious heroine who mobilizes herself upward (while waiting for her long-lost soldier husband) as a metaphor for the defeat, rise, growing pains and ultimate fate of postwar Germany, from the fall of Hitler through the recovery and beyond, to a destiny that combines apocalypse, irony and farce. Hanna Shygulla's stunning performance in the title role established her as the most exciting new German screen star since Marlene Dietrich. Germany, 1978, 120 minutes, R

SAT. thru MON., Aug. 18-20
Nightly: PERSONAL BEST 7:30
MURMUR 9:40

PERSONAL BEST is one of the most penetrating, heartfelt and thrilling movies yet made about a woman's rite of passage. It's a sweetly attentive, sensuous and witty celebration of the coming of age of a young female athlete struggling out of adolescence into womanhood. Mariel Hemingway plays a young track star, the protege of an older runner (Patrice Donnelly) who becomes her friend, mentor, builder, and, in a gently erotic scene, her lover. Their sex is no big deal–it just happens, for their sexual desire flows from the concern each feels for the other in a world where physical pain and psychic anxiety are the ingredients of self-development. Personal Best takes the world of track and field as a microcosm for the ecstasies and pains of self-striving, but you don't have to be a sports nut to enjoy the excitement and kinetic drive of its story. This is a film that disarms everyone with its full-frontal naturalness, its unsmirking bawdiness, its obvious liking for athletes as people, and its refusal to poeticize sport. Full of feeling, fire and thought, this is also a landmark work: it's the first post-feminist movie. USA, 1982, 122 minutes, R

MURMUR OF THE HEART succeeds not because of its controversial subject (incest) but because of its brilliant script by director Louis Malle, which follows an adolescent French boy as he comes of age and to terms with the puzzle and challenge of sexuality. It is really an old-fashioned 1950's kind of comedy about growing up, done with honesty, skill and wit. Although there is plenty of eroticism, Malle is concerned with the expression of caring between people, and the ways in which they relate to each other. He shows that humanity can still exist in a movie, coupled with compassion and governed by a sense of the absurd. France, 1971, 118 minutes, R stalled in Kresge auditorium of Princeton University's Frick Chemical Building on Washington Road, where all the films will be screened. (see ad, pages 8B-9B).

Comedy will open the season, with Woody Allen's "Zelig" and "Tootsie," playing June 14-18. Subsequent pairings include two dramas about divorce: "Shoot the Moon" with Albert Finney and Diane Keaton," and "Kramer vs. Kramer" with Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep.

"Women in Love" will join "Carnal Knowledge" and "Tender Mercies," which won this year's Oscar for Robert Duvall, will join the Scottish comedy, "Local Hero."

Last summer's computer-kid hit, "War Games," has been matched with "The Empire Strikes Back," chapter two of the "Star Wars" trilogy. Two classics of sexuality, "The Last Tango in Paris" and the 1962 adaptation of Nabokov's "Lolita" will be screened on the same bill.

"The Road Warrior" and the Japanese battle epic, "The Seven Samurai" will be on the same bill and so will Truffaut's "The Last Metro" and "Mephisto," the 1982 "Best Foreign Film" winner. Two films from Italy have been booked together: "Night of the Shooting Stars" and "Amarcord."

Australia contributes "The Last Wave" and "The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith." The re-make of "Breathless" will be shown with Warren Beatty's "Shampoo" and "The Man Who Would be King" with Werner Herzog's "Aguirre."

"The King of Comedy" shares the screen with "The Stuntman," Lina Wertmuller's "Seven Beauties" with Fassbinder's "The Marriage of Maria Braun" and "Personal Best" starring Mariel Hemingway with "Murmur of the Heart."

The season's final three programs will pair Costa Gavras' "Missing," with Jack Lemmon, and "Under Fire;" two Hitchcock classics re-released last year for the first time, "Rear Window" and "Vertigo" and "Risky Business" with "Trading Places."

'TECHNICOLOR COAT'

Jimmy Osmond performs the title role in this rock opera, based on the Old Testament story of Joseph, sold into slavery by his jealous brothers. The story, in song, is about his escape. Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber, who collaborated on "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Evita" and "Cats," are the collaborators on "Technicolor Dreamcoat."

Details regarding time and tickets are available from the box office at 215-862-2041.

Following "Joseph and the Technicolor Dreamcoat," Bucks County will present "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," with Diana Canova, who plays Corinne in the TV series, "Soap." The musical will play June 13-24.

The season will continue with "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," starring Ron Pallilo. Playing dates are June 27-July 8. "Guys and Dolls" is the next offering, featuring Joey Travolta and Donna Pescow. It will run from July 11-29.

"The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," August 1-19, will star Barbi Benton and Edd Byrnes.

"Fiddler on the Roof," with Avery Schreiber, will play August 22-September 9, followed by "Shenandoah," September 12-23 with Orson Bean.

For autumn, Bucks County has Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" with Bob Denver, opening September 26 and running through October 14, followed by "Pippin" October 17 through November 4 with Erica Gimpel of TV's "Fame."

"Man of La Mancha" will play a return engagement with Julius LaRosa — dates to be announced — and the season will close with "Annie," November 28 through December 9.

MILL HILL MOVIE

"Samurai," The Movies at Mill Hill series, shown in the Trenton theatre, will continue with "The Seven Samurai" at 7 p.m. Monday, June 4.

The Mill Hill Playhouse is in Trenton at the intersection of Front and Montgomery, with free parking in two lots across the street. Admission is $2.50, $2 for senior citizens. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Audition for Musical

"Annie Get Your Gun" is the production of this 12th season for Theatre-By-The-Lake, Hightstown, and auditions will be held next Wednesday and Thursday, June 6-7 at 7 p.m. in Geiger-Reeves Hall on the campus of The Peddie School, Ward and South Main Streets, Hightstown.

Rehearsals will be from 7 to 11 p.m. Mondays through Fridays starting the day after try-outs, and production dates are Friday and Saturday, July 13-14, 20-21.

Singers may try out for the role of Annie Oakley, the sharp-shooter, made famous by the late Ethel Merman; for the hero, Frank Butler; Chief Sitting Bull; a variety of other characters and of course Buffalo Bill himself.

There is also a large singing, dancing chorus of adults and children. Those who audition may, if they wish, bring a prepared try-out piece and a resume although neither is required.

Irving Berlin songs include "You Can't Get a Man With A Gun," "The Girl That I Marry" and "There's No Business Like Show Business."

TWO SINGERS SET

For Folk Concert. The Princeton Folk Music Society will feature Christine Primrose and Alison Kinnaird in a house concert on Friday, June 8 at 8 at the home of Art and Arlene Miller, 9 University Way, Princeton Junction.

Christine Primrose is a singer of Gaelic songs. She was born on the island of Lewis, in the Outer Hebrides, where her family still lives, and has been singing since she was a child.

She won many prizes at local events and in 1974 was awarded top place in the traditional singers class at the National Mod. In 1978 she was first in the same competition at the Pan-Celtic Festival in Killarney.

Ms. Primrose has appeared regularly on radio and television and has made many concert performances. She has sung extensively throughout Scotland, Ireland, England, Wales and Brittany. She also toured North America in 1980.

Alison Kinnaird holds an MA in Celtic studies and archaelogy at Edinburgh. She plays the charsach (small harp), and is a leading exponent of Scottish harp music which she began studying at the age of 13. She has won the Harp trophy several times at the National Gaelic Mod, and also won the Harp Competition at the Pan-Celtic Festival in Killarney. Ms. Kinnaird is also a fine Gaelic singer.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3.50 for students, $3 for Society members. There are no advance sales. Memberships are available at the door. For further information, call 924-9143 or 799-0009.

ORGAN RECITAL SET

At Chapel. James Parham will present a recital of French and German Romantic organ music Saturday at 7 at the Princeton University Chapel.

Mr. Parham is a doctoral student in church music at Northwestern University. He received an M.M. from Northwestern in 1983 and an A.B. in music from Princeton University in 1981. His program will include works by Alexandre Guilmant, Cesar Franck, Franz Liszt and Joseph Rheinberger.

Admission is free and the public welcome.

AUDITIONS PLANNED

For Trenton Opera. Auditions for the 1984-85 season of the Trenton Civic Opera Company will be held Monday, June 4, beginning at 7 p.m. at the War Memorial Auditorium, Lafayette and Willow Streets.

The productions to be cast are The Student Prince for November 4 and La Traviata for May 5, 1985. Those who are auditioning are asked to prepare some music from the opera for which they are trying out, but if that is not possible, a similar selection from operetta or opera in the same voice range. To make an appointment for an audition call 883-1775.

Singers wishing to be in the choruses may call for an audition at another time. Those wishing to help with the productions are also invited to call.

Bumper Crop of Athletes in Next Fall's Freshman Class Should Bring Improvement in Four Men's Sports Teams

Okay, a quick sports trivia question:

Based on the results thus far, who has made the greatest contribution to the 1984-'85 sports teams at Princeton University?

Given that the 1984-'85 season will not begin until the fall, the answer ought to be obvious: Tony Cummings, the University's new director of admissions, whose office has made possible the likely matriculation of a bumper crop of athletic prospects at Old Nassau.

Among the major sports, the coaches of which are often especially anxious when a new admissions director comes to West College, the recruiting results are apparently very favorable — not only in terms of who was admitted, but also in terms of players who have chosen to attend Princeton.

SPORTS

The football staff reportedly feels that the quality of incoming players is the best that it has been since Frank Navarro has been coaching the Tigers. Basketball coach Pete Carril, for the first time in his career at Princeton, has shed his pessimistic outlook and admitted to feeling good about the new recruits. Hockey coach Jim Higgins predicts that the incoming Class of 1988 will give his program its third consecutive strong class of skaters. Baseball coach Tom O'Connell says he didn't succeed in recruiting the same number of prospects as last year, which was a banner year, but he is still pleased with the quality of the players headed for Clarke Field in the fall.

More Gridders. A year ago Princeton's freshman football roster numbered about 50 at this early stage; this year the coaches have pencilled in the names of about 60. They are penciled in since some of the prospects are still hearing tales of full rides and other inducements, which one can only imagine, from the scholarship schools.

According to the latest information picked up by Bill Stryker, who edits the athletic department's football newsletter, the Tiger's Lair, the hot prospects include tackle Steve Holland and quarterback David Morgan, both from Michigan and both also baseball players; Dave Milliken, a 6-foot-4, 240-pound lineman from Pittsburgh who also was sought by Yale; Darrell Love and Todd Jones, two exceptional running backs from Southern California who have been hearing the seductive whisperings from Stanford and Rice; and defensive end Chris Lynch and offensive lineman Sean Sullivan, both of whom were all-state in Connecticut.

The Tiger's Lair list also includes Chris Parry, a Florida tight end who was recruited by Harvard, Penn, and Columbia; Cleveland quarterback Jason Garrett, whose father is an assistant coach with the Browns of the National Football League; Stefan Pettine, a healthy-sized guard from Fort Collins, Colorado; and Jay Shurtz, a tailback from Missouri. One name the announcers may love is Bart Stoehr, pronounced just like the name of the former Green Bay quarterback. Princeton's Bart Stoehr is a 6-foot-2, 240-pound linebacker from Illinois.

One indication of how seriously the Princeton recruiting network is taking its task is that the yield from Pennsylvania and New Jersey — the mother lode of Princeton football prospects in recent years — is only fair this year. The Tigers are roaming farther afield in their quest for players able and willing to play Ivy League football.

Pete's Prospects. Carril did a little traveling himself to line up this year's crop of basketball recruits. He pulled in a guard and a forward from the same high school in Denver, Colorado: Tom Neff and John Walaj. Another Denver recruit is Brent Miley, a 6-foot-7 forward.

They join a cast that includes John Thompson III, the son of the Georgetown coach and an all-D. C. player who averaged 20.8 points for his high school team. Others on the freshman roster include New Jersey guards Bernie Stiroh (Kinnelon) and Dave Orlandini (St. Augustine's Prep in Atlantic County); Pennsylvanian Mike Harnum, a high scoring guard whose father coaches Susquehanna University; and a Buffalo center named Pete Hadrovick, who played only one year of high school basketball and is described by Carril as "a sleeper" — maybe he will become the Impossible Dream II.

Hockey's Higgins looks forward to the $2.9 million renovation of Baker Rink scheduled for completion in the first week of November. Along with the new lighting, new seats, new scoreboard, sound system, and press box, Higgins hopes to have some new and improved skaters on the ice.

With all but two skaters returning from last year, Higgins hopes next winter to have the one quality missing from previous Princeton hockey teams: depth. "Last year at one point we had seven players out with injuries, and five lost for the season," says the coach. "That hurts as the season progresses."

The Tigers will lose their starting goalie but three other returning players will fight for that spot. The incoming freshmen who may see ice time early and often include defenseman Len Quesnelle from the Toronto area and forwards Dave Umland and Tim Stevens, both from Minnesota. The Class of '88 recruits number 11, which Higgins views as a satisfactory quantity considering that 20 skaters are used in a game. In his first years at Princeton the coach was getting yields of six or seven.

Pitching Prospects. Tom O'Connell's young baseball team can score runs, but it can't always sustain a taut defense. Some of next year's freshmen might help. The coach is enthusiastic about the prospects of lefthander Greg Kuzma of Oakland, New Jersey, "who created a lot of headlines up there and had some pro offers," and of righthander Dick Casey of Swampscott, Massachusetts. "I'm hoping one or both will be front liners," says the coach.

Next year O'Connell's entire team returns with the exception of pitcher and captain Ed Aulisi. No one's name is engraved in the coach's lineup card. He expects to take a long look at Mike Reed of Bellingham, Massachusetts, an infielder and "an excellent hitter;" Marc Leavitt, brother of incumbent second baseman Todd who could give Princeton a brotherly double play combination; and Albert Gayle of Richmond, Virginia, who could crack the line-up at third, first, or in the outfield.

In terms of quantity, says O'Connell, "we're a little light. We like to end up with nine or ten kids. I lost two or three kids at the end to Stanford and another kid to Brown, who would have helped. Fortunately we got a lot of kids back."

The perennial question, of course, is how many of these players whose prospects seem so high now on paper will develop and become factors in their respective sports, as opposed to answers in some future trivial pursuit. In four years we will prepare another quiz. Be prepared.

Princeton Day Girls' Lacrosse Captures 4th Straight Title

THAT CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON, the fourth straight, is celebrated by Princeton Day girls' lacrosse team co-captains, Melinda Bowen (holding trophy) and Laura von Seldeneck (holding plaque). The Panthers defeated Peddie, 10-5, last Thursday to capture another NJISAA "A" division title. (W.L. Bill Allen photo)

For the fourth consecutive year the Princeton Day girls' lacrosse team has won the NJISAA "A" Division title, and this may well be their most decisive victory.

The final score, a 10-5 triumph over Peddie, tells only half the story. Along the way, the Panthers had to survive a rainout which washed away a significant lead the day before, and a change in sites for the game that wound up being played on their opponent's field.

Originally scheduled for Wednesday at Lawrenceville the contest was halted by heavy rain at the end of the first half with PDS ahead, 6-1. It had to start from the beginning the next day, giving Peddie a second chance. The Falcons gained another advantage when PDS agreed to play on their field; a memorial service at Lawrenceville made the use of its field inappropriate. The title game is normally played on a neutral field.

PDS coach Kim Bedesem agreed to the use of the Peddie field, because she felt PDS could win over there and this would eliminate any questions if Peddie lost on Princeton Day's field. Bedesem's players did not let her down.

They might have played better, she thought — perhaps they were too tense after losing the 6-1 lead the day before. "Our passing game was not what it could have been," Bedesem commented. "We had too many dropped passes, too many lost possessions. I was disappointed at the end, we wanted to prove we were the best by far."

With a 14-3 win over Peddie to open the season, and a 10-5 triumph this time, PDS certainly seems to have registered its superiority beyond doubt. It finished 12-1 for the season, demolishing all its "A" division opponents.

This time, the Blue and White led 3-1 at the half, on goals by Lynne Faden, Birgit Enstrom and Melinda Bowen. Karen Callaway, Maya Bermingham and Faden made it 6-1 soon after the intermission.

The home team rallied briefly, closing the gap to 6-4, and later 7-5, but PDS scored the last three. Callaway tallied twice more; Bermingham and Enstrom finished out the scoring.

Hilleary Thomas had another fine game in goal, making 13 saves. PDS had 29 shots on the Peddie goal.

The championship was the third for Bedesem as coach, and the first this year for any girls' team at the school.

Can the streak be continued? "We lose nine seniors this year," Bedesem lamented. "It looks like a rebuilding season."

Don't bet on it. While the New York Islanders failed in hockey, PDS may well be successful in its "drive for five" next spring.

ONE GAME LEFT

For PHS Nine. The 1984 season has come down to one game for the Princeton High School baseball team.

The Little Tigers will end their season this Wednesday at South Hunterdon -- rain or shine. The game was originally scheduled for Friday and PHS coach Ed Beacham reports if it rains on Wednesday the game will be cancelled.

The Little Tigers played out a string of remaining contests last week by splitting two league games, losing to Hopewell Valley Friday and defeating West Windsor the previous day. Currently, the Blue and White owns a 9-12 record.

PHS was limited to two hits by Keith Webster Friday in Pennington, in dropping a 5-2 decision to Hopewell Valley. Designated Hitter Derrick Martin doubled in one PHS run and Jason Petrone connected for Princeton's second hit. "We didn't hit the ball that well," agreed Beacham, who added that with the team being out of contention in league and tournament play, "it's kind of anti-climactic for everybody."

Junior Eddie Eccles, destined to join the PHS mound staff next year, went the distance and allowed eight hits, two by the Bulldogs' Bob Mikita. Only two of Hopewell's runs were earned.

"That's 13 innings Eccles has pitched and he's allowed just two earned runs," observed Beacham. His counterpart, Webster, struck out six and walked one but he was the victim of some shabby infield play by the victors, who were guilty of six errors.

Beacham cited Jon Sherin for pitching "a very fine game" against West Windsor the previous day at the Valley Road School field. He and Dino D'Angelo, who pitched the last inning and a third, combined to limit the 13-10 Pirates to five hits.

Sherin had just fanned a batter for the second out in the sixth inning when he asked Beacham to relieve him, complaining of sore fingers. "I told him, Jon, you're the first pitcher who ever asked to be taken out after striking out a guy," recalled Beacham.

Doubles by Eccles and catcher John Blankstein highlighted Princeton's nine hit attack, as Jason Petrone, Mickey Carnevale and Blankstein all drove in runs for PHS.

HUN ENDS SEASON

With Loss to Lawrenceville. The Hun School's up down baseball team ended its season Saturday on the down side, dropping a 4-1 decision to Lawrenceville.

The Larries' Jim Merritt allowed only one hit and fanned seven in notching his first win of the season against one loss. Hun mound veteran

PHS Is Best in Group Three Tennis

In Group 3 Tennis across the state, Princeton High School is king.

The Little Tigers won the NJSIAA Group 3 state title over the weekend at the Princeton University Court when in back-to-back matches they defeated two previously unbeaten teams. Led by its powerful brother tandem of Jacob and Mark Leschly at first and second singles, the Little Tigers first edged Parsippany Hills (21-0), 3-2, in the morning and then came back to shut out Ramapo (20-0), 5-0, for the title. The two wins were the fifteenth in a row for coach Joe Diefenbach's talented squad and the 23rd and 24th of the season. The 24 wins are the most ever by a PHS team.

PHS will next compete in the all-groups state semi-finals. Ahead for Jacob Leschly is the upcoming state singles competition where the once-beaten senior has been named the number one seed.

Leschly showed why he is considered the top singles player in the state in his match with Ramapo's Takesi Omono who is ranked fifth in the 18 and under class by the Eastern Tennis Association.

Leschly won the first set of the grueling 3-hour and 25-minute match, 7-5. He lost the second set, 3-6, and fought back from a 2-0 deficit in the third set to force a tie-breaker. Again, Leschly fell behind, 1-0, but then ripped off seven straight points to win the tie breaker, 7-1, and the match.

After the match, Leschly noted that Omono is not playing in the state singles tourney. "If I won without beating him everyone would say he was the best; now if I win, I can say I'm best in the state."

Mark Leschly, a sophomore, who has yet to be beaten this year, handled Bill Maxwell easily, 6-1, 6-0, while freshman Bruce Ellis, the third member of Princeton's overpowering singles trio, wiped out Ramapo's Sam Baker, 6-0, 6-0.

Princeton's two doubles teams of Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott and Matthew Mack and Brett Van de Bovenkamp won in straight sets.

Against Parsippany, the Leschleys dominated again. Jacob defeated Owen Lipnick, 6-0, 6-1, and Mark overpowered Brian Uy, 6-1, 6-1. PHS then sealed its win when Dunham and Elliott posted a 7-5, 6-2 victory. Mack and Van de Bovenkamp lost, 4-6, 1-6.

In the third singles, Ellis was leading Alan Lipnick, 5-2 in the first set when Diefenbach forfeited the match. "We had already won and I needed to save Bruce because we expected him to have a tough match later in the day against Ramapo," explained Diefenbach.

The previous day, the Little Tigers had added another title to their collection -- the Colonial Valley Conference crown.

PHS successfully defended its CVC title with a 4-1 victory over Hopewell Valley. The Bulldogs ended their season with a fine 15-5 record and three of those losses were at the hands of the Little Tigers.

Jacob Leschly defeated John Aris, 6-4, 6-2; Mark defeated Quentin Kelly, 6-2, 6-1; and Ellis blanked Chris Durham, 6-0, 6-0. Dunham and Elliott won 7-5, 7-6 (8-6 tie-breaker) while Mack and Van de Bovenkamp lost the only three-setter to Jim Aris and Jim Hines who won 4-6, 7-6 (8-6 tie-breaker), 6-3.

Easy Math. At the start of the season, Diefenbach, realizing he had two of the finest singles players in the area in the Leschly brothers, observed it meant that PHS virtually had a 2-0 lead in every match it started.

When Ellis came on and proved to be so effective at third singles it gave the Little Tigers a 3-0 lead. Even those slow in math soon realize when a team enters a best of five match with a 3-0 lead, it's likely to end up with the kind of season the Little Tigers are enjoying.

TITLE QUEST BEGINS

For PHS Girls Lacrosse. Last year the Princeton High School girls' lacrosse team came within one step of winning a state championship. This year, the quest by the Little Tigers to go all the way begins this week.

PHS, seeded third in the state competiton with a 12-1 record, will meet the winner of the Cinnaminson-Moorestown Friends game. PHS coach Joyce Jones reports the game was originally set for Friday but has tentatively been rescheduled to Thursday at 3:30 at the Riverside School field at the request of Princeton.

Princeton's probable opponent that day will be Moorestown Friends, who was an easy winner just recently over Cinnaminson in regular season play. Last year in the second round in the state competition, PHS defeated Moorestown Friends by one goal.

Jones added that she had no idea what Moorestown was doing this season. "I'm not a person who looks at seedings," she explained. "In lacrosse, like anything else, it's the team that is ready to perform that is going to walk off the field a winner -- regardless of what number it may be seeded."

Defending Moorestown, who stopped PHS in the title game last June, is seeded number one. Lenape, a state champion a few years ago, is seeded second and PHS is seeded third. Montville is seeded fourth and Summit is fifth.

Pete Stam took the loss, his third against four wins.

Merritt won his one game when he broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run double in the fifth inning to highlight a three-run rally.

The Hun defense was typical of the uneven play of the Raiders all year. Hun turned a triple play in the game but was also guilty of four errors. Not surprisingly, Hun coach Bill McQuade observed on more than one ocaision that his young team played like world beaters one game and poorly the next.

With the win, Lawrenceville's record climbed to 17-5, while Hun ended at 11-9.

RALLY FALLS SHORT

For PHS Softball Team. Princeton High's last chance to win a Colonial Valley League contest this season fell short last week when the Little Tigers scored four runs in the final inning but still failed to catch West Windsor which managed to hold on for an 11-9 win.

Monica Greenland had three hits for PHS which also had four doubles off WW pitcher Janet Pickens as each team connected for 14 hits. The loss kept PHS mired in the standings with a 2-14 record while West Windsor finished at 8-11.

HUN STICKMEN WIN

Season's Finale. The Hun School lacrosse team closed out a lacklustre 4-10 season last week by edging Rugters Prep, 5-4, in its final game. "At least it is nice to end on a win," commented coach Dave Faus who predicted better things for Hun in the sport in the next couple of years. "A lot of players are going to camp this summer," said Faus.

In the finale, Chris Goodyear, Jim Lomker, Brint Dietrich, Chris Natale and Lester Robbins all scored for Hun.

Goodyear finished the season as high scorer for Hun. The Princeton resident has 22 points on 19 goals and three assists. Freshman Greg Savidge was second with 13 points, while Natale and Dietrich each had 12.

WINNERS NAMED

In Jr. Olympics. In an AAU Junior Olympic Regional Track and Field Championship Meet held at Palmer Stadium Saturday and hosted by the Princeton Recreation Department, the Princeton team won 16 firsts, 11 seconds and nine thirds.

All first-place winners will compete in the Junior Olympic State Meet to be held June 16 at New Providence High School.

In the junior division, Gail Hughes won the 100 meter, the long jump, and was a member of the relay team that included Kartasia Merrill, Vanessa Thomas and Karen Swartz. Swartz also won the 400 and John Thompson won a gold medal in the boys high jump.

In the midget division, Kesti Ringland and Erin Irving each won two events. Irving captured the 100 and 800 meter runs while Ringland took the 50 meter in 7.4 seconds and was a member of the winning 400 meter relay team of Jennifer Wolinetz, Ashante Thompson and Lea Moore. Anthony White won the 50 meter.

In the bantam division, Brian and Brooke Perone each triumphed in the 800. Brian was also a part of the winning relay team of Judd O'Sullivan, Doug Bougher and Justin Bougher. Damian Tucker leaped 11-10½ to win the running long jump.

The girls relay of Ashely Dixon, Michele Kornhauser, Stephanie Glover and Ailey Penningroth also won a gold medal.

round bye, will enter the state tournament with a boost it received when it defeated Montville, 9-8, last week in its final regular season game. Montville had been the only team to defeat the Little Tigers this season when they beat PHS in its second game in April.

Jones labeled the victory a super win and an exciting spectator game for the Parents Day crowd when Montville began to battle its way back into the game.

Alison Fraker scored the first of her two goals one minute into the game to get Princeton off on the right foot. "We kept the lead throughout the game," said Jones.

At halftime, PHS was ahead 5-3 and at one point was in command, 9-4. Kim Stark, the visitors' leading scorer in the game with three goals, suddenly struck for a pair of goals and "before we knew it they were back in the game," recalled Jones. "I don't know if we fell asleep or they came to life.

"We should have beaten them by 10 goals; I wanted to beat them by 10."

Defensively, Princeton played a super game, Jones said. She was particularly lavish in her praise for goalie Liz O'Donoghue who turned aside 13 Mustang shots. PHS outshot the losers by a 40-21 margin, as Montville goalie Shelly Allen was equally impressive with 32 saves.

Sue Lofgren paced Princeton's offense with three goals, while Fraker and Erika Gabrielsen each had two. Booie Lockwood and Pam Jennings added one goal each and each had an assist.

PHS GIRLS SIXTH

In Sectional Track Meet. In the Central Jersey NJSIAA State Track Sectionals held Saturday in East Brunswick, the Princeton High girls' track team finished sixth in the team standings with 23 points. North Hunterdon won the team title with 50 points.

Veteran Gail Woolston was the Little Tigers' lone champion, winning the 400 meter in 59.2. Sprinter Teressa DiPerna was second in the 200 with a clocking of 26.4 and third in the 100 with 12.9. Hilary Jones ran a 60.8 to finish third in the 400.

In field events, junior Barbara Halvorsen took second in the javelin with a toss of 102-0. Susan Gray finished fifth in the 1,600 and Sarah Billington was fifth in the high jump.

In dual meet competition last week, PHS captured its seventh victory with an 83-39 victory over Hopewell Valley in a Colonial Valley Conference win. Hightstown virtually clinched the CVC title Friday when it defeated Notre Dame.

With the win, Hightstown has an 8-0 league record. PHS, which will end its regular season schedule this Wednesday against West Windsor is 7-1 in the league.

PHS swept to victory in every racing event against Hopewell. Woolston won at 200 and 400 meters while senior co-captain Dawn Gray won both hurdle events. Heather Gray won the 800 and Susan Gray the 1600. The Gray twins, Heather and Susan, then combined with Barbara Byrne and Janine Barnshaw to take the 1600 relay. PHS completed its running sweep when Kim Johnson won the 100 and Kiran Cummings the 3200.

Hilary Jones and Johnson finished 1-2 in the long jump for PHS and Billington took the high jump.

Colleen MacCotter generated the most points for the Bulldogs, winning the shot put, discus and javelin. Princeton's Halvorsen was second in the shot and javelin, Carinc Toussaint second in the discus.

TWO MORE WINS

For Sweet Jersey Corn. Sweet Jersey Corn last week edged arch rival 3 Seasons, 4-3, and defeated Larry's Corner Tavern, 7-1, to remain undefeated in the Mercer County Women's A Softball League. The two wins raised Corn's record to 6-0 this season and 32-0 over the last two years.

Clare Baxter was the winning pitcher in the win over 3 Seasons. She received help at the plate from Carol Knapp and Donna Nicholson who had two hits each.

The Corn will next play Champale Thursday evening at 6:30 at Field No. 4 at Mercer County Park.

JUNE TENNIS LESSONS

For Those Out of School. The Princeton Community Tennis Program will offer a special early June session for juniors who are out of school early.

The two one-week sessions will be offered the weeks of June 11-15 and June 18-22. These week long sessions will offer players of all ability levels a camp-type atmosphere. Students may choose to come for three hours or six hours each day for the week session.

Groups will be divided according to age and ability. Instruction, drills, and matches are all part of each day's activities. The session will be under the direction of Colleen Cosgrove, Princeton Community Tennis Program's new Program Teaching Director. Openings are still available.

Call the tennis office, 924-4343, for more information.

Soccer Tryouts Saturday

Tryouts for the Princeton '75 Traveling Soccer Team will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday, June 2 at the Washington Road fields. Call 466-1931 for information.

All-Star Baseball Here

Princeton Pitcher Bill Beard, infielder Todd Tuckner, and outfielders Dan Arendas and Drew Stratton will play in one of two all-star games to be held at Princeton's Clarke Field Thursday. The games are sponsored by the New Jersey College Coaches Association and will be played simultaneously at 3 p.m.

Sixty of the state's best collegiate players will be divided into four teams for the contests between the north and south all-stars. A team to represent New Jersey against the New York all-stars will be selected as a result of these games. The New Jersey-New York game will be held June 13 at Yankee Stadium.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

A LAWN IN THE SHADE OF A TREE
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates
The secret to growing grass under a shade tree is balance; your lawn trees and the grass beneath them are in constant competition for both food and sunshine. The trick is to try to give each one its share!!
When a tree is shallow-rooted it robs your lawn of the food and moisture you so carefully supply...if you're not specifically feeding the trees, the roots grow toward the surface to get what they need. The answer, then is to feed the tree, using a well balanced tree food injected directly into the area of the roots. This will help in developing the roots at their proper level. To balance the sunshine, a tree can be thinned by pruning, so that sunlight will filter through to the grass. A good practice, too, is to raise the branch level by pruning away lower limbs which won't be missed anyway.
If all else fails, consider a ground cover planted beneath your trees. Pachysandra often does much better a job than periwinkle or English Ivy.
Do call WOODWINDS (924-3500) if you have any questions or concerns. We are always glad to help!!

never complained. He was always home with the kids when I had a night meeting, and he gave me full support and encouragement."

Go East, Young Woman. But Kay's career at Town Topics might never have begun had things turned out differently in the forties.

Born and raised in Denver, Kay Hanly came east to college to attend Barnard in New York at the suggestion of her history teacher. She graduated from there in 1942, and got her master's in journalism at Columbia in 1943. She met Bill Bretnall while he was attending Columbia and they were married that same year. Kay took a job on the Foreign News Desk for United Press, and stayed there 18 months. "It sounds more glamorous than it was," she comments. "I rewrote cable news from overseas; it was very boring, strictly a desk job."

While Bill had a brief stint in the Army at the end of World War II, Kay moved back to Denver. Their first child, Bill, was born there in 1944.

After the war they lived on Staten Island, and Bill came house hunting in Princeton. Housing was in very short supply everywhere, including this town. Searching for a place to rent, Bill was told by one landlady, "I should think you should know by now that we really don't like newcomers here. Why don't you go back where you came from?" That remark helped turn both Kay and Bill into strong advocates for low-income housing here.

Eventually, they found a place in Stanworth, and a daughter, Anne, was born here in 1946. They moved to Hickory Court six years later, and Kay has lived there ever since.

The move to Princeton came about when Bill took a job in the shipping department with the College Entrance Examination Board, but he told Kay in no uncertain terms, "Don't put down any roots in this town; I only intend to stay in this job two or three years."

However, when ETS was formed, Bill was offered a job there and he went on to a 35-year career, before his untimely death in November, 1981. Kay started with ETS part time soon after, and also did some freelancing for women's magazines, before the job at Town Topics opened up.

A Unique Community. What keeps someone on the job for more than three decades? For Kay, part of the reason has been Princeton, itself. "It isn't every community of 25,000 that is as lively, articulate and argumentative as Princeton," she says. "It's always producing good quotes.

"It's also the quality of the elected officials here. "They are tremendous. They get lots of abuse and flack, for very little pay."

She has enjoyed meeting and interviewing the wide variety of people who live in a town like Princeton. "I have always been given total freedom in what I chose to write about," Kay points out. "And that has been a very nice aspect of this job."

As a reporter covering events that deeply affected her as much as they did other townspeople, Kay has kept to the sidelines most of the time. "I don't think reporters should be activists," she explains.

Obviously, in 30-plus years it hasn't been all sweethearts and roses. "The most painful [illegible] to cover were the Collins appeals," Kay says. " I did not agree with Collins' opponents, especially the housing activists. I think they were ill-advised.

"Most of the time, I sat there wondering how many friends I was losing. That's what happens to reporters in a small town. (Kay helped write a rare Town Topics editorial supporting Collins Development Corp in its battle with Borough Council.)

"I wish the heads of various boards could be compelled to plan together. I would like to see the center of Princeton developed, Black top parking lots are ugly to look at."

"A Closet Housewife." But that is behind her now. The job of reporting Princeton's news passes to others.

Kay will devote more time to volunteer activities, such as the Mercer Street Friends Center in Trenton and the Family Service Agency here.

She will not have many idle hours. "I'm really a closet housewife," she reports. "I love to cook and garden."

She will also have plenty of time for travel, visits to her children and grandchildren in St. Louis and Cleveland and keeping up with friends. Visits to art museums and theatres need no longer be limited to Wednesdays.

Kay Bretnall will have plenty to keep her busy, because inside she has always been an activist about many things. Her enthusiasm for this town and its people has been blended into years of outstanding reporting of the events that have shaped its growth.

Along the way she has been a key ingredient in making Town Topics a viable and respected part of this community. No editor could ask for more.

New Principal Is Selected, Replacing Norma Gumbiner At Community Park School

A candidate with six years' experience as a New Jersey elementary school principal has been chosen principal of Community Park School, succeeding Norma Gumbiner. Arthur Firestone, who lives in Princeton but is in the East Brunswick school system, will assume his new duties August 1.

His salary will be $45,935. Superintendent Paul Houston said the salary is near the bottom of the scale worked out with the administrators' union and is lower than that of the other elementary school principal, George Petrillo.

Mr. Firestone, who began teaching in 1970, was selected over Bill Cirullo, who has taught in Princeton schools for 14 years and is now a fourth-grade teacher at Riverside. (A letter supporting Mr. Cirullo's candidacy appears in "Mailbox," page 16.)

"They are two very fine people," said Superintendent Paul Houston, commenting on the board's selection. "The board chose one with considerably more direct experience."

All of Mr. Firestone's experience has been in elementary schools, Dr. Houston explained, adding that Mr. Cirullo had spent several years at the middle school before moving to Riverside. He also said that he had talked privately with Mr. Cirullo since the board's selection and would again.

In the selection process, a committee of staff and parents advised Dr. Houston on 11 finalists. The superintendent interviewed each separately, and chose two. He sent their names to the school board, whose members interviewed both. The board and Dr. Houston then met to discuss the candidates' merits, and the board voted for Mr. Firestone.

Affordable Housing Obligation Is Proving Difficult Problem for Township Committee

Township Committee has begun to tackle the question of "affordable housing" and the municipality's obligation to provide its "fair share" of regional housing needs under the state Supreme Court's Mt. Laurel II decision.

Monday night, Committee held the first of three projected public hearings on an ordinance introduced the previous week. The ordinance outlines a range of voluntary options designed to encourage developers to provide low and moderate income housing. A second hearing is scheduled for Monday, June 9, at 8 in the Valley Road meeting room, and a third has yet to be announced.

Committee has been advised by Township Attorney Edwin W. Schmierer that it will be helpful to have an ordinance in place by June 19 when he appears on behalf of the Township before Judge Serpentelli in regard to the Calton Homes suit. Judge Serpentelli is the judge assigned to settle suits arising from Mt. Laurel II disputes in this area. Calton Homes filed a "builder's remedy" lawsuit against the Township last month in an attempt to force Mt. Laurel lower-income housing ordinances.

Margen Penick of the Planning Board warned Committee not to rush to adopt an ordinance of such importance to the community. Mrs. Penick said the measure was essentially a document from the consultant that had not been as thoroughly researched by the Planning Board as is its custom.

Readers may wish to refer to last week's issue of Town Topics, page 1 and 23, for a description of the proposed ordinance, and to this week's Mailbox for a letter by Committeeman William Cherry on the densities that might result.

Mondale Winner Here By Margin of 11 Votes

Although Walter F. Mondale had received between 45 and 50 percent of the Democratic vote throughout the state at press time, he was only five and six votes ahead of Gary Hart in both Township and Borough according to complete unofficial tallies in Tuesday's primary races.

Hart, at press time, was expected to receive about 30 percent of the vote and Jesse Jackson 22 percent, with some two-thirds of New Jersey's precincts reporting.

Peter Bearse, Borough Council member who wants to be the Democrats' candidate for Congress in the 12th district, ran far ahead of his opponents in his home community. Mr. Bearse won 1,084 votes in the Township (next was Norman J. Weinstein with 158) and 693 in the Borough (Richard P. Forbes was next with 95). Final primary results in this race were not in yet as TOWN TOPICS went to press.

Two Princeton Residents Receive Honorary Doctorates As Sun Shines on University's 237th Commencement

Two Princeton residents were among the seven recipients of honorary degrees at Princeton University's 237th Commencement last Tuesday.

Lyman Spitzer Jr. of Lake Drive, who played an important role in the development of magnetic fusion energy and the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Science. George W. Ball, a Library Place resident who is a former Under Secretary of State and former United States Ambassador to the United Nations, was given an honorary Doctor of Laws.

After a week of rain and unsettled weather, the weather smiled on the Princeton University graduating class. Tuesday's Commencement exercises were held under sunny skies on the lawn in front of Nassau Hall, as the University conferred a total of 1,677 bachelor and advanced degrees.

Other recipients of honorary degrees were Mary P. McPherson, president of Bryn Mawr College; Raleigh Warner Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Mobil Corporation; Frank P. Stella, painter and printmaker, 1958 graduate of Princeton; Alonzo A. Crim, superintendent of schools in Atlanta, Ga; and Maurice Sendak, author and artist.

Dr. Spitzer, Charles A. Young Professor of Astronomy, emeritus, at Princeton and senior research astronomer, was the inventor of the Stellerator, the first magnetic confinement concept in the development of fusion energy. Often described as the "father of hydrogen fusion energy," he founded what has become the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory, one of the world's leading research centers for the development of magnetic fusion energy.

Commencement

Dr. Spitzer was cited for having "sharpened our vision of distant stars, through orbiting telescopes undistorted by the refracting lens of the earth's atmosphere." The citation continues, "His seminal contributions to plasma physics have deepened our understanding of the formation and evolution of stars and at the same time have offered us the promise of abundant energy on earth through controlled thermonuclear fusion."

Mr. Ball, a lawyer who is presently counsel to a New York law firm, was cited as a "statesman, author, student of contemporary history, tutor of presidents" who has "used his lawyerly skills as an advocate of reasoned statecraft in an impulsive and dangerous world."

In keeping with long Princeton tradition, the two principal Commencement speeches, the valedictory and Latin salutatory addresses, were delivered by members of the graduating class. Princeton University President William G. Bowen delivered remarks on "Elitism" at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

Mondale Wins

Jim Courter, unopposed Republican incumbent in the district, won 452 votes in the Township and 250 in the Borough.

In a curious pattern, apparent in all contests, candidates ran almost neck-and-neck in both Borough and Township. Mondale, in the Borough, had 530 to Hart's 525. Mondale, in the Township, had 921 to Hart's 915. Jesse Jackson had 343 in the Township and 314 in the Borough. Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. had 25 in the Borough, 22 in the Township.

Only President Reagan broke the pattern. Unopposed, he garnered 448 votes in the Township to 238 in the Borough.

Jackson's best districts were Six in the Borough and One in the Township, where most of Princeton's black residents live. In those districts he won 127 Borough votes and 96 Township votes.

His next closest district in the Borough was Five (bounded roughly by Park Place and Franklin), where he won 38. His next closest in the Township was District 14 (Princeton Community Village is in this district) where he picked up 51.

Mondale's best district in Princeton was the Borough's District Three, where he received 117 votes. This district is on either side of Hamilton between Snowden and Linden. It was Hart's best Borough district — 103 — but his best district overall, was the Township's District Three, whwere he won 120 votes.

In that Township district, by the way, the day did not begin well. The truck with the two voting machines delivered its load to Littlebrook School instead of to Riverside and from 7, when the polls opened, until 9:30, voters in Three were compelled to vote on paper ballots.

Paper ballots were also used for two hours in the Borough's District Four, where election workers mistakenly thought a machine was broken. Also, Mercer County's election officials neglected to include on the clerk's return sheets, the names of Jane Terpstra and Robert Cook, Democratic and Republican candidates for the one-year unexpired Council term.

Town Topics Poll

Gary Hart has done well, as one might have expected; Jesse Jackson has demonstrated surprising strength; and Walter Mondale has faltered in the first — and perhaps last — Town Topics readers' poll.

The survey, published last week in conjunction with an article on the operations of the Princeton-based Gallup Poll, resulted in 25 votes for Senator Hart, 10 for Mr. Mondale, and 8 for Rev. Jackson. One possibly incoherent respondent indicated a vote for the author of the poll.

Of those who said they were registered and would vote in the primary, the tally was Hart, 16; Mondale, 6; and Jackson, 6.

What can the political analysts conclude from this survey of 44 Town Topics readers? Some might argue that Mr. Hart's strong showing in Princeton actually represented the minimum that he needed in this area to compete with the former vice president in more traditionally Democratic strongholds in the state. Others could point to Mr. Jackson's support as indicative of his persistent strength and as a drain on Mr. Mondale. Still others might just say that Town Topics should stick to publishing newspapers and let Gallup and the other polling institutions do the political surveys.

TOPICS Of The Town

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS With Heavy Schedule. A fat agenda will be on the desks of school board members Tuesday when they gather at 8 p.m. in the high school library for their June meeting. It will be the last formal meeting until September.

Prior to the meeting, members will meet in executive session to discuss Superintendent Paul Houston's contract and will pass on it at the public session. So far, no details on the contract are available.

In other action, the board will approve the Princeton High School choir and orchestra trip to Vienna in July. Money required for the trip has now been raised.

Staff reassignments and transfers will also be discussed and approved. If the Princeton Regional Education Association has ratified the new agreement — the vote is scheduled for the day before the board meeting — the board will, in turn, give its ratification. The formal appointment of Arthur Firestone as principal of Community Park School is also on the agenda.

In his annual spring report, Dr. Houston will present the yearly plan for the school district, required under the state's Thorough and Efficient education law, the annual report on affirmative actions and an update on the computer program.

SALARY AGREEMENT Next: Ratification Vote. At 3:30 a.m. Friday, the impasse over teachers' salaries gave way and agreement was reached between the teachers' union — the Princeton Regional Education Association — and the school board.

Neither side will reveal details of the agreement. The teachers are scheduled to vote Monday and if they ratify, the school board will cast its own ratification vote at Tuesday night's meeting.

The final agreement was reached through the efforts of a mediator from PERC, the Public Employee Relations Commission, who sat with both parties for seven and one-half hours — from 8 p.m. until 3:30.

Negotiations were "very tough," according to Superintendent Paul Houston, but "without acrimony." There were imperatives on both sides, he said: money for the teachers on the one hand, and on the other, a certain percent of increase which the board felt it could not exceed.

"Spirits were good on both sides," he added, "but both sides stretched as far as they could go. The mediator was helpful: he provided reality therapy."

Negotiating for the teachers were Ann Johnston, president of the PREA; Jean Gilpin; Patricia Van Ness and Herbert Highfield with their negotiator, Bob Parsons. For the school board, negotiators were Rosemary McGee, chair; board president Michael Tomalin; Ann McGoldrick and Michael S. Mahoney with negotiator Jerry Dorf.

FUND DRIVE LAUNCHED To Help Housing. If it's only a dollar, send it along. On the other hand, if you can spare a thousand times as much ... That's the message from Princeton Community Housing, Inc., as the non-profit corporation launched this week a $66,792 drive for the Elm Court apartments for moderate-income elderly and handicapped.

The sum represents PCH's budget-cutting when plans were drawn for the 89-unit project. In a letter, mailed to 3,400 possible donors, PCH president Harriet Bryan explains that present specifications for the building, as funded by HUD (the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development), meet only the minimum requirements.

Plans also represent "some compromises in design, environmental and construction considerations, to bring the building within the dollar limits set by HUD."

Safety and energy-efficiency are the priorities on PCH's list.

For example:

Attic insulation, increased from six to nine inches, at a cost of $8,320, would save energy, Mrs. Bryan says.

Heat-glazing, the film between double-glazed windows, deflects heat in the summer, but keeps it inside in winter, especially at night. The cost is

May's Rainfall a Record Ten Inches

"Yes, it was record rainfall," said David Ludlum cheerfully, mooring his canoe to the coffee table and wading ashore to the sofa.

Princeton took 6.08 inches from Sunday, May 27 until the morning of May 31. That period includes, in case you need to be reminded, Memorial Day Monday. One householder even reported an overflowing rain gauge.

The month of May as a whole, was dipped from the same bucket: a record 10.05 inches. Mr. Ludlum's charts show the last Trenton record to have been 8.03 inches back in 1948.

Last year, according to Science Associates, there were only 5.47 inches during May, so the 6.08 inches that fell in four days is more than fell all month in 1983.

Over a period of ten years — from 1969 to 1979 — the average May rainfall was 4.99 inches, according to Science Associates' records.

"It was not a deep storm," Mr. Ludlum explains, "and there was very little wind. It was a slow-moving front that stalled for three days on the Atlantic coast."

Is it just our imaginations, or ...

"Yes, it's true: weekends really have been rainy," Mr. Ludlum says, but he brightened considerably when he remembered last Saturday.

"The sun came out for the P-rade," he smiled. He was marching with his Class of 1933.

In a few weeks, Houghton-Mifflin will publish Mr. Ludlum's latest book on the influence of weather on American history. It's called "The Weather Factor."

$153 a unit, for a total of $13,617.

For $90 a unit, the builder can install a thermal break in the aluminum windows. The break, a non-conductor, will save on maintenance because there will be no ice or condensation on the insides of windows in the winter.

Also for $90 a unit, PCH can provide separate doors for freezer and refrigerator compartments. Experience at PCH's Princeton Community Village has shown that when units have a single door, the freezer is warmed up every time the refrigerator door is opened. Since the units aren't self-defrosting, freezers must be de-frosted frequently or the fragile plastic doors covering them can break. Again, Mrs. Bryan says, it's an energy-saving device.

Two shower-stalls that can accommodate wheelchairs have already been ordered, at $4,000 each. Only two of the units will have these stalls.

PCH would also like to buy, at $200 each, ten hand-held showers and $400 teak tub seats. Shower-heads and tub seats could be moved around from apartment to apartment, depending on the needs of tenants who might find it increasingly hard to get in and out of a tub, or to shower in a conventional unit.

Tub seats are—expensive, Mrs. Bryan explains, because they are teak (to withstand hot water and obviously more comfortable to sit on than metal) and because they are installed on the back of the tub, designed so that they fold out of the way when not in use.

Bathrooms have been designed without windows and with a single light over the wash-basin. Because most tenants will be elderly — handicapped can be of any age — PCH believes additional lighting is advisable, and would like ceiling lights in all bathrooms. The cost is $67 a unit, or $5,963.

In the lobby, PCH hopes to install quarry tile instead of vinyl-asbestos, at a cost of $2,800, or $4 a square foot.

If potential donors know these unit costs, Mrs. Bryan says, they might decide to give, for example, a shower unit or several bathroom lights.

"But any amount is welcome — even a dollar," she emphasized.

Contributions, which are tax-deductible, should be sent to Golda Gottlieb, 14 Mershon Drive, Princeton, N.J. 08540 and checks made payable to PCH, Inc.

DORMS ARE ENTERED

During Reunion Weekend. A number of Princeton University dormitories were entered last week, most during the annual reunion weekend.

A $275 gold chain and a $175 pendant were taken from an unlocked room in 1903 Hall where they had been left on top of a refrigerator. The victim is a university student. A stereo valued at $205 was stolen between 10 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. Monday from a room in Cuyler Hall. The victim told police the room had been locked but police report there was no forced entry.

Someone entered an open ground-floor window to gain access to a room in Campbell Hall, departing with a student's Walkman cassette valued at $200.

There were two thefts reported at Patton Hall. A $1,600 video recorder was taken during a several-week period from a lab room where police report no signs of forced entry — it was the property of the Department of Astrophysics — and a student lost articles of jewelry valued at $3,085 when her room was entered between 10:15 and 10:35 in the morning last week.

The victim told police that she was returning to her unlocked room when she observed a man walking down a stairwell and carrying a brown paper bag. She notified university security after a check of her room revealed that a gold chain, gold bracelets, necklace and several rings were missing.

The suspect is described as a black male in his early 20s, about 6-3, 185 pounds, slightly built with short hair and medium complexion. He was wearing a dark green nylon jogging outfit.

Between 9 and 10 Sunday evening, police report there were three theft victims at the Tiger Inn on Prospect Avenue.

On student listed a combination telephone-clock radio taken from a second-floor room and another student lost a cassette tape deck valued at $120 from a stereo closet in the basement. An alumnus from Skillman, visiting the club, reported $50 taken from a table in the TV rooom.

Lawsuits a Way of Life in Princeton

Every action is said to be followed by a re-action. In Princeton, that often means that every action is followed by a law-suit.

Recent suits, filed or threatened against various official bodies, call to mind more distant suits, still making their way through the legal labyrinth. After the Planning Board passed the Master Plan for Princeton in May, 1980 and Township Committee passed ordinances to implement the plan, there was a rush to judgment on the part of landowners. There are other suits, also, not related to the Master Plan.

Suits still pending against the Township:

- Louis de Menil, for the Township's creation of zones R-A and R-B.
- W. Bryce Thompson IV and his Princeton Research Lands and Nassau Builders for creation of the R-A and R-B zones; and enactment of two ordinances, one relating to construction on slopes and the other to floor-area ratios.
- In the 1970s, J. Seward Johnson filed tax appeals against the Township for levies imposed on his Lawrenceville Road estate, "Jasna Polana."
- In March, 1984, Calton Homes, Inc. filed a suit based on the New Jersey State Supreme Court's Mt. Laurel II ruling, demanding certain zoning ordinances so the company could build lower-cost homes on Hunt Farm.
- Two months later, in May of this year, Calton filed a second suit. This one, a civil rights action in Federal court, charges Township interference with an agreement for Calton's purchase of property owned by the Dravo Corporation.

The Borough is in court with the following cases:

- Gerald Boswell's suit, in the Appellate Division of Superior Court, against the granting of air-rights to Collins Development.
- Tax appeals from several of the eating clubs on Prospect Avenue.

The Planning Board has also been named:

- In both the Calton Homes suits.
- In all the Thompson suits and the de Menil suit.

- Princeton Regional Schools have asked the New Jersey Supreme Court to review the decision of the Appellate Court against the schools and in favor of Lawrence Ivan and Thomas Murray. The issue: the right of a school board to make involuntary transfers of staff from one school to another. The schools have not yet learned whether the Supreme Court will hear the case.

Attempted Burglary. There was an unsuccessful attempt last week to enter a Princeton-Kingston Road home.

Between 8 a.m. and 3:15, Township police report, someone broke a pane of glass in a rear. However, the door latch was out of the would-be intruder's reach and no entry was gained. Police investigated after an alarm had sounded.

DOCTOR IS CHARGED

With Medicaid Fraud. A Princeton psychiatrist, Dr. Robert A. Lowenstein, 43, 52 Heather Lane, was indicted last week by a state Grand Jury which charged him with 54 counts of Medicaid fraud.

The indictments covered a period between May, 1979 and December, 1982 when Dr. Lowenstein served as Director of Psychiatry at the Somerset Medical Center in Somerville. He has been director of psychiatry at the medical center since 1978 when the unit was founded.

According to the indictment announced by state Attorney General Irwin I. Kimmelman last week, Dr. Lowenstein allegedly billed Medicaid for services his patients did not receive and then tried to cover up the fraud.

An investigation revealed that Dr. Lowenstein allegedly submitted claims to Medicaid for services to patients during weekends, holidays and vacations reported Donald Belsole, director of the state Division of Criminal Justice, despite being absent from the center on those days. Mr. Belsole also testified that Dr. Lowenstein allegedly charged for treatments in excess of what he actually provided.

In addition to the 54 counts of Medicaid fraud, Dr. Lowenstein was also charged with one count of tampering with a witness and another of attempting to solicit the fabrication of evidence.

BANK BAG SLIT

Deposit Money Missing. There's many a slip between the slit and the slot.

Last week, an employee of Larry's Sunoco deposited a bank bag in the night deposit slot at the First National Bank on Nassau Street. Last Tuesday morning when the bank manager arrived he discovered a slit had been cut in the bottom of the bag and its contents -- $665 -- were missing. The incident is under investigation.

A Budweiser beer coil, aluminum ice box and guage assembly, valued at $400, were stolen Sunday between 7 and 8 a.m. from the Pyne Hall courtyard on the Princeton University campus -- reunion site for the Class of '79. The victim is Trenton beer disaributor Ritchie & Page.

A 35 mm camera with a telephoto lens valued at $400 was stolen last week after the owner, a student, had left it unattended on the main floor of the Cottage Club.

Two purses were stolen Monday between 5 and 11 p.m. from a second-floor study room in the Quadrangle Club on Prospect Avenue. One victim, a Pennsylvania resident, lost $75; the second from Maryland lost $13 and a check book.

A Princeton resident joined the list of theft victims when his unlocked car, parked next to a laundromat at the rear of 259 Nassau Streeet, was entered Saturday afternoon between 4:30 and 5. Taken from the front seat were a Walkman cassette valued at $79 and a wallet containing $2.

A moped valued at $340 was stolen during the weekend from the grounds of Frick Lab. The owner, a resident of Lawrenceville, told police the moped's steering mechanism had been locked but the moped had not been chained to anything.

Township police report the theft last month of a 10-speed, unlocked bicycle from an open garage on Princeton-Kingston road. The $190 bicycle also had yellow saddle bags containing tools valued at $40.

Two camera lenses valued at $400, stolen from a Linden Lane home May 25, were recovered Thursday by a Linden Lane resident who found them behind a garage on Linden that bordered the Westminster Choir College campus.

Still Talking?

Offers from Collins Development to Borough Council, the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation and residents of the Greenholm area are still being discussed.

The WJDC has apparently not yet decided when -- or whether -- to file its Mt. Laurel suit against Collins. WJDC president Henry Pannell said Monday that the decision might be made at the end of the week after a Thursday night meeting of the WJDC.

Council, in executive session Friday, talked once again about the offer but decided not to decide whether to accept Collins' offers or go to court, at least before hearing the presentation Monday by the Homeownership Group of Newark, Delaware (see "Topics of the Town").

Mayor Barbara Sigmund has told reporters that she hopes for continuing round-table discussions.

Collins' offer reportedly involves an additional $100,000 payment to the Borough for the air rights over Palmer Square East, speeded-up air rights payments, capitalization of a housing trust fund and possible development of low-cost housing on two sites. Gary Green, Collins vice-president, has declined to confirm the dollar amounts or other details of offer.

COKE AND CELEBRATION

Mixture Leads to Arrest. A 20-year-old North Brunswick resident has been charged with possession of cocaine, after he allegedly tried to sell the drug Saturday night in Pyne Court, the reunion site for the Princeton University Class of 1979.

Borough police were notified at 11:52 by University Security that a man was attempting to sell drugs at the gateway to Pine Court. Ptl. Ralph Terracciano and University Proctors approached the suspect, later identified as Thomas Gallagher of Aaron Road, read him his rights and then questioned him about selling drugs. In searching him, the officers found a razor in his shirt pocket and a clear plastic bag containing white powder believed to be cocaine. Gallagher was arrested, taken to Borough headquarters and charged.

A subsequent investigation revealed that Gallagher had approached an off-duty patrolman from Seaside Heights and asked him if he wanted to buy any drugs. Gallagher was later released with a summons calling for his appearance July 18 in Borough court.

Marijuana Charge. Woodrow Strano, 28, and Christopher Marrow, 24, both residents of Birch Avenue, were each charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana last week in separate incidents.

Strano was stopped at 12:48 Saturday morning on Bayard Lane, after police noticed there was no name on his commercial van. As Ptl. Terracciano approached the van, he observed a marijuana

Strano told Ptl. Terracciano and Ptl. Donald Dawson that he only had enough marijuana in his possession to roll one joint. When the officers asked to see it, Strano reached into a shirt pocket and handed them a vial containing marijuana and a package of rolling papers.

Arrested at the scene, Strano was taken to headquarters, charged, and later released. He is scheduled to appear in court here July 18.

Marrow was arrested on the university campus Friday night, after he was recognized by Ptl. Dennis McManimon who knew that an arrest warrant had been issued by Lawrence Township police on Marrow for failing to appear in court on a burglary charge.

Marrow was taken to headquarters where during processing he was found to be in possession of a bag of marijuana. He was charged and later released to the custody of the Lawrence PD. He faces a Borough court hearing June 20 on the possession charge.

SYMPOSIUM PLANNED

On D & R Canal. The exhibition, "The Delaware and Raritan Canal: A Retrospective View," will open Saturday, June 16, with a symposium from 9 to 4 at the New Jersey State Museum.

Registration for the symposium is $1.50 and an optional lunch will be available for an additional $3. The exhibition and symposium, commemorating the canal's 150th anniversary, have been organized by the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission, The Canal Society of New Jersey, the New Jersey State Museum and the New Jersey Historical Society.

The canal officially opened June 25, 1834, when Governor Peter Vroom and a party of distinguished dignitaries completed a two-day barge tour. The canal, which had taken four years and more than $3 million dollars to build, contributed much to New Jersey's economic development in the next half century.

The symposium will explore the canal's history from its conception in the 1820's, through its economic heyday in the late 19th-century, to its recreational development today. Christopher T. Baer, Eleutherian Mills Historical Library, Wilmington, Del. will discuss the Canal Age in the United States in the 1820's and 1830's.

Lance E. Metz, Canal Museum, Easton, Pa. will describe the building of the canal and its place in the technology of the Canal Age. William J. McKelvey Jr., Canal Society of New Jersey, will conclude the morning session with a pictorial history of the canal.

In the afternoon Howard L. Green, New Jersey Historical Commission, will discuss the politics of the caual's construction. Ellen Paul Denker, New Jersey State Museum, will offer examples of the canal's economic impact in the state, particularly on the industrialization of Trenton. The conference will close with a description of the canal's recreational uses in the 20th century by Samuel M. Hamill Jr., Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Study Council, Inc.

The exhibition, which will be on view through September 2, traces the history and development of the canal from its inception to its use today as a recreational resource. The canal served for 99 years as one of the busiest canals in America until it was closed in 1933 and taken over by the state.

The exhibition has been planned in a thematic fashion. One section will be devoted to historical documents and engravings that explain the planning and construction of the canal. Another area will depict the use of the canal for transportation. Models of barges and photographs showing the mechanical parts of the canal will be included.

Another section of the exhibit will show the many industries that sprang up along the canal because of the availability of water and transportation. Special emphasis will be placed on Trenton and the pottery industry. Engravings and photographs as well as samples of the products and tools of these industries will be on display.

The last part of the exhibit will deal with the canal today. Since it was closed, the canal has been converted into a water supply system, has been established as a state park, and has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Actually it was always used as a recreational resource according to Lorraine Williams, curator of archaeology and ethnology. Resort hotels sprang up along the canal. Yachting along the scenic canal was a popular late 18th- and early 19th-century pastime. It was and still is used as a "swimming hole."

backing from a parking space in the Park Place lot.

The victim, Susanne M. Wurzler, 33, 314 Hale Street, Pennington, was walking behind a line of parked cars when she was struck in the left hip by the rear of a car operated by Marilyn Ticktin, 34, of Roosevelt.

Knocked to ground, Mrs. Wurzler was later taken by the Princeton First Aid Squad to Princeton Medical Center where she was treated for a bruised hip and strained muscles in her arms, back and neck. Her daughter, Rebecca, escaped injury.

Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm charged Mrs. Ticktin with careless driving. It was raining at the time of the incident.

Two Charged with DWI: Township police last week charged two drivers with driving while intoxicated.

Charles E. Keller, 23, of Birmingham, Michigan, was arrested as a result of an investigation that revealed that Mr. Keller had struck a barricade on Province Line Road at 2:29 Saturday morning and continued on. A resident in the area called police and reported the incident.

Mr. Keller, who was stopped later by Ptl. Anthony Gaylord, was taken to headquarters and given a Breathalyzer test. He was later released in $250 bail to his parents, pending his appearance Tuesday evening in Township court.

Henry I. Hall, 55, of Convent Station, was found shortly before 1 Sunday morning by police, slumped over the wheel of his car. He was sleeping with the motor still running. Police said his car was still on a portion of the Route 206 roadway near Cherry Hill Road.

Mr. Hall was given a breath test and later released in his own recognizance. He faces a July 10 appearance in Township court.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Patrolman Kills Snake. When the call came in at 4:22 Saturday afternoon reporting a snake in a van parked in a Palmer Square lot off Hulfish, Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt responded.

The caller, a resident of South Jersey, told the officer that he had been teaching his dogs how to duck hunt in the southern part of the state and had loaded a boat and his two dogs in the van and driven to Princeton. When he returned, he noticed a snake on the floor of the van.

Ptl. Lenhardt opened the door of the van and when the snake's head was positioned just right, he slammed the door, decapitating it. Police said the snake appeared to be a copperhead.

PEAR TREE DESTROYED

By Vandal. A newly planted pear tree on Witherspoon Street was broken and destroyed during the weekend by a vandal. Police report the tree was valued at $100.

The scene of vandalism in the past, the Springdale Golf Club, was visited again between 7:15 Friday night and early the next morning. Police report that a golf cart had been vandalized by cutting its ignition wire and a window in the club had been broken.

A resident of Ewing Street told Township police Friday that a fence and gate had been knocked down by three youths riding bicycles across her property.

Triangle Breaks Record

And it wasn't solely because of Brooke Shields. "We broke every record we ever had because 'Revel Without a Pause' is a first-class show," says William L. Lockwood, alumni advisor to Princeton University's Triangle Club.

Triangle added two performances of its annual musical, one in April and one last Reunion weekend — "we even sold out the 4:30 performance last Friday" — and Mr. Lockwood does think the demand for extra performances is probably traceable to curiosity about Miss Shields.

"But as I've said before, it wasn't The Brooke Shields Show, and audiences didn't feel that it was. She was one of the troupe and didn't really appear in that many numbers.

"It sold out because it was one of the best shows in recent history and that word of mouth got around."

No, Triangle does not reveal its receipts.

Later, three juveniles on 10-speed bikes were apprehended and turned over to Township juvenile officer Jerry Offredo for processing. Police said the youths had cut across the property on their way from school to the Princeton Shopping Center.

PICKS WRONG STORE

Trafficker Charged. A 20-year old Trenton resident was charged last week by police with receiving stolen property and trafficking in stolen property after he tried to return a blouse and pair of shorts at Talbots, 42 Nassau Street.

At first, police said, Mason Covington told a clerk that his sister had purchased the items valued at $97. Then he claimed he had, adding he wished to return the merchandise for credit.

Store officials first questioned Mr. Covington about the merchandise and then called police. An investigation revealed that the clothing had been stolen from a parked car in Trenton.

Covington was arrested and later released with a complaint summons calling for his appearance in court this Wednesday. The incident took place Thursday afternoon.

PHS BANDS TO PLAY

At Concert Thursday. Princeton High School's prize winning stage bands will be in concert Thursday, June 7, at 8 in the PHS Auditorium. Directed by Tony Biancosino, the school's Studio Band recently won top honors, for the third time, at a national music festival in Boston.

The program will include "nostalgic oldies" such as "In the Mood," "Moonlight in Vermont," and "Four Brothers," as well as new tunes arranged by such artists as Don Schamber and Les Hooper.

Graduating seniors in the Nassau and Studio Bands include Denise Calaprice, David Kocher, Julian Bleecker and Gil Falcone. Soloists will be George Fox, Bridget Mahoney, Marcus Bleecker, Zeno Wood, Bruce MacDonald, Eric Benet, Gil Falcone, Audrey Kim and Sarah Billington.

Tickets are $2 and are available at the door or by calling the high school, 924-5600.

TO HONOR BLACK STUDENTS: Program planners for the first annual Black Student Awards Program sponsored by the Elizabeth Taylor Byrd Fund, are, from left, Bernadine Hines, Doris Burrell, Susan Waxwood, Mark Campbell and Joanne Cunningham. The program will be held Sunday, June 10, at 7:30 at Corwin Hall on the University campus and will feature as speaker an enterprising black teenager who is about to receive the U.S. Small Business Administration Award.

PROGRAM PLANNED

For Black Students. The Elizabeth Taylor Byrd Fund is sponsoring the first annual Black Student Awards Program on Sunday, June 10, at 7:30 p.m. in Corwin Hall on the University campus.

The featured speaker will be Sam Salter 2nd, an enterprising young man who as a teenager has built up a small business into a $1 million-a-month loan company. His venture was incorporated last year as the Continational Financial Corporation, and he, as founder and president, is about to receive the Small Business Administration's first "Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award."

According to those responsible for planning the event, the Black Student Awards Program "is an important step in recognizing the community's Black youth and to establish cohesiveness that is desparately needed among area organizations that give awards to these students each year.

For more information, call Doris Burrell, 924-2865.

HOUSING FOR BOROUGH?

New Program Outlined. "I wouldn't mind being on the cutting edge of a program like this," remarked Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund after an hour-long presentation to Council Monday by The Homeownership Group, Inc. of Newark, Delaware, which has a plan for providing lower-cost homes. The plan is already operating in New Brunswick, where it was designed for moderate-income families. The Borough is more interested in those with lower incomes.

The group's program is a lease-purchase arrangement built around the sale of tax-exempt, short-term bonds, probably two and one-half years. In Princeton's case, bonds would be issued either by the Borough or the Housing Authority, and used to finance construction of housing units, probably townhouses.

Prospective home-owners, given conditional mortgage approval in advance, make an initial payment of $500 to $1000 and then lease one of the townhouses, probably at market rent for two years.

At the end of the two-year period, tenants are given final mortgage approval, enter into a regular mortgage agreement and become owners of the townhouse.

Meanwhile, their rents pay the interest on the bonds and provide enough equity left over to be used toward a down payment at final settlement. The equity build-up for a tenant could be between $6,000 and $8,000, according to Gerald Doherty and Brian Murphy of Homeownership, who explained the plan to Council.

Money not yet needed — like construction funds — can be invested by the municipality at market rates for "substantial" earnings, they said. The houses would be owned either by the Borough or by a non-profit group — perhaps, in Princeton, the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation — on the Borough's behalf.

In New Brunswick, the New Jersey Mortgage Finance agency has provided 30-year mortgages at 11 percent, compared to around 13 from a regular lender.

The program in New Brunswick received the endorsement of Frank Nero, the city's Director of Economic Policy and Development, who joined in Monday's presentation. New Brunswick has built 36 units, adding them to five existing units for a total of 41, he said.

For its services, Homeownership Group collects a fee. In New Brunswick, it has been around $1,200 per unit or $53,000. In return, Homeownership finds the sites, develops the price structure and financing, works with the MFA or banks and its own bond counsel, negotiates all agreements, sets up the tenant selection process and does whatever selling is needed.

In New Brunswick, no sales pitch was required: prospective tenants lined up before sunrise last March in minus ten degree weather.

AGENCY ACCREDITED

In Five Areas. National accreditation in five major areas has been won by the Family Service Agency of Princeton, the agency announced this week. According to executive director Paul Kurland, Family Service is one of the few family agencies in the country to receive such accreditation.

The areas are family counseling, family life education, substance abuse, mental health and advocacy.

Family counseling is for troubled individuals, couples or families. Family Life Education, a preventive program, offers educational workshops and Plays for Living, dramas of everyday life which are presented throughout the community to various organizations.

Substance abuse projects treat individuals or families where there is alcoholism or other kinds of drug abuse. The mental health program provides outpatient treatment for those who have psychiatric problems and need supervision.

In the advocacy program, board members of Family Service and representatives from other agencies act as a coalition to see what needs exist in the community that are not being met. A recent result of the advocacy program's work is the new social day care for senior citizens, known as PACE — Princeton Activity Center for the Elderly. It operates in Redding Terrace.

Accreditation is granted by the National Council on Accreditation of Family and Children's agencies in the U.S. and Canada. Agencies must meet — and adhere to — standards of operation which are reviewed through visits, scrutiny of agency practices

Familyborn Birthing Center Moving to Princeton After Eight Successful Years in North Brunswick

THE PRINCETON BIRTHING CENTER: Cleared for approval by the Borough Zoning Board, this former home of one of Princeton's well-known baby nurses will become an "out-of-hospital" center for birth and women's health in September. The location is 21 Wiggins Street, a natural counterpoint to the cemetery directly across the street.

Eight years ago, when Anne Battle approached the medical community about her dream of founding a birth center where women could have their babies in a home-like atmosphere, attended by midwives, doctors here responded with alarm and anger.

They cited the risk to mother and baby of deliveries taking place at a distance from life-saving hospital equipment and at a cost in terms of time when minutes can mean the difference between life and death. After articles appeared describing Familyborn, the center for birth and women's health that Anne founded in 1980 in North Brunswick, they wrote letters to the editor defending hospital birth and warning of the potential for catastrophe in a birth center.

Times change, and so does the climate of opinion. In the almost four years since Familyborn was opened, there have been 220 births in the second floor of the little house set back from Route 27. And not a single emergency, either to mother or child. Some mothers have had to be transferred to a New Brunswick hospital — perhaps 10 or 13 — but the most frequent reason, Mrs. Battle says, was the failure of labor to progress satisfactorily.

This fall, having outgrown its first home, Familyborn will move to Princeton. A two-story residence has been purchased on Wiggins Street that will cut the distance between the center and a back-up hospital (Princeton Medical Center) from 5½ miles to four-tenths of a mile. And the obstetrician-gynecologists affiliated with the Princeton Medical Group — Drs. Frazier Lewis, Jerry Ringland, Marsha Smith, Ernest Soffronoff and Lisa Chitour — have agreed to be "consulting obstetricians" for the center.

Triumph at Zoning Board. "We've come full circle," says Mrs. Battle happily. "We've had this safety record, and the doctors are now able to see the birthing center as an acceptable alternative for healthy women." Pregnant women must pass rigorous screening of past medical history and present and potential problems in order to be accepted as a client at the center.

The rite of passage came at the Zoning Board hearing at which the necessary variance was granted by a 5-2 vote. Mrs. Battle says that Familyborn clients and friends wrote letters and packed the hearing to speak movingly of their individual experiences. One Zoning Board member, a man whom she had thought would be opposed to the concept, said he realized from the testimony that he was hearing the "heartbeats" of the community. It was then that she knew that the birth center she had labored so long to create "existed among its own family."

Princeton was chosen, Mrs. Battle says, because the community had the largest number of Familyborn clients from any single town. In addition, the center is supported through donors who live here. The house on Wiggins Street was purchased from the estate of the late Mrs. Alice Schannel, who was one of Princeton's most sought-after baby nurses 40 years ago, she says.

Now that the zoning hurdle has been cleared, renovations will commence. The first floor will have three birthing rooms, a family room, kitchenette, two bathrooms just for the use of the laboring couple, and a lavatory for staff. The second floor will house examination rooms, office, a large waiting room and another bath. Mrs. Battle hopes to enlist donors with a flair for decorating to take on a whole room as their special project.

Certified Midwives. Marcy Kahn is now co-director with Mrs. Battle. The three full time certified nurse-midwives are Robin Glaser, director of midwifery, Allie Delvinthal, a former nurse at Princeton Medical Center, and Susan Hay. Princeton Birthing Center, as it will be renamed, hopes to be in operation by mid-October.

"And we hope not to have to raise our fees by coming into high-cost Princeton," Mrs. Battle says a trifle dubiously. Outside the house there is a flagpole from which she plans to fly the specially designed Familyborn logo of a newborn cradled in an encircling hand. She also thinks it might be fun to run up a blue flag when a boy is born and pink when it is a girl.

Meanwhile, birth and women's services continue at the present Familyborn location, 2688 State Highway 27, North Brunswick, (201) 821-6200. In fact, Familyborn will hold an open house this Wednesday, June 6, at 7:30; next Wednesday, June 13, at noon; Wednesday, June 20, at 7:30, and Thursday, June 28, at noon. Families and individuals interested in birthing alternatives are welcome.

Bryn Mawr, Pa., Stanford, Calif., and Cambridge, Mass., are all, like Princeton, college towns. Each is also the home of a birth center. "Princeton is joining other communities in offering this service," Mrs. Battle points out, "and it is exciting.

D&R CANAL EXHIBIT

At Historical Society. "Ports of Call: Five Canal Communities," a new exhibit at Bainbridge House, home of the Historical Society of Princeton, will open with a members' preview on Sunday, June 10.

The exhibit is part of a multi-faceted program to promote the Canal as a regional resource and unifying force in an area which is rapidly developing and losing touch with its past. It also is intended to be part of the celebrations planned for the sesquicentennial birthday of the Canal on June 23.

James C. Amon, executive director of the Canal Commission, has assisted Peggy Prescott, a Society volunteer, with the production of the exhibit. Janet Johnson, Jane Pearce, Suwannee Shuntich and HSP Director Nancy Clark have also worked on the project. Cliff Crawford prepared the photographic prints.

Historic photographs of Port Mercer, Princeton Basin, Kingston, Rocky Hill and Griggstown from the Society's extensive collection of glass plate negatives will be the focus of the exhibit with the intent to broaden understanding of the importance of the Canal to 19th-century New Jersey. The photographs will evoke the character of the five communities as they were and as they have been altered by time.

Two areas (Port Mercer and Princeton Basin) were entirely created by the commerce of the Canal and have very nearly disappeared since its closing. A three-foot long wooden model of a typical canal boat will be on view. The model, loaned by the Somerset County Historical Society, is more than 100 years old.

Bainbridge House is open to the public from noon to 4 Tuesday through Sunday. Visitors are welcome, and guides are always ready to interpret the rooms in the house. This exhibit will remain throughout the summer.

Supper Dance, Too. The finale of the sesquicentennial celebrations of the D&R Canal in Princeton on June 23 will be the "Carnegie Caper," a gala benefit supper dance given by the Historical Society.

Princeton University's boat house beside Lake Carnegie will be the setting for this event. Members and friends of the society will recapture the romance of a bygone era as they dine under the stars while a barbershop quartet and a banjoist - fiddler duo sing and play for their enjoyment. Later they can dance to the music of the Dan Furman Jazz Band of Princeton University.

The Committee for this event consists of Mya Bannard, Christine Crosby, Midge Fleming, Barbara Forman, Colleen Hall, Sally Hughes, Lynn Mosle, Dorothy Plohn, Ronnie Smulian and Helen Westcott.

For information regarding reservations, call the Historical Society, 921-6748.

ROLE OF THE BOARD

Topic of Workshop. The Mitchell Guide, a company specializing in fund-raising services for the tax-exempt community, will present a workshop entitled "Building Boards That Work: Tools for Construction."

The workshop, designed for executive directors and board members of non-profit organizations, will be held on Thursday, June 14, at Middlesex County College in Edison. It will feature professional trainers from The Board Member Institute (BMI) of Orange in a full day, experiential program and will address such common concerns of non-profits as "What is a 'good' board," "How do we build one?" "Whom do we ask?" and "Now that we have them, how do we train them?"

New Dialing System Planned

New Jersey Bell customers will soon have to first dial "1" when placing calls outside their area code.

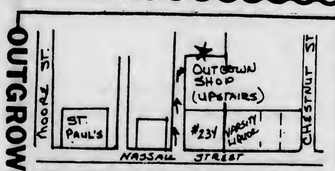
The new dialing procedure will be effective statewide July 1 for the company's three million residence and business customers.

Starting in mid-June, the company plans informative advertising and a special bill insert to explain the change. The Customer Guide section of telephone directories issued in June and later will also include the new dialing instructions.

With "One-Plus" dialing, when customers dial outside their 201 or 609 area code, they dial "1" before the area code and the desired seven-digit telephone number. Customers who do not dial "1" will hear a recorded announcement telling them to dial again using the new procedure.

One-Plus dialing applies when using services such as Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Speed Calling to call another area code, and when placing calls to toll-free "800" numbers and directory assistance in another area code.

One-Plus is not required for collect, third number billed and person-to-person calls, or for Calling Card calls. Customers will continue to first dial "0" for operator when placing operator-assisted or Calling Card calls.



The phone company is introducing One-Plus dialing to provide 152 new central office or telephone exchange codes to meet increasing customer demand for both voice and data services. Many of the company's central switching offices are near capacity and the introduction of One-Plus dialing will eliminate the immediate need to create another area code within the state.

New Jersey and Washington, D.C., are the last parts of the country to convert to One-Plus dialing. The conversion will make New Jersey's dialing instructions similar to those in the rest of the country.

Registration is $65 per person. Further information is available from The Mitchell Guide, P.O. Box 413, Princeton 08542; telephone 921-9468.

Janet Mitchell, editor and publisher of The Mitchell Guide to New Jersey Foundations, Corporations and Their Managers, reports that the workshop evolved from inquiries she receives about how to create an effective board of trustees that will enhance the efforts of nonprofit groups. Topics to be covered include the role and responsibility of board members, selection techniques, orientation procedures, and motivation and recognition of board members.

STARTING UP AGAIN

New United Way Campaign. With the books barely closed on last year's campaign, the United Way is starting up again, announcing a record campaign goal for 1984 of $1.6 million, six percent more than the campaign just completed.

The Way has also announced the addition of two agencies to its list of members. They are Jewish Community Centers of the Delaware Valley and Contact for the Deaf, which provides a 24-hour message-relay service for those whose hearing is impaired.

Robert Claggett, general manager of the engineering research center of AT&T Technologies, will be campaign chairman. Assistant chairman is Albert J. Hanson, regional vice-president of McGraw-Hill.

This year, The Way plans to start a program of "loaned executives," who are lent, full time, to the United Way for a period of several weeks during the campaign. Way officials say this increases the ability of the organization to raise money, but does not add to fund-raising costs because the company would continue to pay the employee's salary.

102 TO GRADUATE

From Hun on Sunday. James A. Skidmore, Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of Science Management Corporation, will deliver the commencement address when the Hun School presents diplomas to a graduating class of 102, Sunday, June 10.

The commencement will be the 70th in the history of the school, established in 1914 as a math tutoring school for Princeton University. Named for its founder, John Gale Hun, the institution offers college preparatory curriculum to some 500 students in grades six through eight in its middle school and grades nine through twelve in the upper school.

Upper School commencement exercises are scheduled for 10 a.m. on the mall behind Russell Hall, with Headmaster G. Gerald Donaldson Jr. presenting the graduates. Valedictorian of the Class of 1984 is Nancy Globus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Globus of Trenton.

Prof. Richard D. Challener, a member of the Princeton University History Department and chairman of the Hun School's board of trustees, will introduce the commencement speaker. Also participating in the ceremonies will be Dr. Paul R. Chesebro of Princeton, headmaster of the school for 25 years until his retirement in 1976.

GOLD KEY WINNERS

At Princeton High. Each year, gold keys for meritorious service to the school are presented to juniors and seniors at Princeton High School: no more than 10 percent of the senior class and five percent of the juniors.

Senior recipients, at ceremonies held last Wednesday, were Jessica Adler, Rick Barragan, Julian Bleecker, Sarah Bolton, Denise Calaprice, Meredith Christie, Anthony Curtis, Peter Gager, Natalie Gillette, Martha Gillham, Laura Hertford.

Also Inger Larsen, Simon Miller, Troy Norris, Kerri Phox, David Proshan, Rachel Sonnenschein, Ahmed Taha, Kitty Ufford, Ruth Von Goeler, Kathi Woodfield, Gail Woolston, Mako Yoshikawa.

Juniors receiving the gold key were Yvette Best, Toby Clark, Tamer El Shakhs, Jacob Farmer, Nadia Glucksberg, Gina Jackson, Steven Olzewski, Tom Perkins, Ilana Perry and Michael Stefanchik.

REGISTRATION SET

For Kindergarten. Registration dates for children entering kindergarten in the Princeton school system this September are Wednesday, June 6, from 9 to noon; Thursday, June 7, from 1 to 3; and Friday, June 8 from 9 to noon. Registration will be at Community Park and Riverside Elementary Schools, and children should be registered at the school they will attend.

To be eligible for kindergarten, a child must be five years old on or before November 30. Children need not be present at registration. Parents, however, should bring the child's birth certificate and medical records, including immunization history. Under state law, children cannot be admitted unless they have had DPT, oral polio, measles vaccine, rubella vaccine, and mumps vaccine.

It's Been Great.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It's hard to believe that this is my last issue of Town Topics but the calendar seems to indicate that it is so. I look forward keenly to retirement but I certainly will miss both work and colleagues.

I was surprised and touched by the tribute from Princeton's mayors in last week's issue. It's an impressive list and it says more than anything else possibly could about the quality of Princeton's public servants and the intelligence of the voters who choose them.

It also occurred to me — well, I guess everybody on that list has scowled at me at one time or another and perhaps that fact makes their kind words mean even more.

Jeb Stuart, owner and editor of Town Topics, in his generous recounting of my life and times, left out one of the most important parts: the pleasure it has been for me, both personal and professional, to work with him in the three years since his father's death.

Usually, when a son takes over the family business after the sudden death of a father dearly loved by all, he starts with two strikes against him. (Sports metaphors are big around the Town Topics office and I'm using that one to show off. Besides, it's the only one I know.)

Not the case with Jeb. All of us liked and respected him, knew we wanted to remain to work with him as we had with his father, and have done so. Nobody has left since he began to run the paper and I think that says it all.

Obviously, you don't cover the news, write it and help to assemble a paper without total co-operation from everyone you work with. The team spirit is strong and active throughout this office and that spirit has been very important and sustaining to me.

What a fascinating town Princeton is, for a reporter! You who live here — lively, prickly, smart, warmhearted, conservative, contentious, dedicated, articulate (oh, wow! articulate!), imaginative, litigious, public-spirited, quirky, suspicious, generous, vigilant — I love you all.

It's been great, and I thank you.

Unanswered Questions.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

There are many unanswered and unanswerable questions concerning the new highly complicated "affordable housing" ordinance under consideration by the Princeton Township Committee.

In the hope of informing those who may not yet be aware of the implications of the ordinance and to encourage attendance at the next — and last announced — meeting on it, I am listing a few of the questions that occur to me.

1) We know there is a need for more low-moderate income housing; this need was inherent in the public push for it over the years and in the provisions of the recent Master Plan; but do we need so many new houses to produce our fair share of affordable housing?

2) How do we know which of the ordinance developers are likely to pick, and do we understand the possible consequences of each? Under the most extreme option will new construction of middle income housing be entirely impossible?

3) If developers choose not to build low-moderate housing but to contribute instead to the Housing Fund, could we not end up with all high-priced new construction, money in the Fund, and little or no land left for low-moderate houses?

4) Although there is a stated cut-off provision in the ordinance, should the Affordable Housing Board decide enough has been built, how can we stop the developers who are suddenly cut off from the density bonus options from saying, "why start with me" and suing immediately?

5) What say will ordinary citizens have in the housing decisions made by the all-powerful AHB, which is to consist solely of people appointed by the Mayor?

6) Can we as taxpayers afford a town of wall-to-wall housing, bumper to bumper cars and elbow to elbow people, a very probable outcome of the Affordable Housing ordinance as it now stands? Would not the only people to benefit from that kind of community be the developers?

It is in the interest of all of us to become familiar with the ordinance (free copies are available in the Township Clerk's office at the Valley Road School) and to show up at Valley Road School this Monday, at 8 p.m.

Ask Yourselves Questions.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In light of the recent Mt. Laurel decision, developer law suits brought in its wake, the prospect of (uncharacteristically) swift judicial determination (possibly through in camera settlements) it is urgent that Princeton Township residents scrutinize now the proposed Affordable Housing Ordinance scheduled for final vote this Monday by the Princeton Township Committee.

I believe there is a need to balance the preservation of the character of Princeton Township and the actual construction of low income housing.

There is, moreover, a compelling need to preserve the environment of the township's remaining open tracts and the already fully developed areas. Demonstrated repeatedly over the years has been Princeton Township's commitment and ability to construct, rationally, affordable housing which has not and does not adversely impact upon the environment.

Township residents must not allow the Township to capitulate to developers who seek to destroy existing legislatively enacted zoning ordinances and replace them with high density schemes by taking advantage of anticipated ad hoc judicial zoning proclamations and land-use plans.

Assimilation of lower income families into mainstream America is essential if future generations are to avoid economic, racial and civil strife. There is a present need to strengthen the family, what better way than with the basics: exposure to highest quality public education, community sports programs, career identification, and, fresh air.

But, the means toward the end should be in the long-term environmentally sensitive, cost-effective, legislative, and reflective of the character of the community.

Critical to this implementation are two factors: avoidance of high density development and the guarantee that low income units will actually be constructed. It is beyond peradventure that Princeton Township must prevent developer manipulation of Mt. Laurel obligations in order to build thousands of "bonus" market rate units in order to obtain a certain number of required affordable housing units.

In the next five days, Princeton residents should ask themselves and their town planners:

1. How will the high density "bonus" options allowed by the proposed ordinance adversely impact upon the environment?

2. To what extent will Mt. Laurel obligations reduce existing lot sizes; at how many times the existing density will builders be allowed to build units, both "bonus" and low income.

3. How can high density development be avoided and still permit Township compliance with Mt. Laurel.

4. With builder options (to build or contribute to a fund) included in the proposed ordinance, how can Princeton Township guarantee the developer will not simply take advantage of reduced lot size to build many times the currently allowed number of units, forego building the low income units, and contribute to the fund instead;

5. Why not combine aspects of the "voluntary" and "mandatory" plans to achieve the desired result and not leave Princeton Township over developed;

6. Why are judges now policy makers, land-use planners, program administrators, and enforcement officials;

7. Why are the Courts entertaining suits by those developers obviously acting in bad faith by currently using Mt. Laurel as a tool to do what they have been trying to do for years, namely rip through Princeton with high density development.

8. Assuming the "Voluntary" Plan is adopted and maximum density results, how will the long-term cost logistics of infrastructure modification to accommodate increased (thousands?) population be met; what about the sewer problem; Has the Township calculated what the long term cost (tax increases) will be and how it compares to "mandatory" set asides?

9. What about public schools, police, fire; will services such as hospital, public utilities, parking, access roads, be capable of meeting excess demand? What about increased traffic?

10. Who will be responsible for design criteria; what will the low income units look like; will they be rental or owned in fee.

11. How will construction of low income units be 'subsidized" — by the township, the state, the federal government; what will be the effect on property taxes;

12. What recourse has the Township explored beyond adoption of the proposed ordinance; what legal advice is the Township getting; has there been a decision by the Township to take a strong defense with the least possible legal counsel?

13. How will the composition of the electorate be affected by the influx of the anticipated number of new residents?

14. How can the Township Committee rush into adoption of this ordinance without concrete facts and figures?

Now is the time to make a difference. It's your town; the future is in the making.

Housing vs. Quality of Life.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Town Topics' May 23 account of Princeton Township's prospective ordinance, though correct, should have emphasized its quantitative aspects more heavily. Indeed, if viable alternatives are disregarded, the Affordable-Housing ordinance currently under consideration by Princeton Township Committee will devastate Princeton, its quality of life, the value of already-developed real estate, and the local tax rates.

If the ordinance is passed, builder-speculators will surely implement it because their huge profits are virtually guaranteed. In a decade or so Princeton from border to border in one solid mass, will be so heavily built up as to approximate the dense residential areas of New Brunswick.

Now by some reasonable criteria New Brunswick is a fine city, but I suggest that neither my fellow residents nor I live in Princeton because we would really like to live in a city like New Brunswick. In Princeton we are sorry to see open tracts of land being developed now; would we like to have four or five or even eight times as many houses built there as are presently going up?

The traffic on our local roads is increasing; would we like to have it increase four times faster? Some say our library is getting crowded; wouldn't it become overly crowded with four or eight times as many new people? And what of our community swimming pool, our fire and police protection, our sewer capacity and our flooding problems?

But consider built up areas like Princeton; they under the new ordinance are far from untouchable. How would a present resident in say an R5 (half acre) district like one or two more townhouses built in her neighbor's back yard, and also in the yard of the neighbor who lives behind her, and across the street, and furthermore, in the empty lot next door, not one but six new dwelling units?

In some, but by no means all cases, such construction would be deterred by still-existing bulk regulations, but bulk regulations are easily set aside through variances.

The proposed ordinance has been fashioned by the Princeton Regional Planning Board and consultants in order to enable Princeton to provide its hypothesized "fair share" of low-cost housing required by the N.J. Supreme Court in recent decisions, particularly "Mount Laurel II."

While many hold the gravest of reservations concerning this decision, the general consensus, which I share, is that for now Princeton should seek and evaluate a path of compliance.

Obviously, the path chosen should be the one of least impact on the quality of life in our community, but that has not been done. Why not? The new ordinance generates a ten fold more radical change in the community than the Master Plan change adopted a few years ago yet the Master Plan received ten times more public discussion.

The ordinance relies on the voluntary cooperation of developers to generate the affordable or low-cost housing. Beginning with the present zoning that implements the present Master Plan, developers are offered the opportunity to build many times the number of dwelling units therein permitted if they will agree to build a modest percentage of affordable units.

The calculus of this "voluntary" scheme is that being able to build many more houses on a given tract, albeit with smaller lots or the equivalent higher density, including clustering configurations, the developer will generate hugely greater profits.

Hence he will be eager to meet the attached condition that about one quarter the additional housing be in the "affordable" or low-cost category, which is thought to require heavy subsidization. Thus, for obtaining a certain number of required affordable-housing, approximately five times as many houses will be built as provided in the existing Master Plan.

The bonus of extra houses the developer can build profitably has to be especially high so that the economic choice by the developer is virtually automatic. Otherwise the courts will hold the "voluntary" plan of uncertain outcome, and hence not lawful under Mt. Laurel II.

On the other hand, the Mt. Laurel decision itself permits the municipality directly to mandate that the developer build the affordable-housing. Here the economic choice for the developer is between providing the affordable-housing or no development and no profit at all, and on the land owner the choice is between sale at a developable price or no sale at all.

It is obvious that the generation of huge amounts of "bonus" housing need not arise in the "mandatory" plan, and the impact on quality of life of the community is much less severe.

To the thoughtful citizen it will be evident that many useful variations on the "mandatory" theme are possible.

To recapitulate, the "voluntary" plan for meeting Mt. Laurel requirements will be a disaster to Princeton, but all is not yet lost. There will be a second public hearing with Township Committee, 8 p.m., Monday, June 11. Mayor Pike has indicated that major amendment or even a change of direction is not yet out of the question.

Why Not Cirullo?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a copy of the letter sent to each member of the Board of Education on May 23rd. It may have been lost in the shuffle, but at least I expressed my feelings.

"Billy Cirullo called me à few weeks back to ask permission to use my name as a reference on his application for the position of Principal of the Community Park School for the year 1984-85. I said I was honored. I asked wht he would have me do and he replied, 'Nothing unless you're asked.'

"I have not been asked but I so strongly support his candidacy that I feel compelled to voice my reasons.

"I was born in Princeton, as was Billy, and know the town fairly well. When I taught in the Middle School, Billy was one of my students, as had been his two older brothers. When he began his teaching career it was my good fortune to share a sixth grade Open Space Program in Community Park with him. Billy was industrious, inquisitive, innovative and a stimulating coworker. He was respected and loved by students, parents and faculty. His enthusiasm for working with young people carried him into many extracurricular activities and continues to do so.

"If a lack of administrative experience is a negative factor for Bill, one must readily know that he would be the first to seek counsel from an expert in the field. His willingness and eagerness to learn and be advised could outweigh any lack of on-the-job experience. In whatever poisiton Billy has been placed, he has proven himself to be a professional of top rank. In my forty years of teaching in the Princeton schools, I have been exposed to administrators whose qualifications were of the highest, including experience, but warmth, compassion, understanding and integrity were lacking, hence they were not with us very long.

"I trust you, as a member of the Board of Education, will give Billy every consideration for the position he would fill so ably."

Unfortunately, Mr. Cirullo did not receive the appointment as Principal of Community Park School. Somewhere down the line I understand that Billy and the other finalist had evenly matched credentials except for the fact that the gentleman from a nearby district had experience in an administrative position. Wouldn't it be interesting to the public, especially to the parents of Community Park School students, if these were spelled out in the press for all to see? Given the tremendous respect as an educator which Bill enjoys in this community and his unsolicited support from the public, I think the scales would tip in favor of a known quantity already in the system as opposed to an unknown.

Why do we have to seek outside personnel when we have such a gold mine right here? (See story, "Topics of the Town.")

Crime and Parking.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Yes, I think there might be a statistical increase in crime... whatever that means. In just about every change in procedure whether it be overnight parking or helping the poor, there are costs. Our elected officials are expected to weigh these costs and benefits and make decisions based on sound judgment and testimony.

Princeton is no longer a small suburban town — indeed, it is rapidly becoming a major regional center, and housing ordinances put on the books back in 1929 are — to say the least — anachronistic. Those were the days when F. Scott Fitzgerald described Princeton as that quiet little town out in the New Jersey countryside.

Well, in the year 1984, Princeton is a far cry from that town of Fitzgerald's time. For one: in 1929 very few people had or needed a car. Today, just about everybody has and needs a car. Which brings us to the question of overnight parking. As it now stands, people whose homes were designed many years ago when cars, for all practical purposes did not exist, are forced to park their cars — very often late at night — in desolate parking yards.

These people, like everyone else, have a Jungian sense of unease when late at night they are alone. And well they should because they are fully exposed on the muggers' turf. This does not speak well for the town of Princeton that prides itself on being a safe and pleasant place to live.

Borough Council should explore and arrive at some solution even though it may be statistically imperfect.

Corporate Generosity.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The difference between a whopping fund-raiser and a moderately successful one often depends on help given by the area business community.

That's why the Princeton Friends of Channel Thirteen are particularly grateful to area firms which donated money and goods to insure the success of its spring gala. The black tie dinner-dance held recently at the Hyatt Regency netted over $28,000 in profits for the Public Broadcasting channel.

The Princeton Friends of Channel Thirteen wish to thank Squibb Pharmaceuticals, Lenox China, the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, the William Sword Company, Robert Clancy Associates, Gulton Industries, La Vake Jewelers, Kuller Travel and Firmenich, Inc. for financial assistance. Two firms, Squibb and Alphin Fragrances, also contributed perfume for table favors.

The Princeton Friends of Channel Thirteen, one of 17 groups in the tri-state area, have been raising funds for WNET-Thirteen's operating budget and New Jersey programming since 1977.

Harrison Street Bridge.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

We understand that public input is being solicited on the Route One corridor improvements to be undertaken with the I-95 de-designation funds. We also understand that Mercer County is considering rebuilding or repair of bridges in this area.

We wish to go on record in opposition to any design based on plans for Harrison Street to be four lanes at any point, or three lanes at any point except the Nassau Street corner. One of Princeton's important historic districts, the "Jugtown" district at the corners of Nassau and Harrison Street, is currently in the process of nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

Our Society is working to enhance and preserve this district. We hold an historic easement on the property at the northwest corner of the intersection.

Because we think Harrison Street should not be a four-lane street, we are opposed to making the intersection of Harrison Street and Route One, or the Harrison Street bridge over Lake Carnegie, four lanes.

We are in favor of repairing the present bridge, widening the travel lanes slightly, and attaching a pedestrian walk to the side of the existing bridge if this is shown to be possible after engineering studies. We believe that the present two-lane width is appropriate to Lake Carnegie and to Harrison Street, and that the low arches of the existing bridge are picturesque, aesthetically pleasing, and enhance Lake Carnegie and the Delaware and Raritan Canal towpath.

If the bridge is to be rebuilt, we favor a two-lane bridge with pedestrian walkway only.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

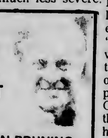
Is it morally right, because you want to make a lot of sweet, kind town into a turtacky, to invade it with mail? I wonder. The Goths have descended.



So now, no one has what was begun with.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

NOTES ON PRUNING—
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

May is a wonderful time to prune your evergreens and flowering shrubs, but remember that all foundation planting require different methods of pruning, based on each plants distinct characteristic.

EVERGREENS – prune to eliminate winter-killed parts and those nibbled away by deer. This will promote thick growth, help develop a good shape and keep them within bounds. Pine, fir and spruce develop compactness when ½ to ¾ of new growth (candles) are removed. Hemlock becomes bushy when tops are cut out. Arborvitae, yew, juniper, chamaecyparis tent to such fast growth that they block views and darken rooms. Removing the top leader or leaders will help develop better lower growth and prevent legginess. Removal of excess lateral branches opens up evergreens, admits more air and light and promotes healthy growth.

FLOWERING SHRUBS – need annual pruning, once the blossoms have gone to keep them in shape and encourage development of new wood as well as enhancing vigorous growth. WOODWINDS recommends pruning azaleas lightly; thinning dense surface growth, except where dead branches are removed. Andromeda can be reduced in height by heavy pruning following blossoming. Rhododendrons seldom require pruning; when needed, however, cut only above the whorls of leaves. Lilacs should be thinned very carefully, as blossoms appear only on two and three year old wood. Flowering almond requires renewing each year by pruning out old wood, and cutting back flowering wood after blossoming. Following flowering, forsythia should have long shoots cut back and old wood thinned out at ground level. Weigelia canes should be thinned and flowering branches reduced to encourage strong wood for next year's blooms.

We at WOODWINDS (924-3500) stress the importance of shaping your trees and shrubs to their natural symmetry and recommend you engage the service of a trained arborist to carry out any extensive pruning work. If you want to try your hand at pruning, perhaps you might consider our recommendations as your consultant. MOST IMPORTANT: don't forget to use sharp shears and don't ever whack or tear the bark. Make clean cuts at a slant ... à basic principle in correct pruning techniques.

A WINDOW FULL OF TIGERS: Take a look at Landau's window this week, if you haven't already, before the tigers on loan for the Fred Fox '39 Reunions Window are returned to their owners. The Icelandic Ram, papered over in orange and black stripes, is masquerading as a tiger in the background, while all around him tigers of every size and material, tigers on pajamas, neckties, pillows, ashtrays, even egg cups remind us, in case we forgot, that we live in Tigertown.

day, June 11, at 10 with Dina Roth.

Participants will learn to make a basic noodle dough and how to use a hand crank pasta machine. There will be a 75 cents charge for materials. Registration is required.

For further information and to register, call the library at 924-7073.

REGISTRATION OPEN

For YWCA Sports Camp. Registration for the Princeton YWCA Sports Camp for girls and boys between the ages of six and 12, is now open. Linda Wolff is camp director, and Pat DiCocco is camp supervisor.

The camp, which will run for seven one-week sessions, Mondays through Fridays, will begin on Monday, June 25. Children may sign up for one or more sessions. Each day's activities will begin at 8:30 and continue until 4 with care available both before and after those hours, from 7:45 and until 5:30 for those who need it.

The program will include conditioning exercises and low-keyed competitions in numerous sports, among them basketball, volleyball, softball, field hockey, street hockey, lacrosse, gymnastics and Red Cross swimming. For young children who need an introduction to these sports, a special program of lead-up games will help them to learn the necessary skills.

The cost for a single session will be $80 for the first week, with reductions of $10 per week for each additional consecutive week. Thus, two consecutive weeks will be $150, three will be $220, and four $290. The cost for the entire seven weeks' program will be $500.

There will be a 10 percent discount for a second child in the immediate family and scholarships will be available where they are needed.

Parents may register children at the YWCA. If that is impossible parents are asked to phone 924-5571 extension 21 for further information.

TRYOUTS SET

For Gymnastic Clinic. Tryouts for the girls' gymnastic team summer clinic at the YWCA will be held on Thursday, June 7, at 4 p.m., in Gym B.

The clinic, which is designed for girls six through eight years old, and the other for girls nine through 15. These groups will be further divided according to age and ability.

Gymnasts will be coached in USGF compulsory routines and optional skills. Groups will meet afternoons and evenings, four days a week for five weeks, from June 25 through July 26.

Information about specific times and costs will be available at the tryouts, or may be obtained at 924-5571, extension 21.

COLLEGE-BOUND INVITED

To Session on Interviews. College-bound high school juniors are invited to a program entitled, "The College Interview: How to Make It Work for You," to be held Thursday, June 14, from 7:30 - 9 p.m. in the Davis Conference Room (near the library) at Princeton High School.

The speaker will be Judith E. Stein, formerly Assistant Director of Admissions at both Mount Holyoke College and Princeton University. Ms. Stein is presently an independent consultant retained by non-profit organizations for executive searches in Washington, D.C. The interview is an opportunity for applicants to improve their chances for admission to the college of their choice, and Ms. Stein will discuss specific do's and don't's, as well as answer audience questions. Parents and counselors are welcome.

The program is co-sponsored by Princeton High School and the Mount Holyoke Club of Princeton. For further information, call Ellen Petrone, Mount Holyoke admissions representative, at 924-1721.

QUARTETS, QUINTETS SET

For Summer Chamber Concerts. The schedule for the 16th Summer Chamber Concerts has been announced.

The Muir Quartet will open the series Monday, June 18, followed by the Borealis Wind Quintet, Tuesday, July 10; the Beacon Brass Quintet, Wednesday, July 18; the Chester String Quartet, July 25; and the Alexander String Quartet, August 8.

The concerts will be held at 8 p.m. in the main courtyard of the Graduate College, or, in case of rain, in the University Chapel (because Alexander Hall is in the process of uncertain, concert-goers may call 452-5977 after 4 p.m. on the day of the concert for a recorded announcement.

There is no admission charge to these concerts. The Summer Chamber Concerts Committee depends on the generosity of music-lovers for contributions to meet the fees commanded by first-rate performers and the costs of lighting, security and printing. Princeton University provides the setting for the concert, but all additional expenses must be met from contributions.

Tax-deductible checks may be made out to "Trustees of Princeton University" and sent to Summer Chamber Concerts, Woolworth Center, Princeton University, 08544.

OFFERINGS LISTED

At Conservatory. Registration is now open for the Westminster conservatory's summer semester. Most classes and private lessons begin the week of June 25 and are held on the Westminster Choir College campus.

Heading the list of summer group instruction is music ensemble lessons, open to musicians of all ages and levels of ability. The purpose of the lessons is to expose the student to the art and repertoire of chamber playing. Students are auditioned in June to determine playing level, and will begin meeting with their chamber groups in July.

The course runs six weeks, and the cost is $45.

Students interested in Music Ensemble lessons should call Janice Holms, co-ordinator, at the Conservatory, 921-7104 or 924-6359.

Also offered again this summer will be the five-week intensive music theory classes, which will meet twice a week for 90-minute sessions. Pending enrollment, levels one through four will be given, and this year a new level five, in composition, will be added. Classes begin the last week in June and the cost is $85. Students taking private lessons at the Conservatory during the Summer can enroll in Theory classes for the cost of $25.

The Conservatory's Summer String Festival '84, an intensive week of learning and playing for string students of all levels through high school age, will be held June 25-29. Activities include classes in repertoire, chamber music, music reading and fun-

NEW HEAD NAMED

For PDS Middle School. Mary V. Williams has been appointed the new head of the middle school of Princeton Day School. Ms. Williams succeeds Herbert Jaques, Jr., who has resigned from the school after six years in order to pursue a new career.

Mary Williams comes to Princeton Day School from the University of Chicago Laboratory School where she has been a teacher of English and an administrator since

Mary V. Williams

1968. Nine years ago she founded the Laboratory School's extensive summer day camps and has served them as director ever since. While earning her M.A. at Ohio State in Elementary Education - Administration in 1978, she was a supervisor of several student teachers, and recently she also served as a member of the triumvirate which administered the middle school division of the Lab School.

From 1963 to 1966, Ms. Williams was a teacher at the Sacred Heart School of Winnetka and has taught as well at the St. Therese Chinese-Catholic Mission School of Chicago and at overseas dependent schools in Germany and Okinawa.

Ms. Williams will be moving to Princeton this summer to begin her duties as middle school head when school opens on September 10.

WANT TO DEBATE? Nick Hirsch (left) and David Proshan will represent New Jersey at the National Debate Tournament to be held in San Antonio this month, having won the state District Championship in March. Their Princeton High School coaches were Bruce Doughty and Mark Levine and their faculty adviser was Kurt Greenhut.

FOUR TEACHERS NAMED

For Princeton Award. Four New Jersey secondary school teachers will receive awards of $2,000 each at Princeton University's 237th Commencement exercises. They are Harry D. Ahearn, history teacher at Ridgewood High School; Dennis J. Foreman, history teacher at Mainland Regional High School, Linwood; Elizabeth Marquez, mathematics teacher, North Brunswick Township High School; and Edwin A. Romond, teacher of English at Warren Hills Regional Senior High School, Washington.

Established in 1959 by an anonymous gift from a Princeton alumnus, the prizes recognize "fruitful teaching and devoted service" in New Jersey schools. During its first 26 years, the program has honored 104 teachers from 93 New Jersey high schools. Nominations for the prizes are solicited from public and private schools in the state; selection is made by a committee which includes representatives of New Jersey schools, the State Department of Education and Princeton University.

In addition to the $2,000 to each winner, a grant of $1,000 is made to each of their schools for the purchase of library books.

PIANIST TO PLAY

In Trenton. Lois Shaffer, pianist, will appear in recital on Sunday, June 10, as the next Boheme presentation at the Mill Hill Playhouse in Trenton.

Ms. Shaffer made her solo recital debut at Carnegie Recital Hall in 1981. She played a major role in last year's "Brahms Bash" in Trenton and has appeared on more than one occasion with the Greater Trenton Symphony. She has also performed with the Chicago Symphony.

In addition to her solo and recital work, Ms. Shaffer has appeared with such chamber music groups as the Cleveland, Galimir, Tokyo, and Vermeer Quartets, and with various artists from the Marlboro and Casals Festivals.

She toured Europe in 1978 and 1979, including Salzburg, Brussels, The Hague, and Budapest and was invited back to play in Vienna and Budapest in May, 1981.

Ms. Shaffer attended the Juilliard School and studied with Muriel Kerr, Ernst Oster and Karl Ulrich Schnabel. She was awarded First Prize in the Stokes Piano Competition and also won the Trenton Symphony Auditions of the Air and Chicago Symphony Youth Auditions.

General admission is $6. For reservations call 989-3038 or 989-9359. The Playhouse is at Front and Montgomery Streets in Trenton.

YWCA LISTS PROGRAMS

For Youth. The YWCA is featuring a number of special series this summer for young people looking for an alternative to camp.

An Art Workshop Series for girls and boys 10-12 years old offers instruction and the opportunity to experiment in different media each week. Included are drawing, silk screen and stenciling, painting, sculpture, wood and linoleum cuts and clay. Each workshop runs Monday-Friday, 9-11 a.m. and is available in six consecutive sessions from July 2-August 10.

A Summer Park Program is available for 5-9 year olds looking for "just a little" camp. The program will feature a variety of activities including arts and crafts, games, nature projects and free play. Four two-week sessions are available starting June 11 and ending August 3. The Summer Park Program is offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9:30-12:30.

Street Theatre will offer a Summer Theatre Arts Workshop Series for young people ages 11-15. Morning and afternoon sessions are available. Choices include Acting, Production Skills, Mime, Directing, Juggling, Clowning, Make-Up, Improvisation, Theatre Games and Set Design. Details on these and other YWCA programs may be obtained through the YWCA office at 924-5571. Registration is now being accepted and space is limited. Scholarship assistance is also available.

Also at the YWCA. Summer programs for youngsters abound at the YWCA this year.

A Summer Handcraft Sampler for 7-12 year olds features instruction in a variety of needlework techniques. Beginner and Advanced classes are available. Sketching Around Town offers the opportunity to experiment in such media as pencils, charcoal, pastels and collage using the sights around Princeton as subjects.

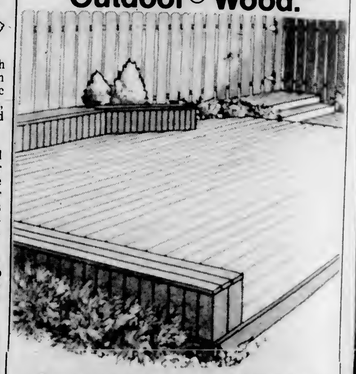
Girls and boys 10-14 years old who enjoy music have the chance to learn the scores from popular shows such as Annie, Fame, The Wizard of Oz and Peter Pan while receiving instruction in vocal techniques in The Joy of Singing. Home Alone is a new course for youngsters who occasionally or frequently find themselves home on their own. Separate sessions will be offered for 3rd and 4th graders, and 5th and 6th graders, featuring basic safety, first aid, cooking, activities to do at home and much more.

Writing for Fun is a special workshop series for 12-18 year olds who want to learn to write humorous articles, essays or fictional stories. Class exercises will help participants build color and interest into their writing.

The YWCA also offers a number of special workshop series and camps during the summer. For information call 924-5571.

Health Screening

The Health Department will hold a health screening session Wednesday, June 6, from 2 to 3. Blood pressure and diabetes tests will be given, as well as hemocult checks.



Those who wish to be screened may do so on a walk-in basis; appointments are not necessary. The Health Department recommends, however, that those wishing to be tested for diabetes eat a full meal, preferably with dessert, 1½-2 hours before their test is to be done. This is to insure greater accuracy in the test reading.

FETE A SPORTING EVENT: There will be 12 sports booths for children of all ages at the Jazzy Fete on Saturday — if you call the Jive Dive person dunk a sport. Soccer, hockey, golf, softball, frisbee are some of the other contests. Sponsors are Allen's Children Center, which has donated a surf board for the overall winner, and Adidas. Fred Abelson of Allen's, second from left, confers with Kathy Bagley, left, and Lynn Mosle, co-chair of "Sports Beat" for the Fete. The fellow with the racquet AND the soccer ball is Josh Bagley. (Robbie Griffith photo)

Transporation to Fete Is Planned

This Saturday, June 9, is Hospital Fete Day, and A Jazzy Fete '84 will provide special services to encourage greater participation and increased enjoyment of the annual fund raiser for Princeton Medical Center.

Starting at 9:30, there will be regular mini-bus service to the Fete grounds every half hour. The bus will leave from the Public Library parking lot and circle around Redding Terrace, Spruce Circle and the Red Cross Building on Harrison Street.

Harrison Street itself will be closed to traffic from 9 to 10:30 to let runners from the 10-K race pass by.

For those who plan to come by car, there will be a drop-off place in the parking lot and special parking for the handicapped at the hedgerow entrance to the field. A golf cart will be at the hedgerow to take those who have difficulty walking to their cars in the parking lot.

There will be covered seating area in which to get out of the sun. These areas are in the Dance Tent and in the Connoisseurs Corner, between "Sundaes" and "Refreshments." There will be a rest stop in a corner of the Toyland Tent in the Children's Area.

The Fete will have three sets of rest rooms on the field. They will be located behind the Sports Alley, between the Dance Tent and the Children's Area, and behind the Auction Tent.

The First Aid Tent will be located near the Garden Area. An information booth will be in the center of the field.

Firestone

The new principal, who is not related to other Princeton Firestones, received his undergraduate degree in English literature — he writes fiction for his own pleasure and believes strongly that young children should do some writing every day — and a master's in elementary education from Rutgers. He has completed advanced study at Rutgers in administration and supervision.

He started teaching grades 4-6 in South Brunswick in 1970, then became a resource teacher there. After that, he was named unit leader — the equivalent of an assistant principal — in East Windsor. He then became principal of Central School in East Brunswick and is now principal of Memorial School.

"He transformed a troubled school, and we talked with parents and teachers and got nothing but rave reviews," Dr. Houston reported.

In a prepared statement, Dr. Houston said the board believed Mr. Firestone has the experience and skill to implement the Long Range report.

"The report calls for emphasis on problem solving, collaboration, communication and questioning, and we felt Art has a strong grasp of how to work with teachers to breathe life into those words."

Grave Responsibility. Mr. Firestone, referring to children as "our clients," said "We have a great and grave responsibility to see that each one not only learns everything he or she is capable of learning, but also develops a very positive attitude about learning and about themselves.

"The early years are when openness to learning and self-respect occur. If this doesn't happen in the elementary years, it's a tremendous job to turn the kid around later."

He wants to "co-teach" with teachers, working with students on writing as he has done in other schools.

"Kids should write every single day," he believes. "I'd like the kids to keep journals and write in them daily. It helps them get in touch with their own ideas and develop writing fluency.

"Excited" about his new job, he feels "excited" as well about students and staff.

"Because of the structure of Princeton's schools," he explained, "I'll be able to be a partner with the teachers — this is different from what I've had before. We'll be able to do problem solving, planning, developing teaching ideas."

Childless, Mr. Firestone owns, or is owned by, a pair of cats. One, he says, is an expert in rodent control; the other, an expert in sleeping disorders.

"She's on the opposite cycle from me. She thinks night time is playground time."

Degrees and Diplomas Awarded to Princeton Area Residents

Area residents continue to be awarded undergraduate and graduate degrees and diplomas at commencement ceremonies at colleges and universities across the country.

Karen R. Zucchino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zucchino of 148 Bertrand Drive, has been awarded a Bachelor of Science degree from the School of Humanities and Sciences at Ithaca College. She majored in psychology/business and was a member of the president's host committee.

Howard F. Powers Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Powers of 120 Audubon Lane, was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree at Bowdoin College's 179th commencement exercises. He received honors in history.

A graduate of Princeton Day School, Mr. Powers majored in history and minored in economics at Bowdoin, where he was a dean's list student. He was a member and president of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and earned junior varsity numerals as a member of the soccer team.

Two area residents have have graduated from Haverford College in Pennsylvania. Andrea J. Smith, daughter of Yvonne B. Smith of Princeton and Richard D. Smith of Lawrence Township, earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics. She was elected a member of Phi Beta Kappa and was awarded the Elliston P. Morris and Elizabeth P. Smith Peace Prizes. She is a graduate of Princeton High School.

Miss Smith plans to attend the University of Idaho College of Law.

Samantha M. Phillips, daughter of Jeanne and Ralph L. Phillips of 10 Monroe Lane, received a Bachelor of Arts from Haverford. She also attended Princeton High School.

Sara Tabell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Tabell of 76 Crooked Tree Lane, was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree summa cum laude at Colgate University's 163rd commencement. A 1980 graduate of Stuart Country Day School, she concentrated in French at Colgate and was a member of Delta Sigma Epsilon sorority.

Two Princeton residents have received baccalaureate degrees from Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

They are Gwyneth Jones, daughter of Vera and Tom Jones of 90 Bertrand Drive, and Grace Frank, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. Calmon, 511 Ewing Street. Miss Jones majored in French and studied at the University of Grenoble during the fall of her sophomore year. She earned three varsity letters in field hockey and all-region recognition and four varsity letters in lacrosse. She held the all-time Swarthmore record for lacrosse career goals, 198, as well as the all-time season record of 63 goals.

Miss Jones also played squash as a club sport and was editor of the college yearbook, among other extracurricular activities. She has accepted a position as a sales territory manager with McNeil Consumer Products, a Johnson & Johnson Company.

Miss Frank was a biology major in the honors program at Swarthmore with a minor in political science. She was one of only two students to be awarded Mellon Minor and Research Grants to pursue independent research in molecular biology.

biology club. She served on the orientation committee and was a resident assistant.

Douglas B. Ferguson, son of Louise M. Ferguson of Princeton and the late George R. Ferguson Jr. was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy from New England College.

Laura Rizzi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Rizzi of Balcort Drive, and Lauren Ivey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon H. Ivey of Birchwood Court, Princeton Junction, have been awarded bachelor of arts degrees at Drew University.

Scott L. Soffen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Soffen of 95 Longview Drive, has graduated from Rutgers University with high honors in economics, achieving a 4.0 grade average in his major. He had been elected to Omicron Delta Upsilon, the economic honor society.

Mr. Soffen did a summer internship with the Mercer County Division of Economic Development, where he completed a wide range of projects, including making an airport hamper feasibility report, and an economic profile of all 13 municipalities. In addition, he assisted in a mass marketing plan to "sell" Mercer County to business and advised new businesses on financing options. For his work with the County, he received a Certificate of Appreciation from the Division of Economic Development. He has been accepted in the management training program of the City Federal Savings and Loan Association in Piscataway.

Karen A. Loew, daughter of Harold and Susan Loew, 16 Overbrook Drive, has been awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree in biopsychology, cum laude, from Cornell University. She was elected to Psi Chi, the national psychology honor society.

While at Cornell, Ms. Loew was a member of the women's squash and lacrosse teams. She served as a peer counselor and was recognized for this service to the Cornell Community.

Ms. Loew is a graduate of Princeton High School and plans to work in the Boston area prior to studies for an M.B.A.

Six area residents are among the 669 members of Wesleyan University's Class of 1984 which graduated during commencement exercises on the Middletown, Conn., campus.

Gailyn B. Thomas, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. John Thomas of 900 Kingston Road and a 1979 graduate of Princeton High School, graduated with a major in art.

James J. Varney, son of Dr. and Mrs. James Varney of 56 Leabrook Lane and a 1980 graduate of the Lawrenceville School, majored in Russian.

John J. Keaney, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Keaney of 60 Western Way and a 1979 graduate of Princeton High School, majored in history, while Thomas Randall, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Randall of 82 Gulick Road, and a 1977 graduate of Princeton High School graduated with a major in music.

From Lawrenceville, Gregg M. Raymond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Raymond and a 1980 graduate of Princeton Day School, majored in biology and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Stephen J. Hagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hagan of 1 Dodds Lane, graduated with a major in history.

Eric Schwartz, son of Helen Schwartz of 57 Jefferson Road and the late Kenneth Schwartz, was graduated cum laude from the Georgetown School of Business Administration in Washington D.C. and was inducted into the financial management honor society.

A graduate of Princeton High School Class of 1980, he will enter a general management training program at City Federal Saving and Loan Association in Piscataway.

Laura Dennison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Dennison, 11 Haslet Avenue, has received a Bachelor of Arts degree at Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill. She graduated with a major in art and art history.

Three Princeton High School alumnae have been awarded Bachelor of Arts degrees from Connecticut College, New London, Conn.

They are Amy F. Stackpole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stackpole of 26 Library Place, a history major; Anne M. Nathan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nathan of 28 Beech Hill Circle, a psychology major; and Andrea Florey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Klaus G. Florey of 151 Loomis Court, who majored in child development.

Three area residents have earned advanced degrees at Lehigh University.

They are Richard G. Stys of Princeton, who received an M.B.A.; John H. Weaklem of Pennington, the M.S. in geology; and Daniel J. Dalton of Lawrenceville, M.B.A.

Thomas A. Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Borden Jr. of 160 Hodge Road, has been awarded a bachelor of arts degree at Colgate University.

A 1980 graduate of Taft School in Connecticut, he concentrated in English at Colgate and was business manager and director of the Colgate 13, an all-male a capella singing group.

Housing

Along with Mr. Cherry and a number of residents, Committeewoman Gail Firestone is also concerned about density. "The cure is worse than the disease," she said. "Densities would be higher than the community would accept. We can do better than this proposal, by which the town would be devastated by densities two to three times higher than what previous master plans have envisaged." Mr. Cherry described himself as "gravely concerned about the damage to our town, not by providing affordable housing itself, but by the bonus that is the incentive."

Committeeman Richard Schock reminded the audience that there were three alternatives: to accept the voluntary plan in the ordinance; to adopt mandatory set-asides by which developers who own a parcel of land of a certain size are required to put up a certain number of low and moderate income housing; and to do nothing. The third alternative would court "the builder's remedy," he said, "and we already have two suits on our hands."

Mrs. Firestone countered that there is a fourth option. The Township would take upon itself through a housing authority the construction of a certain number of units. This way, she said, the Township could control the location and design, minimizing the negative impact. The Township could also require contributions from developers and look for grants and subsidies, she suggested.

Housing consultant John Nolan, who was responsible with Alan Mallach, for the recommendations to the Planning Board for meeting Master Plan objectives for low and moderate income housing, said that a "whole range" of alternatives had been considered. "None of them are free of risk, none of them free of criticism," he pointed out.

Twenty-two residents spoke to the issue at Monday night's hearing. Much of their comment was in the form of questions, some of which are excerpted here without attribution as a way of highlighting the dilemmas of Mt. Laurel II for the Committee and for the ordinary citizens.

What is Princeton's "fair share" of low and moderate income housing?

There really are no hard numbers, but from 753-1380 units are estimated to be required in the first series of estimates between now and 1990.

How many do we have now?

More than 500 units in the two municipalities. But because Mt. Laurel is addressing the needs from 1980 to 1990, Princeton does not get credit for these units, except a sort of moral credit.

What areas are excluded from the "affordable housing district" that the proposed ordinance would create throughout the Township?

The RA and RB zones on the Ridge, and the commercial zones.

To what extent have the consultants included the environmental costs and cost for providing adequate sewers, roads and other infrastructure?

The Township has "no idea of how much this is going to cost." The consultants were not asked to prepare a fiscal impact study. They were hired by the Planning Board when it was having difficulty itself drawing up the proposed Conditional Bonus Density ordinance.

They were asked to assist the Planning Board in determining how the community could meet the affordable housing objective of the Master Plan and the community's fair share of regional lower income housing need.

Mr. Nolan reiterated his belief that the results of their study are "in compliance with your Master Plan." In reply to a resident's assertion that "these densities are unbelievable!" he stated, "These densities, when reviewed by a Mt. Laurel judge, will seem extremely low — at the low end of credibility — on the part of the court. If the court looks at an ordinance and thinks it is exclusionary, it will give "the builder's remedy," he warned.

What is the maximum and minimum number of housing units that can be built in Princeton Township?

There are 2,000 acres that can be built on.

How do you know when any given area meets the test, the quota, which then puts the program to rest, at least for a time?

There is a methodology, which involves census data and may derive from a litigation through which "numbers are struck." If a municipality can prove that it is going to meet its "fair share" it can get a "certificate of repose" and be exempt from further Mt. Laurel suits for the next six years.

If this is a regional problem, will the building taking place on Route 1 create income for the county that would help?

Princeton only gets the tax yield from the people who buy units.

How can you guarantee that the housing that is built goes to low-income families?

Another $64 question. It is pegged to median income, and there are needs tests that can be administered.

Who would be the trustees of the housing trust?

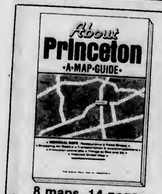
Under the ordinance as presently written, the Mayor would appoint a Housing Board of five members, who in turn would appoint seven to the housing trust. Bipartisanship is not stipulated, nor is community representation.

Objection to Fee. Benedict Yedlin, who reminded the audience that he was responsible for half the low and moderate income housing already in place, told Committee that he objected to the proposed Development Permit Fee that would obtain to any application for a permit for new residential or non-residential construction. On a 30,000 square-foot house, the fee would add $1,500 to the cost, he said.

Mr. Yedlin also supported an optional rather than a mandatory program, saying that if there are bonus incentives developers who have suitable sites would take the option. But, he said, not all sites are suitable and cited the 60-acre Foulet tract on which he is proposing a subdivision of 37 clustered lots.

To illustrate the density that would arise from the proposed ordinance, Mr. Yedlin said that at the optional 2.75 units per acre he could built 133 non-low income housing and 32 low income. At the even higher option for affordable housing, he could build 384 non-low income units and 96 low income.

"Staggering," he said. "We really don't want to be in the position of doing that on this site."



Mrs. Elizabeth Hutter of the Planning Board had prepared a chart showing the development density bonus options and potential yield in dwelling units on single tracts or lots. "In the early days," Mrs. Hutter said, "I was in sympathy with the whole purpose and direction of affordable housing, but I have become dismayed by the more recent evolution of this plan. There are higher densities here which we never anticipated when we undertook this."

She endorsed a mandatory approach which she felt would break the self-perpetuating cycle of builders building ever more expensive single-family homes. Somewhat wistfully she said, "I think the court will be a little bit sympathetic if it understands the Township has been bogged down in litigation and not able to get its conditional density bonus ordinance on the books."

She echoed the feelings of many when she said the Mt. Laurel decision was "a cruel bind" when the town over the years very clearly intended to honor its commitment to a housing mix. Dwight O. North complained that the public had not been given an adequate opportunity to hear other alternatives to the ordinance under discussion.

PEOPLE in the News

Leland G. Merrill, 49 Gulick Road, was presented with the Rutgers University Award at the Cook College Graduation Ceremonies of Rutgers University by President Edward J. Bloustein. The award honors Dr. Merrill for his contributions to the University and New Jersey.

Dr. Merrill served on the faculty and administration of Rutgers University for 38 years. He joined the faculty as assistant professor of entomology and rose to dean of the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, now known as Cook College.

During his tenure as dean, Dr. Merrill foresaw the significance of the environmental movement and the need to develop an integrated approach to resource management which has now been fully realized in the structure and curriculum of Cook College.

Following a ten-year term as dean, Dr. Merrill directed his interests to environmental issues and public policy development. He planned and coordinated a scientific management program for the Pinelands of New Jersey combining the agricultural, recreational, residential, and natural areas to form the basis of the Pinelands National Reserve.

In presenting the award, which is symbolized by a bronze medal, President Bloustein commended Dr. Merrill for his unselfish dedication to the citizens of New Jersey and to the academic and public service tradition of the University. "You have consistently striven to excel in your chosen field and to bring glory to the State University. The same wellspring of perseverence and dedication to excellence which earned you a bronze medal in wrestling in the 1948 Olympics has characterized your career at Rutgers."

Dr. Merrill retired from Rutgers in 1982. A 30-year Princeton resident, he is active in environmental issues throughout the state, serving as Executive Secretary-designate of the New Jersey Academy of Science and a Director of the New Jersey State Audubon Society. He is currently the Princeton High School wrestling coach.

Several area residents brought home gold, silver, and bronze medals from an East Coast karate championship held in Scranton, Pa. The winners, representing Princeton Tang Soo Do School in Kingston, are, Donald Harvey of South Brunswick, third place sparring and third place forms in the junior advanced division; Jeff Durham of Hopewell, first place white belt sparring; Beverly Cavalier of Hopewell, first place women's beginner forms division; Eric Vanderleek of South Brunwick, first place forms and second place sparring in the peewee advanced division; and Jill Comrie of South Brunswick, third place forms in the mini-junior beginners division.

The instructor of the Princeton Karate School, Susan Robin (a second degree black belt), was awarded Grand Champion in the black belt forms division and also placed first in the women's black belt division.

Ms. Robin was a guest demonstrator at the tournament. She demonstrated self defense techniques with David Jenne of Maguire Air Force Base.

The students will go on to compete in June at the Regional Qualifying Championships in White Plains, N.Y. This will help to prepare them for the National Tang Soo Do Championships in October at West Point Military Academy.

Ralph Snodsmith, host of radio WOR, New York, will interview C. Jane Boning, of Lawrenceville, national vice-president of the Marigold Society of America on Sunday, June 17, at 9 a.m. They will discuss Marigold Beautification Week proclaimed for June 17-23 by Mayor Gatterdam of Lawrence and Mayor Rafferty of Hamilton and the significance of designated "Marigold Cities."

James J. Kinney Jr. of Ewing Street, vice-president and senior marketing officer of Atlantic Financial Federal, has been selected to receive the University of Scranton's Frank J. O'Hara Award.

The award is presented annually by the University board of directors and the National Alumni Society to distinguished alumni who have exhibited sustained achievement in a particular field of endeavor or career. Mr. Kinney, who graduated from the University of Scranton in 1964, was selected for his success in business management.

Prior to his appointment to the Savings and loan institution, Mr. Kinney served as a representative to the President's Commission on Electronic Funds Transfer. Until 1983, he was a vice president and marketing director at Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia and earlier held a similar position at Signal Financial Corporation in Pittsburgh, where he was also a senior officer.

He was manager, Advanced Services Marketing Programs, at the United States Post Office in Washington, D.C. and has held management positions at H.J. Heinz and Borden.

New Jersey Nightly News Special Correspondent Michael Aron of 289 Western Way has received the annual Television Documentary Media Award of the New Jersey State Bar Association. The award cited a special two-part New Jersey Nightly News series, reported and co-produced by Mr. Aron, on the use of cameras in municipal courtrooms.

Under a recent New Jersey Supreme Court ruling to allow cameras in municipal courtrooms, New Jersey Nightly News became the first to report with cameras from a municipal court. The two-part series demonstrated the impact of this ruling. Part one focused on the reactions to the ruling in interviews with judges, attorneys, defendants and plaintiffs. Part two was a cinema verite sampling of several actual municipal court cases.

Dr. Leonard Blank will be moderator of a panel on the use of "Humor in Psychotherapy" to be held by the Eastern Group Psychotherapy Association, in the Roosevelt Hotel, New York City.

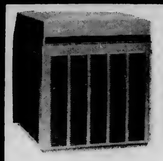
Dr. Blank, who is clinical director of The New Jersey Institute for Psychiatry at Rutgers Medical School, is the author of "The Age of Shrinks." He is in the private practice of individual, group and marital therapy in Kingston.

Four area students achieved dean's list and-or class honors at Duke University during the 1983-84 academic year.

They are, Diane E. Aronovic, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford M. Aronovic, 351 Franklin Avenue; Anita C. Kassof, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Allen H. Kassof, 949 Mercer Road; Esther Lependorf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Lependorf, 640 Prospect Avenue; and Laura M. Whitman, daughter of Dr. Robert F. Whitman, 180 Mercer Street.

Private Eric J. Gustafson, son of Sandra M. and Peter B. Gustafson of 112 West Delaware Avenue, Pennington, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

Adrianne Vanden Heuvel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Vanden Heuvel of Duffield Place, won a varsity letter for her participation on the women's lacrosse team at Bucknell University, where she is a freshman. A graduate of Princeton High School, she was credited with one assist during the spring season in which Bucknell women's lacrosse set 16 new team and individual records while posting a 9-6 season.



Louise Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Matthews of 45 Montadale Circle, was named to the All-Ivy second team in women's lacross for her play with the Dartmouth varsity. A freshman who played attack, she had 12 goals and eight assists for Dartmouth this year, placing her fourth on the team in scoring.

She also played varsity field hockey for Dartmouth last fall.

WANT EXTRA INCOME? A temporary or part-time job may be the answer. Read the Help Wanted ads in this issue of TOWN TOPICS for a varied selection of opportunities open to you.

DRIVE CAREFULLY
SCHOOL WILL SOON BE OUT!

Now that school is about to close for the summer, children will be out in the streets and they won't always be careful of oncoming cars. It will be your responsibility to be extra careful and alert at all times. You certainly would not want to be the cause of bringing some child's summer vacation to a screeching halt.

OBSERVE THESE SAFETY RULES

1. Pay special attention to all traffic signs.
2. Look before you back out of a driveway.
3. Maintain your car the best you can mechanically.
4. Observe all speed limits.
5. Never drive when overtired or below-par.
6. Keep your hands on the wheel and your eyes on the road at all times.

NEW AT CARNEGIE

Five-story Building. Construction has begun on the largest office facility in the Carnegie Center on Route One — a five-story, 160,000-square-foot building to be known as 210 Carnegie Center.

It will be the first five-story structure in the Carnegie complex, and the first speculative office building in the Carnegie Center second phase. It is planned as the focal point for a complex, and will stand at the end of a long greenway vista, designed to be a pedestrian mall.

Stubbins Associates, the architects, have designed the building with corners and recesses, to provide an uninterrupted view for as many offices as possible. The greenway will have formal and informal sitting areas, ponds, athletic fields and a variety of plantings.

The building is scheduled for occupancy this December. Three other buildings, including the Princeton branch of the U.S. Post Office, are now under construction in the second phase of Carnegie Center. Other buildings are the 136,000-square-foot headquarters for United Jersey Bank and 211 Carnegie Center, a 50,000-square-foot office-research facility.

By the end of the year, Carnegie Center will comprise more than one million square feet of office space in addition to the Hyatt Regency.

INSURANCE REFORM

Chamber Topic. No-fault insurance reform is the subject of the luncheon talk to be given during the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held this Thursday from noon to 1:30 at Scanticon.

James J. Pappas

The speaker will be John Walsh, personal lines manager of the Hanover Insurance Companies. Mr. Walsh has been in the field of property and casualty insurance for the past 13 years.

Reservations may be made at 921-7676.

vided at the 10 a.m. service, which replaces the 9 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. service that is customary the rest of the year.

Weekdays, Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 5:30, preceded by Evening Prayer at 5:15. There will be no 9:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist on Wednesdays during the summer.

The Rev. A. Orley Swartzentruber is rector.

Members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, at Bayard Lane, attended the annual meeting of Christian Scientists in Boston this week. Church officers spoke of the critical need for "works over words" in the closing years of the 20th century.

The gathering focused on what Christian Scientists term their "pastor," the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by the church's founder, Mary Baker Eddy. The role of this textbook in "unlocking Bible treasures;; in somewhat the same manner as a sermon, was described. As a church of laymen, with no clergy, Christian Scientists place special emphasis on the "pastoral" role of the Scriptural Word which, they feel, offers daily guidance, comfort and healing.

The Princeton Alliance Church, which is presently meeting at Princeton High School, will move to the Westminster Choir College Chapel for its 11 a.m. worship service, effective this Sunday.

Christian education will continue to meet at Princeton High School at 9:30. For additional information call the church office at 452-7756. The pastor is Michael P. Valentine.

Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, will start its summer schedule Sunday, June 10. Instead of services at 8, 9:15 and 11 Sunday morning, there will be a service of Holy Eucharist at 8 a.m. and again at 10 a.m.

The Separated & Divorced Catholics Support Group will meet on Monday, June 11, at 8 in St. Paul's School, Nassau Street. Peter Dobush, vice president, Princeton Bank, will speak on financial concerns and planning.

All interested persons are invited. For further information call Pat Cleaves, 921-6863, evenings, or Barbara Keller, 780-1297, daytime.

A FINE GEORGIAN MANOR HOME

2 Elm Road, Princeton

We are pleased to present for your personal consideration one of Princeton's fienst Georgian Manor Homes situated on expansive, beautifully maintained grounds within walking distance of the Town and University.

Built of the finest materials, this elegant home features a spacious sunken living room with double French doors, a dramatic curved staircase, a library with hand-rubbed cherry cabinets and bookcases, and a graciously proportioned formal dining room with hand-carved marble fireplace from France. The floor plan is classic Georgian with spacious rooms off a central foyer, worthy of a statesman's penchant for formal entertaining.

The property includes a lovely circular swimming pool and a guest or pool house in the same Georgian style as the main house.

There are 3.50 beautifully landscaped acres with terraces and formal gardens, brick garden walls and iron gates. A 1.35 acre sub-divided building lot lies to the right of the main house.

All in all, a beautifully maintained, tastefully decorated estate in an incomparable Princeton location.

SURPRISE, SURPRISE!

That's what you'll have when you walk into this seemingly modest split-level. Four bedrooms, 2 tiled baths, a recreation room - all make for easy family living - but the really exciting feature is the stunning new Great Room added at the rear. Cathedral ceilinged, with Mexican tiled floor and second fireplace, it opens to a state of the arts gourmet kitchen and adjacent wet bar area - and then to a formal "parlor" or dining room. A most flexible plan to fit your needs or living style!

All set high on a hillside "in the Village" of Lawrenceville on a large deep lot - but within a block of New York and local buses. Absolutely heaven for a mother who's tired of car-pooling everywhere! $155,000 and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.

Reduced For A Fast Sale! Now $149,500

PRIME HAMILTON LOCATION

A lovely colonial featuring 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, living room, formal dining room, eat-in kitchen and adjacent family room with full width brick fireplace. Many nice extras include two fully finished basement rooms, oversize 2 car garage, central air conditioning and a partially wooded yard. Offered at $124,900

CHARMING OLD/NEW FARMHOUSE

On Cherry Valley Road, just ten minutes to Palmer Square! The original section dates back to pre-Revolutionary times, 1765, the restoration and new addition to 1977. Brick floored entry hall and modernized country kitchen with corner fireplace, lovely new living room and master bedroom, formal dining room, library, all with fireplaces! Three other bedrooms, 2 family baths. Beamed ceilings, wide floor boards - and a walled brick terrace opening to both living room and kitchen.

Two serenely private acres, with eminently rentable 2 bedroom apartment above a 4 car garage, and other outbuildings. This is just the property you have been looking for - and so rarely find - at only $365,000 in a stunning residence on six plus wooded acres. Formal entry court with miniature fruit and espaliered trees, imposing 2 story stucco home in a neo-classic design. It offers lovely, light soaring open spaces that make up the living, dining and kitchen. Air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000

A TOUCH OF CLASS

BLENDED WITH TASTE

to make a happy mixture of contemporary and traditional in Princeton's lovely Edgerstoune! Wonderful new glass enclosed, Jerry Ford designed kitchen – breakfast room and deck overlooking private grounds made even more so by "The Mall." Modernized living room, large dining room, both with track lighting, opening to cozy sitting room. Master suite with dressing room-study, and state of the arts bath, 3 other bedrooms and 2½ baths, plus an oversized recreation room for all kinds of activities. Everywhere there is imaginative use of built-ins, fabulous closets and storage areas. In fact, too much to describe in a small ad - so come see for yourself! Priced at $279,500

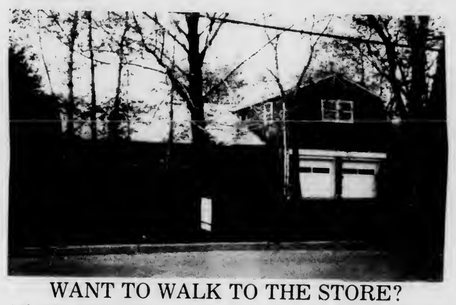
HAVE IT YOUR WAY...

There's a wonderful Henderson house in every area of Princeton and its environs. In every price range, in every style. Call one of our offices today to see these ... and more!

LIKE TO LOOK AT THE RIVER?

HIGH OVER THE DELAWARE AND BUILT TO LAST - an executive home built the way all houses should be - brick and clapboard, plaster walls, cedar shake roofing, winding blacktop driveway. Foyer wainscoting, doors solid chestnut wood, with travertine marble flooring. Bluestone walkways. ADT alarm. Library. 2.7 acres with old shade and flowering dogwoods. A superior home with 4/5 bedrooms, 4½ baths, 4 car heated garage. Hopewell Schools. Asking: $295,000



WHO WOULDN'T WANT HAPPY KIDS?

GIVE THEM A BARN AND A LITTLE LAND... This lovely new listing near Griggstown will please them and Mom, too. It has a wonderful kitchen with family room and large fireplace, super laundry facilities, big basement and lots of storage. It's the convenience of a new colonial with all the charm of an old one! Dad will like the price. Only $250,000 ... for the house, barn, 3 plus acres and then some!

WANT A WONDERFUL FARM?

Secluded 45 acre farm in West Amwell. Mostly wooded - some open. Large country kitchen/family room with fireplace and open beamed ceiling. Full bath on 1st. 3 bedrooms, master bedroom with dressing room and 2 full baths on 2nd. Excellent condition. In-ground pool. Small barn with loft & stall. Garage. Utility buildings. $198,000

WANT TO WALK TO THE STORE?

And more...want a really convenient location in the heart of Princeton Township...on a wide street, not far from the shopping center and the community park? Then this super four bedroom, two bath house with a 31' living/dining expanse is perfect for you...lots of room to grow, too. Call Gilda Aronovic for a peek at this spacious house. Asking: $174,500

GO WEST, YOUNG FAMILY!

TO THE WESTERN SECTION OF PRINCETON, THAT IS! Here's a roomy house with a contemporary flair...in need of redecoration, of course, but what isn't? There's a living room with fireplace, kitchen, family room, five bedrooms, two baths and a garage. All possible for renovation, but the location warrants it. Asking: $175,000

LIKE TO LIVE ON GOLDEN POND?

HERE'S A WONDERFUL WATER'S EDGE RESALE WITH A SPECTACULAR VIEW OF THE WOODS AND POND. Inside it's peacefully decorated in muted tones, has large rooms with wonderful windows, and there's even a family room with fireplace! A master suite with light and airy bath, two large closets, and a second bedroom. Wonderful kitchen off the patio and formal dining room. More like a house than a townhouse. Call Patty Davis at 921-9300 for the details.

All for an asking price of: $275,000

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE ELM RIDGE PARK!

And this brand new brick and cedar French Colonial. Cathedral entrance hall. In addition to the usual formal rooms there is a den, 4 bedrooms, 28' master with Jacuzzi, unfinished future bedroom. Family room features French doors to patio, wet bar and fireplace. Crown moldings throughout. Only $275,000

HOW ABOUT A PRINCETON HOUSE?

An opportunity to expand and grow ... add a wing ... or two! Great location ... a quiet street ... a double lot! Call Irene Ostema for the details. $175,500

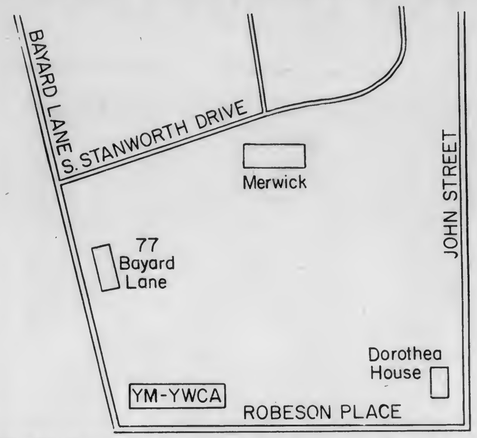
CENTRAL PARK SOUTH COMES TO PRINCETON!

Sophisticated living is available at MARKHAM ONE right on Princeton's very own Nassau Street! A two-bedroom, two bath luxurious apartment...in an elevator building...with a terrace...across from a park! Wonderful, care-free, easy...and affordable! Underground parking, too! $178,500. Please call a Henderson agent for the details!

LIKE TO REST ON YOUR LAURELS?

THIS SPLENDID PRINCETON HOUSE WITH A WONDERFUL WING WOULD LET YOU DO JUST THAT. Exciting blend of architecture with a contemporary addition to enhance the enjoyment of living with eight rooms, three full baths - lots of space - angles - built-ins: Two stories with an innovative master suite and fabulous kitchen wing! Everything else you would expect, of course. Only $260,000

ANY TRANSFEREES IN TOWN?



If so, this beautiful colonial in Princeton Woods in nearby South Brunswick could be just what you're looking for! Only 5 years old with 4 bedrooms, and 2½ baths, it backs up to Green Acres for lots of privacy. A large family room with fireplace, eat-in kitchen and finished playroom in the basement enhances family living. Better than new bonuses like central air, built-in bookcases, dark-stained floors, heatalator, added insulation, two-car garage and then some. $149,500

Princeton Physician, Having Spurred Merwick Revival, Now Hopes to Create "Wellness" Campus with YM-YWCA

KEEP WELL, RIGHT HERE: A "well-ness campus" incorporating several institutions and a lot of nice fields, is the dream for the future of the YM-YWCA and a Princeton physician. The Medical Center's "Merwick," (top) provides rehabilitation, skilled nursing and custodial nursing care; the YWCA provides extensive self-help rehabilitation; the Family Service Agency in Dorothea House offers social services. And the YW is negotiating for purchase of the house at 77 Bayard Lane which could become part of the "campus." The land around "Merwick," beyond the Y's playing fields, belongs to the Medical Center. (Carlson Graphics)

A spacious "well-ness" campus, within the sheltering arms of the Medical Center's "Merwick," the YM-YWCA building and the Family Service Agency in Dorothea House, is the hope of Princeton physician Benjamin Wright and the YWCA.

Not long ago, Dr. Wright and Pam Mount of the YWCA's Alliance for the Disabled, talked enthusiastically about their hopes in a conversation actually related to the recent revival of Merwick.

For those who didn't realize Merwick needed reviving, it did. And Dennis Doody, president of The Medical Center at Princeton, says firmly: "All the credit goes to Ben Wright."

Originally a nursing home, Merwick now has three parts and 93 beds: it is a 17-bed licensed rehabilitation hospital, a 76-bed skilled nursing facility and a custodial nursing home for the elderly.

In addition, it provides services — on contract — for the North Princeton Development Center at Skillman, Meadow Lakes and its population of older men and women and most of the public schools (through Mercer County).

The special rehabilitation unit offers physical and occupational therapy, psychological consultation, speech and hearing therapy, social services and the services of a doctor known as a physiatrist — a physician who specializes in rehabilitation.

In its "skilled nursing facility," Merwick offers extended care to patients who have been in the hospital but who need a longer period of care, and perhaps therapy.

These patients come in all ages and sizes. Young ones may have been in severe accidents, perhaps involving amputations. Older ones may have had hips replaced or have suffered a stroke.

For several years, Merwick had been operating under a deficit. Last year's was $340,000 and a deficit for 1984 of $500,000 seemed likely. This bleak picture was unveiled by Mr. Doody on April 6 to a meeting of physicians in the Medical Center's department of medicine.

The possibility of staff reduction seemed very real.

"Unless the doctors provided the business, Merwick was going to die," is Dr. Wright's flat statement. "It was hard to get a patient in, unless there was absolute assurance that the insurance carrier was going to pay everything.

"Merwick's administration was demanding $3,000, $5,000 payment in advance. Well, this was demeaning — sometimes impossible."

A viability study of Merwick, designed to explore the financial problem, was made by Medical Center vice-president Ben Acardi, who is manager of Merwick, and Joseph Bonnano, executive vice-president of the Center, but according to Dr. Wright, members of the medical staff were not involved.

"After Doody made his announcement about the possible deficit, we began addressing the issues," Dr. Wright continues.

"Jean Haas, in the Merwick office, had already begun to make Merwick more user-friendly, instead of a ring of fire you had to get through, and the payment-in-advance policy had been turned around, but doctors didn't realize this.

"Once they did, the beds began to fill up in two weeks."

Dr. Wright's role — and he, in turn, gives credit to Dr. David Rose, chair of a Quality Assurance Committee at the hospital — was apparently that of salesman. He talked to other doctors, explained to them what Merwick had to offer, and did, in short, a public relations job.

Mr. Doody suspects that many new doctors in town might not have been aware of Merwick and what it had to offer.

The turn-around was so dramatic that between the time Dr. Wright called a reporter to warn that Merwick was in a bad way and there was a story there — and a second phone call had been made to set up an appointment to talk — the situation had changed 180 degrees.

But Merwick's problems are not solely a matter of communication. As Mr. Acardi and Mr. Doody explain, the Federal government and its Medicare funding policies are really the problem and that is a problem which still remains.

"We've been talking for years with the Y about a Wellness campus," Dr. Wright

Preparations Going Smoothly For June Opera Festival Debut

It is less than ten days before the June Opera Festival makes its debut on the central New Jersey/East coast cultural scene.

Although a venture of this magnitude might be expected to be encountering first-year jitters and last minute problems, all is going astonishingly well as preparations proceed. The Festival features six performances of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro and three ancillary concerts at the Kirby Arts Center on the Lawrenceville School campus between June 15 and 30.

That all is proceeding smoothly is due to the thoughtful, practised collaboration and musicianship of the two founders, Michael Pratt and Peter Westergaard, and to a series of fortuitous happenstances. If the weather cooperates, as all else has, the Festival will indeed be blessed.

Mr. Pratt and Mr. Westergaard, music director and artistic director, respectively, are the duo that brought Princeton Opera Theatre to Alexander Hall. Their remarkable collaboration began in 1977 when Mr. Westergaard, then as now chairman of the Princeton University Music Department, hired Mr. Pratt for the post of conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra.

Before that time there had been Princeton opera-theatre — Abduction from the Seraglio and Rape of Lucretia are two examples — in Theatre Intime's Murray-Dodge. Mr. Westergaard conducted, and an outside director directed. It was Mr. Westergaard's idea to move the venture to Alexander Hall and to do The Magic Flute using the Baroque hall itself as set and backdrop.

Thus in the spring of 1978, with Mr. Pratt conducting and Mr. Westergaard directing, the first of a series of first-class, full-fledged operas was performed before an enthusiastic audience. Subsequent productions have included Don Giovanni, Der Freischutz, the original version of Fidelio, later performed at Alice Tully Hall in New York City, and Cosi Fan Tutte, last fall. The Marriage of Figaro was part of this list, although it was performed in 1979 when Mr. Westergaard was on sabbatical.

But the two men are quick to point out that the June Opera Festival is not an extension of the Princeton Opera Theatre. In place of a largely undergraduate orchestra and cast, this will be a fully professional undertaking with all the advantages of being staged in fully equipped theatre as opposed to a lecture and concert hall.

English Model. "Princeton and Lawrenceville will have a festival in their own backyards with all the potential of the festivals that take place in Spoleto and Santa Fe," Mr. Pratt notes. "Any resemblance to Glyndebourne is purely intentional." He refers to the festival outside London to which opera lovers in black tie and tails travel by train bearing picnic baskets. The performances at Glyndebourne are known for the high quality of the music and for the originality of the sets and the costumes.

Elegant picnics combined with excellent music-making have been in the forefront of their thinking ever since Mr. Pratt and Mrs. Westergaard first conceived of a festival four years ago. When Mr. Pratt went to the Lawrenceville School to borrow some instruments from Jack Ellis, head of the Lawrenceville Music Department, and was shown around the Kirby Arts Center, he returned elated.

"...we believe opera should be an understandable experience."

Here in their own backyard was a gem of a theatre, just the right size, the same number of seats — 890 — as the Burgtheater in Vienna in which Figaro was first performed in 1786. Kirby has a spacious backstage, wings as large as the main stage, professional scene-change flies and lighting board, and ample dressing rooms. All around it are beautiful grounds, similar to a lovely estate and ideal for those elegant picnics.

Air Conditioned. The one thing the theatre lacked was air conditioning, an essential element in a climate known for the heat and humidity of June. Lawrenceville School agreed to share the cost of air conditioning the facility with the June Opera Festival, and the first of the fortuitous happenstances took place.

The next and perhaps most important, for without it the venture could not be launched, was the grant from Merrill Lynch for $105,000. Not only was this a large contribution to a first-year venture that may cost $235,000 when all is done, but to the two Festival founders it bespoke a confidence in their abilities and what they were attempting.

The grant is also unusual in that it was intended to be the first of several; Merrill Lynch, like Mr. Pratt and Mr. Westergaard, is bullish on the June Opera Festival and expects it to be an annual affair that will be around for a while.

Another happy circumstance was the signing on of the New Jersey Symphony as the Festival orchestra. As Mr. Pratt notes, "a group of instrumental players does not an orchestra make," and here was an ensemble already seasoned and glad to add to its performance schedule.

As important as these elements were in turning a gleam of an idea into reality, the thing that the two men speak most rapturously about is the cast. "We have a marvelous cast of terrific young pros who have a natural aptitude for working with each other," Mr. Westergaard says. "They are creating the kind of ensemble company that a director dreams about."

"We are convinced that everyone will be the stars of tomorrow," Mr. Pratt adds. "The Festival will launch their careers, and once they are singing at the Met on a regular basis, we hope they will enjoy coming back. Similarly, the June Opera Festival audience will be able to say, 'I saw her do her first Cherubino and now she's singing it all over Europe.' "

> "We have a marvelous cast of terrific young pros who have a natural aptitude for working with each other."

Ensemble Work. It also helps, Mr. Westergaard points out, that in Figaro there are no supporting roles, no cardboard characters. Everyone, he says, is proud to be doing the role for which he or she has been cast. "There are golden talents in this cast," Mr. Pratt adds.

The two men were also fortunate in obtaining a crew of talented designers who, much like the singers, are at the beginning of their careers — graduates of New York University and Yale Drama School who have a particular interest in opera.

"For the first time in an opera production, I've had nothing to do with the building of sets," Mr. Westergaard says. The sets were finished and ready to go up three weeks before opening night — more testimony to the smoothness of preparations.

Mr. Pratt and Mr. Westergaard call the The Marriage of Figaro the "centerpiece" of the kind of repertory the Festival will continue to do — "opera on a human scale," as they put it. There are plenty of places in the world, they say, where opera on a grand scale is done but not enough places where young singers are given plenty of time to rehearse and a house in which they don't have to force their voices to fill.

The cast, selected from 200 who auditioned, come from New York, Philadelphia and New Jersey. Three are graduates of Westminster Choir College; several, including Mr. Pratt's wife, Martha Elliott, have sung in Princeton Opera Theatre productions. They will have had five weeks of rehearsal, including four on the Kirby stage itself, by opening night, Friday, June 15.

Rich in Humanity. The story of Figaro is, in Mr. Pratt's view, "incredibly complicated but so rich in humanity and personal interaction." Full of astonishing events, it is an opera of intrigue, deceptions and counter-deceptions. "Every member of the audience will see himself or herself on the stage, and his next-door neighbor as well," Mr. Pratt says. "It is full of silly things set to the most beautiful music ever written."

The performance will be in English, "because we believe opera should be an understandable experience," Mr. Westergaard asserts. "People shouldn't come to opera as to a shrine, or just to listen to the pretty music. We hope people will find Figaro as deeply amusing as we do, and we hope to bring the incredible texture out in the open."

A perfectionist who quietly seeks "not to invent new things but to make things as clear as possible," Mr. Westergaard did the translations for all the Princeton Opera Theatre production — he was not satisfied with existing texts. But turning 18th century Italian into contemporary English and at the same time trying to retain some rhyme and the original, elegant flavor is, he says, a thankless task and this may be his swan song.

> "We are convinced that everyone will be the stars of tomorrow."

Mr. Westergaard, a professor who has taught composition and theory at Princeton University for more than 15 years, very much enjoys composing. As a composer, instead of trying to make words fit Mozart's music, he attempts to craft music that fits Shakespeare's words. A 20-minute segment from his new opera The Tempest will have its premiere performance at one of the three concerts designed around the Figaro performances.

Use of Talents. The concerts were planned with one idea: how to make the most of the extraordinary talents assembled for Figaro, Mr. Pratt says. Thus, the evening of romantic vocal music will give four people who sing Mozart ensemble "to perfection" in Figaro a chance to show off their abilities in Schumann and Brahms lieder and the two "first-rate" rehearsal pianists get a chance to perform as their accompanists. That concert is on Wednesday, June 20, at 8 p.m.

Next is an evening of orchestral music, "concert treasures inspired by opera," and what Mr. Pratt calls "a celebration of our alignment with the New Jersey Symphony." Anne Ackley, well-known to Princeton audiences, and David DuPont from the Cosi Fan Tutte cast, will be heard that night, Saturday, June 23, also at 8.

The final concert, Friday, June 29, an evening of Shakespeare, presents five composers from two centuries in Shakespearean themes. Mr. Westergaard's Tempest scene will be performed this night. Mr. Pratt will conduct members of the N.J. Symphony Orchestra and festival singers, starting at 8.

Starting times for the six performances of Figaro are at 5, 6, 7:30 and 8, depending on the night and whether picnicking is encouraged before or during a long 90-minute intermission. The founders acknowledge that this might result in some confusion, but for the first year they wanted to try out a number of options to test audience reaction.

The choice of picnic menus that may be ordered four days in advance are high cuisine and range in cost from $12.50 to $20, but homemade picnics are also in order. Curtain time on Father's Day, June 17, for instance, is set for 6 p.m. with a long supper intermission, intended as a treat for Dad that will not get him home too late before he has to go off to work the next day. The following Saturday, the curtain is even earlier, 5 p.m., to encourage whole families to take advantage of an early night of rollicking opera.

Senior citizens, students and disabled citizens are invited to a full dress rehearsal, Thursday, June 13, free of charge, but reservations must be made in advance, by calling Marsha Wood at 683-1738. This courtesy has been made available, too, by Merrill Lynch.

Although technically Mr. Pratt is in charge of everything that is heard and Mr. Westergaard of everything that is seen, in reality both have given a great deal of thought and planning to every detail of how the audience will perceive the June Opera Festival. Both have strong feelings about music and how it should be performed, and each has a high regard each has for the other.

"I think the world of this guy," Mr. Westergaard, 53, says of his colleague, who is 35. "I respect his judgement. He is one of the best Mozart conductors I've ever heard, and I have no qualms about his doing my Tempest, because I know he will do it right. He is a person who really can do as a conductor all the things I wish I could do."

Similarly, Mr. Pratt says of his mentor: "He is one of the most unique individuals I have ever met and a marvelous composer. His Tempest, when it is finished, will be a major contribution to the repertory. I couldn't begin to tell you all the things I've learned from Peter."

The collaboration, Mr. Pratt says, has been "deeply satisfying. We both share the same musical concerns, and even the disagreements are valuable because of the strength of the communication between us."

Even the chairman of the 10-member June Opera Festival board, Jack Ellis, is happy. "I think Peter and Michael are terrific," he says, "and I can't think of a group that is as level-headed as this one is. They are not in any way artsy and difficult."

So if it is true about June, — "then if ever come perfect days" — and all else goes as well as it has thus far, Princeton music and opera lovers have a treat in store. They may wonder why it hasn't been done before.

The box office number for the opera festival is (609) 683-1759.

Engagements and Weddings

ENGAGEMENTS

Thomas-Hastings. Elizabeth R. Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Hayward H. Chappell of Princeton and Mr. Stephen L. Thomas of Washington, D.C., to John D. Hastings, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hastings of Skowhegan, Maine.

Miss Thomas graduated from Princeton Day School and attended Nasson College in Springvale, Maine. Mr. Hastings attended Bradford College in Bradford, Mass.

After an August wedding, the couple will live in Portland, Maine.

Ijams-Sargent. Allison D. Ijams, daughter of Mrs. Edward M. Crane Jr. of Rosedale Road and Fishers Island, N.Y., and Porter Ijams of Locust Valley, N.Y., to Thomas A. Sargent, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Sargent of Wellesley, Mass.

Miss Ijams graduated from Princeton Day School and from Connecticut College. She is employed by the Tab Newspaper in Boston. Mr. Sargent, a graduate of Noble and Greenough School in Massachusetts and Connecticut College, works for Paine Webber in Boston.

A September wedding is planned in Princeton.

WEDDINGS

Burchfield-McLane. Cornelia G. McLane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. McLane of Locust Valley, L.I., to William W. Burchfield, son of Dr. and Mrs. William Burchfield of Hopewell; June 2 at St. John's of Lattingtown Church in Locust Valley.

The bride is a graduate of Miss Porter's School and Trinity College in Hartford. She was presented at the Debutante Cotillion and Christmas Ball in New York City in 1975 and was a member of the Junior Assembly. She is a sales promotion associate with Doubleday & Co. in New York.

Mrs. William W. Burchfield

Mr. Burchfield, who graduated from The Lawrenceville School and Middlebury College, is a vice president of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corporation in New York in the institutional equity division.

Elizabeth R. Thomas

Allison D. Ijams

McNamara-Fityere. Kim M. Fityere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Fityere, Washington Crossing Road, Pennington, to John J. McNamara, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McNamara of Oceanport; May 26 at St. James Church, Pennington, the Rev. James McConnell officiating.

The bride, a graduate of Hopewell Valley High School and Mercer County Vocational School for Cosmetology, is employed by New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Co. The groom, who is currently attending Brookdale Community College, is employed by Little Silver Auto Repair.

Following their honeymoon, the couple will live in Oceanport.

Kann-House. Karen Elliott House of Westcott Road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Elliott of Matador, Tex., to Peter R. Kann, also of Princeton, son of Mrs. Robert A. Kann of Princeton and the late Mr. Kann; June 2 at the home of the bridegroom, Judge Leslie Taylor of the Travis County Court-at-Law in Austin, Tex. officiating.

The bride, who will retain her name, is the foreign editor of The Wall Street Journal and recently won a Pulitzer Prize for international reporting. The prize was for articles she wrote while serving as the Journal's diplomatic correspondent, based on interviews with King Hussein of Jordan. She is an alumna of the University of Texas at Austin, and her previous marriage ended in divorce.

Mr. Kann, a widower, is the associate publisher of The Wall Street Journal. He won a Pulitzer Prize for international reporting in 1972 for his coverage of the 1971 India-Pakistan War as the Journal's Asian correspondent. He subsequently became the editor and publisher of the Asian Wall Street Journal.

Brown-Tufano. Sharon Tufano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tufano of Skillman, to Craig Brown, son of Mrs. Marion Brown of Somerville; May 26 in St. Paul Church, the Rev. John Banko officiating.

The couple are graduates of Montgomery High School. Mrs. Brown is employed by Firestone Library at Princeton University and her husband by Mapes and Ross, an advertising research firm. Following a honeymoon in the Bahamas, they are living in Plainsboro.

IT'S NEW To Us

LOVE COOKIES?
So Does Carol Whiteside.

Why is a talented former social worker rolling balls of cookie dough all day long? Because Carol Whiteside, known as The Cookie Lady, happens to adore chocolate chip coookies herself and has built a business which is clearly on the road to success. Anyone who has sampled one of her delicious "chippernuts" will attest to its superior flavor in the world of cookiedom and get more for their money to boot!

"There is a lot of competition out there, but mine are better — the finest in New Jersey" says the irrepressible Mrs. Whitehouse. Her small kitchen, in her home in the Village in Lawrenceville, is headquarters for her enterprise, which has successfully expanded into a mail order business in addition to the orders she takes for several restaurants and shops in the area. The Cookie Lady will mail her individually wrapped chocolate delights anywhere in the country for $12, and she will deliver the cookies, at $7 a dozen, to homes or businesses.

The Cookie Lady began her venture when she was housebound with two babies who are only a year apart in age. Now six and five, Brett and Alissa, enjoy helping their mother who never seems to stop rolling her dough into large balls which she then freezes before cooking to insure freshness.

A self-taught dessert caterer, Mrs. Whitehouse, who still can be persuaded to make a few special desserts for parties, began to focus on cookies a few years ago. Her dream of owning a store in the area will soon be realized. Once she finds the appropriate space to bake and market her cookies she would like to make ice cream as well.

When time allows, the Cookie Lady will make rugelach to order, a confection which requires time-consuming rolling by hand. The pastries are filled with cinnamon, nuts and raisins, or chocolate and cost $8 a pound.

"I grew up on rugelach and when I came to New Jersey I couldn't find them, so I decided to make them to sell too," says Mrs. Whitehouse. The special recipe will appear in Maida Heatter's next book of "great desserts."

THE COOKIE LADY: Carol Whiteside, and her daughter Alissa, prepare rugelach together in the family's kitchen, headquarters for a booming chocolate chip cookie business which includes mail order and delivery to this area.

Lots of Energy. Boundless energy characterizes the Cookie Lady's lifestyle. What she produces out of her small kitchen is truly amazing. Four basic recipes, "The Chocolate Ones," an original chocolate chip, and another with nuts, called "Chippernuts," a raisins and oats variation and the "Cocodots," named by her daughter, are the mainstays of the business.

Thirty-six pounds of butter, 15 dozen eggs, huge amounts of flour and oats leaves little room for "real food" according to Mrs. Whitehouse, who began by making small amounts of dough in her Kitchen Aid — which soon began to struggle from overuse. A 20-quart Hobart commercial mixer now stands next to the fridge, mixing enough dough to fill the $3000 commercial oven which is housed in the basement next to the laundry and opposite the children's playroom.

"I work all the time, so the kids are used to it, but some of my friends have stopped dropping by because I usually put anyone who walks through the door to work rolling cookie dough!" laughs Mrs. Whitehouse, whose humor sustains her through a hectic day and night work schedule which includes baking, sales, and marketing. Before she bought her oven she baked only nine cookies at a time almost round-the-clock, with the tireless help of her husband, Frank, a stockbroker who works in Princeton.

A masters in social work paved the way for the Cookie Lady's venture into capitalism, as she puts it, an enterprise which is definitely people oriented. She has a running correspondence with some of her mail-order customers.

Mrs. Whitehouse has cookie eating friends all over Princeton and other neighboring towns. She was christened "The Cookie Lady" while delivering an order for an office party. Part of her advertising campaign is to send cookies to people who might be interested in sampling her wares. Brooke Shields recently received a batch of cookies, loved them, and suggested a peanut butter variety.

The Cookie Lady takes her home-made product with her wherever she goes. Wrapped in threes, the large chunky cookies are boxed in bakery boxes, a thoughtful gift or house present. Orders for parties will be delivered to a customers' home.

Mrs. Whitehouse has a unique theory about cookie consumption. "It is sort of an incentive to exercise. A lot of people have started to get in shape so they can continue to eat the cookies, jog and have your cookie too," jokes Mrs. Whitehouse, who fights to keep her own weight down.

"People ask me if I get sick of the cookies. Not a chance! When we have a batch that doesn't come out perfectly we just walk up to Buxton's for some ice cream and make our own "chippernutwiches" says the Cookie Lady.

Princetonians in search of a good cookie, or lemon or plain pound cake by Mrs. Whitehouse, will find them at the Food Winkel, Toto's, Chuck's Cafe, Norman's, the Princeton University Store, and Plentiful Acres. The Cookie Lady's telephone number is 896-0182.

NATIONAL CALIBER racers and bicycle tourists all flock to Kopp's Cycles where the Kuhn family has been offering professional advice and service since 1952. Charles Kuhn sees more value for the dollar when purchasing a new bicycle this spring.

BIKING SINCE 1891

Kopp's Cycles. Tradition and professionalism earmark the way the Kuhn family does business. As owner of the bicycle shop which has been part of the Princeton scene since 1891, Fred Kuhn has been matching his customer's interest in biking, price range, and ability with shiny new Schwinns since 1952. Kopp's, which moved to Witherspoon Street two years ago from John Street, also features Peugeots, Miyatas, and even the famous bicycle made by world renowned racer Eddi Merek who won the Tour de France and several other important races (he will be visiting Kopp's later this summer).

Olympic class racers are familiar to Mr. Kuhn, whose vast experience in biking includes coaching several Olympic teams for the United States and a few other countries as well. The shop sponsors a racing team of national caliber riders along with Miyata. Its members, and other serious riders, seem to use Kopp's as their base. Mr. Kuhn was instrumental in organizing the Century Club of America, a cyclist racing club which has a quarterly publication.

"You can read all the books you want about biking, but experience takes time. You don't get it overnight," says Mr. Kuhn, who began racing himself as a youngster in New York City. His family moved to Milwaukee, where he continued racing and became familiar with the Schwinns, for whom he worked for 12 years. After buying bicycles for Macy's for more than five years, Mr. Kuhn and his wife bought Kopp's Cycle which has become an institution in Princeton.

The new location, with its cheerful storefront chock full of bicycles, is better for customers, although a bit more difficult, due to lack of space, for the Kuhn family, several of whom work with their father. It seems to be natural for youngsters in town to drop in at Kopp's after school. In fact, it is a hub of activity all day long. Those who have had the same bicycle for 30 years still come

At MCCC Show. Drawing and painting, ceramics and sculpture, photography and print-making are all part of the invitational group exhibit of the Trenton Artists Workshop Association (TAWA) on view through June 19 in the Library Gallery of Mercer County Community College, West Windsor.

Works by 35 members of the TAWA are on view. The organization also sponsors the annual Sixteen Artists summer series at the Trenton City Museum, and various classes, lectures and forums. The group also gives a one-year scholarship to a high-school graduate to attend MCCC to major in the visual arts.

FROM JAPAN

Contemporary Prints. Current works by seven Japanese artists, incorporating both traditional Japanese print-making techniques and innovative forms and methods, will be on view at The Print-making Council of New Jersey from Sunday, June 17 (reception, 2-5) through July 14.

The Council is in the Ralph T. Reeve Cultural Center, Station and River Roads, North Branch Station, five miles west of Somerville off Route 22. Koto music will provide the background at the reception and there will be Japanese-style refreshments.

The exhibit is from the Dillon portfolio. Collected by Mr. and Mrs. J.F. Dillon Jr., who lived in Japan at intervals during the last 14 years, the prints — all of small editions — include woodblock prints, serigraphs and lithographs.

Gallery hours are Tuesday-Friday from 10 to 4 and Saturdays from 1 to 4. Prints may be purchased at the opening or during gallery hours.

to Kopp's for repairs and advice. A growing number of clients have taken up touring seriously. Wistful children stop in regularly, mentally counting up just how long it will take to save for a new bike.

Ample Choice. The choices are ample at Kopp's. Charlie and Marie Kuhn can offer professional advice on the best bicycle for each customer, as can their father whom they regard as a purist in the field. "I have been working in the shop since I was six but he wouldn't let me touch a bike until I was around 16 and had finished all of my training courses," says Charlie, who has been riding without training wheels since he was two.

He knows the business well, and is encouraged this year by the reduction in prices because of the dollar's strength in Europe. "We can now, more than ever, offer a better range of bikes for everyone at a far better price," says Mr. Kuhn. The Kuhns' distributors and others believe Kopp's to be the most European pro shop in the U.S., offering the best service and a greater selection of spare components than anywhere else.

While one of the best buys this spring might be a Peugeot, the Schwinn company is becoming more aggressive in marketing the lighter-weight touring bicycles. Several Miyatas are well priced this month, ideal for long or short touring trips which many will take this summer. Several cross country riders, perhaps in quest of viewing the Olympic games, have come to Kopp's for a bicycle and other necessary gear for such a tour.

The full line of family bicycles by Schwinn includes the favored BMX, sturdy children's bikes which will last for more than one generation, and the well known Air Dyne exercycles for those who prefer to take their exercise at home.

The Peugeot P16, at $184.95, and the P18C at $238.95, are excellent buys at the moment. Tailoring to the needs of each customer, the Kuhns are masters when it comes to advising parents and children in what is best for them. Often expectations for a sleek new big 10- or 12-speed bike do not match the size of the younger cyclist and the Kuhns will not hesitate to tell him or her.

Features such as alloy wheels, quick release front and back wheel, Chromoloy frames and other components become important when considering long distance travel. Miyata's grand touring series, the 210 at $300 is a terrific buy.

A vast variety of clothing, racing gloves, shorts, shirts, helmets, travelling bags and other accessories complete the picture at Kopp's. Store hours are 10 to 6 Monday through Saturday, Thursday and Friday until 7:30.

LOGO COMPETITION FOR SENIOR OLYMPICS: Sixth-grade students at Stuart Country Day School designed a logo to be used on posters, programs and tee shirts for the Princeton Senior Olympics. The Olympics will be held at the Community Park pool complex on Monday, June 18 (rain date Tuesday), and will be open without charge to all Princeton residents 60 years of age or older. The students' project has been under the direction of Sister Maggie Kilduff. Standing, from left are Anne Marie Nestor, Sandy Baker, Ann Marie Hyer, Sister Maggie, Jennie Priory (who designed the winning logo), Julie Totaro and Elise Kanda; seated are Maggie Akers, Mary Lantin, Rebekah Sturges, Rebecca Dixon and Geren Raywood. Registration forms are available at the Recreation Department, the YWCA and the Senior Resource Center. For further information, call 921-9480.

News of Clubs and Organizations

The Princeton Branch, Pen Women, will meet Saturday, June 9, at 10 at the Mary Jacobs Library, Route 518, Rocky Hill. Fran Nimeck, graphic designer and calligrapher, will give a presentation entitled "Self-promotion for the Artist."

As director of her own design studio for 14 years, Ms. Nimeck has created book and jacket design and promotional materials for such companies as Doubleday, Random House, Crown and Warner Communications. Area women artists, writers, dramatists, lecturers, composers and craftsmen are invited. Networking is an important part of each meeting.

For information, call Lee S. Harr, 655-2908.

Princeton Seminars will present a workshop on "addictive relationship" Saturday, June 23, from 10 to 6 in Princeton. The workshop will be led by Ron Sultan, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist.

An addictive relationship is defined by Dr. Sultan as "one in which the pleasure-pain ratio approaches 10-90 and you can't seem to leave or improve it." Symptoms of relationship addiction are described as high anxiety attached to leaving, while staying in the relationship produces mostly pain and upset. Dr. Sultan, who has given this workshop many times, has taught numerous courses on undergraduate and graduate levels in the fields of psychology, counseling and group dynamics.

For further information, or to register, call Pat Murphy of Princeton Seminars at 924-2818, or send inquiries to Box 382, Princeton 08542.

La Leche League will meet Wednesday, June 13, at 9:30 a.m. at 10 Braeburn Drive.

"The Family and the Breastfed Baby" will be the topic for discussion. The meeting will focus on the needs of the new baby and of the newly expanded family, and how to bring the two together. Mothers, babies, and mothers-to-be are welcome. For more information call 921-2023.

The Princeton Adult School has elected officers and new board members for 1984-85. Joining the board for three year terms are Nancy Beck, Miriam T. Friend, Alicia M. Hercz, Roger V. Mosely, Charles W. Mueller and Tamar M. Rabb.

The newly elected officers are Jean Mahoney, president; Anne Cobb, executive vice president; Anne Shepherd, vice president for curriculum; Anne Frazier, treasurer; and John Winterbottom, nominating chairman. Committee chairs for the coming year are, finance, Anne Cobb; publicity, Chris Tarr; booklet editor, Claire Jacobus; arts and recreation courses, Hannah Kahn; lecture courses, Anne Shepherd; community service and vocational courses, James Deneen; languages, Rick Honig; textbooks and archives, Eric Greenfeldt.

The Princeton Chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club will meet Monday, June 11, for dinner at the Nassau Inn.

The topic will be "Developing Your Environment from Personal Growth Through Career Enhancement," and the speakers will include Laura Adams, financial consultant; Debra Douglas, immediate past president of the Princeton BPW and an executive with the Equitable Life Assurance Society; and Elizabeth Myers-Brower, communications consultant.

The meeting will begin with a cash bar at 5:30, dinner at 6:30 and the program at 7:30. The cost is $10 for members and $12 for guests. Checks should be made payable to Princeton BPW and mailed to Grace Polhemus, 303 Harrison Street, by June 7.

Familyborn, a center for birth and women's health in North Brunswick, will sponsor a discussion on "Working Parents" Tuesday, June 19, at 7:30 at the Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill. Eric Johnson, a family therapist and Familyborn father-to-be, will be the main speaker.

For reservations, call (201) 821-6200.

Princeton Creative Center, Inc., has elected officers and members of the board of trustees. New board members are Elizabeth S. Hill, chairman, Robert Geer, Janet Friedman, Katherine Meeker, and Janet Penfield.

Officers are Ms. Hill, president; Russell G. Hill, vice president, curriculum; Brad Hill, vice president, special projects; Anne Twele, administrative secretary; Irene McCabe, assistant secretary; and Veronica Muller, treasurer.

Beginning September 26, the Center will again offer writing workshops conducted by Ms. Hill and Ms. Muller. There will be a new course in nature study and nature photography led by photographer-naturalist Phil Moylan, whose work has appeared in Audubon Magazine. Two field trips will be held during the session.

Princeton Creative Center courses will be held at Morven. For further information, call 924-3669.

The Chapin School Family Reunion Picnic will be held at the school Saturday, June 9, from 4 to 8. All former and current students and teachers, their families and friends are invited. There is no charge for the buffet supper, but reservations are requested. For information call Stefan Goff, 924-2449.

Moorestown Friends Upsets PHS Girls' Lacrosse Team Ending Little Tiger Hopes of Winning State Tournament

It's all over.

Princeton High School's drive toward a girls state lacrosse championship was halted again this year -- unexpectedly but permanently -- when the Little Tigers were upset, 9-7, Friday in the NJSIAA quarterfinal round by visiting Moorestown Friends.

Not that the Little Tigers didn't battle heroically to win their twelfth consecutive game. Three times Princeton High fought back to gain a tie but it was never able to gain the lead over a determined Moorestown, which had been eliminated the past three years by PHS in the state tournament.

None of that eased the pain, however. This second defeat in 14 games hurt. The Riverside School field, the site of the game, was awash with Little Tiger tears.

Perhaps what will be remembered most by some was not that PHS lost but the vignette of a cluster of crying seniors huddled around coach Joyce Jones for the longest time as Jones, with tears in her own eyes, tried to console and comfort them.

"I'LL NEVER PLAY LACROSSE AGAIN:" That's what one distraught Princeton High player told coach Joyce Jones Friday, after PHS had been upset in the state lacrosse tournament competition by Moorestown Friends. Three seniors caught in the agony of defeat by cameraman W.L. Bill Allen Jr. are from left Alison Fraker, Pam Jennings and Carol O'Donoghue.

Had PHS won, it would have played the winner of the Lenape-Collingswood game in the semis. Jones had sent her assistant to scout the game. "That's where my expectations were today," she said.

What went wrong? "They played well; they had a couple of key players," replied Jones.

Two for the Quakers stood out. Moorestown's high scorer for the season, Karlyn Wesley, scored the opening goal two minutes and 22 seconds into the game and her second goal at the 11:27 mark gave the visitors a 2-0 lead. She went on to score twice more in the second period to lead all scorers in the game.

Goalie a Standout. Then there was Moorestown's freshman goalie Gayle Stern who played THE game of her young career. Standing just a shade over five feet tall, Stern was a giant in the net, turning aside 25 shots. She was under constant pressure by the Little Tigers, particularly after Moorestown scored its initial goal, but the pressing Blue and White team was not able to break through until 20:33 in the first half on a shot by Erika Gabrielsen.

In the closing minute of the first half, Stern made four consecutive saves but Princeton gained a 2-2 tie at intermisssion when a shot by Carol O'Donaghue with 50 seconds left found the net.

Moorestown opened the scoring in the second half at 2:25 on a goal by Amy Weeks. Sue Lofgren's score on an assist from Booie Lockwood tied it.

Joan Hohweiler's score off a free position shot gave the Quakers the lead again but five minutes later Alison Fraker tied it at 4 at the 12:02 mark when she blasted in the rebound of a Gabrielsen shot during a melee in front of the net.

Another goal by Hohweiler and Wesley's third at 17:00 gave Moorstown a 6-4 bulge. When Wesley scored after Moorestown had passed the ball crisply downfield, Jones held her head on the sidelines as she saw the game slipping away.

Wesley scored her fourth goal two minutes later to give the visitors a three-goal lead but an unassisted goal by Pam Jennings at 19:58 and O'Donoghue's second just eight seconds later cut the Moorestown lead to 7-6.

Moorestown, gunning for its seventeenth win in 20 games, would not be denied. With the outcome still on the line, Karen Stevenson scored at the 21:10 mark and Beth Weiner added Moorestown's final goal with two minutes to play. Fraker's second goal with 30 seconds left made it a 9-7 final.

Something Missing. We never got into the game. We never played like Tigers," said a disconsolate Jones after the game.

"Something was missing today. I wish I could define that something.

"Psychologically, I thought we were ready. We wanted to win. But the key to tournament games is taking that mental desire and transforming it into physical performance. It's not easy all the time.

"One thing I know that was

PHS Boys' Tennis Team Wins First Ever All-Groups State Title; Will Meet Montclair-Kimberly for Overall Crown This Thursday

The story of the Princeton High School tennis team has become more than just one of reporting wins and losses. The season has turned into one of epic achievement, one by which all previous seasons will be measured and perhaps many more in the future.

In one glorious 24-hour period, the Little Tigers swept all three singles matches to defeat Group 4 Champion Westfield and then came back the following day to defeat Holmdel — again capturing all three singles — to win their first ever public school All Groups State Championship.

Now only one school stands in the way of an unparalled Gland Slam. This Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Princeton University courts, PHS will clash with Montclair-Kimberly, the parochial school state champions, for the overall state crown. PHS is currently 26-2.

Ellis the Key. Years from now freshman Bruce Ellis may look back and say May 30-31, 1984, was the Camelot of his tennis career. Certainly, it was his one shining moment.

No one player can be singled out when a team wins a match 3-2. Unquestionably, the incomparable Leschly brothers, Jacob and Mark, played a major role in both wins. They lit up the court with their incandescent play.

But just as unquestionably, it was the diminutive, indomitable Ellis who sealed each Little Tiger win and brought the Blue and White its first state title.

In each match, Ellis was pitted against a senior opponent. Each went to three sets. The third and decisive set in the Westfield match went to a tie-breaker. "Nailbiting," is the way PHS coach Joe Diefenbach described it.

In both, Ellis finally prevailed. Youth overcame experience. David slew Goliath. Of such stuff legends are made.

First Westfield, which owned a 22-1 record, played inside Princeton University's Jadwin Gym because of wet weather. Jacob Leschly, seeded number one in the state singles competition (see box, this page), crushed Rick Bartok, 6-0, 6-2, in the first singles to increase his record to 26-1. Younger brother Mark, undefeated in 24 matches, disposed of Jerome Lopez, 6-3, 6-3.

Westfield tied the match when it captured both doubles matches, Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott bowing, 0-6, 6-1,1-6, while the second doubles of Matthew Mack and Bret Van deBovenkamp failed to win a single set in losing to Keith Komer and Bob Rogers.

Leschly No. 1

Princeton High School senior Jacob Leschly has been seeded number one in the state individual singles tennis competition.

Leschly's preliminary match, a 6-0, 6-4 victory over Montclair's Jon Earl, has advanced him to the quarter-final round where he will face perhaps the greatest obstacle in his pursuit of a state title.

He will meet David Wells-Roth of Millburn, who earlier this season in the Elizabeth Invitational Tournament, defeated Leschly in straight sets to hand the Little Tiger his only loss in 27 matches this year.

The singles tournament is being played at the Middlesex County Community College courts.

That left the outcome hanging on the match between Ellis and Westfield senior Carl Krumpf.

They split the first two sets, Ellis taking the first, 6-3, and losing the second, 6-3. Krumpf won the first two games of the third set but Ellis, concentrating and refusing to yield to the cauldron-like pressure, fought back to tie the match at 2.

The match see-sawed back and forth. With Ellis up five games to four and Krumpf serving, Ellis went to 30-40 and had his first match point. Krumpf fought him off and won the set. In the next game, Ellis rallied by reeling off four consecutive points to save his serve, after Krumpf had won three of the first four points.

Krumpt then forced a tie-breaker when his power game rescued him after Ellis had him in trouble again in the 12th game.

The first three-points went to Ellis in the tie-breaker. But after Krumpf had battled back to 3-2, Ellis responded with the pivotal play of the match. Krumpf had charged in behind his hard serve but Ellis, patient and defensive-minded as ever, lobbed him perfectly, the ball landing just inside the line.

Faced with four match points, Krumpf saved one but then double faulted for the match. "It was 8:30 before the match was over," noted Diefenbach.

"For a freshman, it was unbelievable that he was able to stay as calm as he did," gushed Diefenbach. "Just amazing. He's getting better and better all season."

"This was my best match ever," said the 14-year-old Ellis, after he had been mobbed by his teammates and a large group of Princeton spectators. "I knew he was going to play aggressively in the third set so I just tried to hang back and pass him. I just hung in there."

One More Time. Less than 24 hours later, Ellis was to play the role of hero again — although not quite so dramatically.

This time at the Princeton University Courts, with PHS and Holmdel tied at two missing," continued Jones, as she groped for some answers, "was our passing. Our passing was off and passing is so much a part of lacrosse.

"I also felt our shooting was off. The last pass was missing today; the last pass between the goal posts. At halftime we had 25 shots to their 11. That says we weren't making that final pass.

"We were just missing that vital spark. We were waiting for someone to take charge."

Bitter as the defeat was, Jones did not lose sight of the positive things. "We had the challenge of a good season," she said. "We qualified for the state tournament, we had a shot at maybe capturing that elusive state championship.

"The first thing I told them between all the sobbing," Jones added, "is that I was very proud of the season we had. I was very proud of them. We had come a long way.

"What I felt more than anything else was sorrow for the seniors -- Carol, Pam, Alison — they played their last game."

We'll Be Back. It took the Little Tigers seven years, Jones pointed out at one point, to reach the state finals. That was last year when PHS lost the title game to Moorestown.

This year, PHS was denied the mountain top once again. But Jones left no doubt about her intentions. Still misty-eyed, she vowed: "We'll try again next year. That's what life is all about."

Princeton High School's drive toward a girls state lacrosse championship was halted again this year -- unexpectedly but permanently -- when the Little Tigers were upset, 9-7, Friday in the NJSIAA quarterfinal round by visiting Moorestown Friends.

Not that the Little Tigers didn't battle heroically to win their twelfth consecutive game. Three times Princeton High fought back to gain a tie but it was never able to gain the lead over a determined Moorestown, which had been eliminated the past three years by PHS in the state tournament.

None of that eased the pain, however. This second defeat in 14 games hurt. The Riverside School field, the site of the game, was awash with Little Tiger tears.

Perhaps what will be remembered most by some was not that PHS lost but the vignette of a cluster of crying seniors huddled around coach Joyce Jones for the longest time as Jones, with tears in her own eyes, tried to console and comfort them.

"I'LL NEVER PLAY LACROSSE AGAIN:" That's what one distraught Princeton High player told coach Joyce Jones Friday, after PHS had been upset in the state lacrosse tournament competition by Moorestown Friends. Three seniors caught in the agony of defeat by cameraman W.L. Bill Allen Jr. are from left Alison Fraker, Pam Jennings and Carol O'Donoghue.

Had PHS won, it would have played the winner of the Lenape-Collingswood game in the semis. Jones had sent her assistant to scout the game. "That's where my expectations were today," she said.

What went wrong? "They played well; they had a couple of key players," replied Jones.

Two for the Quakers stood out. Moorestown's high scorer for the season, Karlyn Wesley, scored the opening goal two minutes and 22 seconds into the game and her second goal at the 11:27 mark gave the visitors a 2-0 lead. She went on to score twice more in the second period to lead all scorers in the game.

Goalie a Standout. Then there was Moorestown's freshman goalie Gayle Stern who played THE game of her young career. Standing just a shade over five feet tall, Stern was a giant in the net, turning aside 25 shots. She was under constant pressure by the Little Tigers, particularly after Moorestown scored its initial goal, but the pressing Blue and White team was not able to break through until 20:33 in the first half on a shot by Erika Gabrielsen.

In the closing minute of the first half, Stern made four consecutive saves but Princeton gained a 2-2 tie at intermisssion when a shot by Carol O'Donaghue with 50 seconds left found the net.

Moorestown opened the scoring in the second half at 2:25 on a goal by Amy Weeks. Sue Lofgren's score on an assist from Booie Lockwood tied it.

Joan Hohweiler's score off a free position shot gave the Quakers the lead again but five minutes later Alison Fraker tied it at 4 at the 12:02 mark when she blasted in the rebound of a Gabrielsen shot during a melee in front of the net.

Another goal by Hohweiler and Wesley's third at 17:00 gave Moorstown a 6-4 bulge. When Wesley scored after Moorestown had passed the ball crisply downfield, Jones held her head on the sidelines as she saw the game slipping away.

Wesley scored her fourth goal two minutes later to give the visitors a three-goal lead but an unassisted goal by Pam Jennings at 19:58 and O'Donoghue's second just eight seconds later cut the Moorestown lead to 7-6.

Moorestown, gunning for its seventeenth win in 20 games, would not be denied. With the outcome still on the line, Karen Stevenson scored at the 21:10 mark and Beth Weiner added Moorestown's final goal with two minutes to play. Fraker's second goal with 30 seconds left made it a 9-7 final.

Something Missing. We never got into the game. We never played like Tigers," said a disconsolate Jones after the game.

"Something was missing today. I wish I could define that something.

"Psychologically, I thought we were ready. We wanted to win. But the key to tournament games is taking that mental desire and transforming it into physical performance. It's not easy all the time.

"One thing I know that was

PHS Boys' Tennis Team Wins First Ever All-Groups State Title; Will Meet Montclair-Kimberly for Overall Crown This Thursday

The story of the Princeton High School tennis team has become more than just one of reporting wins and losses. The season has turned into one of epic achievement, one by which all previous seasons will be measured and perhaps many more in the future.

In one glorious 24-hour period, the Little Tigers swept all three singles matches to defeat Group 4 Champion Westfield and then came back the following day to defeat Holmdel — again capturing all three singles — to win their first ever public school All Groups State Championship.

Now only one school stands in the way of an unparalled Gland Slam. This Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Princeton University courts, PHS will clash with Montclair-Kimberly, the parochial school state champions, for the overall state crown. PHS is currently 26-2.

Ellis the Key. Years from now freshman Bruce Ellis may look back and say May 30-31, 1984, was the Camelot of his tennis career. Certainly, it was his one shining moment.

No one player can be singled out when a team wins a match 3-2. Unquestionably, the incomparable Leschly brothers, Jacob and Mark, played a major role in both wins. They lit up the court with their incandescent play.

But just as unquestionably, it was the diminutive, indomitable Ellis who sealed each Little Tiger win and brought the Blue and White its first state title.

In each match, Ellis was pitted against a senior opponent. Each went to three sets. The third and decisive set in the Westfield match went to a tie-breaker. "Nailbiting," is the way PHS coach Joe Diefenbach described it.

In both, Ellis finally prevailed. Youth overcame experience. David slew Goliath. Of such stuff legends are made.

First Westfield, which owned a 22-1 record, played inside Princeton University's Jadwin Gym because of wet weather. Jacob Leschly, seeded number one in the state singles competition (see box, this page), crushed Rick Bartok, 6-0, 6-2, in the first singles to increase his record to 26-1. Younger brother Mark, undefeated in 24 matches, disposed of Jerome Lopez, 6-3, 6-3.

Westfield tied the match when it captured both doubles matches. Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott bowing, 0-6, 6-1,1-6, while the second doubles of Matthew Mack and Brett Van deBovenkamp failed to win a single set in losing to Keith Komer and Bob Rogers.

Princeton High School senior Jacob Leschly has been seeded number one in the state individual singles tennis competition.

Leschly's preliminary match, a 6-0, 6-4 victory over Montclair's Jon Earl, has advanced him to the quarter-final round where he will face perhaps the greatest obstacle in his pursuit of a state title.

He will meet David Wells-Roth of Millburn, who earlier this season in the Elizabeth Invitational Tournament, defeated Leschly in straight sets to hand the Little Tiger his only loss in 27 matches this year.

The singles tournament is being played at the Middlesex County Community College courts.

That left the outcome hanging on the match between Ellis and Westfield senior Carl Krumpf.

They split the first two sets, Ellis taking the first, 6-3, and losing the second, 6-3. Krumpf won the first two games of the third set but Ellis, concentrating and refusing to yield to the cauldron-like pressure, fought back to tie the match at 2.

The match see-sawed back and forth. With Ellis up five games to four and Krumpf serving, Ellis went to 30-40 and had his first match point. Krumpf fought him off and won the set. In the next game, Ellis rallied by reeling off four consecutive points to save his serve, after Krumpf had won three of the first four points.

Krumpf then forced a tie-breaker when his power game rescued him after Ellis had him in trouble again in the 12th game.

The first three-points went to Ellis in the tie-breaker. But after Krumpf had battled back to 3-2, Ellis responded with the pivotal play of the match. Krumpf had charged in behind his hard serve but Ellis, patient and defensive-minded as ever, lobbed him perfectly, the ball landing just inside the line.

Faced with four match points, Krumpf saved one but then double faulted for the match. "It was 8:30 before the match was over," noted Diefenbach.

"For a freshman, it was unbelievable that he was able to stay as calm as he did," gushed Diefenbach. "Just amazing. He's getting better and better all season."

"This was my best match ever," said the 14-year-old Ellis, after he had been mobbed by his teammates and a large group of Princeton spectators. "I knew he was going to play aggressively in the third set so I just tried to hang back and pass him. I just hung in there."

One More Time. Less than 24 hours later, Ellis was to play the role of hero again — although not quite so dramatically.

This time at the Princeton University Courts, with PHS and Holmdel tied at two missing," continued Jones, as she groped for some answers, "was our passing. Our passing was off and passing is so much a part of lacrosse.

"I also felt our shooting was off. The last pass was missing today; the last pass between the goal posts. At halftime we had 25 shots to their 11. That says we weren't making that final pass.

"We were just missing that vital spark. We were waiting for someone to take charge."

Bitter as the defeat was, Jones did not lose sight of the positive things. "We had the challenge of a good season," she said. "We qualified for the state tournament, we had a shot at maybe capturing that elusive state championship.

"The first thing I told them between all the sobbing," Jones added, "is that I was very proud of the season we had. I was very proud of them. We had come a long way.

"What I felt more than anything else was sorrow for the seniors -- Carol, Pam, Alison — they played their last game."

We'll Be Back. It took the Little Tigers seven years, Jones pointed out at one point, to reach the state finals. That was last year when PHS lost the title game to Moorestown.

This year, PHS was denied the mountain top once again. But Jones left no doubt about her intentions. Still misty-eyed, she vowed: "We'll try again next year. That's what life is all about."

FRIDAY NEW DEADLINE For Summer Sport Programs. The Princeton Recreation Department has extended until Friday the deadline for registration for two of its summer sport programs.

They are the women's and men's summer lacrosse leagues and the boys and men's summer wrestling program. The fee for lacrosse is $12 and $10 for wrestling. Non-residents pay twice as much.

The wrestling program for boys (grades 6-8) and men (high school through college) will be held Thursday evenings from mid-June through July at the Princeton High School gym. An orientation will be held Tuesday night at 7.

Registration forms are also available at the Recreation Office for a new program for middle school lacrosse players. Complete information on any of the programs is available at 921-9480.

STARTING TIME NEARS For Competitive Swim Program. The annual competitive swim program sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department at Community Park Pool will begin June 18.

Extensive workouts and dual meets against other swimming teams in the area are part of the program which will be directed by Loraine Wood. Diving instructions by staff members will also be offered.

Membership on the Community Park competitive swim team is open to all Princeton residents and season ticket holders, ages 6 to 17. For additional information, call Jack Roberts at 921-9480.

TWO FROM PHS NAMED To CVC First Teams. Mickey Carnevale, Princeton High's slick-fielding, clutch-hitting second baseman, and sprinter Teressa DiPerna have been named to Colonial Valley Conference first teams in baseball and track. All the members of the first and second teams in baseball, girls and boys track and softball were selected by the coaches from the ten schools in the CVC league.

In baseball, PHS junior Mike Petrone was named to the second team outfield, while outfielder Jason Petrone and pitcher-shortstop Dino D'Angelo received honorable mention.

DiPerna, a sophomore newcomer to PHS, was named as the best in the 200 meter. Senior Gail Woolston was selected on the CVC second team in the 400 meter event and senior co-captain Kiran Cummings and two more sophomores, Hillary Jones and Sarah Billington received honorable mention.

Senior Ed Katz was chosen on the boys first team in track for the 400 meter. Distance runner Nathaniel McVey-Finney and pole vaulter Eric Rapp received honorable mention.

ADULT TENNIS SET During June. The Princeton Community Tennis Program will offer a special stroke clinic during the weeks of June 4 and June 11.

Emphasis will be on footwork, racket awareness, stroke production and spin. Levels will be strictly enforced. The morning-only classes will run three hours a week for Beginner-Advanced Beginner and four-and-a-half hours for Intermediate-Advanced. Sign-up is for one or two weeks.

An Instructional Drill/Play League for Adults will run for three weeks beginning June 4. The focus will be on doubles strategy, shot selection, and games each, Ellis defeated Steve Friedman, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, to give his teammates the state title.

After Ellis had taken a 4-1 lead in the third set, Friedman rallied to win the next two games. Then with a 5-3 lead, Ellis had a break point for the match. He stroked a passing shot down the line which Friedman called out, and which Ellis felt was in. Friedman held serve to pull to within 5-4.

Ellis won the sixth game at love, ripping off four consecutive points, for his 23rd victory in 25 matches. "Just another unbelievable performance," said a jubilant Diefenbach after the match was over. He's one tough competitor."

Leschly Too Strong. It was obvious in his match with Holmdel's Joe Miller, ranked 12th in the state in singles competitton, that Miller could not match the force of Leschly's serve or his power game. But still Miller managed to save his serve in every game to force a tie-breaker in the opening set which Leschly won, 7-2.

In the second set, Leschly heeded the advice of his father to use more top spin on his service return and breezed to a 6-2 win. Mark, meanwhile, was suffering the loss of his first set of the year when Neil Meyerowich won the opening set of the second singles, 6-4. Mark came roaring back to grab the next two sets, 6-0, 6-3, after his father, a former tennis champion, told him to play more aggressively.

Holmdel scored its first point of the match when its undefeated first doubles of Keith Grumet and Ricky Guffant stopped Dunham and Elliott, 6-3, 6-2. Mack and Van deBovenkamp lost, 6-2, 6-4, at second singles. For Holmdel, which had eliminated PHS in the state competiton last year, the loss was its third of the season in 24 matches.

THE MOST IMPRESSIVE PART OF THIS CAR IS THE ONE LUXURY FEATURE IT DOESN'T HAVE.
While many of today's prestigious European sedans offer favorable performance and handling, they also feature something far more substantial.
Astronomical sticker prices.
But the Volvo 760 GLE is a notable exception.
Inside you'll find room for five adults. An advanced climate control system that completely changes the interior air every twelve seconds. And orthopedically designed front seats to help keep your mind off your back. And on the road.
And to help keep the car on the road, a unique rear suspension system flattens out the bumps. And provides more predictable handling in wet or slippery conditions.
It all adds up to the finest, most comfortable Volvo ever built.
So before you purchase a prestigious European sedan with an outrageous European price tag, come in and test drive a gas engine or Turbo Diesel* Volvo 760 GLE.
Only then will you truly appreciate the difference between a lot of money spent. And money well-spent.

Bowie Kuhn Honored at Reunions

Bowie K. Kuhn, Princeton University Class of 1948, whose tenure as Commissioner of Baseball will expire on September 30, has become the first recipient of the Robert L. Peters, Jr. '42 Award. The presentation was made prior to the Princeton alumni baseball game last Saturday at reunions.

Established jointly by the Class of 1942 and the Friends of Princeton Baseball, the Peters Award will honor an alumnus each year for significant contributions to the athletic community.

Kuhn, a native of the Washington, D.C. area, attended Franklin and Marshall College before transferring to Princeton in late 1945. He was a member of the Naval V-12 Program and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Princeton in 1947. In 1950, Kuhn received his law degree from the University of Virginia.

Membership in the law firm of Willkie, Farr and Gallagher, among whose clients was the National Baseball League, renewed Kuhn's enthusiasm for the game of baseball, an enthusiasm born as a fan of the Washington Senators in the early 1940's. Nineteen years later, this background in baseball's legal affairs and familiarity with baseball personages led to his election as Commissioner. Kuhn was reelected to a second term in 1975.

In establishing this award, the Class of 1942 and the Friends of Princeton Baseball are also honoring one of Princeton's outstanding graduates. Peters' credentials as an undergraduate spanned a broad scale. Regimental Commander of the ROTC, he drove in seven runs (one a grand slam) in the 1942 Reunion Baseball Game against Yale, a 12-8 Tier win. Peters' most notable accomplishments, however, came on the football gridiron. He was a "triple-threat" back in football and excelled as a runner, punter, passer, and pass receiver.

placement. The first half of each class will be game situation drills, and the second half supervised league play.

There will be a men's intermediate and a men's advanced intermediate-advanced league, as well as a women's intermediate and women's advanced intermediate-advanced league. All leagues will meet from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

For additional information, call the Princeton Community Tennis Program at 924-4343.

TENNIS CLINIC OFFERED For Beginners. The Mercer County Park Commission will sponsor a series of free tennis clinics for junior beginners in June at the Outdoor Tennis Center in Mercer County Park.

Beginner clinics will be held on Saturday June 9, 16 and 23. Instruction for players up to 12 years old will be from 10 to11 and from 11 to 12 noon for those 13-17. Tennis pros Dave Mennel and Bill Stoner will demonstrate the forehand, backhand, volley and serve.

For additional information, call the Outdoor Tennis Center at 586-9850.

SEVEN ARE NUCLEUS For 1985 PHS Nine. Poor weather forced the cancellation of last week's scheduled final baseball game between Princeton High and South Hunterdon. As a result the Little Tigers finished with a 9-12 overall record and 4-6 in the Colonial Valley Conference League where they tied West Windsor and Hopewell Valley for sixth place.

Ewing won the CVC crown with a 9-1 mark, edging Hamilton and Notre Dame who tied for second at 8-2.

Seven PHS players on the varsity will return and form the nucelus for coach Ed Beacham's 1985 squad. They are Gavin Hulsman, Eddie Eccles, Tom Foltiny, Derrick Martin, Mike Petrone, Jim Opperman and John Blankstein.

Foltiny, Martin, Mickey Carnevale, Jason Petrone and Mike Petrone were the leading hitters on this year's team, with Foltiny leading in stolen bases with eight.

Hulsman was the workhorse on the mound for the Little Tigers in winning five and losing four. Jon Sherin, who was absent for the first part of the season, compiled a 2-1 mark while Dino D'Angelo finished 2-4.

says. Such a campus, joining the skills of Merwick and the YWCA, has already been started, in a way, through the link between the Y's Alliance for the Disabled and Merwick.

Also, the Y is in negotiations for purchase of the Gerald Bramwell house at 77 Bayard Lane. What the Y might use it for, if negotiations are fruitful, is not yet ready for discussion. But the house would certainly be part of the Y's own campus complex.

"The Y and Merwick are really sisters," is the way Pam Mount puts it.

Last year, Dr. Leroy Hunninghake, who specializes in treating arthritis and related diseases, joined with the Y so that patients could have special indoor swims. Therapists from Merwick come to the Y once a week, using the pool for direct therapy. This January, the program received the full endorsement of the New Jersey Arthritis Foundation.

"Therapists and swim teachers need each other's expertise," Mrs. Mount explains. "We have a different approach from Merwick's; we are self-help, and we can show that side of therapy to Merwick. They seem very open to participation with other agencies."

Mrs. Mount hopes very much that the Y can somehow, somewhere, build a therapy pool, for both children and the elderly. "Adaptive Aquatics" for handicapped children, the VIM senior citizens exercise program — both of these and programs yet unborn could benefit, she says.

"We have a wide age range," she points out, "We don't isolate the old from the young."

There is, of course, the whole population of those who have had strokes. Merwick, through Dr. Wright and others, has a strong and innovative program for these men and women. Co-operation with the Y is already important here

Suddenly, Dr. Wright has found, gerontology has become respectable, and care of the old will now have to be taught in medical schools. What better place than a campus embracing Merwick, the Y and the Family Service Agency?

Family Service, whose Princetnn office is in Dorothea House on John Street, at the eastern end of the campus, already has services for the kinds of patients who enter Merwick, and their families as well.

For example, there will be two beds in Merwick for "respite:" that is, beds where terminally ill patients who are living at home, can spend a brief time, giving their caring families a breathing space. Family Service could be the counselor for these families.

Always one to plan ahead, Dr. Wright has set aside November 3 at 10 a.m. for a Princeton visit by Dr. Howard Rusk, dean of this country's rehabilitation experts. Dr. Wright hopes the Y and Family Service will join Merwick and physicians in this gathering.

"The Medical Center believes in Merwick — through good times and bad," Mr. Doody says. "We must make sure it changes with the times."

"Merwick has been a sleeping beauty," Dr. Wright says cheerfully. "Now, she's awake. The next ten years are going to be exciting."

WDJC Still Debating Whether to File Suit Against Collins' Plans

The Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation continues to rattle the sabres over a lawsuit aimed at forcing Collins Development to include low-income housing in its proposed expansion of Palmer Square, despite a tide of events suggesting that — sooner or later — the sabres will be returned to their scabbards. Witherspoon Jackson will hold a press conference next Tuesday to clarify its position.

Last week Gary Green, general manager of the Collins project, met with representatives of the Witherspoon Jackson group. "It was indicated that they are going to file their suit," said Mr. Green. As a result of that conversation, Mr. Green put on hold his offer to donate funds and the time of his staff to assist the community action group in meeting its housing goals through other channels.

"I want to make a contribution of time and money to help, but there will be nothing as long as a lawsuit is in the air," said Mr. Green. "I have a great deal of empathy for the Witherspoon Jackson group, but I didn't cause their problem and I can't be the solution to it.

"Their objective (the buydown of existing homes to allow resale to other community people) is not an efficient use of capital," continued Mr. Green. "We think there are more crative ways of developing new housing stock. We had offered funds and the help of our staff, which includes some good talent, but it's contingent upon the cooperation of all litigants. Our objective is not to prolong this in the courts."

The day after conferring with the Witherspoon Jackson people, Mr. Green met with Borough Mayor

Record June Heat Wave Forces Schools To Close Early Monday, Relief Due Friday

For the first time in anyone's memory, Princeton Regional Schools closed early because of the heat. Temperatures in school buildings of well over 100 degrees on Friday led School Superintendent Paul Houston to decree a school closing alert for Monday.

When Monday arrived with a temperature of 80 degrees at 7 a.m. and high humidity, the I p.m. closing was announced over WHWH.

There are no guidelines for how hot it has to be before the schools are closed. Dr. Houston said he made his decision because he was worried about the health of students, faculty and staff.

"Several children passed out Friday afternoon at Community Park and a number of students became ill at the high school," he said. "These schools are not designed to function in such extremes of heat. The high school and the second floor of Community Park are especially bad."

Temperatures rose to 115 degrees in the kitchens, where ovens and dishwashers added their heat to an

George Olexa Resigns As Borough Engineer

After 15 years as the Borough Engineer, George C. Olexa Jr. has resigned from that post and from his other position as Sanitary Engineer for the Sewer Operating Committee.

The resignation, announced in a closed session of Borough Council last Thursday and accepted when Council reconvened in open session, is effective June 22. But Mr. Olexa will carry the title and serve on a part-time basis until the Borough hires a replacement, a process that could take weeks or even months.

He has been named engineering projects manager at the Plasma Physics Laboratory at Forrestal, where he will be in charge of such things as roads and structural details pertaining to the facility. "It is an appropriate time in my life to make this change," he says, pointing out that if he were to serve the 25 more years he has until retirement age, that would mean 40 years with the Borough.

The resignation came as a surprise to many, and yet was perhaps not surprising, given the intense pressure Mr. Olexa has been under as

$200 Credit May Be Offered to First 50 Township Residents Who Disconnect Pumps

The first 50 Township residents who disconnect their illegal sump pumps from discharging into the public sewer system may be eligible for a $200 credit on their sewer tax bill.

At its meeting last Monday, Township Committee introduced this compromise between the $200 credit to all Township residents who fix their sump pumps initially proposed by Committeewoman Gail Firestone and a counter proposal for repayment of the credit made by Mayor Winthrop S. Pike.

Much of the meeting was spent in juggling amendments to the proposed sump pump ordinance in an effort to reach a compromise between Mayor Winthrop S. Pike's interest in repayment, Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill's concern for those for whom repayment would be a hardship, and Mrs. Firestone's wish to get as many sump pumps fixed as quickly as possible. The meeting was the public hearing before final adoption.

After listening to the discussion, Dwight O. North rose to observe, "There's hardly any carrot, hardly any incentive left with which to start a parade" to fix the sump pumps. He then suggested rewarding the first 50 residents to take advantage of the six-month grace period in the ordinance.

Township Attorney Edwin W. Schmierer ruled that the suggestion was a substantive change in the ordinance, requiring reintroduction, notice to the public and a new public hearing.

The motion to reintroduce the ordinance with the suggestion was approved 3-1. Mrs. Cantrill voted no, believing the ordinance discriminatory against the next 50 residents and a potential for law suits. Committeeman Richard Schoch was absent.

Serious runners who train up to 60-70 miles a week and others who run 2½ miles a day to relieve stress protested the Township's proposed jogging ordinance, which was tabled for further discussion on Monday, June 18. All agreed that running on the sidewalk, a much harder and more uneven surface, is potentially more injurious than running on the road.

Bob James of the Mercer-Bucks Running Club said most runners do run facing traffic, except when it is necessary to reverse direc-

Collins Waits

Barbara Sigmund, who has led the way toward the compromise with Collins after doing some sabre-rattling of her own earlier in the year. "We were both disappointed with their position," said Mr. Green. "We don't think it's the best way to go." We? "Believe it or not, the mayor and me," said Mr. Green, suddenly an ally of Borough Hall in this new phase of conciliation.

The mayor herself said that "It's best to describe the situation as at an impasse. Unfortunately it's worse than it appeared a couple of weeks ago."

One reason the Witherspoon threat stands out is that most of the other litigants seem ready to settle. The Borough still has a month or so to decide whether or not to appeal its recent court loss on the question of jurisdiction, but Mrs. Sigmund said "I'd be willing not to contest it if a more advantageous settlement can be reached." William Potter never filed his threatened appeal of the Collins approval from the Planning Board. And Gerald Boswell, in court to contest the sale of air rights from the Borough to Collins, is said to be willing to withdraw his suit, "if there's some resolution on the housing question," according to the mayor, who credited Council members Jane Terpstra and Irv Urken for helping in the compromise effort.

In the face of this new political climate, how long can Witherspoon Jackson continue a lonely, and possibly expensive, legal battle against Collins? The group was scheduled to hold its annual meeting of the operating and advisory boards Monday night, but its spokesmen were press-shy.

President Henry Pannell said that a news release would be prepared for later in the week, but that Joan Hill, a past president would comment. Ms. Hill said that Mr. Pannell should comment. By then he was unavailable. The group's lawyer, Glenn Cochran, did not return several phone calls.

already stifling area. Hot lunches were changed to cold ones, and the staff was able to take some comfort in the fact that the kitchens are scheduled to be air conditioned this summer.

School closes on June 19 and both the 18th and the 19th are half days. Since Wednesday, June 13, is also a half day, that leaves only this Thursday and Friday for possible early closings. So watch the weather and, if it's hot and humid, listen to WHWH.

Will it be hot? Weatherman David Ludlum says we can look forward to a new burst of high heat and humidity on Thursday, but adds that a break may come through late in the day. He adds, for the record, that we experienced five ninety-degree-plus days in a row through this past Monday.

But, just to put things into perspective, Mr. Ludlum reminds us about early June in 1925, when the temperature hovered near 100 degrees for five days in a row.

Olexa Resigns

public pressure has mounted for an end to discharging sewer manhole covers. Of that he prefers not to speak, insisting that the new job is a "career change."

Mr. Olexa is not only a licensed professional engineer, but also a licensed land surveyor and a construction official as well, a combination that he says will be difficult to obtain again in one individual. His associates, Jim Martin in the Borough Engineering office and Martin Dorward in the SOC, are not licensed in the state of New Jersey.

This is why he may have to be available to the Borough after hours at his new job to perform certain functions which are only permitted to a licensed engineer. He has recommended that Mr. Dorward be given the title of managing director of Sewer Operating facilities.

ORDINANCES HEARD

At Council Meeting. The Tuesday evening regular meeting of Borough Council, held on June 12, is scheduled to hold public hearings on a wide range of ordinances, according to the meeting agenda received at press time.

There are ordinances on the use of fire apparatus and on the installation of trash receptacles by take-out food establishments.

The bond ordinances listed on the agenda deal with such subjects as the reconstruction of part of South Tulane Street, repaving part of Moore and Witherspoon Streets, the reconstruction of sidewalks, patio and curbing at Borough Hall, the purchase of equipment and vehicles, and improvements to Community Park Pool and the library.

At a special Monday night meeting, Borough Council heard Princeton landlord Sanford Zeitler appeal a Rent Registration Board ruling freezing the rent for one year at his 216 Witherspoon Street property.

The freeze was part of a March Rent Registration Board decision requiring Mr. Zeitler to refund a portion of rent to former tenant Antoinette Pinard because the dwelling had not been registered under the Rent Registration Ordinance and because no notice of intent to increase the rent had been filed.

The three council members in attendance — Richard Macgill, Peter Bearse and Jane Terpstra — voted to uphold the rent freeze. Mr. Zeitler's only recourse, according to Councilman Bearse, was to prove hardship due to his inability to increase the rent for one year, and he presented no evidence of such hardship.

KICKOFF FOR SUMMER READING PROGRAM: Borough and Township Mayors Win Pike and Barbara Sigmund and Princeton School Superintendent Paul Houston, members of the Library's Board of Directors, cut a ribbon to signify the start of the Public Library's summer reading club program for children. This year's theme for children is "Run the World...Read." Behind the Mayors and Superintendent Houston is a map of the Los Angeles Olympic site, depicting the various athletic events. Children are invited to start at one sport and then move ahead on the map for each extra book they read. "It's an incentive to get them to read," commented Mrs. Dudley Carlson of the children's department.

TOPICS Of The Town

PLANNER SELECTED

With N.J. Experience. The township planner for Raritan Township has accepted the offer to be the full-time professional planner for the Princeton Regional Planning Board, effective July 9.

Duggan A. Kimball, 36, a licensed professional planner in the state of New Jersey, was selected from some 50 applicants, six of whom were interviewed. His salary will be $37,000 and will be shared on a two-thirds, one-third basis by the Township and the Borough.

Mr. Duggan has been township planner for Raritan Township since 1980, responsible for reviewing all development applications and preparing major amendments to the township's master plan and development regulations. Previously he was director of the Planning and Building Department in the Borough of Lincoln Park, N.J., where he supervised a staff of seven and had responsibilities for administration of the zoning and development regulations.

He wrote the Lincoln Park master plan and amendments to its development regulations. He describes himself as experienced in the administration of municipal land use regulations and knowledgeable in federal and state regulations regarding community development, flood plains and the environment.

More important to Princeton at this time, he also notes his familiarity with Mt. Laurel, its history and current status, having participated in preparing a defense of a town in a Mt. Laurel suit.

Mr. Duggan is a graduate of Boston University who earned a Master of Regional Planning from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in 1976. His appointment becomes effective in July.

Lack of Quorum. Nine members were present last Thursday as the Planning Board began to hear the application of One Cherry Hill Associates for an office building and drive-in bank at the juncture of Mt. Lucas, Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road. Aristides Georgantas and Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund excused themselves because of involvements with area banks, which meant there was one less than the necessary quorum of eight to hear the application.

However, the hearing went on as scheduled and will be continued on June 21, when presumably an eighth member will have listened to the tapes of the meeting and can join in the decision. The applicant proposes to remove the midsection of an existing former laboratory and use one part for a drive-in for the Howard Savings Bank and the other for offices.

Several Mt. Lucas neighbors spoke to traffic conditions on that roadway and objected to the parallel parking that is proposed for directly across from their homes, making it difficult to leave their own driveways. Planning Board members asked how cars would be able to make a left turn into the entrance off Route 206. The traffic consultant for the applicant said that would be less of a problem at the site than further along Route 206 because the traffic light at Cherry Hill Road would create gaps in the traffic flow.

One resident wanted to know why it was necessary to have another branch of the Howard Savings Bank when a branch was already in existance up 206 in the Grand Union Shopping Center. Howard is a thrift bank with elderly clientele, she was told, and the nearby branch lacks the drive-in convenience.

Moreover, according to the applicant, bank use is the one use that makes it possible to demolish part of the existing structure and make the extensive renovations needed to make the property viable in a "low-intensive" way.

Matters of curbing and drainage were under negotiation between the Township Engineer and the applicant. But Paul Szymanski, planning consultant to the Planning Board, was inclined, on balance, to recommend approval because the plan represented "acceptable" rehabilitation of a site that presented special difficulties in terms of location and topography and that had been under-utilized.

JUNE FETE A SUCCESS

Despite Record Heat. It's been around for 31 years and the experience gained over those three decades has been mighty helpful to the June Fete and the hundreds of volunteers who make it go every spring

Rain has seldom been a problem, it has fallen on the fete only a handful of times since the early 1950's. Almost like magic the heavy downpours that came in late May, disappeared as June 9 drew near, but were replaced by a hot, unforgiving sun.

Last Saturday the community-wide event battled temperatures that soared over 100 degrees and remained there for most of the day on the Washington Road field, and still came out a big winner.

The adding and subtracting is not complete, but when it's over this year's fete will have achieved a gross profit of a little over $204,000, about $1,000 ahead of last year. And that was accomplished despite an approximate 15 per cent drop in revenues the day of the Fete.

The record heat did mean a drop of about $23,000 in overall sales, down from about $159,000 a year ago to around $136,000. Attendance was estimated at 25,000, but many came early and left early.

However, the fete is much more than a one-day event. The work and the sales begin long before that one June Saturday, and pre-fete activity amounted to a record $68,000.

Better than ever this year, the Friday night dance had a record-breaking crowd of 750. The Fete booklet also produced record sales, and all the chances were sold for the beautiful red Chrysler LeBaron convertible, from Nassau Conover Motors.

And despite the 100-degree heat last Saturday, a small, sweaty army of volunteers workers, led by co-chairmen Barbara Simonds and Peggy Gallagher, worked tirelessly to make things run smoothly.

Everything under the sun including fur coats was sold under the auction tent, making it the number one profit making event of the day. Food was supplied by several organizations and retail outlets including the Cranbury Auxiliary, Newcomers Club, PHS Student Council, Rossmoor, Alchemist and Barrister and Nassau Street Seafood, and the Lions Club of Princeton, whose members cooked and sold more than 2,200 barbecued chicken dinners. If it was more than 100 degrees already, how hot was it directly over a large charcoal grill?

The planning for next year's Fete has already begun with the naming of the new co-chairmen, Pam Abernathy and Lin duBois. Every year, the new co-chairmen have a hard act to follow, and next will be no exception.

HOLD ON RECYCLING

For Borough. Mandatory trash separation, which was due to begin in early July, has been postponed. Tentative start-up date is now September 4.

The reason for the delay is that no carter responded to the Borough's recent request for bids. It had been assumed that Monarch Recycling, which had originally approached the Borough, would bid on the job. But it didn't. No one knows quite why, since Monarch President Roze Canty has been unavailable for comment.

Bids have gone out a second time and are scheduled to be received June 25. If there are still no takers for Borough trash, the Borough will be legally allowed to enter into direct agreement with a carter.

Robert McChesney, who has been working with a citizens' committee on the mandatory separation ordinance, is not discouraged. "We're not quite back on Square One." He feels that Monarch would be more receptive to direct agreement than to the bidding process and notes that Hightstown, which has a contract with Monarch, appears satisfied with the company's service.

The Borough's mandatory separation ordinance requires householders to keep glass, aluminum and newspapers, magazines separate from each other and out of the garbage. All are to be placed at curbside where they will be picked up by a collector and sold.

Although the Borough won't make money directly from the sale of its trash, it will save money by not having to take it to a landfill. Also, the state rewards municipalities if they recycle, paying $8 to $10 for every ton that can be proved to have been removed.

SEED AND SOD NEAR

At Community Park School. Start bidding farewell — at last — to the mud at Community Park's new playground. After an eight-month delay, the final grading, seeding and sodding is expected to be completed within several weeks.

Actually, the work was supposed to have been completed this past October. However, heavy fall rainfall and the winter freeze caused delays.

Further delays were created by the contractor, Chris Mathieson of Tuckerton, N.J., who, according to School Board Secretary Judith Horner, was "slow in starting and slow in completing."

There is a penalty of $100 a day for late completion built into the contract. The School Board will make its judgment on final payment based on this penalty.

VOLUNTEERS AWARDED

By Medical Center. The Medical Center Auxiliary at Princeton has presented merit awards to seven junior volunteers at the Center's Annual Junior Volunteer Recognition Day.

All recipients plan to pursue their education in a health care field, and were judged on academic standing, extra curricular activities, and quality and quantity of service as a volunteer.

Joan Schiller, auxiliary health careers and affairs chairman, presented awards to: Denise Calaprice, Princeton High, who will enter the pre-medical program at Harvard-Radcliffe; Rebecca Rice, Hightstown High, who was accepted into the nursing program at the University of Delaware; Elissa Shendalman, Lawrence High, who will attend Princeton University and pursue a medical career; Diana Schmidt, Princeton High, who will attend Rutgers-Douglass; Elizabeth McCredie, Princeton High School who will enter the Pre-Medical Program at Haverford College; Kelly Gallagher, Hopewell Valley Regional, who will attend the University of North Carolina; and Diane Drake, Montgomery High, who will enter the nursing program at Mercer County Community College. The Auxiliary always welcomes new members, and applications are available through the Volunteer Services Department, 734-4589.

ENROLLMENT IS HIGH

At Community Park. Early kindergarten registration figures show more students than had been anticipated signing up at Community Park — and fewer than had been expected enrolling at Riverside.

By the end of last week, Community Park had 54 kindergarteners on its full roster; Riverside had 34. The projected enrollment figure for 1984, as shown in the Princeton Regional Schools Long-Range Plan, is 120. The idea, of course, is that this figure would divide more or less evenly between the two schools.

There is currently a sense that Community Park figures will continue to go up, and less of a sense that Riverside enrollment will rise. For one thing, all students from the Institute for Advanced Study are slated to attend Community Park.

"These figures will be monitored over the summer," said School Superintendent Paul Houston. He noted that there are several ways in which an imbalance in the number of kindergarteners can be dealt with, but added that none will include a shift in district lines.

SHADES OF 1948

Right in Princeton. Congressional candidate Peter Bearse wasn't holding up a newspaper proclaiming that his opponent in the Democratic primary had beaten him. But he might as well have been.

Beginning at about 11 p.m., New York and New Jersey television networks began announcing that Mr. Bearse had been defeated by Norman Weinstein of Somerville. At one point, it was reported that a major network had not only proclaimed Mr. Bearse the loser, but also showed a vote total larger than the number of 12th District Democrats actually participating in the primary.

It wasn't until 1 a.m., and after calls from an increasingly frustrated Bearse headquarters, that the Associated Press acknowledged that its figures were, well, wrong. The problem was said to have been the result of a keypunch error.

Oh yes, the day after the primary, Mr. Bearse received a telephone call from United Press International assuring him that their figures had been correct all along.

The actual tally, by the way was Bearse, 10,400, Weinstein, 6,308.

AS THE BOROUGH GOES...

...So goes New Jersey. Twenty-four-point-seven percent of Princeton Borough eligible voters cast ballots for presidential candidates in last week's primary election.

And...

Twenty-four-point-seven percent of New Jersey's eligible voters cast ballots for presidential candidates in the primary.

When word of this gets around, might the Borough be deluged with pollsters, assured that they have discovered a mocrocosm of New Jersey? It's something to think about.

Hopewell's Turn Saturday

Pennington had its day in May, the June Fete was last weekend in Princeton, this Saturday it's Hopewell's turn to hold a Community-wide event.

A mini-marathon for runners will kick-off the schedule at 8:45, starting from Kooltronics. Opening Ceremonies for the Day will begin at 9:30. A wide range of attractions, including music by several bands, train and tethered hot air balloon rides, various demontrations and displays are planned for both adults and children.

There wiil also be plenty to eat and drink at several concessions. The Hopewell Presbyterian Church will serve its annual chicken barbeque at 4:30. The affair will end with a fireworks display beginning around 9.

SUITE IS ENTERED

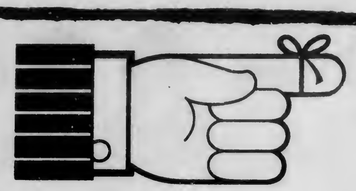
In South Dod Hall. A students' suite in South Dod Hall on the Princeton University campus was entered last week, resulting in losses to two students.

One lost jewelry valued at $443, including a gold chain, watch and class ring; the second victim reported the loss of jewelry items valued at $90. There were no signs of forced entry but police report a room key was left inside a mail slot.

An intruder entered an unlocked room in Edwards Hall last week between 1:30 and 4 in the afternoon and departed with a $200 cassette radio recorder.

On Friday, between 7:30 a.m. and 3:15 p.m., someone entered a bedroom in a Mercer Street home and took a watch valued at $47 and $3 in currency from a bureau. Police report they do not know how the home was entered. There was no forced entry.

Township police report the entry and ransacking last week of a Mountain Avenue home which was entered by way of an unlocked bathroom window.



Police confirmed that items were stolen and they are waiting for a list from the owners.

COMPUTER IS STOLEN

From Parked Car. An Apple II computer valued at $2,000 and a $200 memory disk were stolen last week from the locked car of a Princeton resident while it was parked in the 200 block of Nassau Street. Police report the victim had been away for only 20 minutes.

told police Saturday that his attache case had been stolen from his unlocked car while it had been parked on Wiggins Street between midnight and 8 a.m. Inside were medical documents and professional papers from the Rutgers Medical Research Center, valuable only, police said, to the victim.

In the same area and time, an AM-FM radio valued at $40 was stolen from the dashboard of a car parked in the rear yard of a Jefferson Road home. Another attempt to remove a radio from the dash of a car also parked on Jefferson Road was unsuccessful. The thief damaged both the radio and the dashboard in the attempt. Police said that they do not know how the thief managed to unlock the locked car.

A Princeton resident left her wallet on a counter in the United Jersey Bank on Nassau Street last week. When she returned an hour and 15 minutes later, it was gone. She lost $8.

After a Mulberry Row resident had left his wallet and jacket in his unlocked car in the south lot at Community Park last week, he returned a half hour later to find both missing. The wallet contained $8 and was valued at $10; the jacket was valued at $20.

Last week, a Valley Road resident was having a moving sale in her home and yard when she noticed that several items -- a Wedgwood bowl, braided rug, chaise longue, wicker table and brass floor lamp -- that had not been sold were missing. The items are valued at approximately $90.

While shopping in the Wawa Market on University Place last week, a New York resident placed his 25-year old Voigtlander camera on a shelf and left the store. He returned later but the camera, which he valued at $25, was gone.

Bike Thefts. As always, there were more bicycle thefts reported.

A $200 bike, chained to a rack at the Public Library, was stolen by someone who cut the chain; a student's bicycle valued at $172 was stolen from the basement of the Ivy Club where he lived, and a $245 bicycle chained to a tree on the lawn of Princeton High School was taken between 8 and 2:45 p.m. on Thursday.

Two bikes were taken from an unlocked garage on Jefferson Road, and a Dorann Avenue resident listed the theft of his blue Schwinn 5-speed valued at $40. Police said the victim had left the bike unlocked for two days at the Princeton Shopping Center.

FOUR ARE CHARGED

With Marijuana Possession. Four young men observed drinking and smoking pot in a parked van have been charged by Borough police.

Charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana are John Roletter, 23, Quail Ridge Drive, Plainsboro; Michael Thompson, 23, Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro; Kirk Gilbert, 22, of Old Bridge, and Michael Lewallen, 19, of Trenton. The latter was also charged as a minor in possession of alcohol. All were later released with a complaint summons, pending their appearance June 20 in Borough court.

The four had been observed in the Tulane West lot by Det. Randy Sutton. While on patrol, the officer had allegedly seen the suspects light a marijuana cigarette and pass it around. He also observed them drinking.

He requested backup aid. Police approached the van and found the suspects smoking a roach and drinking beer from a keg.

Arrested in Township. Township police last week arrested and charged Bostic M. Van Felton, 39, 39 Oakland Road, with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana.

Police had responded to an 8:50 call Thursday morning reporting a disturbance at the address. When they arrived, they spoke with Van Felton who said there was no disturbance; he had been repairing his door and any noise was from his banging with a hammer.

While that was true, police detected a strong odor of marijuana and found a metal pipe on the floor of Van Felton's apartment. Still hot and smoldering, it contained a burned substance. Police also found a metal tin containing green vegetation.

Theft and Forgery. George L. McGowan 3d, 38, 246 John Street, has been charged by Township police with forgery and theft. He was later released in $500 bail, awaiting his court appearance.

According to police, McGowan, while doing odd jobs at a Cherry Hill Road home, allegedly removed three checks from the victim's checkbook. He then allegedly forged the victim's name on two checks for $200 each. Two checks cleared the N.J. National Bank, police said. The third has yet to appear.

Dispatcher Sought

Township police will give an examination for dispatcher Monday evening at 7 in the Princeton High School cafeteria. Starting salary is $11,500.

Applications must be picked up at police headquarters and returned no later than 1 p.m. on Friday. No mail requests or resumes without a completed application will be accepted.

from the usual broken window variety to the unusual.

One of the most unusual had to be the report of vandals driving golf balls through the first-floor windows of the Tiger Inn on Prospect Street — no doubt, said police, the work of some rival club members. Twelve panes were broken, leaving an estimated damage in excess of $300.

Police reported finding numerous divots in the front lawn and a collection of golf balls that missed their target and ricocheted off the Inn.

Another in the unusual category took place in the Princeton Cemetery. There, someone last week placed 21 small American flags around a mausoleum and then set fire to them. Police said that an American flag on a post next to the grave of President Grover Cleveland was also set on fire.

As a Monmouth Junction resident was driving his convertible on Hamilton Avenue near Linden Lane Saturday morning, a vandal in a passing car threw an egg which splattered on the windshield. Pieces of the egg also struck the driver. Chief Michael Carenvale reported that police have some information on the other car and the incident is still under investigation.

Later in the afternoon on the same day, a car parked in a Lafayette Road driveway was pelted with four eggs that splattered on the windsheld.

Any connection between the two? "I would not dismiss the possibility of a connection," replied Chief Carnevale.

Another target was the Hunan Restaurant, 157 Witherspoon Street, where someone threw a rock through a four- by five-foot front window pane. There is no estimate of the replacement cost.

During the half hour that a Princeton resident parked his car in the Park & Shop lot off Spring Street, someone used a sharp instrument to make scratches in both rear fenders. Police said an obscene word was also scratched on the car.

Finally, a Skillman resident told Township police that his 1979 Camaro had been vandalized while it was parked in the Community Park School lot. Someone hurled a projectile at the windshield, cracking it and leaving the owner with a $200 replacement bill.

MAN CUT IN SCUFFLE

Princeton Man Jailed. James Underwood, 63, 157 Witherspoon Street, has been taken to Mercer County Jail in lieu of bail after he was charged last week with aggravated assault and possession of a weapon for unlawful purpose.

Underwood is charged with cutting a 42-year-old Princeton man in the forearm with a butcher's knife and on the face near his ear. The victim, who police said was defending himself, was treated at Princeton Medical Center where eight sutures were required to close the cut in his arm.

As reported by Chief Michael Carnevale, Underwood flagged Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm on patrol on Nassau Street at 12:32 Friday morning and requested that the officer go to his home to evict some people there. The officer noticed an abrasion on Underwood's cheek and when he asked what had happened, Underwood replied that he had been assaulted in his home.

Ptl. Athony Federico and Ptl. David Dudeck responded to Ptl. Wilhelm's request for aid and when the officers arrived at Underwood's second floor apartment they were told by those inside that someone had been cut.

They went to the bathroom and found the victim attending to the laceration in his arm. He told police that Underwood had cut him with a knife. Police recovered the knife later in the kitchen.

Underwood was arrested and taken to headquarters and charged. He was also treated at the Medical Center for his abrasion. No sutures were required.

No charges were made against the victim. "There was a scuffle in the apartment and he was defending himself," Chief Carnevale concluded.

DRIVER IS CHARGED

After Colliding With Cyclist. An 18-year-old North Brunswick resident, Robert P. Marschall was charged with careless driving and failure to report an accident after he was involved with striking an 11-year-old cyclist last week.

The cyclist, Kathy Spatacino, 13 Juniper Row, told Sgt. Mario Musso that she was riding on Bunn Drive and as she approached the driveway of 469 N. Harrison Street, she applied her brakes but couldn't stop. She turned to the left but was unable to avoid colliding with a car that was entering the driveway. She was treated at Princeton Medical Center for a laceration of her eye.

CELEBRATE SUMMER With Gourmet Box Lunch. To celebrate the first day of summer, which comes officially next Thursday, June 21, the Princeton Child Development Institute will put together and deliver 500 gourmet box lunches to businesses and offices throughout the Princeton community.

There is a selection of eight sandwiches on a freshly baked croissant, including Shrimp and Crab Salad, Virginia Ham and Turkey Breast. This is complemented by a fresh salad and a dessert of rich Swedish caramel cake or French chocolate torte. In each box will be a "surprise bonbon."

The lunches will be delivered to each office by PCDI volunteers between 9 and noon. A minimum order of four lunches at $7 apiece must come from each location. A free bottle of wine will be included with ever order of eight from the same office.

Part of the proceeds from each lunch will go for educational purposes to benefit autistic children, and a receipt for the tax-deductible donation of $3 comes with every lunch. Orders must be in by Tuesday, June 19.

This is the second benefit box lunch sponsored by the Institute; the first was on February 14 to celebrate Valentine's Day. For more information, or to place an order, call Mea Johnston at 924-6280 or 359-2142.

BOX LUNCH FUND RAISER: Jennifer and Bunky, are two of the students at the Princeton Child Development Institute who will benefit from the Gourmet Box Lunch next Thursday, June 21. The price of the lunch has been reduced from the first, very successful, Box Lunch to $7. (See story, this page.)

SAWYER CANOE

The Oscoda Family 17

Strength • Stability • Seaworthiness • Speed

The Oscoda Family 17, a vee-arch hull with particularly good tracking ability, is a big, robust canoe with the ability to perform safely in waves and wind with the family on board. Yet, the Family 17 is all Sawyer as a performer. It turns easily, even when laden, and is very quick.

COUNSELING TO GAIN From Bastille Day Dance. The benefit committee of Trinity Counseling Service will hold the second annual Bastille Day Dinner Dance on Saturday, July 14, at Bedens Brook Club.

Co-chair of the event are Mrs. Richard M. Sword and Mrs. William Sword. Their committee includes Mrs. Warren H. Anderson, Mrs. G.P. Mellick Belshaw, Mrs. James Chandler, Mrs. Harold Erdman, Mrs. Moore Gates Jr., Mrs. James S. Hill, Mrs. John F. Kelsey III, Mrs. Tobin Levy, Mrs. Daphne Pontius, Mrs. William R. Robins, Mrs. Henry J. Scherck III, Mrs. L.V. Silvester Jr., Mrs. Stanley C. Smoyer and Mrs. James C. Stretch.

Music for dancing will be by Ben Cutler. Further information and reservations may be obtained from Trinity Counseling Service, 22 Stockton Street, 924-0060.

The service was founded in 1968 by the Rev. Rugby Auer, then associated with Trinity Church, to meet a need he perceived for counseling in the parish. The Counseling Service has since become a separate entity, financed by contributions and fees, and it handles some 240 cases a month.

There are 16 professional men and women on the staff, including clergy, social workers, psychiatrists and psychologists of all denominations. The non-profit organization helps those who are attempting to cope with problems such as anxiety and depression, with life crises, and with marital and family problems. Referrals are made by pastors, doctors, lawyers and former clients.

No one is ever refused counseling for lack of finances. Events such as the Bastille Day Dinner Dance raise funds to assist those in need of counseling.

7 TRUSTEES NAMED By University. Paul A. Volcker '49, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has been named a charter trustee of Princeton University. He is among seven new members elected at June meetings of

Jean McAndrew Feted Upon Her Retirement From the Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School

It had all the markings of an end-of-the-school-year event: hot dogs, watermelon, a sheet cake, exuberant children and wilting mothers all outside under a broiling June sun.

But the Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School final picnic last week was a rite of passage. After 24 years at All Saints' Church, the school has been asked to move. It will merge with another nursery school that has also been asked to leave its present space and set up at the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club under a new name.

Jean McAndrew

But more important, the picnic last week was a farewell tribute to Jean McAndrew, director of Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School for 20 years and the person whose calmness and wisdom gave the school much of its character. Mrs. McAndrew is taking the opportunity of the change to step down, to be free to spend more time with her daughters and grandchildren and to look after her health.

Along with current parents and siblings, as many of the estimated 400 alumni of the school as could be reached were invited to attend the special occasion, or to send a current picture of themselves for a special gift album. Mrs. McAndrew was presented a silver tray inscribed "Thank you from Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School."

"We are here to express our appreciation for the time and effort Jean has given each one of us individually," noted Mrs. Ernest Soffronoff, head of the parents' committee. "Not only does she make sure that these young people will have scholastic success, but she sees to it that they will have social success as well. She sees our children as individuals, and puts things in perspective for us when we are upset about their current behavior."

Along with the photographs, parents sent cards and letters of appreciation. One former student, now in high school, wrote simply, "I'm glad I was able to go to your nursery school."

Began at Trinity. Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School was the outgrowth of a pre-school playgroup held in the basement of Trinity Church on Mercer Street. When All Saints' was built in 1960, initially as a chapel or satellite church to Trinity, the playgroup saw an opportunity in the bright Sunday school classrooms of the new church. They approached the Rev. Charles G. Newbery, first vicar of All Saints' and a father of young children himself, who not only gave his enthusiastic endorsement to the project but administrative time and energy as well. The school was named for the two founding churches.

In 1964, Mrs. McAndrew was asked to be the certified head teacher, as replacement for a teacher who wanted to retire and in fulfillment of state requirements. Having recently completed course work in elementary education at Rutgers and a term of practice teaching in an area public school which was not what she hoped it would be, Mrs. McAndrew agreed to be certified for nursery level instead and took the job.

She says that her eight years experience as a founding parent of the Princeton Cooperative Nursery School played a large part in her decision to work with this age group. The experience was a particularly pleasant one, she says, and Louise Smith, the mother-turned-teacher of Princeton Cooperative, became a model to her of how to handle children generally.

Except for a period in the 70s when enrollment dipped precariously, the school has had about 40 youngsters divided into three- and four-year-old age groups each year. Recently a two-year-old group was added.

In addition to her administrative responsibilities, Mrs. McAndrew taught the fours. She is known for her special ability to spot the occasional instances when a child's emotional, social or physical lack of development might impede his or her progress in "regular" school the following year.

Excellent Teachers. She once remarked to the annual parents' meeting that nursery school was more important than graduate school, and was gratified to learn later than a pediatrician-father agreed with her wholeheartedly. Modest about her own teaching abilities to the point of questioning her "inadequacies" as a teacher, she nonetheless feels that her greatest contribution to the school has been in hiring "absolutely first rate teachers and giving them their heads."

But parents speak with special appreciation for the wisdom and guidance they received from Mrs. McAndrew in how to be a better parent. She in turn drew on her own experience as a mother of five daughters, as well as a sensitivity to how young parents feel when the job they've done on their own in raising a baby is held up to the scrutiny of the outside world for the first time at nursery school. She says it is touching how many mothers know their children well.

Mrs. McAndrew will not be leaving Princeton. She plans to spend some winter months near one daughter and her four children in Texas and to continue to go to Cape Cod in the summer.

New School. Meanwhile, Trinity-All Saints' and Nassau Cooperative nursery schools merged will be known as Nassau Nursery School. The move to the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club is presently underway. Cindy Chessler, presently director of Nassau Cooperative and a former teacher under Mrs. McAndrew, will direct the new school.

Far from bemoaning the demise of the old school, Mrs. McAndrew is enthusiastic about the new. She says, "It will offer day care, which many parents need and want, with a really good morning nursery school and really well-trained teachers."

It can do no better than offer a "program of nurturing and learning," which is the way Trinity-All Saints' described itself under Jean McAndrew.

the board and of the Alumni Council.

Richard B. Fisher '57, president of Morgan Stanley and Co. Inc. was also named a charter trustee. He and Mr. Volcker will serve 10-year terms. Juanita T. James '74, vice president of human relations at Time-Life Books Inc., in Alexandria, Va., and Eva Lerner-Lam '76, director of planning and operations of the San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Board, join the board as term trustees for a period of four years each.

In addition, three new alumni trustees were elected to four year terms. They are Thomas D. Boyatt '55, recently U.S. Ambassador to Colombia; George J. Sella Jr. '50, president and chief executive officer of American Cyanamid Co., and Timothy C. Wu '84, president of the graduating class.

RESIDENTS OBJECT

To Proposed Tower. The highest point in a straight line between New York and Philadelphia has become the center of a controversy pertaining to the communications era. It is a controversy that introduces expanded commercial use into an established residential zone right over the Princeton border and sets neighbor against neighbor.

On the U.S. survey maps, the land in question is part of the hilly mass marked Mt. Rose, rising 400 feet above sea level off Province Line Road at the end of Drakes Corner Road. Charles Agle owns the tract, which for 30 or more years has had on it a radio relay tower, a slender 125-foot antenna with a triangle partway up, that is called a Television Relay Station on the same U.S. survey map. However, the tower was used for many years by a Trenton trucking concern and is presently not used at all.

Mr. Agle wants to tear down the slender antenna and replace it with a tower of the same height on which are attached several parabolic discs. His application to the Hopewell Township Zoning Board for a use variance for a 199-foot tower three weeks ago was turned down.

The application was scheduled to come before the Hopewell Zoning Board last Tuesday night in an altered form. Area residents, including Leighton Laughlin who with his family owns 107 acres nearby, and several residents of Nelson Ridge and Cotswold Lane, were expected to oppose the application.

Health Hazards? The residents said they were concerned about the potential health hazards of the microwave beams that would be emitted from the improved tower. They were also opposed to exanding the commercial use in a residential area and concerned about setting a precedent that would permit further incursion of a commercial nature in aresidential zone.

For his second appearance before the Zoning Board, Mr. Agle reduced the size of the tower from 199-feet to 125, the size of the existing tower. In responsе to board criticism that the original application was too vague about the nature and uses of the tower, Mr. Agle and his lawyer, Christopher Tarr, added to the application the names of the two companies that will be using the tower.

They are ICOM, with engineering headquarters in Rockville, Md., and Eastern Microwave, of Syracuse. ICOM is understood to want to use the tower for setting up a terrestrial point to point radio transmission path for telephone and video conferencing between customers in widely separated cities. Eastern Microwave is understood to be a long-haul television carrier.

There is no relationship between the two companies who are trying to co-locate so that one or the other does not have to seek another site.

APPLY FOR WIC

At Valley Road. A WIC screening office is now open on the second floor of the Valley Road Building. Anyone wishing to apply for WIC (which stands for Women, Infants and Children) should come to Valley Road the third Thursday of the month. Hours are 9 to 11 a.m.

WIC is a federally and state funded program that provides nutrition to pregnant women, mothers and children. It provides monies for food in categories that include milk, cheese, eggs, and juice.

In the two screening sessions held so far at Valley Road, 18 Princeton residents have applied for the program. In addition, there have been a number of phone calls for information. To date, 15 Princeton residents have been accepted.

"Many people are surprised at the number of people in town who have applied for WIC," said Mary Strzelecki, director of community health services at The Medical Center. "But I had thought for a while that there were many people in Princeton who were either hesitant to come forward or who weren't able to get to Trenton to apply."

A family of two can earn as much as $12,099 and still be eligible for WIC benefits; a family of four can earn $18,315. For additional information on the program, call 989-3325 or 989-3483.

90 GRADUATE

From Princeton Day School. Ninety seniors, 44 girls and 46 boys, were honored at Princeton Day School's 19th commencement exercises held on the Colross lawn last Sunday afternoon. Eighteen of the graduates were elected to the National Cum Laude Society, nine of them in their junior year.

The Right Rev. G.P. Mellick Belshaw, Bishop of New Jersey and father of one of the seniors, gave the invocation and benediction. The commencement address was given by The Rev. F. Washington Jarvis, headmaster of the Roxbury Latin

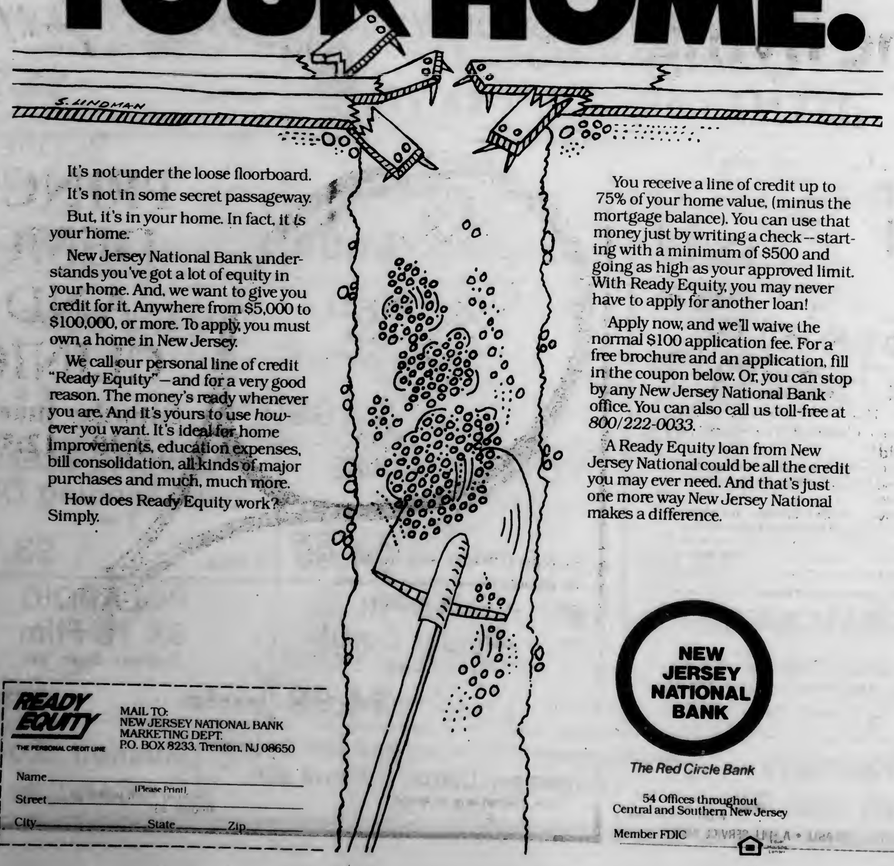
26 GRADUATE

From Chapin Sunday. Twenty-six members of the Class of 1984 received diplomas from Chapin School's board president Daniel E. Cullen of Princeton at the school's 52nd graduation Sunday in the school auditorium.

Receiving special awards were: Paul Tarantino of West Windsor and Vikki Hultquist of Yardley, the Sports Award for outstanding participation and sportsmanship; James Rodewald of Rocky Hill, the Mildred Brown Reading Award for outstanding progress; James Green and Timothy Case, the Roberts History Prize for curiosity, effort, and outstanding performance in social studies; and Mark Macaulay, the Kim Procaccino Arts Award for enthusiasm and originality in the arts program. James Rodewald was presented with a special citizenship award, and Eric Levin of Yardley received a new award for intellectual curiosity.



The Chapin Parents' Association Community Award was presented to Lincoln Kaji of Yardley for participating enthusiastically and making significant contributions to the Chapin community, and James Green received the Trustees' Award, recognizing his outstanding attitude and conduct.

The Frances Chapin Award, the school's highest honor, "given in memory of Mrs. Frances Chapin to a member of the graduating class whose high academic standing and positive spirit best exemplify the ideals of the founder of the school," was presented to Timothy Case.

$5,000-$100,000 IS BURIED IN YOUR HOME.

It's not under the loose floorboard.

It's not in some secret passageway.

But, it's in your home. In fact, it is your home.

New Jersey National Bank understands you've got a lot of equity in your home. And, we want to give you credit for it. Anywhere from $5,000 to $100,000, or more. To apply, you must own a home in New Jersey.

We call our personal line of credit "Ready Equity"—and for a very good reason. The money's ready whenever you are. And it's yours to use however you want. It's ideal for home improvements, education expenses, bill consolidation, all kinds of major purchases and much, much more.

How does Ready Equity work? Simply.

You receive a line of credit up to 75% of your home value, (minus the mortgage balance). You can use that money just by writing a check—starting with a minimum of $500 and going as high as your approved limit. With Ready Equity, you may never have to apply for another loan!

Apply now, and we'll waive the normal $100 application fee. For a free brochure and an application, fill in the coupon below. Or, you can stop by any New Jersey National Bank office. You can also call us toll-free at 800/222-0033.

A Ready Equity loan from New Jersey National could be all the credit you may ever need. And that's just one more way New Jersey National makes a difference.

EXERCISES HELD

At Hun School. Seven Princeton residents—Quincey Boye, Samuel Farmer, Paul Greco, Kristin Holzer, Susan Kidder, Kenneth Kirschner, and Michael Kustrup—were among 40 eighth graders who participated in Middle School Closing Exercises at The Hun School.

Recipients of departmental awards were Samuel Farmer, Spanish Prize; Paul Greco, Athletic Prize; Kristin Holzer, English and Advanced French Prizes; Susan Kidder, Music Prize, and Kenneth Kirschner, Drama and Latin Prizes. Susan Kidder also received the Mary Jane LaPorte Award for Exemplary Spirit of Honor, Citizenship and Loyalty.

HARVEY COX HERE

To Give Talk. Dr. Harvey G. Cox, professor of religion at the Harvard Divinity School, will speak in Princeton on Monday, June 18, at 8 p.m. in McCormick Hall (Art Museum) on the Princeton University campus.

The topic of his address will be "The Humanities and Moral Reasoning." The public is invited.

Dr. Cox has taught at the Harvard Divinity School since 1965, and teaches also in the core curriculum for Harvard University undergraduates and at the Baptist Seminary in Mexico. His latest book, "Religion in the Secular City," has been published recently. His earlier books include "The Seduction of the Spirit," "Turning East," and "Just As I Am."

Harvey G. Cox

Dr. Cox is speaking under the auspices of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation with the cooperation of the Princeton Department of History and the Council of the Humanities. His talk will be the opening event in the Workshop on Interpreting the Humanities being administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation with a program grant from the Lilly Endowment.

The Workshop brings together 30 college teachers of the humanities from throughout the country, under the direction of Dr. Tamar March, Associate Provost of Hobart and William Smith Colleges, and other eminent guest scholars. Together, the group will rethink the nature of the humanistic disciplines and seek to establish a context for humanistic learning that can be shared with students.

FILMMAKER HERE

To Talk of New Venture. Meg Switzgable, whose 1981 documentary, "In Our Water," won numerous awards, is planning a new work further exploring the problems of industrial pollution in New Jersey.

As part of a fund raising effort for a film to be called "Passing through Linden," she will meet with invited guests Sunday, June 17, at 3:30 at the Mansion in Constitution Hill. With her will be colleagues Tom Brown, the producer, a former executive with Francis Ford Coppola's Studios, and Paul Brodeur, a

Employer Tax Break

New Jersey employers who hire temporary help this summer may be able to take a tax write-off if the employees are between 16 and 18 and come from low-income households.

Under the targeted jobs summer youth credit, employers may be able to reduce their taxes by as much as $2,550 or 85 percent of up to the first $3,000 in wages paid to each first-time employee who is on the payroll for 90 days between May 1 and September 15.

The employees must be certified by a designated local agency as being a member of a family whose income is 70 percent or less of the "lower living standard" of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Other targeted job credits can also be taken for employees who fall into several other economically disadvantaged categories. For further information, call the IRS toll free at 800-424-1040.

MAJOR GIFT GIVEN

To University. The Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies has given Princeton University $300,000 for Princeton's new molecular biology program. The gift is the largest that the New Brunswick - based health care firm has ever made to Princeton.

One of the primary uses of the Johnson & Johnson funds will be to help equip a chemistry synthesis laboratory with sophisticated instruments. The laboratory will be located in the new molecular biology building now under construction on the Princeton campus.

The chemistry synthesis laboratory will contain an array of machines needed to produce customized bits of protein and segments of DNA for use by scientists in their research.

With 500 square feet of floor space, the laboratory will serve as a central facility for producing these specially tailored molecules. Princeton faculty from a number of departments in the life sciences, scientists from industry, and faculty from other academic institutions will be able to place orders for specific types of DNA and protein from the synthesis lab.

"These machines are very expensive, and the Johnson & Johnson gift will be enormously helpful," said Prof. Thomas Shenk, who together with Prof. Arnold Levine, has been a principal designer of Princeton's molecular biology program. Both will join Princeton's program ths summer.

SUPPORT GROUP MEETS

Topic Is Benefits. Marion Mussomeli, supervising advocate at the Mercer County Office of the Community Health Law Project, will discuss social security disability benefits, S.S.I., other entitlement programs, and the super-structure of federal funding and aid at a meeting of the Mercer Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

The private, non-profit family support/advocacy group will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, June 18, at AAMH headquarters, 145 Witherspoon Street.

For more information, call 799-1399 or 924-6469.

It's Yours. Motorists whose current driver licenses are expiring can now obtain the new photo license without waiting to be selected. Under the original system, only those selected each month could receive a photo license. However, they proved so popular that they will now be available to anyone whose license is up for renewal.

New Jersey is currently switching from two-year paper licenses to four-year photo licenses. The conversion is scheduled to take four years.

Area residents who want the new license should take their renewal notice to the motor vehicle agency on Route 1 and Baker's Basin. Cost is $17.50.

DOG OBEDIENCE

Is Library Topic. A dog obedience course will be offered Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 at the South Brunswick Public Library, from June 21 through August 2. The first class will be an introductory lesson, and it will be possible to register for this class alone or for the entire course.

Interested persons are advised to register as soon as possible, as class size will be limited. There will be a registration fee of $2 for the introductory class and $20 for the entire course.

tion to compensate for the strain imposed by the slant of the roadway's shoulder. He felt that the option should be left up to the runner and not legislated. He also objected to the provision calling for running single file.

Homer Zink, who said he had been running in Princeton for 30 years without much of a problem, questioned whether there really was a problem. Mr. Zink suggested that the ordinance be tabled permanently. Margaret Fels, 151 Cedar Lane, endorsed wearing orange after dark and agreed that listening to a walkman while running was not sensible, but said she did not think an ordinance was "the right way to go.

'You are dealing with highly educable, sensible people," she said. "Jogging in Princeton is wonderful, and this ordinance would ruin a really wonderful thing."

The affordable housing ordinance came in for another round of criticism by residents. Prof. Steve Slaby, Ewing Street, called the ordinance "a dangerous calling into question the reasonableness of our township codes." The arrangements are not workable, Prof. Slaby said, and it is "doubtful" any low and moderate income housing would result.

Instead, he charged, the township would become a "denser golden ghetto" and outside developers and landowners would be the ones to benefit. Prof. Slaby also criticized the concept of the housing trust as bringing into being "yet another body and staff to be the intensive watchdog of this complicated ordinance."

"We can't permit ourselves to be stampeded by outside developers" to the detriment of water quality, air quality, traffic, streets, schools and sewers, he said. Prof. Slaby urged tabling of the ordinance to permit study of further ways of accomplishing its aims. "If it is not tabled, there will be suits by citizens," he warned.

Karen Slaby, his wife and executive director of the Princeton Housing Authority, said there had been no contact made to her agency from the housing consultants. She suggested that the Authority already has the legal authority and experience that the housing trust will need. She said that accessibility to services is a very important factor in siting low cost housing and asked whether the developer will make that a primary concern.

Laura Goldfeld told Committee that the League of Women Voters, a longtime participant in Princeton's study of affordable housing ways and means, "can not in good conscience support this ordinance." Although the League agrees with the consultant's plan, she said, "there are too many unanswered questions."

One oft-repeated question concerns the impact of the ordinance on the environment. Alan Mallach, housing consultant responsible with John Nolon for the plan, said that "the same environmental regulations would obtain as with any other development." He added, "I consider the ordinance environmentally considerate to a fault. This ordinance would provide low density overall development and more open space than any other case. The ordinance goes a very long distance to provide optimal environmental conditions."

Mr. Mallach asserted, as did Mr. Nolon last week, that "tightly clustered townhouses of the sort that will be triggered by this ordinance are substantially less environmentally damaging than the large lot, single family dwelling plans that result in a sprawl of streets and sewer lines." He estimated that it would cost from $15 million to $25 million in direct subsidy if the Township were to decide to meet its Mt. Laurel quota by simply building 600 units and renovating another 100.

A byproduct of that alternative, he said, would be expensive market housing on one hand and low cost housing on the other and nothing in the middle, given Princeton's current zoning system. The consultants were asked to consider housing across the whole spectrum.

Mandatory set asides, in Mr. Mallach's view, would make for "comparably higher densities and more upward movement in land costs" than would the voluntary program under discussion. Mayor Pike told the audience that "we are horribly vulnerable" with the alternative to an ordinance letting the judge decide the densities. "We don't have the luxury of time," he warned. "Mt. Laurel is holding a gun to our head."

Township Committee agreed to a suggestion from the Environmental Commission that an environmental lawyer be added to the legal staff defending the Township in the Mt. Laurel suit brought by Calton Homes. Mayor Pike pointed out that $50,000 had already been set aside for Mt. Laurel and it might be necessary to ask for an additional emergency appropriation. Committeeman William Cherry talked of "passing the hat" to people "deeply interested in the environment."

—Barbara L. Johnson

NEW SUBCOMMITTEE SET

By Council. A Borough Council subcommittee has been formed to review the township's affordable housing ordinance and the Mallach-Nolon Report on low and moderate income housing. The committee will determine the applicability to the borough of both documents' recommendations. Members are Richard Woodbridge, John Huntoon and Jane Terpstra.

The committee was asked by Mayor Sigmund to integrate into its findings suggestions from the Borough's own Affordable Housing report. It is expected to come up with its recommendations by the end of June.

Committee member Richard Woodbridge noted the amount of criticism on density expressed in letters to the newspapers. Since the borough is ten times denser than the township, he said, we need to look critically to see how much of the township report can be translated to the borough.

"We must all ask the same basic question," said Mr. Woodbridge. "What sort of ordinance and other projects can we get involved with to meet Mount Laurel obligations as well as the best interests of the town?"

Degrees and Diplomas Awarded to Princeton Area Residents

Burt J. Totaro, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burt Totaro, 64 Winfield Road, graduated magna cum laude from Princeton University. At age 16, Mr. Totaro is the youngest graduate of the class of 1984, and one of the youngest graduates in the university's history.

Mr. Totaro, who entered the university at the age of 13 after completing his high school studies at the Moorestown Regional High School in Moorestown, N.J., majored in mathematics. He will begin graduate study in September at the University of California, Berkeley, and expects to specialize in differential geometry.

Among the honors that came to him during his senior year at the university were membership in Sigma Xi, the national scientific research society, and induction into Phi Beta Kappa. He was also awarded a New Jersey Garden State Graduate Fellowship and a Regents Fellowship from the University of California at Berkeley.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

WATCH YOUR SCALE!!
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates
And we don't mean your weight!! June is the time for scale insects who settle down sucking plant juices causing damage to trees, shrubs and other vegetative life. During the crawling stage, before they have encased themselves in an armor-like covering, they are the most vulnerable. Not all scale insects crawl at the same time, but a great number of them do during June and July. Spray with a good contact insecticide; two applications 10 to 14 days apart are usually necessary.
Scale insects come in different colors, various shapes. A Juniper scale looks like a tiny fried egg ... white with a yellow center. Rhododendron scale is tan in color, almost circular in shape and infests both leaf and stem. The scale on the holly is hard, round, dark gray with an orange center. Yew scale is soft, looks like a gumdrop on a twig. Pine needle scale is white and elongated.
As with other tree and plant pests, WOODWINDS (924-3500) reminds the homeowner that any weakening caused by scale can be combatted with deep root feeding to encourage new and vigorous growth. Call us at any time with your tree and shrub problems.

Louise D. Townsend, daughter of Janet and Charles Townsend, 145 Hickory Court, was awarded the annual John Day Memorial Prize for outstanding work in the field of Ancient Greek at Barnard College. She is a graduate of Princeton High School and is majoring in Hellenic Studies at Barnard.

Dr. Joseph N. Frank, a literary scholar and biographer of the Russian novelist Feyodor Dostoevsky, has been named the first incumbent of a new Princeton University professorship honoring the Class of 1926.

A member of the Princeton faculty since 1966, Prof. Frank is the author of a projected five-volume biography of Dostoevsky. His first volume, "Dostoevsky: The Seeds of Revolt, 1821-1849," published by Princeton University Press in 1977, won the Christian Gauss Award for Literary Criticism of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa. It was also awarded the James Russell Lowell prize of the Modern Language Association and was a finalist for a National Book Award.

The critically acclaimed second volume, "Dostoevsky: The Years of Ordeal, 1850-1859," was published by Princeton in January 1984.

Frank is also author of "The Widening Gyre: Crisis and Mastery in Modern Literature," a 1963 Rutgers University Press volume on such writers as Eliot, Pound, Joyce and Malraux. His numerous articles and critical essays include the seminal "Spatial Form in Modern Literature." First published in 1945, this pathbreaking essay on literary narrative offered a new method of approaching the anomalies and other problems of the avant-garde literature of the time.

Prof. Frank attended New York University, the University of Wisconsin and the University of Paris and received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1960. Supported by a Guggenheim Fellowship, he began his teaching career at Princeton in 1954 as Christian Gauss Lecturer. In 1958 he was appointed an assistant professor at the University of Minnesota and in 1961 joined the faculty of Rutgers University as an associate professor.

He returned to Princeton as a professor in 1966. In addition to his teaching duties in the Department of Comparative Literature he has served for 18 years as director of the Christian Gauss Seminars in Criticism, an office previously held by the late Richard P. Blackmur, the eminent critic.

The new Class of 1926 Professorship is made possible by an anonymous gift to A Campaign for Princeton, the university's $330-million fund-raising effort, and is the 17th endowed chair to be established as a result of the Campaign.

Lynne Marta, daughter of George and Ruth Marta of Princeton, has joined Broadcast Music, Inc. (BMI) as a songwriter affiliate.

A vocalist as well as a writer, Ms. Marta has sung commercial jingles and worked as a back-up singer for Glen Campbell and David Soul. She also has credits as an actress. Ms. Marta recently completed five months as Charlene Higgens on the daytime serial "Days of Our Lives" and can be seen in the Paramount motion picture "Footloose."

Ms. Marta co-wrote "Nobody Loves You Quite Like You Do," a song she also sang when it was featured in episodes of both "Starsky and Hutch" and "Charlie's Angels." She collaborated with Amanda McBroom on "Look What Loving You Has Done to Me," which she recorded for the TV movie "Jealousy."

events and usher at College functions such as commencement. They also treat ailing students at the student health clinic to ice cream, publish a widely-used campus calendar and sponsor departmental coffee hours.

Miss Varney is a 1982 graduate of Princeton High School.

Twelve area residents who are faculty members of Rutgers University have received promotions.

In Princeton, they are, Christopher Barbrack, 264 Dodds Lane, associate professor of School Psychology at the Graduate School of Applied and Professional Psychology; David R. Harrington, Linden Avenue, professor of Physics, Faculty of Arts and Sciences; Lawrence Houston, 459 Walnut Lane, professor of Africana Studies, Faculty of Arts and Sciences; Stephen Isied, Millstone River Apartments, professor of Chemistry, Faculty of Arts and Sciences;

Also, Carmel Schrire, 87 Deerpath, professor of Human Ecology; English Showalter, 119 Snowden Lane, professor II of French, Faculty of Arts and Sciences; William Steiger, 87 Deerpath, professor of Computer Science, Faculty of Arts and Sciences; Robert L. Tate, III, Old Georgetown Road, associate professor of Soils and Crops; and Susan Wolfson, 15 Glenview Drive, associate professor of English, Faculty of Arts and Sciences;

In Lawrenceville, Douglas H. Jones, 10 Trafalgar Court, associate professor, Graduate School of Management (reappointed with tenure); in Princeton Junction, Michael Aizenman, 17 Wellington Drive, professor of Mathematics, Faculty of Arts and Sciences; and in Belle Mead, David R. Mears, East Mountain Road, professor II of Biological and Agricultural Engineering.

Richard T. T. Forman, Cedar Lane, professor of botany at Rutgers University and director of the Hutcheson Memorial Forest, received the Lindback Award for Excellence in Teaching at ceremonies at the home of Rutgers President Edward Bloustein.

The award was made "in recognition of his sustained record of teaching excellence at the undergraduate and graduate levels at Rutgers for more than a decade and a half and his leadership in the development of the Hutcheson Memorial Forest as an ecological preserve for research and instruction." The award carries a cash prize of $500.

Professor Forman is editor of the Academic Press volume Pine Barrens: Ecosystem and Landscape. He has served as president of the Torrey Botanical Club and is presently vice president of the International Association for Landscape Ecology.

Two area residents have been named to the Dean's List for the spring 1984 semester at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa. They are Peter D. Cripps, 9 Coventry Circle, and Lauren E. Albert, 30 Parkhill Terrace, Princeton Junction.

Five area residents have received grants-in-aid from the New Jersey Historical Commission, which has awarded $30,111 in such grants for projects to advance public knowledge of the history of the state.

They are, Randall H. Balmer, 59 Edgehill Street, William H. Choi, 25 Madison Street, and Roger H. McDonough, 43 Bainbridge Street, Hamilton Stillwell, 222 King George Road, Pennington; and Concetta A. Chiacchio, 58 Merritt Drive, Lawrenceville.

Randall Balmer is visiting lecturer in the Religion Department of Rutgers University and bibliographer of Princeton University's project on Church-State. His project, "The Dutch Exodus from New York to New Jersey circa 1700," explores the religious dimensions of this large-scale Dutch migration and its effect on Dutch cultural patterns and institutions.

William Choi is chief photographer for the Princeton Weekly Bulletin. His project, "American Roadway: US Route 1 in New Jersey," is a photographic essay that chronicles the New Jersey portion of Route 1, one of America's oldest highways.

Roger McDonough, government relations consultant to the New Jersey Library Association, served for 28 years as State Librarian. He will develop "A History of the New Jersey Libraries," which will involve preparing a definitive history of the state's libraries from colonial times to today.

Hamilton Stillwell is a professor emeritus of Rutgers University. His research into the history of the Old Tennent Church, 1890-1980, will bring up to date the Rev. R. Symmes's "The History of the Old Tennent Church" (1904).

Concetta A. Chiacchio is curriculum consultant for Hamilton Township's Gifted and Talented Program. Her project, "Talkies Come to Kuser Farm," will involve 20 gifted and talented fourth and fifth graders in developing and producing a videotaped play for a classroom audience of peers.

The play's theme will be based on persons and incidents in New Jersey history and will be inspired by a historic site in the community.

TRENTON STATE HONORS PRINCETON RESIDENT: Dr. Jonathan Thomas, 140 Jefferson Road, (center), has been honored at a retirement reception at Trenton State College. Following a tribute from the dean of arts and sciences, a color photograph of Green Hall was presented to Dr. Thomas in recognition of his 19 years of service as professor of English by Dr. Harold Eickhoff, TSC president.

MINDING THE STORE: While her mother, Dorothy Marsh, right, is away in Guatemala with the Peace Corps, Dana Widmann, her daughter will be in charge of Polly's Fine Candies on Palmer Square. Dana has just graduated from Rutgers.

BUSINESS

OWNER TO PEACE CORPS

Daughter in Charge. Dorothy Marsh, owner of Polly's Fine Candy on Palmer Square, will leave this month for Guatemala on a two-year commitment in the Peace Corps. Her daughter, Dana Widmann, will manage the store in her absence.

Ms. Marsh is a registered nurse who has been managing Polly's while working as a private duty nurse at Princeton Medical Center. In Guatemala she will work with Guatemalan health workers to expand health service in rural areas.

Ms. Marsh purchased Polly's Fine Candy from Polly Lyon in September, 1978. At that time she was living and working in Los Angeles. The store was managed by another woman until she decided to move to Princeton in July, 1980.

Ms. Marsh has been active in the Chamber of Commerce and the Princeton Borough Retail Merchants Association.

Ms. Widmann graduated from Rutgers University this May. She moved from New York City to Princeton three years ago and is also originally from Los Angeles. She has been doing the display windows for Polly's during the past four years and been learning the business while finishing her college education.

COMPARABLE WORTH

Is Chamber Topic. Comparable worth, which is shaping up as one of the most controversial civil rights issues of the 80's, will be the topic of a special Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting at the Nassau Inn on Thursday, June 21, beginning at noon.

Guest speaker will be Pamela Poff, director of the New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Civil Rights. Her talk is entitled "Comparable Worth and its Implications for the Employer."

For reservations call 921-7676. Cost is $8 per person.

BANK BRANCH OPENS

In Forrestal Center. Princeton Bank's newest branch office is now open at 500 College Road East, Plainsboro. This office has been planned since the bank moved its administrative headquarters to Forrestal Center.

Marie Bahr, assistant vice president, has been named manager of the new branch.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Dr. Sharon R. Powell, partner in Princeton Psychological Associates, has been appointed leadership development consultant to the Girl Scouts of the USA. Dr. Powell, who is also director of the Peer Leadership Training Program at Princeton Day School, will conduct a leadership development institute for the Girl Scout organization at the Edith Macy Conference Center in New York on June 19-22.

RELIGION

BULLETIN NOTES

The Princeton Alliance Church will sponsor a film series designed to strengthen family life. The series will be shown in the Princeton High School auditorium, starting Sunday, June 17, at 9:30 a.m.

The films are those made by Dr. James Dobson, an authority on family relationships, who is shown in each film. The first deals with "The strong willed child," and will be followed on Sunday, June 24, with "Shaping the will without breaking the spirit." The series will be interspersed with discussion forums led by Dr. Carlton James, assistant professor of psychology at Rutgers University.

For further information call the church office at 452-7756.

Kenneth Glover, singing missionary, and his group of young "crusaders for Christ," will appear in concert Saturday, June 16, at 7:30 at John Witherspoon School. The concert is presented by the combined choirs of the First Baptist Church.

The donation is $7 in advance and $8 at the door.

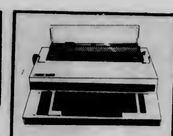
Nassau Presbyterian Church, which has been holding a single service of worship on Sunday mornings, will move to two services in the fall. The decision by the Session, or ruling body of the church, was prompted by the fact that the church is often packed to overflowing on Sunday mornings.

Starting September 9, there will be a worship service at 9:30 and again at 11, with coffee fellowship at 10:30 and again at 12. There will be adults clases, a crib room and toddler care during each worship service. Children age 3 to grade 5 will spend the first 15 minutes of the earlier service in the sanctuary before leaving for their church school classes.

Junior highs and senior highs will also meet from 9:30 to 10:30. Preschool class for 3 and 4 year olds will be held at 11.

The guest preacher in the summer series of chancel services in the Princeton University Chapel Sunday at 10 a.m. will be the Rev. Dennis L. Tarr, dean of the center city campus and lecturer in international politics at Temple University, Philadelphia.

Mr. Tarr was graduated from the University of Redlands, Princeton Theological Seminary, and the University of Syracuse. He maintains a full Sunday schedule as interim preacher in various churches and is active on educational boards and commissions. His sermon topic will be "God Is a Runner."



Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church will hold a Father's Day Roast Beef Dinner Sunday, June 17, at 1:30 p.m. at the church at 170 Witherspoon Street.

The donation is $7 for adults and $5 for children under 12.

Beginning Sunday, June 17, the Kingston Presbyterian Church will hold its regular Sunday worship service at 10 Sunday mornings.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Sunday, June 24, with the Rev. Dr. David Crawford preaching the sermon.

OBITUARIES

John E. Cornell of Monroe Lane died June 11 at Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Brooklyn, he had lived in Princeton for 25 years. Mr. Cornell was a graduate of Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory School and Princeton University, Class of 1945. He was an Army veteran of World War II and a 30-year employee of the Civil Service Commission in the State of New Jersey. At his retirement four years ago, he held the position of director, Personnel Management.

He was a member of the Pacific Southern Model Railroad Association.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie F. Cornell; two daughters, Patricia Haring of Boston, Mass. and Martha C. Robertson of Princeton; a son, David E. Cornell of Pennington; a brother, Herbert H. Cornell of West Newbury, Mass.; his stepmother, Sophie Cornell of Tappan, N.Y.; and a stepsister, Estelle Moorhead of Memphis, Tenn.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, June 16, at 3 at Nassau Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Cynthia A. Jarvis, associate pastor, officiating. Private burial will be in Cutchogue, Long Island, N.Y. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory School, 92nd Street and 7th Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11228, or to Nassau Presbyterian Church, 61 Nassau Street, Princeton 08542.

Theresa M. Redding, 86, a longtime Princeton resident, died June 7 at the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center, following a lengthy illness.

Born in Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Redding had lived in Princeton for more than 60 years. She was a member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Forked River Tuna Club.

Wife of the late Joseph J. Redding, the co-founder of J.B. Redding and Son of Princeton, she is survived by a daughter, Alma R. Field of Princeton; five grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church with burial in the parish cemetery. Arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be made to The Medical Center at Princeton Foundation, Princeton 08540, or to the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, PO Box 529, Princeton 08542.

Elizabeth Hoffman Winkler, 71, of Pennington, died June 9 at Princeton Medical Center as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Pennington earlier in the day.

Born in Hamilton, Mrs. Winkler had lived in the Pennington area for 62 years. She was a member of St. James Roman Catholic Church and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Pennington Volunteer Fire Co. Prior to her retirement, she had worked for Cointreau Ltd. of Lawrenceville.

Survivors include her husband, George Winkler; two sisters, Marie Harding of Bayonne and Katherine Kamrad of Pennington; and several nieces and nephews and grandnieces and grandnephews.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. James Roman Catholic Church, Pennington, with burial in Our Lady of Lourdes Cemetery, Trenton.

Christopher D. Camarota, 21, of Princeton Junction, died June 10 at Princeton Medical Center of natural causes.

Born in Philadelphia, Mr. Camarota had lived in Princeton Junction for the past 10 years. He was a 1982 graduate of West Windsor-Plainsboro High School and had been employed for the past two years with Sarstedt Inc. of Princeton.

Son of the late Matthew Camarota, he is survived by his mother, Elizabeth Camarota, with whom he lived; a sister, Julie Camarota of Hamilton; two brothers, Matthew Jr. and Steven Camarota, both at home; and his maternal grandmother, Mary E. Pescrille of Levittown, Pa..

The funeral will be Thursday, June 14, at 8:45 a.m. from the Kimble Funeral Home, 1 Hamilton Avenue. Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. Burial will follow in Princeton Cemetery.

Friends may call this Wednesday, June 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the funeral home, where Christian Wake services will be held. Memorial contributions may be made to the Twin W First Aid and Rescue Squad, Princeton Junction, 08550.

June Ray, 67, of Elm Ridge Park, Hopewell Township, died June 10 at Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Philadelphia, Mrs. Ray had lived in Hopewell Township for the past 13 years. She was a registered nurse who received her training at Cooper Hospital in Camden. She was a member of the Hopewell Valley Golf Club and the Nine-holers.

Surviving are her husband, Frederick E. Ray; a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Ann Ray of Big Sur, Calif.; a son, Frederick H. Ray of Chalfonte, Pa.; five grandchildren; two sisters, Sally Berg of Pompton Plains and Barbara Kean of Timonium, Md.; and a brother, Saunders Craige of Little Silver.

Friends may call at the Ray home. 59 West Shore Drive, Wednesday evening, June 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Carroll S. Moore Jr., 64, of Merritt Drive, Lawrenceville, died June 4 as a result of an automobile accident.

Born in Fort Worth, Tex., Mr. Moore had lived in this area since 1937. He was a graduate of The Hill School in Pottstown, Pa., and Princeton University, Class of 1941. He was associated with Opinion Research Corp of Princeton and was executive director of the Delaware Valley United Fund, retiring in 1976. He was also director of development at Mercer Medical Center for several years.

An Army Air Corps veteran of World War II, he was a member of the Trenton Rotary Club and the Trenton Symposium. He was a ranking player in the Senior Division of the U.S. Tennis Association.

Father of the late Mary L. Moore, he is survived by his wife, Mary D'Agostino Moore; a daughter, Deborah M. Krulewitch, and a grandson, David M. Krulewitch, both of New York City.

The service was held at the Princeton University Chapel, the Rev. Dr. John W. Nelson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Trenton, officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Trenton.

Memorial contributions may be made to Princeton University, Class of 1941 Memorial Fund, Box 46, Princeton, 08544.

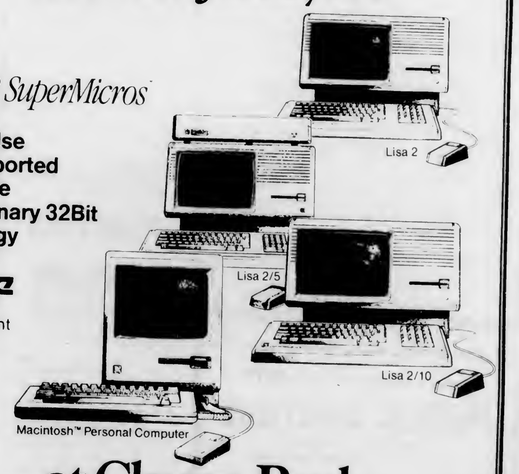
Frank A. Meyer, 71, of Fairview Road, Skillman, died June 4 at his home.

Born in the Bronx, N.Y., Mr. Meyer had lived in Skillman more than 12 years. A Navy veteran of World War II, he was employed at the Duke Gardens in Somerville.

Surviving are a son, Frank E. Meyer of Woodside, N.Y.; four brothers, William of Massachusetts, Joseph of Westbury, N.Y., and Edward and Alfred Meyer of California; a sister, Anna DiMarzi of Westbury; and four grandchildren.

The service was held in a Hopewell memorial home, with burial in Highland Cemetery.

MEMORIAL SERVICE SET



For Mrs. Mitchell. A memorial service for Mrs. Arthur H. Mitchell, a resident of Princeton for a half-century, will be held in Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 21. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Richard A. Bower.

Mrs. Mitchell died March 17 at the age of 101, in Meadow Lakes Infirmary, Hightstown. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Frederick S. Osborne, of Philadelphia, Pa., formerly of Princeton, Mrs. Harold A. Beatty, of Washington, D.C., and Key West, Fla., and Mrs. Mitchell Dielhenn, of Columbia, Md., formerly of Princeton.

New Jersey is driving to STS

More and more New Jerseyans are driving to STS for all their car care needs. We're delighted but not surprised. We're an employee-owned company – so our managers and mechanics have a special stake in doing the job right. And as we've believed all along: If you give better service, charge fair prices and do great work, you're going to win over New Jersey.

Drive to STS for tune-ups and tires, batteries and brakes, wheel alignment, front-end work, shocks –whatever it takes to keep your car running smoothly.

STS SOMERSET TIRE SERVICE

We guarantee: We're going to win you over, too.

Drive to your nearest STS.

WEST WINDSOR

This five bedroom home near schools and train shares all our wishes for sunny days when the pool in the large fenced backyard can be enjoyed and, if necessary, the air conditioning can keep the inside comfortable. A living room, dining room, eat-in kitchen, family room with fireplace, bedroom or study, half bath and laundry are on the first floor. Upstairs there are three bedrooms, a full bath, and a master bedroom suite which includes an extra large closet, dressing area, and tile shower bath. A two-car attached garage, a full dry basement and some very nice carpeting add even more to this desirable property. $195,000

CLEVELAND LANE

So Rare to find an interesting Contemporary house in a Western Borough location. The exterior is stone, glass, and mellow wood all set on a three quarter acre lot and a lovely garden, box bushes, and a very private backyard. The interior plan, all on one floor, has a slate floor entry hall; open living room with unique free standing fireplace; dining room; convenient kitchen; pantry; laundry; maid's room; powder room; study and den; plus four bedrooms and three baths. Air conditioning, two-car garage. $355,000

PROSPECT

Privacy! Nestled among tall pines is a charming brick ranch on a sloping lot. The house has a spacious foyer, step-down living room with fireplace, dining room, den, screened porch, updated kitchen with JennAir stove, three bedrooms, and two baths. The lower level features a playroom with sliding glass doors, two-car garage, laundry room, workshop, and a large storage room with closet. Immediate occupancy. $197,500

WESTERN SECTION - PRINCETON TOWNSHIP

On an acre lot just off The Great Road, we are planning a spec house with one of Princeton's most reputable builders of traditionally designed houses. We have a plan with four bedrooms, a spacious family room, deck, etc., but you may want to add your own custom features or perhaps your own complete design. Let us arrange a conference with the builder and go from there.

RIDGEVIEW ROAD

Delightfully secluded on ten acres a carefully designed Contemporary with loads of interesting features. Flagstone entry; living room 16 x 22 with an expanse of glass on one wall, fireplace, and wet bar; library with bookcases; separate dining room; convenient kitchen; master suite with woodburning stove, large dressing area and bath; plus two other bedrooms and bath. Finished basement room, carport, patios, fish pond. $325,000

DUFFIELD PLACE

For convenience and comfort, see this 12 year old Colonial on this quiet Princeton Township cul-de-sac. The entry hall leads to formal living and dining rooms. The kitchen is large with breakfast area and sliding doors to a patio. Off the kitchen there is a spacious panelled family room with fireplace. Upstairs five good bedrooms and three baths. Full basement, walk-up attic, first-floor powder room, two-car garage, central air. Walking distance to community pool and tennis courts and about three minutes driving time to Palmer Square. SECONDARY MORTGAGE FINANCING AVAILABLE TO QUALIFIED BUYER - $25,000 FOR 5 YEARS AT 11%. $205,000

KINGSTON ROAD

The Old and the New are perfectly combined in this Traditional Cape Cod which has been updated with loads of contemporary features. The first floor living space includes a spacious living room with fireplace; dining room with chairrail; study; bedroom; new bath; plus a complete new kitchen with Jennair Grill and microwave oven. Upstairs, there is a master bedroom with a new bath with Jacuzzi tub and a second bedroom also with a new bath. The grounds are beautifully maintained and include a completely fenced backyard with new inground pool and shaded bluestone patio for private outdoor living. Two-car garage. $265,000

THE FIRESTONE ADVANTAGE: A TOUCH OF CLASS!

CONTEMPORARY MASTERPIECE IN PRINCETON...When your idea of perfection is a contemporary masterpiece with dramatic glass walled views of the changing seasons and soaring interior spaces, our new listing is your dream house! Designed by noted Princeton architect J. Robert Hillier, this impressive home on a wooded cul-de-sac has an elegant tiled entry foyer, dramatic cathedral ceilinged living room with fireplace, formal dining room, elegant first floor master suite with study and his and her baths, family room with fireplace, gourmet kitchen, half-court basketball or game room, and sauna. If your turn has come to own the dream, let us tell you more about this truly one-of-a-kind contemporary. $625,000

NEW LISTING: EXQUISITE CAPE COD IN PRINCETON'S WESTERN SECTION. The charming Cape Cod design is almost everyone's favorite. Our new listing in Princeton's prestigious Brookstone Drive area offers so much; a wonderfully private wooded setting, yet so close to McCarter Theater and cultural events, the University, and the best Princeton shops. You'll love all the special features! Just a few: Entry foyer, spacious living room with fireplace and French doors leading to a screened porch (so perfect for entertaining), secluded brick patio, library with built-in bookcases, and formal dining room, powder room. Four bedrooms and three and one-half baths in all. Let us tell you more. $375,000

WE LOVE THE NEIGHBORHOOD! Wide lawns, spacious homes, and a wonderful location near all the excitement of Carnegie Lake sailing. (And your neighbors include some of our favorite people.) You'll love the house too: a big, beautiful Colonial with generous room sizes and a sparkling pool your family will thank you for all summer long. A new Firestone listing on Princeton's Bertrand Drive, and so affordable. $254,500

NEW LISTING IN WEST WINDSOR: Just a hop, skip, and a jump from schools for the kids and the New York train for your busy executive lifestyle! We're really excited about this spacious 5 bedroom Colonial on a wonderful corner lot. The flexible layout with large rooms includes a study or bedroom with a convenient entrance. Just some of the special features are: walk-up attic with studio room, new central air conditioning and an oversized garage! Call for more details. $165,000

OUR NEWEST LISTING in Princeton's Riverside has it all for your busy family: a wonderful neighborhood near Riverside School and Carnegie Lake, lots and lots of space inside including a large entry foyer, a wonderful mahogany-pannelled library with custom bookcases and fireplace. You'll adore the screened porch and the landscaped yard with curving brick-walled terrace. Oriental gardens surrounding the house will charm both your family and your guests. $239,000

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN. Our exciting Bayard Court Condominiums are so right for your busy lifestyle. Let others cut the grass while you play paddle tennis across the street or try out the Community Park North fitness trail. Last unit with fireplace available at $173,000. Call Firestone for appointment on freestanding units priced at $195,000.

SURPRISE, SURPRISE!

That's what you'll have when you walk into this seemingly modest split-level. Four bedrooms, 2 tiled baths, a recreation room - all make for easy family living - but the really exciting feature is the stunning new Great Room added at the rear. Cathedral ceilinged, with Mexican tiled floor and second fireplace, it opens to a state of the arts gourmet kitchen and adjacent wet bar area - and then to a formal "parlor" or dining room. A most flexible plan to fit your needs or living style!

All set high on a hillside "in the Village" of Lawrenceville on a large deep lot - but within a block of New York and local buses. Absolutely heaven for a mother who's tired of car-pooling everywhere! $155,000 in a stunning residence on six plus wooded acres. Formal entry court with miniature fruit and espaliered trees, imposing 2 story stucco home in a neo-classic design. It offers lovely, light soaring open spaces that make up the living, dining and kitchen. Air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000

A TOUCH OF CLASS

PRIME HAMILTON LOCATION

A lovely colonial featuring 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, living room, formal dining room, eat-in kitchen and adjacent family room with full width brick fireplace. Many nice extras include two fully finished basement rooms, oversize 2 car garage, central air conditioning and a partially wooded yard. Offered at $124,900

WHY BUY A TOWN HOUSE

when you can buy this pretty brick and frame ranch in Princeton Township. Living room with fireplace, formal dining room with bay window and built-in corner cupboard, newly remodeled kitchen, two large bedrooms and den or third bedroom - and a guaranteed to be dry, finished basement. Outside, there's a flagstone patio shaded by mature trees and lovely old rhododendrons. Perfect for the small family or retired couple. $169,900

PRICED LESS THAN NEW!

THE WILLIAMSBURG at ROSSMOOR, a roomy detached townhouse condominium featuring living and dining rooms, den with fireplace, Florida room, 2 bedrooms and 2½ baths. Double garage with workshop storage area. Community pool, golf, tennis, entertainment hall. Like-new condition with wall to wall carpeting, washer, dryer, refrigerator, range, and dishwasher included in the sale price. Immediate Availability!
Now $144,000

and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.

LOVER'S LANE

Not just for lovers - this is an ideal location for a family of all ages! Enhanced by azaleas, dogwood and professional landscaping, this Colonial, big and beautiful, is traditional in appearance but has some delightful surprises. A unique doorway leads to a dramatic two story foyer with a view, through the French doors of the living room, of the garden and two magnificent specimen trees, the oldest of their kind in the State. The gracious 32 foot living room lends itself to formal or casual entertaining and opens to a panelled den as well as the formal dining room. A jalousied breezeway off the eat-in kitchen is perfect for summer dining. Six bedrooms and 3½ baths. $395,000

HUN ROAD

A gently sloping hillside in Edgerstoune allows this attractive one floor house to have a lower level above ground. On street level the foyer opens to a spacious 30 foot living/dining room with fireplace, a wall of bookshelves and a windowed wall overlooking the wooded rear yard which is bordered by historic Stony Brook. Two corner bedrooms, two baths and the kitchen complete the main floor. Three bedrooms and bath and family room on the lower level. $288,000

PARDOE ROAD

Spring has come to Princeton and it is at its loveliest. In this delightful house with its happy decor, it seems to be Spring all the year round. On an exceptionally beautiful lot, professionally landscaped, on a quiet street in western Princeton it offers: hall, sunny living room with fireplace, formal dining room, sparkling white eat-in kitchen, family room, spacious bedrooms and two and one-half baths. In perfect condition and centrally air conditioned it also offers numerous other amenities. $274,000

TOWNSHIP LINE ROAD

The charm of New England has been captured in this delightful Colonial on one plus acres in Montgomery Township. The exterior shingles have weathered to that beautiful gray often brought about by the salt air of breezes from the sea. Foyer, powder room, living room with marble fireplace, formal dining room, exceptional kitchen with dining area and study on first floor. Three bedrooms, two baths and sewing room on second. Bedroom and bath on third. Lower level has family room with fireplace, playroom and workshop. $248,500

MANDON COURT
New Listing

This highly desirable Princeton Horizons upstairs condominium is conveniently located near excellent shopping and is on the New York busline. It features a tastefully decorated living room with dining area, a modern eat-in kitchen, a master bedroom with half bath, a second bedroom with hall bath and upgraded features. $82,000

LINDEN LANE

A good investment whether you rent both sides or live in one with income from the other, this brick duplex centrally located offers two units consisting of living room, dining room and kitchen on first floor, two bedrooms and bath on second. $160,000

JOSEPHINE WEBB, Executive Director of Consumer Bureau, broadcasting a Consumer Bureau announcement. Mrs. Webb personally investigates consumer complaints received by Consumer Bureau and in most cases she is able to resolve them to the satisfaction of all concerned. (For what happens to unresolved consumer complaints, see below.)

OUR PROMISE TO PRINCETON CONSUMERS:

IF YOU HAVE A COMPLAINT against any local business firm, just call 394-5700 and a Consumer Bureau representative will respond and investigate; then,

IF CONSUMER BUREAU'S ALL-CONSUMER PANEL AGREES WITH YOU, the business firm involved has only two choices: either satisfy your complaint promptly or lose its Consumer Bureau Registration.

DON'T STAY MAD at any business firm - until you first give Consumer Bureau a chance to help straighten matters out. Call (609) 394-5700 any time of any day or night and a Consumer Bureau representative will go into action. There is no charge.

A FINE GEORGIAN MANOR HOME

2 Elm Road, Princeton

We are pleased to present for your personal consideration one of Princeton's finest Georgian Manor Homes situated on expansive, beautifully maintained grounds within walking distance of the Town and University.

Built of the finest materials, this elegant home features a spacious sunken living room with double French doors, a dramatic curved staircase, a library with hand-rubbed cherry cabinets and bookcases, and a graciously proportioned formal dining room with hand-carved marble fireplace from France. The floor plan is classic Georgian with spacious rooms off a central foyer, worthy of a statesman's penchant for formal entertaining.

The property includes a lovely circular swimming pool and a guest or pool house in the same Georgian style as the main house.

There are 3.50 beautifully landscaped acres with terraces and formal gardens, brick garden walls and iron gates. A 1.35 acre sub-divided building lot lies to the right of the main house.

All in all, a beautifully maintained, tastefully decorated estate in an incomparable Princeton location.

COLFAX

AT BEDENS BROOK

NEW CONSTRUCTION
AT COLFAX

These are just two of the beautiful new designs by exciting world-renowned architects available this very day on the exquisite COLFAX lots. Both houses will be nearing completion this summer. They are truly spectacular.

The particular blends of contemporary design with classic detail and materials contain massive 40' living rooms, with oversized brick fireplaces, enormous family/living areas with expansive foyers and hallways, four and five bedrooms, three and a half ceramic-tiled baths. A guest suite for in-laws or housekeeper is here, too. A three-car garage is also a must!

Call your nearest Henderson office for details on these R.A.M. Stern and William Thompson designs or one of many other outstanding plans available for COLFAX. Or bring your own plans for review. But do it soon. There are only nine sites still available.

At COLFAX you'll find a lovely very private cul-de-sac lined with Norway Maples and Belgium Block curbs winding its way upwards for perhaps the most spectacular views available today. Each building lot has been carefully delineated with rows of flowering dogwoods for beauty and privacy and with an eye towards nature, views and seclusion. Absolutely perfect to create your own private world.

COLFAX may well be the most beautiful place to live in the entire Princeton area. Yet COLFAX is only minutes from Nassau Street in downtown Princeton, the University, shopping, outstanding day schools and clubs. COLFAX is really part of the Princeton lifestyle.

Over 18 acres of rolling hillside have been permanently dedicated as a "Green Acres" site to remain untouched in perpetuity for the exclusive use of the COLFAX community. If you're considering Princeton as a place to live and prosper, you really must pay a visit to COLFAX!

State-Wide Celebration Underway to Honor 150th Anniversary of the Delaware and Raritan Canal

SUMMER PASTORALE: The Delaware and Raritan Canal flows by a lock keeper's house in the vicinity of Harrison Street. The view is looking north, and the arches of the Harrison Street Bridge are visible in the distance. The photo is courtesy of the Historical Society which is holding an exhibit on five canal communities in the Princeton area as part of its celebration of the 150th anniversary of the opening of the D&R Canal.

On June 25, 1834, New Jersey Governor Peter Vroom and a party of dignitaries opened the Delaware and Raritan Canal by travelling down its length by barge.

The trip from Bordentown to New Brunswick across the "waist" of New Jersey took the better part of two days, but that was considered an improvement over the old record of up to two weeks for water travel from New York to Philadelphia. The governor's barge was met by cheering crowds at every lock, bridge and basin along the route. In New Brunswick, the governor was received with a 24-gun salute, a parade and a formal dinner.

In Princeton during the heyday of the canal, activity centered at the foot of Alexander Street where there was a turning basin for the unloading of cargo to the east of the bridge and another to the west. The bridge tender, whose job it was to operate the mechanism that opened the bridge to let the barges pass through, lived in a little house close by.

The canal was completed following the merger of two interests that had long sought a cheaper, faster connection between New York and Philadelphia than the ocean route or the existing roads. In 1830, the New Jersey Legislature granted simultaneous charters to a canal company and a rail company to traverse central New Jersey.

Local Families Involved. A year later the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company merged with the Camden and Amboy Railroad and Transportation Company. Commonly called the "Joint Companies," they were business interests of Robert Field Stockton and his father-in-law John Potter. It was Mr. Potter who contributed heavily to the building of Trinity Church after moving here from South Carolina.

Begun in 1830, but completed in 1833, a year before the canal, the Camden and South Amboy railroad tracks followed the south bank of the canal. Princeton Basin, therefore, not only included canal offices, but also a passenger station, a freight depot and a hotel. There was also a sash and blind factory, turning out windows, shutters, doors and other woodwork; a manufacturer of iron roofing, and a haypress, as well as a coalyard and lumberyard.

The D&R canal served mainly as a conduit for Pennsylvania coal destined for the furnaces of New York City. The Civil War and the industrial expansion that followed made the 1860s and 70s peak years for canal. The record year was 1871 when 2,990,000 tons — most of it coal — travelled through the canal, a tonnage said to be more than was carried in any single year on the much longer and more famous Erie Canal.

Some 14-15 houses, a few shops, several saloons and an Episcopal chapel that doubled as a schoolroom completed the Princeton Basin community.

Anniversary Celebration. Today, the canal is a source of drinking water for 22 municipalities, a 60-mile-long state park and a nationally registered historic site. Turning Basin Park is the Township's newest recreational facility.

To honor the 150th anniversary of the canal, a state-wide celebration is underway, with exhibits and commemorative talks and gatherings planned. In Princeton, the Historical Society, the Arts Council, the Recreation Department, the Sierra Club and the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association are planning special celebrations on Saturday and Sunday, June 23 and 24, at Turning Basin Park on Alexander Street.

A summary of the major activities planned follows.

• On Saturday, June 23 and 24, residents are invited to bring a picnic lunch and enjoy the many activities at the park. The Arts Council has arranged for performances by folk musicians, a Blue Grass group, square dancers, Polynesian dancers and a Johnny Appleseed puppet show. The Artisans Guild of the YWCA will have a crafts demonstration, and a display of canal celebration posters by John Witherspoon School students will be set up by the Recreation Department.

At 2, there will be the unveiling of a special Historical Society interpretive sign describing the history of the canal and the Princeton Basin area. Lewis B. Cuyler, trustee of the Historical Society, will talk about the role Princeton families (he is a descendant) played in the development of the canal and about life at the Basin during the height of its operation.

Afterwards, Creative Theatre Ltd. will give a performance of "Rousers and Roustabouts," an audience-participation play for youngsters that was created for the canal celebration and has had 26 performances in a state-wide tour.

Canoe rentals will be available that Saturday.

• On Sunday, June 24, the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association and the Central Jersey Group of the Sierra Club will have two interpretive hikes along the towpath, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The hikes will begin at Turning Basin Park and go up the towpath and back through the Institute for Advanced Study Woods and the Charles Rodgers Wildlife Refuge.

Each hike will take 2½ hours, and more information is available by calling the Watersheds Association at 737-3735.

• The West Windsor Historical Society has also planned a celebration of the 150th anniversary of the D&R Canal that weekend. On Friday evening, June 22, there will be a film about the D&R

New Theatre Will Make Debut "Off Broad Street" in Hopewell

"Our primary goal is to entertain people. To give them shows they would really like to see in an atmosphere that is congenial, confortable and friendly."

That is the basic philosophy behind the Off Broad Street Theatre in Hopewell (it's located half a block off W. Broad Street) which will open its doors for the first time on Friday, June 29. The founders, Bob and Julie Thick are confident there are enough theater patrons in the area who feel the same way they do — enough to make their venture a success.

"The idea of being able to sit comfortably at a table and watch a show whose basic quality is quite good, and above all entertaining, is very exciting," commented Mr. Thick, who, despite his 34 years, has had an extensive background in acting, singing and directing.

Presently, the Off Broad Street Theatre is a dessert-theater, but Mr. Thick reports plans to make it a full-fledged dinner-theater in the future. A selection of desserts and coffee will be served at seven, one hour before curtain time. Those who wish to bring their own wine or beer are invited to and the theater will furnish glasses and ice.

Mr. Thick reports that the theater, which has seating for 200, is nearly sold out for opening night. It will be open every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night throughout the year, although Mr. Thick allowed that probably sometime down the road it will close for a month in the summer.

There are five productions scheduled for this first "half-season", beginning with "Starting Here, Starting Now," a three-person musical review by Richard Maltby Jr. and David Shire which Mr. Thick describes as "full of songs that are charming, poignant and pointed."

"The Sunshine Boys" by Neil Simon, one of his tried and true comedies, arrives in August. Next, in September and the first week of October,

News of The THEATRES

"The Fantasticks" will be offered. It is, observed Mr. Thick, the longest running musical in the world, a whimsical and touching love story that just celebrated its 25th anniversary at New York's Sullivan Street Playhouse. Completing the year are "Angel in a Pawnshop," a mystery and suspense drama, and "Snoopy" the musical sequel to "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown."

"We try to do plays that meet the primary requirement of being entertaining, and I think the first half of the season reflects that," said Mr. Thick.

Optimistic. For an Open House a week ago, in which Bob and Julie were hoping 50 would appear, 242 signed the guest book. "We were overwhelmed with the response," said Mr. Thick, leading him to say that, at this point, he is very excited and "cautiously optimistic" about the future success of his new theater troupe.

Repeatedly, he emphasized that he was striving to keep the Off Broad Street Theatre friendly. "I want to make it a personal type of thing," said Mr. Thick, who will act as host for every performance and give a curtain speech. "We really want to get to know the patrons as friends; we just don't want their money. We want to know people's birthdays, their anniversaries ... what special groups are attending ... so we can introduce them to the audience"

Subscriptions, incidentally, for a guaranteed table for two for five shows are $100, and $176.25 for a table of four. If purchased separately, the cost would be $117.50 and $235. Single tickets to any show cost $11.75 each. Prices include dessert and coffee.

The subscription prices represent a good value, insists Mr. Thick, who performed in dinner theaters in Michigan and Chicago before moving to this area.

Next year, in its first full year of operation, the Off Broad Street Theatre will offer ten productions, including musicals, dramas, comedies and farce. "I am really interested in getting some reaction from patrons — what they would like to see," said Mr. Thick. "Everyone has tastes but I don't want to do only what I like."

A list of possible selections includes Company, Side by Side, Two by Two, George M, Man of La Mancha and Hello Dolly under musicals; Charley's Aunt, Barefoot in the Park and The Importance of Being Earnest for comedies; Lion in the Winter, Death of a Salesman and Wait Until Dark for dramas and The Miser and She Stoops to Conquer for farce.

Mr, Thick added that he hopes with the announcement of next year's season to be able to include a limited concert series for subscribers which will include Metropolitan Opera tenor Jeffrey Stamm, a close friend and former classmate at Western Michigan University.

He has also talked, he revealed, to such performers as Keely Smith, Vincent Price and pianist-singer Bobby Short about performing in Hopewell.

the Off Broad Street Theatre, Mr. Thick says he is seeking a blend of young and old, non-union professionals from New York and the surrounding area who are trying to get started in a career.

"We're trying to give those people a leg up," he said. "The Princeton area has a number of fine actors and actresses and we want to to take advantage of that as well." He invites anyone who wants to get involved to send a resume and picture to the theater, 5 South Greenwood Avenue, P.O. Box 359, Hopewell, 08525.

When a role comes up that might fit an applicant, the theater will get in touch with that person, commented Mr. Thick. "I never anticipated having open auditions; I can't listen to everybody."

Apparently, there are legions out there trying to get career experience. Mr. Thick reported that he placed a small ad for one day only in Back Stage, a New York trade paper, requesting a resume and picture from anyone interested in performing in his troupe. "I knew we were going to get a lot of replies," he recalled, "but I didn't think we were going to get 1,500."

The Off Broad Street Theatre is located, ideally, in IMPRESARIO: One who sponsors or produces entertainment, says the dictionary. That applies to Robert Thick, who will open the Off Broad Street Theatre in Hopewell later this month.

an old theater, built in the late 1930s and later used by the Gallup polling organization as its Mirror of America. There, the opinions of groups of people would be sought concerning products being test marketed.

For the past ten years the building had lain idle. Starting in December. Mr. Thick and workers virtually gutted the building. "I venture to say the floor in the lobby had not been cleaned since 1939," said Mr. Thick. "The amount of dirt and grime was incredible."

Using a lot of elbow grease and a liberal coating of paint, they transformed the interior. A three-quarter thrust stage was added and tons of lighting equipment. The flooring is constructed into an upper and lower tier and no seat at any table is further than 35 feet from center stage, Mr. Thick claims. There are no poles to obstruct the viewer, which is often the case, Mr. Thick maintains, in dinner-theaters, located frequently in cramped, low-ceilinged buildings.

The tables are set comfortably apart. The interior has been painted in shades of rose, pink and burgundy with silver trim. "My own color scheme," says Mr. Thick proudly, one which initially drew a lot of doubt.

The place was such a mess, Mr. Thick recalled, that after painting the ceiling a light pink it was decided to spray paint the entire inside with a base coat of pink. "It looked like the inside of a bottle of Pepto Bismol. It was a bit overpowering."

Hand on Shoulder. Where did the impetus come from for the Off Broad Street Theatre? "I had worked in dinner theaters before as a singer and actor," said Mr. Thick. "I have 85 roles to my credit; it is very popular in the midwest.

"When I moved here I decided to do it. The biggest drawback was trying to find a facility big enough and one that I could afford."

The search went on for four years. Not too long ago, at a coffee hour in Trinity Church, Mr. Thick said that he was expounding on what he would like to do, when a big man came up behind him and placed his hand on his shoulder. "I think I may have the building for you," he said. The big man was George Gallup Jr.

"We went over and put the key in the lock and went inside," said Mr. Thick. "It was just about perfect."

A native of Michigan, Mr. Thick attended Olivet College and Western Michigan University where he majored in voice and theater. He worked in dinner-theaters and later was associated for two years with the Chatauqua Opera Association in New York. He also sang for the Chicago Lyric Opera as a tenor. "The only reason I worked is that tenors are so scarce," he smiled.

For the past ten years he has sung professionally in and around the New York area in musicals, theater, opera and oratorios. More recently, in the Franklin Township area, he performed as King Arthur in Camelot and Harold Hill in The Music Man and directed Kiss Me Kate and Man of La Mancha.

Julie, who serves the Off Broad Street Theatre as general manager and choreographer, has been active in dancing and gymnastics since she was eight.

AND NOW — SUMMER

At Theatre Intime. Four productions, including a Sondheim musical, will be on the Murray Theatre stage this summer, again under the aegis of Princeton Summer Theatre. Murray Theatre is on the Princeton University campus.

"Sly Fox," by Larry Gelbart, will open the season Thursday, June 21 with performances that Friday, Saturday and Sunday and again June 28-30 and July 1. Roberto Rossi is directing. Show time for all productions will be 8, except for Sundays when there will be a 4:30 matinee.

"Angels Fall," by Lanford Wilson, directed by David Hlavsa, will be the second offering, opening Thursday, July 5 and playing again July 6-8 and 12-15.

"Say Goodnight, Gracie," by Ralph Pape, will be on the Murray Theatre stage July 19-22 and 26-29. Meg Patterson will be the director.

"Side by Side with Sondheim," the revue with songs by Stephen Sondheim, will bring the season to a close with performances August 2-5 and 9-12. Dale Coye will direct.

Reservations may be made by calling 452-4950 noon-7:30, Tuesdays through Saturdays and noon to 4 Sundays, starting next Monday, June 11.

'ZELIG' AND 'TOOTSIE'

To Open Summer Cinema. McCarter Theatre's Summer Cinema '84 will open its eighth season of double feature films at Kresge Auditorium this Thursday, June 14, with two comedy hits, Woody Allen's Zelig and Sydney Pollack's Tootsie, starring Dustin Hoffman.

The twin bill will play through Monday, June 18, with Zelig shown nightly at 7:30 and Tootsie at 9:30. Single admissions will be available at the door beginning at 7 each evening, and discount coupon books giving 12 admissions for $35 will also be on sale at show time. The opening program will also inaugurate the new screen which has been installed in Kresge Auditorium

SONGS FOR PEACE SET

By Folk Singer. Mark Levy, a California-based folk singer who was born and raised in Trenton, will give a concert Thursday, June 14, at 7:30 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill and State Roads. The performance is one of a series in this area to benefit the Peace Education Project, an educational resource consulting organization.

Mr. Levy has toured West Germany, Israel and 35 states in the U.S. in recent years. He has also recorded three albums on his New Clear label. The latest, "Live and Nuclear-free!" features original songs of satire and social commentary on the nuclear arms race.

In addition to his own songs, he will perform international peace songs from Europe, Latin American, Israel, Canada and the U.S., accompanying himself on guitar, dulcimer and banjo.

Peace Education Project, directed by a former high school teacher, previews and disseminates curricula and resources in non-violent conflict resolution, global awareness and children's fears of nuclear war. Since its inception in 1982, PEP has travelled 55,000 miles serving teachers, parents, children, and educational institutions by showing videotapes, curriculum guides, music and games for use in both public and private classrooms and libraries.

CALLER PLANNED

For Contra Dance. The Princeton Country Dancers will sponsor a contra dance Thursday, June 14, at 8, featuring guest caller Mary DesRosiers from New Hampshire. The dance will be held at St. Paul's School, 218 Nassau Street.

Ms. DesRosiers is known for her energetic calling and for the unusual dances that she chooses. Music will be provided by Hold The Mustard. Everyone is welcome with or without a partner, and no experience is necessary. A nominal fee to cover expenses will be charged at the door.

This will be last dance of the spring season to be held at St. Paul's School. Starting Thursday, June 21, the Princeton Country Dancers will meet at 8 each Thursday in front of Corwin Hall by the fountain off Washington Road. In case of rain, dances will be held at 185 Nassau Street.

Music will be provided by a pick-up band. For more information call 466-3896.

PIANIST TO PLAY

At Choir College. Phyllis A. Lehrer, pianist, will give the opening recital of the Westminster Summer Music Series on Monday, June 18, at 8:30.

The first Summer Sing-Along, featuring Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass will be held Tuesday, June 19, beginning at 8 p.m. Both events will be held in Bristol Chapel and admission is free.

Ms Lehrer is head of the piano department at Westminster Choir College. She performs throughout the United States and in Europe as a soloist, accompanist and chamber player. Her recent recitals include a June performance of Russian chamber music at Princeton University and a flute and piano recital in Philadelphia.

Her program will include works by Chopin, Liszt, Haydn, Schumann and Goolkisian-Rahbee, a contemporary composer whose work she has played in the past.

The Lord Nelson Mass by Haydn will be conducted by Frauke Haasemann of the Westminster conducting faculty. These weekly sing-alongs feature a major choral work conducted by a member of the Westminster faculty or a visiting leacturer from the Westminster Summer Session.

Ms. Haasemann is associate professor of conducting at Westminster Choir College and is teaching a course in group techniques for building choral sound in the Summer Session Program.

THE MUIR IS FIRST

In Chamber Series. The opening program of the Princeton Summer Chamber Concerts Series will feature the Muir String Quartet. They will perform on Monday, June 18 at 8 in the main court of the Graduate College or, in case of rain, in the University Chapel.

Winner of the Naumburg Chamber Music Award for 1981 and the 1980 First Prize in the Evian International String Quartet Competition, the Muir String Quartet burst upon the chamber music scene in July 1980. A highlight of its career was a White House appearance as part of the PBS series "In Performance at the White House," with Itzhak Perlman as host.

The members of the group, violinists Joseph Genualdi and Bayla Keyes, violist Steven Ansell and cellist Michael Reynolds, met at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and spent a two-year residency at Yale on an Edward Wardell Fellowship. They are currently in residence at Boston University and in the Department of Music, Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers.

For Monday night's program, the quartet has chosen to play works by Haydn, Shostakovich and Schubert.

Parking for the concert is in the Graduate School parking lot off Springdale Road. The audience is advised to bring blankets to sit on. In case of threatening weather, concert goers may call 452-5977, to find out if the concert is to be held indoors.

CONCERT THURSDAY

By Boychoir. The Apprentice Choir and the Concert Choir of The American Boychoir School will perform a graduation concert for parents and freinds of the school on June 14, Thursday, at 7:30 in the Princeton Theological Seminary Chapel on Mercer Street.

The program for the evening will be selections from the 1983-84 concert tour repertoire and include Mendelssohn's "Lift Up Thine Eyes," "A Jubilant Song" by Dello-Joio, Poulenc's "Litanies a la Vierge Noir." and Americna patriotic and folk music.

There will be no admission charge, but seating will be limited and unreserved.

News of the Theatres

especially for the Summer Cinema season.

Written and directed by Woody Allen, Zelig takes the form of a documentary about a 1920's misfit, Leonard Zelig, whose desperation to be like everyone else is so overwhelming he develops the ability to emulate whomever he is with. When he's with someone fat, he becomes fat; when he's with a trumpet player, he becomes a trumpet player.

Zelig, played by Allen, becomes a national figure and is nicknamed the "Human Chameleon." Only his psychiatrist, played by Mia Farrow, really cares about him. Black and white footage of Zelig is interspersed with vintage film of such figures as Hitler and Randolph Hearst.

In Tootsie, the comedy hit of 1982-83, Dustin Hoffman plays a dual role. As Michael Dorsey, a frustrated Broadway actor whose career is going nowhere, he decides to audition for the television soap opera role for which an actress friend was rejected. In high heels, dowdy dress and a bouffant wig, Hoffman "becomes" Dorothy Michaels and is signed to a long-term contract, much to the surprise of his agent (director Sydney Pollack), his roomate (Bill Murray), and his girlfriend (Teri Garr).

Michael's life becomes more complicated on the set of the opera, when he falls in love with his leading lady (Jessica Lange), and when his character becomes so popular that the network exercises its option on "her" services. Hoffman's "Dorothy" is not simply a man in woman's dress, but a three-dimensional character whose humor, forthright walk and outlook on life are distinctly her own.

Double-feature admission is $3.50 at the door of Kresge Auditorium, located in the Frick Chemical Building on Washington Road. For information or to charge a discount coupon book by phone, call the McCarter Theatre subscription office at 452-4242.

UNUSUAL FILMS DUE

At Art People Place. The Princeton Cult Film Festival will continue its series of unusual films throughout the summer. The films will be shown at 9 p.m. at the Art People Place, 102 Witherspoon Street. Admission is $3.50, and refreshments will be available.

What's Up Tiger Lily? will be shown Friday, June 22. This is Woody Allen's spoof of Japanese spy thrillers, with international agents searching the globe for a secret egg salad recipe.

In addition to What's Up Tiger Lily? the movies to be shown are, Roger Corman's The Little Shop of Horrors, with Jack Nicholson, on July 27; The Terror of Tiny Town, an all-midget musical western, August 24.

MUSEUM EXHIBIT SET

On Johnson Atelier Sculpture. The exhibition, "Recent Sculpture, The Johnson Atelier: Workshop and Studio," will be presented at the New Jersey State Museum Saturday, June 23 through September 30.

Forty-four works are included in this survey, some by well-known artists and some by the staff and young apprentice members of the foundry located in Mercerville.

The exhibition, co-organized and co-funded by the Johnson Atelier and the State Museum, will contain works by Robert Cooke, William King, Gary Stephan, Toshiko Takaezu, Peter Voulkos and Isaac Witkin, among others. Among the works of Atelier staff members are those by Brooke Barrie, Jerome Collins, Le Corbeau, Ann Folger and Herk Van Tongeren.

In conjunction with the exhibition, Brooke Barrie, academic director of the Atelier, will conduct a gallery walk and tour of the Atelier on Tuesday, July 10, August 7 and September 11, at 10 a.m. Reservations are required and must be made at least one week in advance by calling 292-5420. Admission is free. Participants will provide their own transportation to the Atelier following the Museum gallery walk.

The museum, is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 to 4:45 and Sundays from 1 to 5. It is closed Mondays and state holidays. Admission is free. Ample weekend parking is available behind the museum.

WORKSHOP PLANNED

In Life Drawing. The Trenton Artists Workshop Association (TAWA) will sponsor a series of life drawing workshops beginning Tuesday, June 19 from 7 to 9:30 at Ellarslie, the Trenton City Museum in Cadwalder Park. The series will run ten consecutive Tuesday evenings. The Registration fee, which will cover the cost of the models, is $30 for TAWA members and $40 for non-members. Enrollment is limited to 15. Artists must bring their own easels and drawing supplies.

To enroll, send check or money to TAWA, P.O. Box 969, Trenton, New Jersey 08605, or call 393-7699.

AREA ARTIST SELECTED

To Exhibit at Craft Fair. Ceramic artist Nina Gelardi of Rocky Hill is one of almost 600 artists, selected from more than 2,500 applicants, to exhibit at the ACC Craftfair, West Springfield, formerly the "Rhinebeck" Craftfair.

After ten years of continuous operation in Rhinebeck, N.Y., American Craft Enterprises, the marketing arm of the American Craft Council, has moved the event to the Eastern States Exposition Center in West Springfield, Mass. The Fair expects to attract 60,000 to 100,000 visitors and anticipates sales in excess of $6 million.

APPLICATIONS DUE

For New Hope Juried Arts Festival. Artists, craftsmen and photographers interested in receiving applications for the New Hope Juried Arts Festival are requested to send a self-addressed stamped envelope to 32 Killie Drive, New Hope, Pa., 18938 or to call (215) 862-5880.

The festival will be held on Saturday and Sunday, July 21 and 22. It is open to all media, but artwork must be the original work of the exhibiting artist. Kits and commercially produced items are not acceptable.

Deadline for application and slides is June 15.

EXHIBITS

A major exhibit focusing on the horse in contemporary art and antique carousel horses will open at the Hunterdon Art Center, Clinton, N.J., with a wine and cheese reception for the public on Sunday, June 24, at 2 p.m.

Included will be a selection of work by 20 artists who utilize the horse either as a means or as the essence of their artistic expression. Among the artists who will be represented are Debra Butterfield, Christo, Nichole Jolicoeur, Nancy Spero, and Gary Erbe.

Also on exhibit will be three intricately painted and carved antique carousel horses from the collection of Charlotte Dinger of Morristown.

The exhibit will continue through Sunday, July 29. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday, 1 to 4 p.m.; weekends, 1 to 5 p.m. For further information call (201) 735-8415.

IT'S NEW TO US

FILM CASSETTE SOURCE

Palmer Video. After less than a year, Palmer Video in the Princeton Shopping Center has gained a considerable following in town. Convenient hours, video recorder repairs, and a selection of more than 900 movie titles, have attracted film devotees to the video rental shop. Membership now numbers 300.

"Business is terrific; it's really fun because everyone enjoys entertainment in their own home. Cable hasn't affected us much because most people would like to see a movie at the hour most convenient to them rather than a set time, especially in summertime," says Candi Brina, the attractive young manager of the store.

OUTSTANDING MOVIE SELECTION: Candi Brina, manager of Palmer Video is happy about the positive response to her shop, which has attracted a membership of more than 300 in less than a year. The shop features more than 900 movie titles, repairs video recorders, and offers financing for purchase of VCRs.

Summertime heat encourages everyone to slow down a bit. What could be more pleasant than sitting down with a cool lemonade and watching a new release such as "Terms of Endearment," "Crackers," "Educating Rita," or for the stalwart of heart, "Scarface?" The choices of films are varied and selection at Palmer Video is easy because of the way the cassettes are organized by title into sections.

"We have a growing selection of foreign films," continues Mrs. Brina, who has begun financing the sales of video recorders. One year of free membership is offered with the sales program of VCRs made by Zenith, RCA and Sharp. The monthly installment plan enables the shopper to take a recorder home and enjoy taping programs otherwise missed or viewing movies without paying the rather hefty initial cost.

Video Cameras. Home movie cameras have been upstaged by the new video cameras which tape sound as well as action. Palmer Video has a good selection of these terrific cameras which are available for rent as well. The shop offers a service which may be appreciated by owners of video recorders. Eight millimeter, Super 8 and 16 millimeter movies which are often found stuffed in closets or drawers in many homes can be transferred to video cassettes for easy viewing and storage. What a relief not to have to set up the movie screen! If a customer prefers to relax during a special occasion rather than tape it, the shop offers a filming service. Weddings, bar mitzvahs, birthday parties and other memorable days will be preserved on cassettes for a lifetime.

Fans of Broadway musicals will be pleased to know that Palmer Video has a large assortment of shows available, both old and more recent. A diverse selection of movies for children will help fill some of the long hot summer hours for youngsters who may not be able to watch television during the school year. "Oldies but goodies" are favorites for all ages, as are films found in the mystery section. Watch for new releases such as "The Right Stuff," "Children of the Corn," and "The Big Chill" which will soon be arriving.

Early birds who go to the shopping center to exercise or shop for food, and late-arriving commuters will be happy to know that Palmer Video now has a drop-off box in the front of the shop.

Palmer Video was recently mentioned in the New York Times as participants in a contest whose first prize is two tickets to a Broadway play and a complete set of Broadway musicals. It will continue through Monday.

Watch for extended summer hours at Palmer Video, which is currently open daily from 10:30 - 7 Monday through Thursday, until 8 on Friday and until 6 on Saturday.

SENSIBLE FASHIONS

At Bailey's Apparel. Girls and their mothers will be chic and cool this summer after a visit to Bailey's Apparel in the Princeton Shopping Center. Indispensable warm-weather fashions which everyone wants to own can be found in the wonderful 100 percent cotton clothing offered in the shop, which has been a familiar sight here since 1956.

Featuring attractive and colorful cotton dresses, pants, shorts, skirts and blouses, Bailey's is emerging as a place of contemporary fashion which appeals to young girls and older women who are looking for reasonably priced clothes.

Charming sundresses with clean cool lines can be found here for as little as $12. Camisole topped dresses or loose fitting ones which hang from the shoulder are seen in lovely fresh colors and floral prints. Long and short sleeved frocks with embroidery, some with puffed sleeves, in lavender, fuchsia, cool pale yellow and pastel checks will look beguiling this season and

The Hit and Miss Rod & Gun Club has presented its Augustus Hyter Scholarship Award to Mary Theresa Spruill.

Mills College Alumnae of the area will have a luncheon meeting Monday, June 18, at 12:30 at the home of Mrs. William P. Starr, 149 Meadowbrook Drive. For information call 921-2297.

The Soroptimist International will meet for dinner at the Nassau Inn on Tuesday, June 19, to install officers who will serve until June 1985.

LaVerne Hebert will continue as president; Dot Hunt will serve as first vice president; and Betty de Sherbinin will be second vice president. The new treasurer is Alma Englemann, Maureen Kimchick is recording secretary and Lois McMullen correspondence secretary.

The winners of three scholarships awarded by the Soroptimists to area high school seniors will be announced at the dinner. For more information, call 921-9236.

The Single Set, an organization for anyone single, separated, widowed or divorced, will hold a dance every Friday night at 9:30 at the Treadway Inn, Route 1, Princeton. Live music will be featured. For additional information call Charles Lucker at (215) 938-0978.

Chapter 459, American Association of Retired Persons, will hold its annual picnic at All Saints' Church Thursday, June 14, at noon.

Members are asked to bring sufficient food to serve not only themselves but at least five or six others. The chapter will welcome, as guests, children from the Skillman Training School, along with several of the school's staff members.

Meetings will not be held during the months of July and August.

The Central Jersey Group of the Sierra Club will meet on Wednesday, June 13 at 7:30 in Guyot Hall, Room 220, on the Princeton University Campus. The meeting is free and open to the public.

COOL AND CHIC is the word at Bailey's Apparel this summer. Easy moving clothing, stunning all-cotton dresses, skirts, blouses, and casual wear as well as leotards for adults and children at excellent prices is offered by Mrs. Ralph Bailey and her husband, owner of the shop which has been in the Princeton Shopping Center since 1956.

David Jenkins, a zoologist with the New Jersey Endangered and Non-Game Species Program will describe, through film and slide presentations, the state's program to protect and enhance endangered plant and animal life.

The New Jersey Endangered and Non-Game Species Program has been instrumental in the return of the osprey and peregrine falcon to the state's coast.

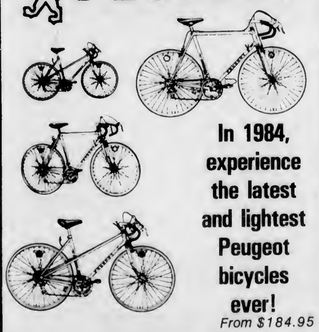
are currently on sale at 20 percent off regular price.

Graduates from the high school will be pleased to know that a fine selection of the favored white cotton dress, many with cutouts and embroidery, are now reduced by 20 percent as well. Many young women wear these dresses with a satin ribbon sash with a bow in the hair to match. Cool and breezy, they will travel well and can be worn all summer in daytime or evening.

Festive Cottons. Women of all ages want to look attractive but may suffer in silks during heat spells such as the one experienced last week! Bailey's has the answer with flowing dresses of cotton with a touch of gold threading to add a festive look for evening.

Easy-moving cotton pants and shorts with pull-on elastic waistbands, combined with the large assortment of fetching cotton blouses are specialties at Bailey's, where separates are featured. A chic unstructured blazer, single or double breasted, in soft pink, blue, white and aqua, will top any summer costume during these months when evening breezes can turn unexpectedly cool — especially at the shore. The blazers are $19.98, and others of madras plaid are $12 and $15.

Easy summer living requires a minimum of casual clothing such as the useful tee shirt dresses found at Bailey's at $19.98 in raspberry, black, aqua, grey, white, and lavender to mention a few. Color accents are important this year so accessorize your dresses and skirts with one of the shop's woven belts or stunning cotton or silk scarves.



Show off those pretty legs which take some effort to maintain, and buy one of the shop's new mini-skirts for $14.98 plus a 20 percent discount. Gaily colored stripes and a solid with a flattering lowered waistline in white, green, red, and yellow gold are good buys and look terrific with cotton tee shirts or a more feminine ruffly blouse. Some of the mini-skirts have attached panties.

Speaking of pretty legs, Bailey's has the best selection in town of attractive clothing for body-conscious women who dance or do other forms of exercise. Colorful cotton and nylon leotards in stripes or solids in a variety of styles can double as bathing suits this summer and can be worn with one of the pretty skirts Bailey's has to offer. Many of the leotards are reduced this month. Tights for dancing with stirrups or feet are available in more than ten colors.

Looking for a thoughtful gift? Bailey's has a nice assortment of silver jewelry, pierced earrings, bracelets and necklaces at excellent prices.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bailey look forward to the influx of summer shoppers looking for handsome cottons. Store hours are from 10-5:30, Monday through Saturday and Friday evening until 7.

Jacob Leschly Wins State Tennis Singles Title With Powerful Ground Strokes and a Big Serve

STATE SINGLES TENNIS CHAMPION: Princeton High School, Mercer County and the state of New Jersey have a new high school tennis champion. PHS senior Jacob Leschly, in action above, became the first player ever from Princeton High and Mercer County to win the state singles championship last week when he defeated Gary McGeehan, 6-1, 6-4, at Middlesex County College. For more on the Princeton University-bound tennis super star, see this page. Hail to the champion.

While Princeton High senior Jacob Leschly was cutting up Seth Antiles of Montclair-Kimberly Academy last week, as the two teams battled each other for the overall state team championship title -- a battle Montclair won, 4-1, when Leschly scored the only point for PHS — Little Tiger coach Joe Diefenbach commented, "If he ever wanted to take it seriously, he could be one of the top young players in the country. He's got all the shots."

Sunday at the Middlesex County College courts in Edison, Leschly proved convincingly that if he is not the best in the country he is the best high school player in New Jersey. Top-seeded, Leschly won the state singles championship when he defeated Gary McGeehan of Randolph High, 6-1, 6-4.

The Princeton University bound Leschly, the oldest of four tennis-playing Leschly brothers, ended the season with a 32-1 record. In four years at PHS, he won 84 matches and lost 14. In his last three years he was 78-4. His only loss this year was to David Wells-Roth of Millburn in the Newark Academy Invitational Tournament.

In defeating the third-seeded McGeehan, Leschly became the first player from Mercer County to win a state individual title.

Leschly accomplished the feat with powerful ground strokes and a big serve. (He had 15 aces against McGeehan.) "He's always had the shots, insisted Diefenbach, "but he was inconsistent." This year, Leschly matured and gained confidence in his game, especially after he defeated Takeski Omono of Ramapo High School, ranked second in his age bracket in the Eastern States.

Beating Omono gave him an incredible boost in confidence, Leschly agreed. "It made me more determined."

A determined Leschly broke McGeehan twice to take a 5-0 lead in the first set. McGeehan, seeking hs 27th win of the season, managed to win his first game but Leschly served out the match, blasting one of his 15 service aces on set point.

In the second set, both held serve through the first eight games. In the ninth, Leschly finally broke McGeehan to take a 5-4 lead. In the next game, Leschly quickly reached 40-0 and had three match points. McGeehan fought off one but Leschly came back with a service winner.

In the semi-finals Friday in Princeton, Leschly was able to get his serve working in the second set and he defeated David Wolf of Montgomery, 6-4, 6-1. Wolf, the Somerset County champion, had rallied from a 2-0 deficit in the first set to take a 4-3 lead before Leschly came back to win the next three games.

In the second set, Leschly broke Wolf three times as he ran off his ninth consecutive game in the match. In all six of his matches in his march to the state singles crown, Leschly won in straight sets.

McGeehan defeated Barry Ruback of Indian Hills in the other semi-final match to advance to the finals.

Earlier in the week, Leschly defeated Ashok Rao of Morris Knolls, 6-1, 6-2, to advance to the quarterfinals, and then defeated Glen Binbelglass of Clifton. Binbelglass had accounted for the tourney's biggest upset when he eliminated Wells-Roth.

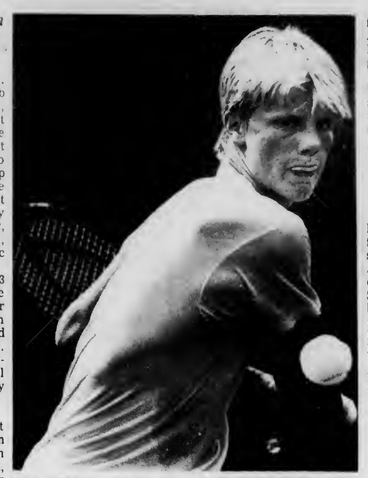
PHS LOSES BID

For All Group Tennis Title. Princeton High's Jacob Leschly ran past his opponent, younger brother Mark ran out of gas and freshman Bruce Ellis ran out of miracles last week as Princeton's bid to capture the NJSIAA All-Group Tennis Championship fell one game short. On Thursday at the Princeton University courts, Montclair-Kimberly, the state parochial champion, defeated PHS, the state public school champion, 4-1.

PHS finished with a 26-3 record — four victories more than any previous Little Tiger tennis team had won. "I'm very proud of this team," said PHS coach Joe Diefenbach. "Naturally, we're disappointed we didn't win but we'll take a year like this any time."

The 4-1 final score does not reflect how close the match really was, as PHS was within two sets of winning the match, 3-2. When it failed to win either crucial set, Montclair sealed its 27th win in 28 matches this season.

Princeton's only point came early when Jacob Leschly, who went on to win the state singles championship, defeated Montclair's Seth Antiles, 6-2, 6-1. Much of the the one-sided match consisted of a frustrated Antiles raising his hand, acknowledging another service ace by Leschly. "When I got my first serve in, I got a lot of aces," agreed Leschly.



Leschly's powerful serve was indeed the main weapon he used to destroy Antiles. A spectator, noting that Leschly is not physically overpowering, wondered aloud where the power came from. "It's all in his wrist; he has very strong wrists — and strong legs," explained Diefenbach.

Throughout the match, players had to battle the heat as well as their oppoents, as the on-court temperature was estimated in the high 90s. "It was unbelievably hot out there," agreed Leschly. While the heat had not bothered him, he commented after the match, it might have, he added, if he had been forced to go three sets.

"No, he had no difficulty in separating a team match from an individual match," replied Leschly when asked. "I feel better winning a team match," he added, "because it is a win for me and the team."

Montclair evened the match when it won the second doubles, Jason Bernstein and Julio Dolorico defeating Princeton's Matthew Mack and Brett Van deBovenkamp, 6-1, 6-4.

It took a 2-1 lead when freshmen Bruce Ellis, the hero in two previous 3-2 victories that propelled PHS into the All Groups final, could not make it three miracles in a row.

HIS STREAK CAME TO AN END: Princeton High sophomore Mark Leschly saw his 27-match winning streak come to an end last week when he lost the battle of the unbeatens, 6-0, 6-7, 0-6, to Montclair-Kimberly's Mark Pineda. Pineda, who managed to survive Leschly's first set blitz, finished with a 30-0 mark.

Ellis, who prefers a back court, defensive game, lost, 6-2, 6-3, to the Cougars' James Goldman who used a lot of drop shots to draw Ellis to the net. This time, even Ellis' lucky gold towel couldn't save him.

"He just played too well for me today," said Ellis. "A good match, a good match; you can't be a hero every day," Diefenbach consoled Ellis. "We'll let the first doubles pull it out this time."

That left the outcome riding on the first doubles and second singles. After losing the first set, 4-6, Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott had rallied to take the second set against the Montclair pair of Bill Stone and Dan Kwiat.

Most of the crowd's attention, meanwhile, had centered on the clash of two unbeatens in the second singles. Mark Leschly entered his match against Montclair senior Mark Pineda 27-0; Pineda was 29-0.

"He has no backhand," observed Diefenbach, as Leschly routed Pineda, 6-0, in the first set. "He throws a lot of kids off because he is left-handed but Mark is used to hitting to left-handers." Mark attacked Pineda's backhand in the opening set with great success but in winning the set he may have lost the match.

"I overdid it," confessed Mark after the match. "I thought I was in shape but by the third set I was dead." Pineda fought his way back into the match, forcing a tie-breaker in the second set which he won, 7-5.

During the break, players and coaches from both teams huddled and discussed strategy for the decisive remaining two sets. It was not to be for the Little Tigers.

Dunham and Elliott took a 2-0 lead in the third set but could not hold it and went down, 2-6, as Stone and Kwiat reeled off six games in a row.

When Mark Leschly heard a cheer go up from the Montclair followers, he knew the match was lost. Pineda, finding new strength from those cheers, kept the pressure on against the tiring Leschly and won the third set, 6-0.

Ellis finished the season with a 24-3 record. Dunham and Elliott ended with a fine 23-5 mark. Dunham and Jacob Leschly will both continue their tennis careers at Princeton University in the fall. Montclair's Pineda and Antiles are both headed for Lawrenceville School as post graduate students.

As for next year, PHS will be just as overpowering in singles play as this year. Mark will be a junior, Ellis will be a sophomore and Stig Leschly, the third of four Leschly brothers will be a freshman.

Princeton High and West Windsor-Plainsboro High, scored all the runs it needed against Mitchell Davis when it plated six in the second.

The rally started with M-D pitcher Sean Dill hitting Craig Ender with a pitched ball. Darren Villani doubled home Ender for Princeton's second (PHS had scored a run in the first inning) run and then scored on Brian Lenox's single. Princeton made it 4-0 when Bill Feus, who had a perfect 3-for-3 day at the plate, singled home Lenox.

After Jay Villani had gotten on by way of one of the losers' five errors, Mickey Carnevale doubled home both runners and then came home with the sixth run of the inning on another error.

Mike Walker, who limited Mitchell Davis to four hits, after the losers had erupted for 13 in an opening-game 17-10 rout of Trenton, got the win. Dill, who surrendered eight hits, including a double and triple to Feus, took the loss.

In the opener Saturday, Post 76 scored its only two runs off former Hun hurler Pete Stam in the fourth to take a 2-0 lead. After Tom Foltiny and Carnevale had singled, Ender sent both home with a double.

Until the seventh, Princeton hurler Dave Arendas had yielded a single run in the fifth on a pair of walks and Chuck Sheppard's single. Arendas lost his pitching duel with Stam when he gave up a three-run homer to Jeff Dougherty. Singles by C. J. Rockhill and Sheppard had preceded Dougherty's blast.

Stam pitched eight innings and allowed five hits before giving way to reliefer Scott Lee. He was backed in the field by his teammates who played errorless ball.

Members on this year's 76 squad include Dino D'Angelo, Gavin Hulsman, Jason Petrone, Mike Petrone, Carnevale and Foltiny from PHS, and Bruno DiDonato, Charles McCall, Scott Pierson, Dave Reed, Jim Taylor, Darren and Jay Villani, and Arendas, Ender, Feus, and Walker.

Other teams in the league are Hamilton, Ewing, Broad St. Park, Bordentown, Hopewell, Trenton, Mitchell Davis, Lawrence and Hightstown. Ewing and Hamilton are the pre-season favorites to win the league crown this year.

2 Tigers Named All-League

Two members of Princeton's baseball team have been named to the all-league team.

Outfielders Dan Arendas and Drew Stratton joined four Harvard players, two from Columbia, and one each from Dartmouth and Penn on the first team in balloting by league coaches.

Arendas, a sophomore, batted .355, while Stratton, a freshman, hit .426. Leading the list as unanimous choices were Harvard's pitcher Charlie Marchese and its designated hitter, Mickey Maspons, and Columbia third baseman, Gene Larkin.

No Tiger players were named to the second team, and none received honorable mention.

CORN ROLLS ON

Wins No. 33 and 34. How long will Sweet Jersey Corn's unbeaten streak go on?

It reached 34 without a loss following a 6-1 victory over the Souvenirs and a 6-0 shutout of S&W Liquors in action last week in the Mercer County "A" Softball League. The two wins raised the Corn's record this season to 8-0.

In the Souvenir win, winning pitcher Clare Baxter got help from Beth Muzyka and Sandi Hibbs in relief and help at the plate from Debbie Smyth and Andrea Perrine who had two hits apiece. Dee Discavage drove in a pair of runs.

Louann Slocum was the winning pitcher over S&W, yielding just six hits. Donna Nicholson homered for the victors.

The offense was led by Discavage and Muzyka who combined for six hits and by Smyth, Slocum and Grace Durland who had two hits each.

The Corn will next play Chambersburg Eyeglass Center on Thursday night at 8:30 on Field No. 2

THREE TEAMS BUNCHED

For Men's Softball Lead. Three teams are bunched for the lead in the Princeton Recreation Men's Softball League after four weeks of play.

Mike's Tavern is on top with a 6-1 record and has a half-game edge over Princeton Nautilus and Princeton Italian American Sportsmen Club which are tied for second at 5-2. Conte's and Hinkson's are knotted for third place at 4-2. These five teams were the pre-season choice to battle it out for the four playoff berths at the end of the year.

Nautilus has not displayed the power it did last year, but coach Jeff Petrone insists "It's just a matter of time." It's only loss was a 2-1 squeaker to rival Mike's Tavern which managed to bunch three of its five hits in one inning for both its runs.

Nautilus's other wins have been 17-2 over PMC, 18-3 over Marita's, 7-3 over Conte's, 7-2 over C. Sq. C. and 3-2 over Hinkson's — the latter in nine innings.

Leading hitters for Nautilus have been Dave and Mike Shillaber and Al Kandell, all batting over .500, and Pat Kahny, Jack Petrone, Kevin Phox, Ron Kane, Judd Petrone and Jim Lennon — all slugging the ball over .400.

In games Thursday evening, Mike's will oppose Stefanelli's at Valley Road; Nautilus will oppose PIASC and Conte's will oppose Hinkson's at Community Park.

NEW COACH NAMED

For Women's Basketball Team. Joan M. Kowalik, head coach of women's basketball and volleyball at St. Lawrence University for the past three years, has been named the new head coach of women's basketball at Princeton.

For the past four years, Ms. Kowalik has been an assistant professor of sport and leisure studies at St. Lawrence while coaching both basketball and volleyball. Her volleyball teams posted a combined record of 57-21 and participated each year in the NYSAIAW post-season tournament.

Her women's basketball teams showed records of 6-11 in 1981, 15-7 in 1982, 19-5 in 1983 and 14-7 in 1984. Kowalik's 1983 team was ranked second in New York State's Lady Widmer Final Poll, was first-seeded in the NYSAIAW post-season tournament, took part in the NCAA Tournament, and compiled the best record in the history of women's basketball at St. Lawrence.

Kowalik will succeed Jeanne Foley, who is leaving Princeton after two seasons to pursue graduate work at Michigan State University. The 1983-84 women Tigers logged a record of 11 victories and 15 defeats.

TOURNAMENTS PLANNED

For Tennis During Summer. The Princeton Community Tennis Program has announced a schedule of six adult summer tournaments to be held at the Pagoda Courts on the Princeton University Campus.

They are: men's singles, June 16; women's singles, doubles, June 23; men's doubles, July 7th; and mixed doubles, July 14. To encourage more participation at different levels, each event will have an A & B division.

To register, call 924-4343 or stop in the tennis office, 71 University Place, for an entry form. Entries must be received by 12 noon on the Thursday before the start of the tournament.

THE MOST IMPRESSIVE PART OF THIS CAR IS THE ONE LUXURY FEATURE IT DOESN'T HAVE.

While many of today's prestigious European sedans offer favorable performance and handling, they also feature something far more substantial.

Astronomical sticker prices.

But the Volvo 760 GLE is a notable exception.

Inside you'll find room for five adults. An advanced climate control system that completely changes the interior air every twelve seconds. And orthopedically designed front seats to help keep your mind off your back. And on the road.

And to help keep the car on the road, a unique rear suspension system flattens out the bumps. And provides more predictable handling in wet or slippery conditions.

It all adds up to the finest, most comfortable Volvo ever built.

So before you purchase a prestigious European sedan with an outrageous European price tag, come in and test drive a gas engine or Turbo Diesel* Volvo 760 GLE.

Only then will you truly appreciate the difference between a lot of money spent. And money well-spent.

THEY WERE PERFECT

PDS Lacrosse Team. The Princeton Day School boy's seventh and eighth grade lacrosse team finished its season with an undefeated record for the first time in recent memory. The Panthers' 9-0 sweep was triggered by early victories over neighboring Flemington-Raritan, 7-2 and 7-1, and a 7-1 decision against Portledge, one of the strongest middle school teams on Long Island.

PDS continued with wins over Hun (12-1), Montclair-Kimberly (2-0), Readington (9-0), and traditionally dominant rival Kumpf (7-2 and 7-2). The highlight of the season was the final game against previously unbeaten Pingry, a hard-fought 5-3 victory that was not decided until the fourth quarter. "With the exception of Hun and Readington," commented third-year coach John Kern, a 1980 graduate of Princeton University, "every one of these teams was extremely tough. Despite the lopsided scores, there were no easy games on our schedule."

In outscoring its opponents, 63-13, PDS relied heavily upon co-captain Chris Gallup's 28 points (15 goals, 13 assists), and midfielder Justin Mraz's 23 points (15 goals, 8 assists). Others who contributed to the Panther's offense, which averaged seven goals a game, were Joe Gigliotti (6 goals, 5 assists), Tim Hawkes (6 goals, 4 assists), David Strickland (3 goals, 6 assists), and Zack Gund (4 goals, 3 assists).

On defense, PDS limited its opponents to fewer than two goals a game. Goalie Peter Sienkiewicz recorded three shutouts and more than 90 saves in compiling a 1.23 goal average. He and backup goalie Steve Fulmer, who allowed only two goals, received strong support from a corps of eighth-grade defensemen that included co-captain Cliff Hilpert, Ben Travers, Seth Woodward, Andy Shaffer, and Brent Eaton.

Tom Doyle, the Panthers' other coach and a junior at Princeton University, was primarily responsible for molding the defense. "Tom did a superb job," Kern said of his first-year assistant. "He brought a great deal of experience as a standout defenseman in high school, and as a member of the Princeton Varsity his freshman year."

If there were any disappointments this year, it was that the traditional game against cross-town rival John Witherspoon was never scheduled. "They seemed very reluctant to play us this year," Kern observed. For now however, the Panthers will have to be content with a record that the players and coaches alike will savor for some time.

D&R Canal

Canal in the Dutch Neck Presbyterian Church, followed by singing by a barbershop quartet group.

• The West Windsor Historical Society will take over the Hospital Fete grounds on Washington Road on Saturday, June 23, from 2 to 8 p.m. for the main part of its celebration. Events will include hay wagon rides, the appearance of a covered wagon drawn by oxen, an historical display, fiddlers, mime and dance presentations, a square dance exhibition and square dancing for all in the evening.

Hot dogs, birch beer, watermelon and ice cream will be available during the afternoon, and a "family table" will welcome contributions of baked goods to share.

• On Sunday, June 24, there will be a Canaller's Reunion and Reception at Morven, sponsored by the Canal Society of New Jersey and organized by "Captain" Bill McKelvey. Some 20 canallers are expected to attend, ranging in age from 70 to 93. They include D&R Company employees, captains, commercial boaters, pleasure boaters, yachtsmen and others.

The group will present a plaque commemorating the D&R Canal Company's first tugboat, the Robert F. Stockton, to Robert F. Stockton IV, a direct descendant of the first president of the D&R Canal Company.

• Another celebration of the 150th birthday of the D&R Canal will take place at the Blackwells Mills Causeway in Franklin Township on Saturday, June 23. Starting at 9:30 a.m. there will be a "colossal" canoe race, a hike-in/bike-in sponsored by the Sierra Club, and nature walks along the canal organized by the Stonybrook-Millstone Watersheds Association. Music, food, crafts, a photo exhibit, and historical displays will be featured from noon to 6.

Other ongoing events include:

• An exhibit, "Ports of Call: Five Canal Communities," at Bainbridge House, headquarters of the Historical Society of Princeton, 158 Nassau Street. Historic photographs of Port Mercer, Princeton Basin, Kingston, Rocky Hill and Griggstown from the Society's plate glass negative collection, as well as a three-foot wooden model of a typical canal boat.

• An Exhibit, "The Delaware and Raritan Canal: A Retrospective View," at the New Jersey State Museum will open this Saturday, June 16, with a symposium from 9 to 4 at the Museum. The exhibit, on view through September 2, traces the development of the canal from its inception to its use today as a recreational resource.

The symposium Saturday will feature Christopher T. Baer of the Eleutherian Mills Historical Library, Wilmington, Del., who will discuss the Canal Age in the United States in the 1820s and 1830s; Lance E. Metz of the Canal Museum, Easton, Pa., who will describe the building of the canal and its place in the technology of the Canal Age; and William J. McKelvey Jr., of the Canal Society of New Jersey who will show pictures.

Afternoon speakers include Howard L. Green of the New Jersey Historical Commission speaking on the Politics of the Canal Construction; Ellen Denker of the State Museum, talking of the canal's economic impact, and Samuel M. Hamill Jr., of the Regional Study Commission, giving a description of the canal's 20th century uses.

Decline of Canal. In 1871, the Pennsylvania Railroad took a 999-year lease on both the canal and the Camden and Amboy's rail connection across the center of the State. From this time on the canal showed a steady decline. After the Pennsylvania Railroad opened its parallel main line in 1893, freight traffic on the canal declined precipitously.

In the early 20th century, as shipping declined, pleasure boats were seen more frequently on the canal than coal barges. In the winter of 1932-33, the canal closed as usual for the winter, but it did not open again in the spring.

The charter to the Joint Companies called for forfeiture to the State for failure to operate the canal for three consecutive years. In 1937, with 933 years left on its lease, the Pennsylvania Railroad turned the D&R Canal over to the State.

The waterway between the Delaware and Raritan rivers had lasted 99 years before other modes of transportation took over, and it had witnessed an important part of New Jersey history.

T-SHIRTS TO SENIORS

Taking Part in Olympics. Free t-shirts and hats and other favors will be available to Princeton residents over age 60 who participate in the Senior Olympics. The event, the first annual, will be held Monday, June 18, at the Community Park pool complex. Lunch will be served without charge to all participants.

The program will start at 9 a.m. with the opening ceremonies and continue until 2, when ribbons will be awarded. The rain date is the following day, Tuesday, June 19.

Sports events scheduled for competition are swimming, bocce, frisbee and softball throwing, hole-in-one, basketball toss, walking and horseshoes. Everyone who has ever done any of these activities is welcome. As Jocelyn Helm, director of the Senior Resource Center, notes, "We expect the participants to be average performers who like to keep themselves in shape. We hope all the older adults in Princeton will come and join the festivities."

The occasion is open without charge to all Princeton residents 60 years of age and older. Each event will be divided into age groups: 60 through 64, 65 through 69, and 70 and older.

Registration forms are available at the Recreation Department, the Senior Resource Center and the YWCA, the three organizers of the event. Pre-registration is encouraged so that the number of lunches can be accurately predicted.

Area merchants who are contributing to the event as sponsors are AMF/Head Racquet Sports, Landau's, Princeton Bank/Horizon, and Princeton Caterers. The program will include the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Ann Marie Nestor, a student at Stuart Country Day School, selections by the John Witherspoon School 7th grade band, and the showing of several short films on physical fitness.

For further information call 921-9480.

Borough-Collins Compromise Appears Off, As WJDC Goes Ahead with Plans for Suits

In a move that apparently scuttles any immediate chance of a compromise solution to the controversial Collins Development project in Princeton's central business district, the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation announced it has filed two suits in New Jersey Superior Court.

The first suit appeals the Regional Planning Board's approval of the Collins plan as "arbitrary and capricious." The second suit is based on the New Jersey Supreme Court's Mount Laurel decisions and argues that Collins' proposed condominium development on the Hulfish lot north of the Nassau Inn "should not be allowed to proceed without provisions for low and moderate units."

The legal action was explained at a press conference Tuesday in the newly renovated workshop of the Princeton Housing Authority at 227½ John Street. Even as the Witherspoon-Jackson representatives met with the press, their action was drawing a response from Borough Hall. Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who has attempted to create a compromise with Collins and various parties concerned about the proposed development, stated she was "sorry ... that the proceedings have come to this particular point" (see page 12), and urged continued negotiations.

Witherspoon-Jackson, represented by President Henry Pannell, past president Joan Hill, and founding president Walton Johnson, as well as board members Martha Hartman and Fannie Floyd, seemed determined to exhaust the legal remedies. Mr. Pannell said that the legal costs would not be met by any of the funds already donated to the Township Residents Alarmed at Possible Effect Of Committee's Proposed Affordable Housing Law

"This is the biggest thing to hit Princeton, the most important ordinance to come up in the history of the town."

That was the view of many of those who spoke at the third public hearing on the proposed voluntary affordable housing ordinance before Township Committee last Monday night. Committee did not take action on the ordinance Monday. Committeewoman Gail Firestone was absent, and Mayor Winthrop S. Pike announced at the outset that he wanted the recorded vote of the entire Committee on such an important matter.

Committee will meet next on Monday, July 2, at 8 at Township Hall and depending on the vacation schedules of its members may take action at that time. Meanwhile, some of the pressure for immediate adoption has been lessened because Judge Serpentelli, the judge assigned to hear Mt. Laurel disputes in this area, has once again postponed his meeting with the Township attorney on the Calton Homes suit until Thursday, June 28. The meeting was to have been on June 19.

Meanwhile, too, there seems to be a groundswell of citizen sentiment for a means other than the proposed ordinance to meet the Township's Mt. Laurel obligation. The proposed ordinance, which has been introduced on first reading but not formally adopted, would give builders a variety of bonus densities in return for building certain percentages of low and moderate income housing, or they may elect the option of building "as of right" and contributing money or land to a housing trust.

Many Township residents are alarmed about the densities that would result from builders taking advantage of the bonus options, or that would be required to in effect subsidize a sufficient number of low and moderate income units. Citizen sentiment

Edgerstoune Group to Appeal Planning Board's Decision Concerning Russell Estate Project

Edgerstoune Association has filed an appeal to Township Committee seeking reversal of the Planning Board decision that granted preliminary subdivision and site plan approval for 56 single-family homes in a residential cluster known as the Russell Estate Project.

Owned now by Springlands Associates, developers from New York City, the 84-acre Russell estate is bounded by Constitution Hill and Edgerstoune Road homes on the east and west, and by Rosedale Road and Stockton Street on the north and south. Neighbors have been unhappy about the traffic on Edgerstoune Road that will be generated by the subdivision. They cite the numbers of cars and buses, pedestrians and bicylists coming and going to the Hun School at early morning rush hours as the residents themselves are trying to exit onto Route 206.

Seventy-five of the 98 homeowners on Edgerstoune, Hun, Russell, and Winant Roads have formed Edgerstoune Associates. The group is represented by Frank J. Petrino of the Trenton law firm of Sterns, Herbert, and Weinroth.

In his notice of appeal filed with Township Committee last Friday, Mr. Petrino cites several reasons why Committee should reverse the Planning Board decision memorialized on June 5. The application was approved, he notes, "notwithstanding the admitted uncertainty as to the capacity of the sewer line into which the Project's flows would be directed to handle additional flow."

He also claims that the Injuries Prove Fatal To Man Struck by Car

A 75-year-old Jamesburg resident struck by a car Thursday on Route 206, died the next day from his injuries in Princeton Medical Center.

The victim, Andrew Baird, was struck at 5:46 p.m., at the intersection of Red Hill Road, by a car operated by Thomas S. Rumer, 21, 112 Sycamore Road. Still conscious, though suffering head and internal injuries, Mr. Baird was taken to the Medical Center which notified Township police at 11:31 Friday night that he had died.

The fatal accident is still under investigation by Township Traffic Safety Officer Sgt. Marlo Musso. No charges have been made against Mr. Rumer.

development is "not entitled" to an 11-unit density bonus, because the applicant failed to demonstrate that the project conforms to standards applicable to residential clusters. Mr. Petrino and his clients believe that the 40 percent common open space is not in one "compact and contiguous parcel," as required in the ordinance.

Furthermore, the appeal states, the development of the Russell Estate Project will have "an unreasonable adverse impact upon the area in which it is proposed to be established." Neighbors object to all 56 units having access to Edgerstoune Road and claim that the circulation plan for the project creates "an unsage vehicular and circulation plan on the site and adjoining roads and should not have been approved."

The appellants say that safety issues raised by the Association and by the Hun School headmaster were not addressed and that a circulation plan prepared by the Association which would have limited the number of new homes with access to Edgerstoune Road was disregarded.

At its meeting Monday night, Township Committee did not set a date for hearing the appeal, preferring to ascertain whether transcripts of the hearings before the Planning Board were available first. The appeal was filed last Friday, within the 10-day time limit from the date of publication of the Planning Board's May 17 decision.

It may be the last appeal of a Planning Board decision that Township Committee will have to hear. Under revisions to the state land use law that go into effect July 1, such appeals will go to the courts rather than to the municipal governing body.

Accident

According to Township police, Mr. Rumer was driving north on Route 206 at about 35 miles an hour. He was transporting some young members of a baseball team, of which he was the manager, to a game. He first noticed Mr. Baird on the side of Route 206 as he approached the Red Hill intersection.

The victim, Mr. Rumer told police, then began to walk across Route 206. When he got to the middle of the roadway, he started to run — right in front of Mr. Rumer's car. Mr. Rumer told police he applied his brakes and turned to the right, but could not stop in time.

Capt. John Petrone commented that Mr. Baird had been admitted to the Princeton Nursing and Rehabilitation Home on Quarry Street at 2 p.m. on the day of the accident and had apparently walked out of the home on his own.

The initial police investigation at the scene was conducted by Ptl. Anthony Gaylord.

BLOCK GRANT CHANGED

For Purchase, Not Rehab. The $85,000 Federal Small Cities Community Block Grant announced back in October has undergone some changes. The amount has been whittled to $65,000 and, at Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund's urging, the purpose of the monies has been changed from general rehabilitation to home purchase in the John Witherspoon neighborhood.

The grant will now be used this way: The Borough will receive the full $65,000 and sub-contract it to the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation with county approval. The corporation will buy a house, find a family to purchase it, and receive the money for it.

Upon receipt of the purchase price, 30 percent of the money will be returned to the county. The remaining 70 percent will remain with WJDC for re-use.

Mayor Sigmund's efforts to redirect the grant toward purchase arose from her feeling that there will be sufficient funds available for rehabilitation in the John Witherspoon community.

She noted that the $85,000 State Neighborhood Preservation Grant for rehabilitation in the John Witherspoon area, which was awarded the borough in June of last year, will be continued.

"The grant will be renewed in the next fiscal year beginning July 1, and I am confident that we can look forward to two additional years of renewal, for a total of four years and almost $400,000 for rehabilitation work," said the mayor.

This grant, which is being administered by Michael Floyd, provides money to home owners for rehabilitation of infrastructure, such as sidewalks and sewer lateral lines, or for repairs to the house itself.

However, the monies cannot be used to retain the present housing stock for low and moderate income families.

Mayor Sigmund asserted the need to retain this stock: "We must," she said, "use every means at our disposal to shore up the community against increasing gentrification.

ORDINANCE TABLED

Jogging Rules Reduced. Runners not only object to the misnomer — "jogging" — by which the new set of rules and regulations governing running on Township roadways is known, they also object to the implication that they lack common sense.

Speaking aloud at Township Committee hearings on the proposed ordinance, and in private to Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill, who first proposed the ordinance, they have succeeded in obtaining major changes in the provisions. At last Monday's Township Committee meeting, Mrs. Cantrill announced that she would amend the ordinance "because of the good spirit of the runners" and the "educational component" implicit in their willingness to inform younger members of the "rules of the road."

Mrs. Cantrill would delete the provisions about running facing traffic, running single file, and running on the sidewalk, because they are (sort of) covered by state statute obtaining to pedestrians. She would also delete the prohibition against running while listening to a walkman. She would retain only the proviso about wearing reflective material after dark and would reduce the fine to $25 but only after a warning had been issued.

However, Committeeman William Cherry wanted to amend her amendment to prohibit running more than two abreast. Committeeman Richard Schoch abstained from voting on Mrs. Cantrill's amendment, saying, "This is an area where we need education, not legislation," and the matter was deadlocked.

Mayor Winthrop S. Pike suggested Mr. Cherry and Mrs. Cantrill resolve their differences and come in with a revised "jogging" ordinance at the next Township Committee meeting July 2.

BONDS AUTHORIZED

By Borough. Among the bond ordinances authorized at last week's Borough Council meeting were those to help finance the resurfacing of Community Park pool and the construction of a new skylight at the library.

Other ordinances authorized by council include $391,000 for road construction and reconstruction; $30,000 for renovation of Borough Hall; $91,000 for new equipment and vehicles, and $8,000 for improvements to Turning Basin Park.

Council also decreed at this meeting that all take-out food shops in the borough must provide at least one trash receptacle in front of their store.

PLANS ARE IN

For New Senior Center. The drawings and specifications for the new Senior Citizens Center in the former gym behind Borough Hall have been completed by Architect E. Harvey Meyers of Princeton, and the job has gone out to bid.

This was the word from Borough Hall, where the hope is that the work on the center can be completed by Labor Day.

Mr. Meyers, who contributed his expertise both to the Senior Center and to its co-tenant – the Princeton Art Association – expects construction to begin within the next three weeks.

The center will consist of a main area plus two good-sized offices. Plans for the programs to be held in the center – when it begins operation –are in the works. Right now they include arts and crafts, bridge, drop-in use, and health screening.

Mr. Meyers noted that there was a great deal of volunteer help in the gym renovation, and mentioned the contributions of the steamfitters', plumbers', and carpenters' unions as well as the Borough police department.

PAA Has Moved In. While the seniors' part of the building is waiting for completion, the Princeton Art Association has already moved into its space. The group will hold its summer sessions at its new studios in the old gym.

TWO-YEAR OLD DROWNS

In Delaware River. The body of two-year old Angel Back of Princeton Junction was pulled from the Delaware River by State police Sunday morning, an apparent drowning victim.

The child's body was recovered within 100 feet of where a 14-foot aluminum boat in which she was a passenger began to fill with water Saturday night and was carried away by the current.

According to state police, the victim, her four-year old sister, Rosie, her mother Pamela Black, 22, Kevin Danser, 23, of Princeton Junction and Donald Sulk, 14, of Florence, were attempting to row to Newbolt Island located in Mansfield Township in Burlington County about 7:30 in the evening when the boat began to fill with water.

The three adults tried to row back to shore while bailing out the boat but were unsuccessful. One State Trooper described the flat-bottomed boat, whose bottom was covered with several aluminum patches, as "a piece of junk."

Mrs. Back and her surviving daughter were taken to Mount Holly's Memorial Hospital following the accident. Rescue squads had dived and dragged the river following the tragedy before finding the victim's body at 12:58 Sunday afternoon.

The state police investigation of the incident is continuing.

IBM OFFERS EQUIPMENT

For Computer Projects. Princeton University has received a major equipment grant from International Business Machines Corp. that will support a number of innovative microcomputer-based educational projects over the next three years.

The grant, announced by University President William G. Bowen, provides equipment and technical support with an equivalent retail value estimated at approximately $6 million and culminates several months of discussion between Princeton and IBM.

During 1984-85 IBM will support seven computing-related educational experiments proposed by the University. The projects to be supported involve experimentation with different ways of integrating computing into teaching and research programs ranging from engineering to the creative

Costly Combination: Fireworks and New Jersey

If you want to have a safe Fourth of July, do not play with fireworks; if you want an inexpensive Fourth, do not get caught selling or possessing fireworks.

New Jersey laws governing fireworks are very restrictive. Breaking them can be very expensive. Anyone found guilty of possessing fireworks, including sparklers, with the intention of selling, can be fined up to $1,000 (it used to be $100) or imprisoned up to six months or both.

Anyone found using fireworks can be fined up to $500 or imprisoned up to 30 days or both. In addition, under present state law, according to Township Capt. Jack Petrone, anyone found transporting fireworks into New Jersey — or within the state bounderies — can be fined up to $7,500 or imprisoned for 18 months or both. Any fireworks confiscated will be destroyed. Finally, if fireworks cause an accident, the seller may be sued, no matter who is at fault.

Only paper caps and plastic caps for use in toy cap guns are legal in New Jersey. Fireworks obviously illegal in the state include fire crackers, Roman candles, aerial rockets and the very dangerous M-80.

Thomas K. Shea, head of the Mine Safety Section's Office of Safety Compliance warns that it is the small novelty fireworks brought in from other states that have no laws on the manufacture or sale of fireworks that may cause confusion for New Jersey residents.

Any novelty package with the words "Common Fireworks" is illegal, says Mr. Shea. Some of these items may be marked "trick noise makers," "cigarette loads," "trick matches," "smoke grenades" or "toy propellent." All are illegal in New Jersey.

Some of the common trade names are snap & pops, poppets and champagne poppers. Be wary of anything that gives a visible or audible effect, adds Mr. Shea. If in doubt, call 292-2096.

arts; similar experiments in other parts of the University will be supported during 1985-86 and 1986-87.

The University's overall plan for computing currently envisions constructing a network of as many as 1,000 microprocessor-based work stations installed over the next five to seven years in 40 to 50 clusters strategically placed around the campus in academic departments and student residential areas. Each cluster would provide a substantial amount of "centralized" support for these work stations, including storage of files, communications control (both inside the cluster and to other clusters or elsewhere in the network) and high-quality printing. High-speed communications links would also be provided to tie these clusters and the University's Computer Center into a single, integrated network of resources.

The projects to be carried out under the IBM grant are designed to develop additional experience with both the technical problems and the educational opportunities of such an approach. The University plans to experiment with — and in some cases develop — the new hardware and software tools needed to achieve its overall computing objectives.

The seven specific projects to be initiated in 1984-85 encompass the University's four academic divisions — humanities, the natural sciences, the social sciences and engineering — and another in an undergraduate residential college.

MORE SHADE SOUGHT

By Shade Tree Commission. As development pressures on Princeton Township portend more office buildings, more parking lots, more roads and sidewalks, the Township Shade Tree Commission wants to make sure the leafy-green character of the town is retained.

As Anne Adriance, a member of the Commission, points out, that means thinking ahead, because it takes a while for a sapling to grow tall enough to shade cars and homes from the hot summer sun. As an example, Mrs. Adriance cites the foresightedness of the late William Howe of Howe Nurseries who, even before Prospect Street extension was cut through, planted little maple trees along the right of way as it was shown on Township maps. Today those maples form a welcoming and shady archway over the roadway.

The Shade Tree Commission budget covers tree and stump removal, some new plantings and some pruning. But there is always a need for more. The Township Engineering Department has a list of some 60 trees that are suitable for planting along sidewalks and in parking lots.

The Commission helps homeowners select a suitable tree for a specific spot in the Township right-of-way. The owner pays for the tree, which is installed by the Township road crew, and agrees to water it faithfully for the first year.

Memorials. The Shade Tree Commission welcomes donations of trees as memorials. There is a dogwood at the Community Park pool complex that was planted in memory of Rachel Bull, the Princeton High School senior who was killed by an intruder a few weeks before her graduation. A Callery Pear was recently planted at the corner of Quarry and Witherspoon Streets in memory of Lankford Bolling, a member of the Shade Tree Commission.

Adela Wilmerding, chair of the Shade Tree Commission during the temporary absence of John Kuser, says that developers have been seeking the advice of the Commission on plantings, especially for parking lots. The Commission is in the process of developing guidelines for these developers, as well as a list of suggested trees.

As the Shopping Center proceeds with its plans for renovation, the Commission hopes that trees in and around the parking lots will be part of the new owner's plans — for aesthetic reasons as well as to cut down the glare and the heat coming up from hot asphalt.

But while there is always a need for more, particularly in a community that is ever changing and growing, the Shade Tree Commission is grateful for every gift that is given. Recently the Garden Club of America presented a katsura tree, a Japanese shade tree, for planting in here. It is gifts like these that help keep Princeton a green oasis in the middle of urban sprawl.

FITTING MEMORIAL: Although a brand new Callery Pear tree has been planted on the corner of Quarry and Witherspoon Street in memory of Lankford Bolling, his fellow members of the Township Shade Tree Commission think that this more mature row of Callery Pears along Birch Avenue that he tended and watched over is in its own way a memorial to Mr. Bolling. From left are Walter Mironchik of the Township Engineering Department, and Shade Tree Commission members Adela Wilmerding, Anne Adriance and William H. Thompson.

approved three teacher transfers for the 1984-85 school year.

Ward Campbell and Ann Johnston will move from John Witherspoon to the high school and Patricia VanNess will now be a kindergarten teacher at Community Park instead of at Riverside. Marilyn Shteir returns from a leave of absence to teach first grade at Riverside.

CONTRACT RATIFIED

For Princeton Teachers. The new two-year teacher's contract between the Princeton school board and the Princeton Regional Education Association has been ratified. It will go into effect July 1.

During the same school board meeting in which the contract was ratified — the last session until September — the board also approved a new annual salary of $64,200 for School Superintendent Paul Houston.

The teachers' contract, which was arrived at through mediation, provides an annual seven percent raise for two years. It also provides dental insurance up to a $150 annual premium beginning the second year and an improved Blue Cross-Blue Shield Rider J contract that will raise coverage for laboratory work and X-rays from the present $150 to $400.

The first three steps of the district's increment guide were eliminated, thus reducing increment steps from 15 to 12 and raising starting salaries $2,000 for beginning teachers. The new salary figures for Princeton Regional Schools' 205 teachers range from $16,836 for those who join the system now to $35,014 for teachers with 15 or more years of experience and a Ph.D. Seventy-five percent of Princeton's teachers have been with the system for 15 years or more.

Ann Johnson, a teacher at John Witherspoon, president of the Princeton Regional Education Association, and member of the negotiating team, said that she would have been happier if the teachers' group had been able to get more than seven percent for people who have been serving for 15 to 30 years or more. "The salaries were too low to begin with and they're still too low."

A somewhat different note was struck by Rosemary McGee, chairman of the school board's negotiating team.

"I was very pleased with the contract. We both got some things in the contract that we wanted, but we didn't get everything we wanted. It's a fair contract and one that's good for the schools."

Extra Services. Still unresolved is the question of pay for extra services such as coaching and working with math and debating teams. These negotiations are expected to be completed by October and raises will be retroactive to July 1.

Contract negotiations are also proceeding for secretaries, aides and custodians.

Assistant Superintendent Jamieson McKenzie received a seven percent raise, going from $52,529 annually to $56,199. Administrators, in the second year of a two-year contract, also received seven percent increases.

They are, High School Principal John Sakala, from $52,429 to $56,099; John Witherspoon Principal William Johnson, from $49,159 to $52,600; Riverside Principal George Petrillo, from $44,799 to $47,935; High School Assistant Principals Florence Burke and Norman Van Arsdalen and Middle School Assistant Principal J. Alfred Seitz, from $43,164 to $46,185;

Also, Director of Student Services Charles Huchet and Director of Curriculum Lloyd Taylor, from $44,799 to $47,935. Starting salary for incoming Community Park Principal Arthur Firestone is $45,935.

ATTEMPT IS MADE

To Enter Investment Firm. There was an attempt made during the weekend to enter the investment firm of Tucker Anthony & R.L. Day, 100 Nassau Street.

Police report that a screen on the north side of the building had been cut open and an interior window was broken with a rock. There was a round hole at the bottom of the window below the lock and the lock was unlocked, police added, but apparently no entry was gained.

The attempted entry was discovered at 8:40 Monday morning. Police were notified a minute later.

RADAR UNIT STOLEN

From Convertible. A radar detector valued at $250 was stolen last week from a 1981 Mercedes Benz convertible while it was parked for one hour in front of 30 Nassau Street.

The unit had been mounted on the dashboard with velcro strips and was taken between 10 and 11 a.m. The victim is a resident of Stony Brook Lane.

A small menu but each dish is a delight

From cooking classes in her home to La Cuisine, that fine little gourmet carry-out shop on Nassau Street, to, at last, her wished-for good French restaurant in Princeton — and Roberta Churchill is doing it without a liquor license.

By the looks of business the other night, she isn't going to need one. Everyone brought his own bottle (or bottles) of wine which is marked and then corked and poured for a $2 fee per bottle. Seems excessive, but no one seemed to mind. Some even brought wines for each course.

And such courses! From a small menu that changes monthly to reflect "fresh seasonal foods," we could have chosen from the Appetizers or Accompaniments category: Asparagus Tips in Puff Pastry with a Tarragon Cream Sauce, $5.25; Baked Goat Cheese, Watercress and Spinach Sauce, $3.95; the soup of the day, Cold Cream of Sorrel, $2.50; or Artichoke bottoms, Duck Liver Mousse, Sun Dried Tomato Sauce, $4.95. (Trenton Times food editor Daisy Fitch raves about the sun-dried tomato's flavor, "essence of sunshine," she says.)

Handsome Taster chose the Baked Goat Cheese, a 50-cent-piece cylinder sitting in a discreet creamy puddle of sauces. First impressions can be deceiving: what we thought was a tiny portion, Roberta knew better. The flavors of the cheese and the sauces were intense and definitely appetite provoking. We noshed through our allotment of French bread in a wink and broke into the homemade croissants as vehicles for the cheese. A wonderful appetizer.

BUT JUST AS delicious — and icy cold, to boot — was the Cold Cream of Sorrel soup. The flavor was subtle as was the color — somewhat like a pale green-tinged celery — and it was smooth as whipping cream. I wanted the little glass cup to be bottomless.

From the main courses that included Sauteed Chicken with Wild Mushroom Sauce, $12.95, and Scallops and Ginger in Puff Pastry, $17.50, HT selected Cataplana — Portuguese Stew of Cherrystone Clams and Marinated Pork, $13.95, and I the Veal and Asparagus en Papillote, $18.75.

The Cataplana was beautifully served in a copper pot containing four large tender clams in their shells and cubes of just-cooked-through pork and peppers in a sauce that nipped ob-so-subtly at the tongue, but never overpowered.

When the parchment envelope containing my veal and asparagus was slit and placed before me, the aroma rising from it was so heady that I needn't have eaten a morsel. But I'm glad I did, for the veal was wonderfully tender and white and the asparagus firm and moist and bright green. A fontina cheese lay glistening between the meat and vegetable, lending both body and nourishment for the soul.

Vegetables of the evening were crisp green beans, cherry tomato halves bathed in pesto (outrageously good) and rice. Again small portions that were just right.

WHILE WE MIGHT have chosen a cheese tray with fruit at $3.75 or assorted Bassett ice creams, $1.95, we went to the pastry cart instead where HT selected a hazelnut cake, very rich and moist and almost nut-oily. I ordered a Strawberry Shortcake from the kitchen when I heard that a homemade buttermilk biscuit was the underpinning.

Great, short biscuit, with fresh berries that were too warm — only glitch in the evening — topped with freshly whipped cream. Each dessert was $3.75.

I cannot fault Roberta for not having my grandmother's strawberry shortcake: one-half a baking powder biscuit, hot from the oven, slathered with butter, topped with cold, cold berries mashed with her potato masher, topped with the lid to the biscuit and then more berries and whipped cream. Her shortcake was marvelous and so was Roberta's.

Don't miss the fine food prepared with care by Roberta and Brian Dodge, served lovingly — and in a most unlikely spot: tucked away in the center court of a shopping center. Just think, you can eat at Roberta's once a month and never eat the same thing twice. That's some shopping spot.

Trenton Times, June 17, 1984.

Avenue where it was being used to drain water from a basement excavation. Police report the two-inch pump had been rented from Taylor Rental on State Road. They received no value on the missing pump.

A Hun School student, Robert Metsger of Sparta, reported the theft of a $150 radio-cassette player from his dormitory room in Poe Hall during graduation excercises last week at the school off Edgerstoune Road.

Bicyle Thefts. Three more bicycles were stolen last week in Princeton.

A $300 silver and blue Univega 10-speed was taken last week from in front of 46 Witherspoon Street where the victim, a Princeton High School student, had left it for 10 minutes. Police report the bicycle had been secured with a cable lock through the front wheel and frame and attached to a railing.

The same day, a Linwood Circle resident reported the theft of his bicycle from the PHS grounds. The bike, a 10-speed blue Fuji valued at $60, had been secured, police said, with a cable lock through the frame and rear wheel.

Township police listed the theft of a bicycle stolen Friday betwen 3:30 and 6 from a rack at the John Witherspoon School grounds. They described the bike as a Schwinn Phantom Chrome model.

SIX ARE FINED

For Red Light Violations. Six Princeton area residents were fined $60 each in Borough traffic court Monday for red light violations.

They are Marlene J. Gawakiewicz, 24 Gulick Road; Joan O'Donoghue, 61 Lovers Lane; Joseph A. Allegra, 14 Pin Oak Drive, Lawrenceville; Florence G. Wintebottom, 156 N. Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell; Hazel S. Stix, 231 Brookstone Drive, and Jane H. Critchley, Belle Mead.

Fined for speeding were Mary K. Olson, 54 Robin Drive, Skillman; Donald J. Meyers, 5A Washington Street, Rocky Hill; and Josephine Boccanfuso, 25 Guyot Avenue, all $70, and Frank J. DiBella, 244 Fieldboro Drive, Lawrenceville, $60.

Cesar Lithgow, Skillman Road, Skillman, pleaded guilty with an explanation to driving with an open container of alcohol in his car. He was fined a mandtory $210.

Fined $60 each for stop sign passed near Library Place by violations were Sara J. Welch, a beige Volkswagen Rabbit, 10 Sassafras Row, and David one of the four occupants J. ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL

Driver Charged with DWI. A Morristown resident, John M. Carrol, was charged last week with driving while intoxicated by Township police.

Mr. Carrol, 41, was observed by Ptl. Mark Emann slumped over his steering wheel, sleeping, at 1:16 Saturday morning at the intersection of Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road. Found to be intoxicated, he was taken to police headquarters, given a Breathalyzer test, charged and later released.

CAR IS DESTROYED

By Fire. A red Ford coupe operated by Jean Bianco of 61 Princeton Avenue, Rocky Hill was destroyed by flames Thursday afternoon after it caught fire on Stockton Street near the Governor's mansion.

Mrs. Bianco told police that she had stopped the car when she smelled gas and smoke. By the time firemen arrived at the scene, however, the car was engulfed in flames and extensively damaged.

The fire, police said, originated in the engine compartment. Mrs. Bianco also lost a pair of $100 prescription eyeglasses which were in the car's glove compartment.

QUARREL IS FOLLOWED

By Assault Charge. A verbal argument early Sunday morning on Leigh Avenue — described by police as a boy friend-girl friend affair — has led to an assault charge against one of the participants.

Monica Tonelli of 81 Leigh later signed a complaint of simple assault, police said, against Miguel S. Mastroianni, 24, 16 Quarry Street. Ms. Tonelli told police that Mastroianni had struck her twice in the face with his hand, cutting her over the right eye and bloodying her nose.

Police report the argument took place at 5 o'clock in the morning in front of Ms. Tonelli's home.

Harrassment. A 17-year-old Skillman youth was the victim of an act of harrassment while he was riding his moped on Stockton Street early Monday

REFUSES TO PAY BILL

Charged with Theft of Services. Diane Rick, 29, 246 Nassau Street, has been charged with theft of services after she refused Sunday to pay a $4.03 bill at P.J.'s Pancake House on Nassau Street.

A complaint summons was signed by an employee of P.J.'s against Miss Rick who must appear in Borough Court July 18 to answer the charge.

Det. William Fitch was at the restaurant on other business and was talking to the hostess, according to Capt. John J. Bellow, when Miss Rick started yelling at the officer to leave her alone.

When a waitress brought Miss Rick a bag of leftover French Fries she had been unable to eat and a bill for a hamburger and cup of tea, Miss Rick allegedly said that she had no money and tried to walk out the door.

Detained by Det. Fitch who told her she had to pay, Miss Rick again insisted she had no money. Capt. Bellow added that police later determined that Miss Rick had enough money in her handbag to pay the bill.

WELCOME ABOARD: Officer James Delaney, 25, (left) is congratulated by Township Captain John F. Petrone, after graduating May 30 from the municipal police training class at Sea Girt Academy where he was a recipient of a merit award for leadership, scholastic achievement and physical fitness. A resident of South River, Officer Delaney was appointed to the Township Police Department on March 12. He will serve for a year as a probationary officer. Previously, Officer Delaney was a member of the South River Police Department for almost three years before he was laid off, the victim of a budgetary cutback.

PHS IS CANVAS

For Obscenities. Obscenities written in blue and white paint on doors and windows on the side of Princeton High School facing the circular drive were discovered at 1:24 Saturday morning.

Police said the paint, still fresh and tacky to the touch, was used to write derogatory remarks about two assistant principals.

In a second incident of criminal mischief at the high school earlier in the week, police were notified by an assistant principal at noon Thursday that someone had placed a firecracker behind a radiator cover located in the Tower entrace to the auditorium. The resultant explosion bent the cover and rendered it useless. "We have no suspects and no estimate of the damage," said Capt. John J. Bellow.

There was more painting vandalism at the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home on Vandeventer Avenue.

Police said that yellow gobs of the oil-based paint used by artists were smeared on the building, an outside sign, doorbell speaker and sidewalk. Four nearby parking meters were also smeared with paint. Police report finding two empty paint tubes at the scene.

Cars, moving and parked, continue to be another favorite target for vandals.

A Skillman resident told police that the side view mirror of his leased, 1984 Mercedes Benz had been broken off while it was parked for 15 minutes Saturday morning at the rear of 194 Nassau Street. Police report paint chips were also missing from the driver's side where it appears someone threw a stone at the car. There was no estimate of the damage.

Police received a report on Saturday of vandalism to a 1981 Honda while it was parked earlier this month on Witherspoon Lane. Both rear fenders sustained numerous scratches from a sharp instrument. The driver, a Charlton Street resident, originally reported the incident as a motor vehicle accident.

While a Princeton resident was driving his 1979 sedan down Alexander Street last week at 3 in the morning, he heard something hit the windshield. When he arrived at his Route 27 home, he checked and discovered that his windshield had been chipped and broken. He told police that it appears as if it were struck by a BB pellet. Again, police received no damage estimate.

Township police report that a Jefferson Road resident parked her 1983 Ford in front of her house last week and when she returned three hours later at 10 in the evening she discovered both wiper blades had been bent and damaged. Nothing else was disturbed.

Three juveniles from Princeton Township, Belle Mead and Hopewell have been apprehended and charged with using a cherry bomb last week to blow up a Stony Brook Lane mailbox.

CHILDREN INVITED

To Canal Celebrations. A theatrical performance especially for children will kick off the celebration of the Delaware and Raritan Canal's 150th anniversary at Blackwells Mills Saturday, June 23, at noon.

Entitled "Rousters and Roustabouts," the performance consists of original tales from labor and industry that are part of New Jersey's social history in the early 1900s when the D&R Canal was a thriving waterway.

High Marks

Ninety-eight-point-six percent of ninth graders at Princeton High School passed both the reading and math tests of the state-mandated Minimum Basic Skills test (MBS). Eighty percent scored 99.9 percent in reading; 40 percent of those tested scored at or above 99.7 percent in math.

The MBS test, the present requirement for a state-endorsed high school diploma, measures the basic skills of reading and math that can be mastered by practice and drill.

Ninth-graders also took the new, more rigorous High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) which will become a requirement for a state-endorsed diploma in 1985-86. There was no grading because passing scores have not been established by the state.

The HSPT, which differs from the MBS in that it requires students to apply knowledge and to use more advanced thought processes, conforms with the Princeton Regional School Board's priority on emphasizing critical thinking skills.

High School Principal John Sakala expressed confidence that students would continue to score at the highest level on all state-mandated tests because the curriculum stresses the teaching of higher order reasoning and evaluative skills.

Written and performed by Creative Theatre Unlimited, it has had 26 performances around the state.

"Rousters" are those people in the past who were inventors, creating ideas and arousing imaginations. "Roustabouts" were workers in a variety of jobs that are part of our heritage. Featured in the play are a ratter, a bridgetender and coal pirates. The presentation is designed for youngsters in third through sixth grade and encourages audience participation.

"Rousters and Roustabouts" is part of a festival at Blackwells Mills that will include crafts, contests, a canoe race, food, entertainment and other events for children and adults.

For information call the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association at 737-3734.

Kingston Celebration. Kingston will be the site of D&R Canal festivities sponsored by the South Brunswick Heritage Foundation, Recreation Department and Cultural Arts Commission.

Activities will take place Saturday, June 23, on Main Street and at the D&R Canal State Park. The Kingston Business Association will sponsor a craft fair and collectibles sale from 9 to 4, and there will be a flea market, booksale and bakesale as well. Walking tours of historic Kingston will take place at 11 and again at 2. The rain date is Sunday, June 24.

At the Canal Park, entertainment is scheduled from noon to 4, and will include a puppet show, breakdancing, mime, a clown, fiddlers, and a bluegrass band. Walking, bicycling, fishing, canoeing

BUSY TIMES ON THE SQUARE: While the war of words over Collins' plans for Palmer Square may be starting to subside, the construction activity is becoming more intense. Above, the excavation for the Chambers Street garage is well under way, while below, on the other side of the square, the old power plant building is coming down to make way for the addition to the Nassau Inn.

14 GRADUATE

From Boychoir School. Commencement exercises were held last Saturday at the American Boychoir School for the graduating class of eighth grade choirboys.

Among the graduates were two from the Princeton area, Gabriel Ostriker of Princeton and and David Edwards of Lawrenceville. The address to the graduating class was given by Brad Richmond, an alumnus, former head choirboy and former assistant music director.

Academic awards presented to area residents included an award to John Heinsohn of Kingston and Ben Farrell for German studies; upper school science award to Ben Farrell; lower school math award to Peter Jacobson of Princeton; lower school English award to Brent Mathews of Princeton Junction; and the Best Choirboy to David Edwards of Lawrenceville.

Members of the graduating class will attend Lawrenceville, The Hill School, The George School, Blair Academy, Peddie and Pingry, as well as hometown high schools.

27 GRADUATE

From Stuart School. The 20th anniversary year at Stuart Country Day School came to a close with commencement exercises for the 27 members of the senior class.

James E. Burke, chairman and chief executive officer of Johnson & Johnson, gave the commencement address. Averil Ipri, a member of the Stuart faculty, gave the invocation. Sister Joan Magnetti, RSCJ, headmistress, and L. Eric Solomon, chairman of Stuart's board of trustees, conferred the diplomas.

Susan Maddock received the Faculty Award. Lesley Vannerson received the Peter Mark Science Award and the Bishop George W. Ahr Award for Religion. Noreen Bustos, who is 1984 valedictorian, received the Bausch and Lomb Award. The Women's College Club Award went to Melissa Robinson. Katherine Gallagher is 1984 salutatorian.

SUMMER PROGRAM SET

For Educational Clinic. The Educational Therapy Clinic of Princeton will hold its 17th Summer Learning Program from Monday, June 25, through Friday, August 17, at 10 Nassau Street. The clinic, a member of the Orton Dyslexic Society, provides year-round diagnostics, consultations, and tutoring services for students, kindergarten through adult.

Summer sessions focus on students who need review, enrichment, or reinforcement in specific subjects. Subjects include math, reading vocabulary and comprehension, study skills and test taking, English, spelling, phonics, and handwriting. Written expression and organization are stressed. Elizabeth Travers, director and therapist, emphasizes the joy of writing along with the mechanics.

Deana Kirsch, speech pathologist and member of ASHA, will again provide speech and language therapy. Neysa Bibel, retired reading and child development specialist, is certified and experienced in reaching and teaching both remedial students and those who want a head start in the next grade.

Tutors and teachers are qualified and experienced in their specialties. Enrollment may be part time or full time. Programming is individual. For further information, call Linda Storch, administrative secretary, 924-4663.

GENDER GAP IS TOPIC

Of Conference. A Gender Gap Regional Conference, sponsored by the Democratic National Committee and the New Jersey Democratic Party's Women's Vote '84 Task Force, will be held Saturday, June 23, at the Hyatt-Regency Hotel. This is one of six regional gender cap conferences scheduled prior to the November elections.

Purpose of the conference is to mobilize women voters and underscore the importance of the women's vote to the Democratic Party in 1984. Presenters at the Princeton conference will include Ann Lewis, Eleanor Smeal, Molly Yard, Ann Campbell and Virginia Feggins.

For additional information, call Kate Litvack, executive director, New Jersey Democratic Party, at 392-3367.

SEEDLINGS AVAILABLE

Of Mercer Oak. If genes make a difference in trees as they do in dogs, cats, horses and humans, little potted seedlings grown from Mercer Oak acorns would make coveted specimen saplings that with time and the right conditions could grow to mighty, long-lived oaks.

History buff Richard Baker evidently thought this would be the case, and as president of the Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society saw a way of making a little money for the Society in the process. With the cooperation of Princeton Nurseries, some 152 Mercer Oak seedlings were raised and nurtured to their present two-foot size. For a while, their existence was known only to members of the Society, who snapped up about 60 at $10 apiece.

The word began to get out, and soon Mr. Baker had requests from sources as diverse as the landscape architects who were consultants to developers around town. One bought four, another 10, and so they went, 122 in all. There are 30 left, and Mr. Baker has decided to "go public" about his project.

The little white oak seedlings are now fully leafed out, he says, and with regular watering, can remain in their pots a while longer without being transplanted. They cost $10 each and are available at the Baker home, 1 Armour Road. Call him first at 924-0162.

Incidentally, although the venerable Mercer Oak looks as if it is on its last limbs and has seen better days — which it has — the Battlefield Park will not be without descendants of this survivor and natural monument to the Battle of Princeton. The Contemporary Garden Club has reserved 10 seedlings to plant in a grove around the bench overlooking the park.

Power Outage Brief

A power outage Monday that affected the Princeton Shopping Center and parts of the eastern section of the Township only lasted a little over half an hour, but as one Center merchant observed, it came at the wrong time.

"It happened just at lunch time," said Flory Toto, owner of Dockside Seafood Center. (Police notified Public Service at 11:50.) "I lost lots of business because I couldn't wait on anybody." Lunch customers at restaurants and eating places in the center just got up and walked out, Mr. Toto added.

Captain John Petrone said that traffic lights on Harrison Street from the shopping center to Nassau Street were affected by the outage. Police, he said, were still waiting for an explanation of the cause of the power failure.

SUMMER SESSIONS SET

For Crafts Enthusiasts. The YWCA Artisans Guild will continue its weekly "working sessions" throughout the summer. During these informal two-hour get-togethers, needleworkers and other craftspersons share ideas, work on individual projects and design and technique problems.

Interested persons are welcome in the air-conditioned library of the YWCA on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 12:15 to 2:15. One need not be a skilled craftsperson to join.

For more information, call 924-5571.

EYEGLASSES REQUESTED

By New Jersey Group. New Eyes for the Needy, a nonprofit organization based in Short Hills, is asking for used eyeglasses for donation to people around the world. The group also accepts hearing aids, glass eyes, and jewelry.

Glasses or other items may be sent directly to "New Eyes," 549 Millburn Avenue, P.O. Box 332, Short Hills, N.J. 07078. Or they can be brought to any of the following locations where they will be picked up by the West Windsor Lions Club:

In Princeton,, Johnson Electric Co. and Delcampe Locksmith; in West Windsor, Lucar Hardware, Will's Shell, Diener's Real Estate, and the offices of Drs. John DiPolvere and Earl Simon.

For additional information, call 799-1642.

SUMMER SCHEDULES SET

For School Libraries. The libraries at Community Park and Riverside Schools will be open one day a week from June 25 through August 13. The day for Community Park is Tuesday, and Riverside's day is Thursday. Hours are 10 to 1.

Any Princeton resident may borrow books by registering with one of the libraries. Books will circulate for a two-week period and may be renewed.

READING CLUB SET

For Grades 1-7. The Summer Reading Club of the Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will begin on June 28 and end on July 31. Children in grades one through seven may register at the library for the "Fantastic Journeys" club. They will also have a chance to win prizes and reading certificates to be awarded at a party on Saturday, August 4, at 10 a.m.

The program is free and open to the public. For further information, call 924-7073.

FUND RAISING PARTY

For Peter Bearse. A fund-raising kick-off party will be held for Congressional candidate Peter Bearse on June 30 from 5 to 8 at 175 Bertrand Drive.

Refreshments and entertainment will be provided. Call 924-9559 or 921-3568 (evenings) for reservations or information.

DAYCARE REGISTRATION

For Toddlers. The Lakeside Montessori Center is accepting applications for its summer and fall program for children ages 18 to 30 months. The summer program begins July 2 and the fall August 27.

The center, located in the rear wing of the former Littlebrook School, offers year-round, all-day and half-day toddler Montessori and daycare programs. The full day program is from 9 to 3 and extended day care is available from 8-9 a.m. and 3-5:30 p.m.

Information may be obtained by calling 924-8077 or by writing the school at 39 Magnolia Lane.

FEED YOUR HUNGRY TREES –
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates
If you haven't fed your trees in the past two years, please read on. Feeding, at times can be even more important than spraying. The problem is that most people can't tell when their trees are starving until it's too late to save them. Dead twigs, dying branches, poor leaf development, dull looking bark are definite signs. And under-fed trees are extremely susceptible to rot disease and insect attack.
If you prefer to do your own work, you might consider a consultation with us at WOODWINDS (924-3500). We can give professional recommendations and suggestions that will be beneficial to your garden and to you. Do give a call, we'll be happy to be of help!

Mayor's Statement Concerning WJDC Suit

The following statement was issued by Borough Mayor Barbara B. Sigmund:

The filing of this suit signals to all of us who do not live in the Witherspoon-Jackson area the depth of genuine fear that our fellow citizens in that neighborhood feel about the very survival of their community.

The need for more low, moderate and middle income housing in Princeton Borough is perfectly clear to me and to the majority of the Council. Many of the Borough's own employees cannot afford to live within our borders. Only four of 29 Borough police officers live within the Borough. Forty percent of our volunteer firemen live outside the borders of either Princeton Borough or Township ....

Mayor and Council have been working to address low, moderate and middle income housing needs since January through mechanisms like the Affordable Housing Committee of more than 40 active Borough members; the research of our consulting firm, Charles Nathanson and Company; and investigations of various specific housing initiatives by Mayor and Council. I will announce specific programs based on these efforts early next week.

I have not seen the Witherspoon-Jackson suit and have not yet been served, so I cannot comment upon it in detail. To the extent that it speaks generally to the need for ordinance revision to meet Mt. Laurel requirements, I am in accord with it ... I am very sorry, however, that the proceedings have come to this particular point. Witherspoon-Jackson made an eloquent and well-documented appeal before Mayor and Council in April. Their frustration that that appeal has been ruled invalid is understandable ... But I sincerely believe that their appeal and that of the other appellants was not in vain, because serious and productive negotiations between Collins and the Borough resulted from that process.

The negotiations concerned principally the housing, open space and Greenholm issues raised in the appeals. Specifically in regard to the housing issue, Collins agreed to two provisions. The first would greatly accelerate $100,000 of the air rights money to the Borough so that the Borough would have the use of that money within two months for housing needs, with another $20,000 in a year, as opposed to the present Collins-Borough agreement in which the bulk of the money for the air rights would not be available to the Borough for five years; this provision would be triggered upon the agreement of Gerald Boswell to drop the air rights suit. The second provision would provide an extra $100,000 for low and moderate income housing needs in the Borough that would be triggered on a per-unit set fee basis by the sale of the Collins condominiums.

Council members and I subsequently offered in several meetings with Witherspoon-Jackson officials to utilize the $220,000 "Collins dollars" in partnership with Witherspoon-Jackson to help shore up that neighborhood against gentrification and to add to the affordable housing stock.

Witherspoon-Jackson has judged those remedies inadequate to their needs and has thus sought remedies in court. I believe that we can still reach a local solution rather than one ordered by a court. The offer to negotiate and to further refine any agreement still stands.

group and earmarked for the preservation of existing low and moderate-income housing in the Witherspoon-Jackson neighborhood. Instead he called for concerned citizens to support the court fight by contributing to a newly created Witherspoon-Jackson Legal Defense Fund, care of Princeton Post Office Box 1194.

Mr. Johnson emphasized that the legal actions were not intended to raise the amount of money offered Witherspoon-Jackson as part of any Collins compromise. "The issue is not how much Witherspoon-Jackson will accept or demand in turn for withdrawing," he said. "The issue here is one of principle. To settle or to compromise is a euphemism for selling out to Collins. It would be wrong to think we're holding out for more money."

What concessions might the group accept? Mr. Johnson answered: "A compromise from our point of view would be if Collins offered to make 10 percent of its housing low and moderate income, instead of the 20 percent called for in Mt. Laurel. I'm not saying we would accept it, but that would be a compromise offer. The deal Collins has now is giving the Borough money it would have given anyway."

In a prepared statement, Witherspoon-Jackson asserted that "the interest of the wealthy and white in Princeton has been placed above the vested rights of the people of this historic neighborhood .... The Planning Board approved the Collins project without any serious study of the economic and social impact on the Witherspoon Jackson area, although the Environmental Design Review Committee did point it out. When WJDC raised questions, the Planning Board refused to consider this issue on technical grounds ....

"Two of the key individuals who argued that WJDC missed the proper opportunity to raise its objections are people who were formally associated with WJDC at the time of the Planning Board's preliminary approval. We assume they deliberately refrained from advising us of the 'proper' time to raise our arguments."

One of those "key individuals" was identified as lawyer Thomas Jamieson, who has represented Collins in its public hearings and whose firm represented the Witherspoon-Jackson group from the time of its inception in 1974. The other was not identified at the press conference, but was assumed to be former Borough Mayor Robert Cawley, who sat ex officio on the Witherspoon-Jackson board and who was a supporter of Collins during the Planning Board hearings.

"We're not trying to point a finger at anyone" and "this is not a vendetta," said Mr. Johnson. "It's a reflection of our disappointment in the way the powers-that-be work in this community."

Mr. Jamieson responded: "When we were retained by Collins in 1981, I advised Collins to meet with Witherspoon-Jackson. Collins did that, prior to any public hearings." Until the fall of 1983, the lawyer said, "at no time did Witherspoon-Jackson object to any portion of the plan, nor did they ever talk to us about taking a position. Clearly, had they done so, we would have advised them of a conflict situation."

When the group finally raised objections in the fall of 1983, Mr. Jamieson said he immediately notified Witherspoon-Jackson that his firm and the group would have to part company. "I was surprised when they showed up belatedly in the form of Walton Johnson to object," Mr. Jamieson said.

When asked why Witherspoon-Jackson had taken so long to react to Collins, Mr. Johnson responded that one reason was the sewer moratorium that was in effect during the early stages of the Collins planning. "People were lulled to sleep," he said, "thinking that nothing could happen."

For now the action will be in the courtroom. One of the immediate legal considerations for the Witherspoon-Jackson appeal of Planning Board approval will be whether or not it has a right to appeal more than 45 days after the Planning Board decision. Witherspoon-Jackson officials said they had no information as to the court's schedule, and their lawyer was not present at the press conference. But a Collins spokesman said he expected a hearing on Friday, June 29, to decide that issue.

"We appealed to Borough Council within the 45-day limit," said Mr. Johnson, "believing that that was the proper body to hear an appeal." Now that the court has ruled that Borough Council did not have that power, Witherspoon-Jackson will argue that it should still be allowed to appeal to the jurisdiction that does, which is --once again-- the court of law.

—Richard K. Rein

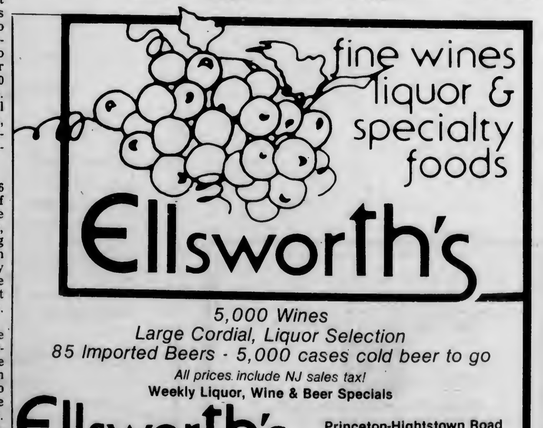
seems to be growing for the Township to meet its obligation by issuing bonds and building the required Mt. Laurel units outright, because far fewer total units, with all the accompanying costs for roads, sewers and schools, would be needed.



Jerry Palin of Bouvant Road was one who made this point. If it takes $50,000 to build a modest 1,000 square-foot house which is then sold to a low-income family for $30,000, that means a $20,000 subsidy, Mr. Palin calculates. If the Township's Mt. Laurel "fair share" is 700 such units, that means a $14 million subsidy, or a $1.8 million debt service.

On tax revenues of $16 million, that's an increase of 10 or 12 percent in the average homeowner's tax bill per year, a figure with which housing consultant Alan Mallach agreed. "I'd be willing to pay that percentage to prevent the overbuilding that will result from this ordinance," Mr. Palin asserted.

He pointed out that if the 2.75 bonus density in the ordinance is applied, the Township would end up with 4,200 more homes in order to get the 700 low and moderate income units mandated by Mt. Laurel. That's a 70 percent increase over the present 6,000 homes in the township, whereas 700 units built

Thanks, Princeton Schools.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of a letter we have sent to Paul Houston, Superintendent, Princeton Regional Schools.

On June 19 the last of our four children will graduate from Princeton High School. Louise and I have endured back-to-school nights for 24 consecutive years. Our kids have known many superb teachers and others less so. We have seen educational fads come and go. But over time the generations of kids don't really change much with their marvelous mix of passions, ideals, and dreams. Their humor remains. At graduation we've seen bananas, spoons, beer bottle caps, soap bubbles, white mice (rumored for this year). Their loyalty to family, friends, and Princeton High School remains.

Our thanks to the teachers and administrators who over the years keep their faith in young people. Louise and I are grateful for their help in raising our children. Although we don't have to endure any more back-to-school nights, I hope that we, as well as the rest of the aging population without school-age kids, will maintain our support of public education. Thanks again, Princeton Public Schools.

ALDEN & LOUISE DUNHAM

Transportation Appreciated.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I wish to commend the Princeton Joint Commission on Aging for its efforts in obtaining funds for special transportation for the elderly and the disabled.

Each day between 2:30 and 5:30, a special van transports elderly and handicapped Princetonians to their doctors' appointments. Wednesday is set aside for shopping.

For those of us who can run in and out of stores at will, a shopping day is no major event. But to a handicapped person, it's a big step toward an independence that all of us, and especially the elderly and the handicapped, value so much.

My mother who is almost 82 is confined to a wheelchair. She's in good health and is able to do her daily chores. Unfortunately, she is totally dependent on others to take her to the doctor and to shop for her.

The special van is designed to carry her heavy wheelchair, so that for the past few weeks, she's been able to shop for herself. She's found renewed interest in cooking and is eagerly testing new recipes. Her lost appetite has returned. She used to say "bring me whatever you think I'd like." Now she looks forward to her shopping day.

Just as the van project made a big difference to my mother, so I'm sure it's added sparkle and cheer to the lives of the other elderly and disabled Princetonians who take part in this well-planned and effective program.

So far, the project has been limited to a two-month demonstration. I very much hope that our governing bodies will see their way to making this wonderful program permanent.

JOSEPHINE WERTH
204 Bertrand Drive

Continue Transportation.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It's a very good thing to have the special transportation for Senior Citizens, especially for people that don't drive.

I am one of those who feel it's good to know you can go to the doctor's without being a bother to other people. Please continue.

Clubs and Organizations

The 1984-85 officers of the Women's Club of Princeton were named at the club's recent annual luncheon. They are:

Mrs. Allan Chytrowski, president; Mrs. Joseph Ludtke, vice president departments; Mrs. William Fisher, vice president programs; Mrs. Leewood W. Rowles, recording secretary; Mrs. Eugene D. Shaw, federation secretary; Mrs. Norman Jackson, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. James Cruickshank, treasurer.

Cindy Liebitz was chosen by the club as delegate to the Citizenship Institute sponsored by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs and held at Douglass College. She is a junior at West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional High School. Toby Warnock, a junior at Princeton High School, was selected as alternate.

Youth Communications, Inc., has elected its 1984-85 officers. They are chairman of the board, Francis G. Clark; president, J. Alfred Seitz; vice presidents, Karen L. Deodato, R. Brian McLaughlin, and Joseph Puglisi; treasurer, John R. Lasley; and secretary, Sharon G. Groendyke.

Other board members include John C. Baker, Edmund R. Casey, John Gutman, and David Rowe.

Youth Communications, Inc., is a non-profit Princeton-based corporation dedicated to introducing young people to the fields of communication through the weekly "Youth Speaks Up" radio show on WPST, the Hugh N. Boyd Urban Journalism Workshop for minority students held annually at Rider College, and through high school guest lecture series offered during the school year.

Hopewell Chapter No. 112 of the O.E.S. will hold a rummage sale Saturday, June 23, at 9:30 a.m. at the Masonic Temple, Broad Sreet, Hopewell.

outright represents a 16 percent increase, he says.

Another Bouvant Road resident who had been busy with her calculator was Sheila Siderman, who presented Committee with a sheet of figures showing builder's gross receipts and bonus profits on the proposed new densities of 2.75, 3.75 and 5 units an acre, as well as the number of acres that would have to be developed by builders in order to yield even 500 low and moderate income units. She called the figures "astounding and devastating" and said it was "frightening what this ordinance opens up."

But she said it was "impossible" to obtain any estimates of the costs of the infrastructure needs, given such development. "I'm a little shocked that the Township would consider an ordinance with such limited information," she said. The point was made by others as well, notably Margen Penick of the Planning Board.

More Units Generated. They also support man-Housing consultant Alan Mallach said that any approach, other than the direct one of the Township bonding $20-$25 million to build units would result in similar density figures. But he said that "used properly" the housing trust concept can generate far more units than the mandatory set-aside approach. He also expects there to be more conversion of existing units and creation of subsidized flats, which in turn would enable more lower income people to be housed without increasing the amount of housing stock.

Former Committeeman Abbott Moffat took issue with the "scattering" approach of the ordinance, which would create an affordable housing district throughout almost all of the Township. "I'm in favor of what you are trying to do," Mr. Abbot said, but he urged a return to the original Master Plan concept of setting aside two or three large areas for affordable housing which would become units in themselves and where the people would be homogeneous.

R. William Potter spoke for the Friends of Princeton Open Space and urged caution in proceeding with an ordinance that must balance the Mt. Laurel requirement for protecting the natural environment as well as providing much needed low and moderate income housing. The Friends went on record as preferring the identification of particular areas or districts in which dense development should go, rather than the "overlay" approach of the proposed ordinance.

datory set-asides and endorse a bond issue for affordable housing, the two alternatives to the proposed voluntary ordinance that are being most discussed among residents. The Friends also suggest that Princeton University become a "direct and financially involved partner" in the community's efforts to meet housing and environmental goals. They point out that not only is the University profiting by the development boom along Route 1, but it also employs many low and moderate income persons who cannot afford to live in Princeton.

Margen Penick of the Planning Board urged Township Committee to provide figures to the public on such things as number of units required and the number of people and car trips that would result. She also urged Committee to "examine the route of bonding" and to invite noted Mt. Laurel expert Jerome Rose to come before the governing body before it made its decision.

Donald M. Wilson offered some suggestions for making a "revolutionary" change "evolutionary." In addition to densities "similar to Queenston Commons everywhere," as Mrs. Elizabeth Hutter put it, residents are concerned about what they perceive as the lack of control inherent in the proposed ordinance, the "too many unknown factors," and the "giving away" of what many feel Planning Board members worked so hard to achieve in the Master Plan only a few years ago.

Philip Hayden, son of Mary Hayden of Rocky Hill and E. Parker Hayden Jr. of Princeton, has been awarded a scholarship by Yankee Publishing Inc. and The National Trust for Historic Preservation to participate in the Yankee Magazine intern program. A recent recipient of a degree in historic preservation and American history at Connecticut College, he will spend his summer on two projects for the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities.

Marine Capt. Cardell N. Parker, son of William C. and Emily M. Parker, 20 Feather Bed Court, Lawrenceville, recently departed on a deployment to Okinawa, Japan. He is an officer assigned to Third Battalion, Seventh Marines, Third Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Brian M. Lee, son of Dr. and Mrs. Leung Lee, 1028 Mercer Road, placed seventh in the finals of the National Championships of the U.S. Fencing Association held recently in Chicago. The 126 top epee fencers in the nation, including the U.S. Olympic team, competed in the two-day event.

Mr. Lee graduated from Princeton University in 1983. He was weapon leader of the varsity epee fencing team and two-time recipient of the Todd Harris Fencing Prize. He is a chemical engineer employed by Avon Products in Suffern, N.Y.

Forty-seven scientists have been given RCA Laboratories Outstanding Achievement Awards for contributions to electronics research and engineering during 1983. Area residents who received individual awards are, Dr. Lorenzo Faraone, Belle Mead, for contributions to the understanding and control of tunneling current through thin thermally grown silicon dioxide layers of silicon devices; Dr. Krishnamurthy Jonnalagadda, Plainsboro, for analysis work to accurately predict the performance of voice and voice band data circuits in the RCA single-sideband system; Dr. Edward H. Adelson, Dr. Curtis R. Carlson, and Albert P. Pica, all of Princeton, Dr. Charles H. Anderson of Rocky Hill, and James R. Bergen of Hopewell, for contributions to the development of advanced signal-processing concepts that match properties of the human visual system.

Also, Walter G. Gibson and Charles M. Wine, both of Princeton, for contributions to the development of the first CED random-access interactive VideoDisc player; Werner F. Wedam, Lawrenceville, for contributions to the development of a 13-inch diagonal high-resolution computer monitor prototype with switchable scan rates; Robert R. Demers, Lawrenceville, and Robert W. Jebens, Skillman, for contributions to the development of concepts that have led to an innovative VideoDisc player designed for automated manufacturing at a lower cost; Dr. Walter F. Kosonocky, Skillman, Peter A. Levine, West Windsor, and Dr. Frank V. Shallcross, Princeton Junction, for contributions to the design and development of a high-sensitivity, low-noise CCD imager;

Also, Dr. Franco N. Sechi, Princeton, for contributions to the development and application of a new batch-fabrication process of miniature microwave circuits; Dr. John R. Fields, Princeton Junction, and Dr. Ronald Sverdlove and Dr. Norman D. Winarsky, both of Princeton, for contributions to the development of a computer program that fully models the electron beam in a picture tube. Joseph H. McCusker and Dr. Alan Sussman, both of Princeton, and Dr. Barry J. Thaler, Lawrenceville, for contributions leading to innovations in the manufacturability, reliability and design of high-voltage transformers for TV receivers.

Maryanne Telese

Maryanne Telese Will Make Debut With New York City Opera July 7

Maryanne Telese, daughter of Frank and Minnie Telese of Ewing Street, will make her debut with the New York City Opera on Saturday, July 7.

She will sing the role of Musetta in Puccini's La Boheme. Later in the City Opera season. Miss Telese will sing the roles of Micaela in Bizet's Carmen and Nedda in Leoncavallo's I Pagliacci. In addition to these roles, she will "cover" (operatic equivalent of understudy) three roles, including that of Mimi in La Boheme.

Miss Telese is a petite 33-year-old lyric soprano whose voice is described as being mature and dark, even Italianate in quality. She laughs when she remembers how her mother used to say you could hear her singing clear down the block. She always wanted to sing and Broadway musicals were her goal as she began private voice lessons at age eight.

She graduated from St Paul's School in Princeton and Villa Victoria Academy in Trenton where she sang scenes from opera in the musicales beginning in her sophomore year. She majored in voice performance at Oberlin Conservatory, receiving a B.A. in 1974 and a Master's in 1975.

After graduation she toured with Texas Opera Theater for two seasons in The Marriage of Figaro and El Capitan before joining the parent company, Houston Grand Opera for The Merry Widow, Daughter of the Regiment and Hansel and Gretel.

She has performed with a number of regional opera houses including those in Miami, Washington, D.C., Boston, St. Louis and New Orleans. She has been a frequent guest artist with the Lake George Opera Festival where she has sung in productions of Manon, Carmen, Madama Butterfly, Summer and Smoke, Last of the Mohicans and The Magic Flute.

Last year she appeared in productions of The Marriage of Figaro with the Michigan Opera Theater, the Dayton Opera and at the Chatauqua Opera, along with appearances at the Opera Theatre of Syracuse and the Indianapolis Opera. This season she has sung La Boheme with the Piedmont Opera, The Elixir of Love with the Washington Opera, a concert with the Houston Symphony prior to her revival of Hansel and Gretel with the Houston Opera and Cosi fan tutte with the Miami Opera.

The debut with the New York City Opera at Lincoln Center is another step up for this young woman who has made a steady career of operatic singing ever since she graduated.

Friends and relatives are planning a bus trip for the matinee performance of La Boheme on Sunday, July 15. Those who are interested in going may call Lucy Brearly at 924-3157 or Minnie Telese at 924-0310.

early modern French history, has received an honorary doctor of humane letters degree from Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis.

In conferring the degree, Lawrence president Richard Warch described Ms. Davis as "a role model for students and scholars, male and female, in North America and Europe." The author of two books and more than 50 articles, Ms. Davis has written extensively on religion, women and the family as well as on her forte, early modern European history.

President March noted her career was testimony to the "belief that the historian's vocation should be to show how people have used and can continue to use their cultural, social and political resources to reshape the systems in which they live."

Andrea V. Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Cohen, Herrontown Road, was awarded an A.B. degree in political science from Brown University. She was a member of the Student-Alumni Relations Committee and a correspondent for the Brown News Bureau. Her junior year was spent at the Institut Universitaire de Hautes Etudes Internationales in Geneva.

Ian H. Campbell, son of Dr. and Mrs. Byron A. Campbell, 111 Maclean Circle, has been awarded a bachelor of science degree with distinction from Swarthmore College. He majored in engineering and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Also awarded a fellowship for graduate study from the General Electric Foundation, Mr. Campbell has been accepted in the doctoral program in electrical engineering computer science at Princeton.

Andre B. Bondi, 13 Campbelton Circle, has received his Ph.D degree from the Purdue University graduate school.

Lisa Reed Estridge, daughter of Betty and Philip Reed, Snowden Lane, has graduated summa cum laude from Boston College. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology and was elected to Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit honor society. She also received the Friary Award for Creativity and General Excellence.

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR NEW BANK BRANCH. Participating in groundbreaking ceremonies for New Jersey National Bank's 56th branch are (left to right), NJNB President Jack Wallace, West Windsor Mayor Stanley Perrine, and Helen Borne and Jack Elias, bank senior vice presidents. The new branch, to be located on Alexander Road next to the Hyatt-Regency hotel and Carnegie Center, will have three MAC automated teller machines and two drive-in lanes.

BUSINESS

EXPANSION PLANNED

By Prudential at Forrestal. The Prudential Development Company, a subsidiary of The Prudential Insurance Company has launched Phase I of a new 380,000 square foot expansion within its present executive-office research park — Prudential at Princeton, Princeton Forrestal Center.

The new development, to be known as Forrestal Greens, will consist of seven three-story buildings and one-story research facilities in a cluster-grouped campus setting on 40 acres.

At the same time, Prudential announced that RCA American Communications Inc., which is involved in domestic satellite communication services, has leased the entire 130,000 square foot Enerplex North building, also situated in the Prudential at Princeton complex. RCA American is relocating to the all-glass Enerplex North building from its present headquarters also located within the Forrestal Center.

Dow Jones & Company is also taking additional space in the companion Enerplex South building, also a 130,000 square foot energy-efficient structure which utilizes unique energy conservation technology and concepts.

In Phase I of the new development, Forrestal Greens, three buildings totaling 166,000 square feet will be built; a three-story of 90,000 square feet; and two one-story buildings offering 40,000 square feet and 36,000 square feet.

The Forrestal Greens project will combine office space and optional research and development structures, with the emphasis on flexibility of usage. Design features include sloping green mansard roofs and striking cupolas, relecting the character of an Ivy League campus. Prudential expects to start construction in early June, and the initial timetable anticipates an early 1985 completion.

AWARD TO ARCHITECTS

For Libraries. The Lawrence Branch Headquarters and six Mercer County branch library facilities designed by the Princeton architectural firm of Harrison Fraker, Architects, were awarded honorable mention in the First Annual Masonry Awards Program. The structures were singled out for their innovative use of concrete and masonry materials. These materials were used to enhance both the appearance and the thermal performance of the seven new passive solar buildings of the county library system.

The awards program was jointly sponsored by the New Jersey State Conference of Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen and the Building Contractors Association of New Jersey.

COMPANY RELOCATES

To Princeton. American Biomaterials Corporation will relocate its executive offices from Reston, Va., to Princeton. The company has leased 2,850 square feet at Herrontown 1000 North, a new two-story office structure on Route 206.

American Biomaterials' patented product Bioglass is a ceramic human implant that replaces lost bone and tissue and is totally acceptable to the human body. The product is utilized largely by dental and orthopedic surgeons.

FIRM WINS AWARDS

For Buildings. Fulmer Bowers and Wolfe, Architects were given design awards for two buildings in ceremonies which took place at the Princeton Hyatt Regency Hotel.

The Building Contractors Association of New Jersey and the New Jersey State Conference of Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen selected one building in each of six categories from more than 60 nominees. The office building, 104 Carnegie Center, was honored in the commercial category and the firm's McMaster-Carr Supply Co. facility was selected in the industrial category.

PERSONNEL NOTES

The Board of Directors of United Jersey Bank has elected C. William Hazelton of Princeton to the position of Vice President, Trust and Estate Administration, Princeton Regional Trust Office, it was announced by Clifford H. Coyman, president and chief executive officer.

Prior to joining the bank, Mr. Hazelton was a trust officer with The Bank of Auburn, Auburn, N.Y.

RELIGION

TWO ARE APPOINTED

At Methodist Church. The Rev. Stephen Harrison and the Rev. Diana H. Matlack have been appointed to serve the Princeton United Methodist Church as part-time local pastors. Together they will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of the Rev. Carol Brandt, who also served the church on a part-time basis.

Mr. Harrison and Ms. Matlack received the Master of Divinity degree from Princeton Theological Seminary this June. They have served the Princeton Methodist Church as seminary interns for the past three years. Mr. Harrison worked with the junior high group, with single adults and with young couples, while Ms. Matlack had responsibilities for adult education and outreach.

Both are candidates for ordination in the Southern New Jersey Annual Conference and have been granted their local preaching license by the bishop. Ms. Matlack is a native of Springfield, Mo. and a summa cum laude graduate of Southwestern Missouri State University. Mr. Harrison resigned his commission after his freshman year at the U.S. Naval Academy for reasons of personal ethics and graduated instead cum laude from Anderson College in his native Indiana.

Both will be involved in outreach and visitation at the church, as well as in education.

Celebrate Carol Day. Meanwhile, Princeton United Methodist is planning a celebration of Mrs. Brandt's 10 year's of ministry with the church this Sunday at 3 p.m. The program in the sanctuary will be followed by a reception in her honor in the Sanford-Davis room. All are welcome.

YOUTH PASTOR NAMED

At Nassau Christian Center. Nassau Christian Center has named David Owen, son of Pastor Jesse Owen, to the full time position of youth pastor at Nassau Christian Center.

Mr. Owen has grown up in the Mercer County area, attending schools in Lawrence and Montgomery Townships before graduating from West Windsor-Plainsboro High School. He attended Zion Bible Institute in East Providence, R.I., for three years, receiving a diploma in biblical literature. He then earned a bachelor of arts degree in pastoral studies at Central Bible College in Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Owen has worked in drug and alcohol rehabilitation in New York City. He has taught weekly Bible classes for the young and has spoken at youth functions and retreats in the United States and Canada.

He will be officially installed Sunday, July 1, at the 10:30 a.m. worship service at Nassau Christian Center.

OBITUARIES

Mildred Underwood Morgan, 60, died June 15 at her home after a long battle with cancer. She lived on Springdale Road with her husband, Arthur P. Morgan.

Born in Ardmore, Okla., Mrs. Morgan came to Princeton in 1954 with her husband after they had spent seven years in Uruguay and Argentina. She had served as chairwoman of the Friends of the Princeton University Art Museum and as president of the auxiliary of the Isabella McCosh Infirmary. In 1967, she was co-chair of the Princeton Hospital Fete.

She also had served three terms on the Borough Board of Health. Mrs. Morgan was an enthusiastic supporter of Familyborn, the birthing center in North Brunswick founded by her daughter, and this spring purchased the house at 21 Wiggins Street into which Familyborn will relocate in the fall. She was a member of the Nassau Presbyterian Church, the Contemporary Garden Club and the Friends of the Princeton YWCA.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Anne Battle of Princeton, Catherine Standard of Lincolnville, Me., and Cynthia Pastuhov of Allentown; her mother, Blanche J. Underwood of Ardmore, Okla.; four sisters, Lois Biddick of Ardmore, Okla., Ruby Shields of Fort Worth, Tex., Nancy Wright of Richardson, Tex., and Rosemary Kennedy of San Antonio, Tex.; a brother, Jack L. Underwood of Big Sandy, Tex., and six grandchildren.

A memorial service was held at the First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro, the Rev. Robert L. Slusher, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Brainerd Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro, 08536.

Ronald B. Gray, 51, of Linwood Circle, died June 16 at Princeton Medical Center. He had lived in Princeton for the past eight years.

Born in Bangor, Maine, Mr. Gray was a graduate of Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, who received his M.B.A. degree from New York University. He served as a lieutenant in the U.S. Army from 1954 until 1956 when he joined the Federal Reserve Bank in New York. At the time of his death, he was an executive vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank and a trustee of Mount Olivet Cemetery of New York.

He is survived by his wife, Jeri; a daughter, Pamela Gray of Boston, Mass.; a son and daughter-in-law, Wayne and Liz Gray of Cambridge, Mass.; his mother, Mary B. Gray of Orrington, Maine; and two brothers, Donald Gray, also of Orrington, and Richard Gray of Gaithersburg, Md.

The service was held at Trinity Church, the Rev. Richard A. Bower, associate rector, officiating. Burial was in Trinity-All Saints' Cemetery. Arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Memorial contributions may be made to Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, Princeton 08540.

John Dobkowski, 89, of Hart Avenue, Hopewell, died June 16 in the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Poland, Mr. Dobkowski had lived in Hopewell for more than 40 years. He was a retired farmer and was a former mason at the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute. He was a veteran of World War I, having served with the U.S. Army.

Survivors include his wife, Helen; a daughter, Barbara C. Homkisz of Iselin, and four grandchildren.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Alphonsus Church, Hopewell, with burial in the parish cemetery.

Richard J. Nolan Sr., 58, of Pennington, died June 12 at Mercer Medical Center.

Born in Trenton, Mr. Nolan had lived in Pennington since 1970 and was a principal investigator with the New Jersey Treasury Department. He was formerly with the Adjutant General's office, and altogether had 28 years of service with the State of New Jersey.

A graduate of Trenton Catholic High School and Rider College, Mr. Nolan was an Army veteran of World War II. He was a member of the Trenton Elks No. 105, B.P.O.E.; American Legion Post No. 458, and the Department of Transportation Golf Club.

Surviving are his wife, Jean Butterfield Nolan; his son and daughter-in-law, Richard J. Jr. and Mary M. Nolan of Yardley, Pa.; his mother, Cecilia Mahr Nolan, and his sister, Rita N. Birkhead, both of Hamilton; and a grandson, Michael R. Nolan of Yardley.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. James Roman Catholic Church, Pennington. Entombment was in the Ewing Cemetery Mausoleum. Memorial contributions may be made to the St. James Church Building Fund, 17 Eglantine Avenue, Pennington 08534; or the American Heart Association, Princeton Service Center, 3490 Route 1, Princeton 08540; or the American Cancer Society, 88 Lakedale Drive, Trenton 08638.

Harriette N. Starke, wife of William W. Starke, died suddenly June 16 at their home i Rossmoor, Saturday, June 16.

Born in Denver, Col. in 1907, Mrs. Starke was graduated from the University of Chattanooga, Tenn., and pursued graduate studies at the University of Pittsburgh. A former teacher and social worker, she was also active in the Pi Beta Phi Sorority and college club activities.

Mrs. Starke and her husband spent most of their married life in Ridgewood and Ho-Ho-Kus, before moving to Rossmoor eight years ago.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Noel Starke White of Princeton and three granddaughters: Wendy L. and Elizabeth S. White of Princeton and Catherine White Mertz of Plainsboro.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent to the Medical Center at Princeton.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Kimble Funeral Home.

Richard B. Scheer, 83, of Plainsboro, died June 11 at the Franklin Convalescent Center, Franklin Township.

Born in Manchester, N.H., Mr. Scheer lived in Metuchen and Lewisburg, Pa., before moving to Plainsboro 20 years ago. He retired in 1964 as an electronic engineer for Westinghouse Corp. in Metuchen, and served five years with the New Jersey Department of Transportation as an engineer.

Mr. Scheer was a member of the Plainsboro Planning Board for 11 years, serving five years as chairman. He also served on the Plainsboro Zoning Board for eight years and on the Shade Tree Commission and the Development Review Committee for three years each.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro and a former treasurer and elder of the church. He was a member and past president of the Plainsboro Lions Club and a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Scottish Rite Valley of Trenton.

Surviving are his wife, Gladys Smith Scheer; two sons, Donald F. Scheer of Narragansett, R.I., and Wayne T. Scheer of Amsterdam, N.Y.; a daughter, Eleanor R. Scheer of Lafayette, La.; a sister, Mertie Winchester Giles of Clinton, Conn.; and six grandchildren.

A distinguished beginning to a truly elegant Lawrenceville estate. This brick Georgian home is set on 2 private acres and offers you the opportunity to truly enjoy your home. The formal dining room is very well sized, and is adjacent to a delightful screened porch; a very large step down library with fireplace, window seats, and built-ins is sure to be the center of family gatherings. A dressing room adjoins the large master suite, and there is plenty of storage throughout. A very special property.

A FINE GEORGIAN MANOR HOME

2 Elm Road, Princeton

We are pleased to present for your personal consideration one of Princeton's fienst Georgian Manor Homes situated on expansive, beautifully maintained grounds within walking distance of the Town and University.

Built of the finest materials, this elegant home features a spacious sunken living room with double French doors, a dramatic curved staircase, a library with hand-rubbed cherry cabinets and bookcases, and a graciously proportioned formal dining room with hand-carved marble fireplace from France. The floor plan is classic Georgian with spacious rooms off a central foyer, worthy of a statesman's penchant for formal entertaining.

The property includes a lovely circular swimming pool and a guest or pool house in the same Georgian style as the main house.

There are 3.50 beautifully landscaped acres with terraces and formal gardens, brick garden walls and iron gates. A 1.35 acre sub-divided building lot lies to the right of the main house.

All in all, a beautifully maintained, tastefully decorated estate in an incomparable Princeton location.

THE FIRESTONE ADVANTAGE: A TOUCH OF CLASS!

CONTEMPORARY MASTERPIECE IN PRINCETON... When your idea of perfection is a contemporary masterpiece with dramatic glass walled views of the changing seasons and soaring interior spaces, our new listing is your dream house! Designed by noted Princeton architect J. Robert Hillier, this impressive home on a wooded cul-de-sac has an elegant tiled entry foyer, dramatic cathedral ceilinged living room with fireplace, formal dining room, elegant first floor master suite with study and his and her baths, family room with fireplace, gourmet kitchen, half-court basketball or game room, and sauna. If your turn has come to own the dream, let us tell you more about this truly one-of-a-kind contemporary. $625,000

NEW LISTING: EXQUISITE CAPE COD IN PRINCETON'S WESTERN SECTION. The charming Cape Cod design is almost everyone's favorite. Our new listing in Princeton's prestigious Brookstone Drive area offers so much: a wonderfully private wooded setting, yet so close to McCarter Theater and cultural events, the University, and the best Princeton shops. You'll love all the special features! Just a few: Entry foyer, spacious living room with fireplace and French doors leading to a screened porch (so perfect for entertaining), secluded brick patio, library with built-in bookcases, and formal dining room, powder room. Four bedrooms and three and one-half baths in all. Let us tell you more. $375,000

WE LOVE THE NEIGHBORHOOD! Wide lawns, spacious homes, and a wonderful location near all the excitement of Carnegie Lake sailing. (And your neighbors include some of our favorite people.) You'll love the house too: a big, beautiful Colonial with generous room sizes and a sparkling pool your family will thank you for all summer long. A new Firestone listing on Princeton's Bertrand Drive, and so affordable. $254,500

NEW LISTING IN WEST WINDSOR: Just a hop, skip, and a jump from schools for the kids and the New York train for your busy executive lifestyle! We're really excited about this spacious 5 bedroom Colonial on a wonderful corner lot. The flexible layout with large rooms includes a study or bedroom with a convenient entrance. Just some of the special features are: walk-up attic with studio room, new central air conditioning and an oversized garage! Call for more details. $165,000

STOCKTON STREET

George Washington may not have slept here but he could have since the original house was built on the King's Highway in Princeton in 1765. Carefully restored, a wing has been added on each side preserving the classic lines of this traditional Colonial. The center hall opens to the terrace and garden with seclusion provided by the surrounding park. Charming living room and library, both with antique mantels on the fireplaces, screened porch, formal dining room and children's room with large windows overlooking the garden, modern kitchen and powder room on first floor. Four delightful bedrooms with quaint stenciling. Laundry and two and one-half baths on second. $353,000

BERTRAND DRIVE

This large panelled family room with sliding doors to the terrace, adjoining bedroom, study or second bedroom and full bath can be the center of a family's every day living or a separate apartment for a favorite mother-in-law. The upper level offers a living room with fireplace, separate dining room both opening to deck, country kitchen, three bedrooms and two baths - all in perfect condition on a large lot with sweeping lawns. $235,000

KNOLL WAY

This pre-construction price is an opportunity to get a good buy in a desirable townhouse condominium and personalize it with many of your own choices. Just three miles north of Princeton it offers: living room, dining room, eat-in kitchen, three bedrooms, two and one half baths, basement and garage. $117,000

ELM RIDGE PARK

Just west of Princeton - this group of attractive houses in nearby Hopewell Township has become one of the area's most desirable locations. Large lots and a picturesque lake add to the appeal. Two fine new colonials are under construction by one of our most respected builders and will be ready for Fall occupancy. Call for details while some modifications and selections can be made. BEST BUY IN LAWRENCEVILLE

That's what you'll have when you walk into this seemingly modest split-level. Four bedrooms, 2 tiled baths, a recreation room - all make for easy family living - but the really exciting feature is the stunning new Great Room added at the rear. Cathedral ceilinged, with Mexican tiled floor and second fireplace, it opens to a state of the arts gourmet kitchen and adjacent wet bar area - and then to a formal "parlor" or dining room. A most flexible plan to fit your needs or living style!

All set high on a hillside "in the Village" of Lawrenceville on a large deep lot - but within a block of New York and local buses. Absolutely heaven for a mother who's tired of car-pooling everywhere! $155,000

New Manager of Wargo Farm on Watersheds Reserve Hopes to Create a Commercially Viable Organic Farm

The problems of American farming — a result of national policy — are issues that affect all concerned with the quality of their food. Large-scale industrialized agriculture is probably a long-run failure because its use of chemicals will so seriously damage the soil; certainly it is a failure in terms of its effects on small farmers. The renewal of small farms is the sensible solution.

New York Times Book Review
June 17, 1984

The quotation from last Sunday's Times illustrates in part what brings a slender young woman of 27 to be the farm manager at the Wargo Farm on the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association Reserve.

The socially-conditioned intellectual reflex will do an automatic double-take at the notion of a woman as farm manager in a project that seeks to demonstrate the commercial viability of organic farming. But such a reaction is dispelled as one learns of the extensive experience, knowledge and and commitment to farming without depleting the soil and despoiling the environment that is the earnest focus of Meg Cadoux (rhymes with "skiddoo").

MAKING THE CASE FOR FARM-FRESH: As Meg Cadoux digs into composted manure at the Watersheds' farm, she will be seeking to stem the loss of New Jersey farmland by demonstrating the economic viability of organic farming methods.

The Watersheds Association was given the 120-acre Wargo Farm several years ago and has been seeking the funds and the personnel to put it to the best possible use consistent with the organization's environmental goals. The buildings had fallen into disrepair, the arable land leased to a farmer who sows it in alfalfa.

The return of the farm to productivity as a model of agricultural land use management seemed a natural for an organization that from its founding 32 years ago has endeavored to help farmers deal with soil runoff and show them how to plant crops and trees that contribute to stabilizing soils and embankments. It is also the natural place for Ms. Cadoux.

Raised in Suburbia. Meg Cadoux was born and raised in Scarsdale. She attended Vassar College for a year and a half before leaving to work in Jimmy Carter's Presidential campaign. She went back to college at Brown University, graduating in 1978 with a degree in comparative literature because she "liked reading great books."

With no particular plans after graduation, she went to California to visit friends and became an apprentice at the organic farm at the University of California at Santa Cruz. Having never been in a "real" garden before, she remembers vividly the feeling of "wonderment" and "amazing ecstasy" the first time she walked through the one at that farm, where plants and animals were cared for without pesticides.

Later she wrote a science-nutrition-gardening curriculum for elementary school children in a project initiated by a California woman who felt that most elementary school teachers were ill-equipped and thus afraid to teach science. With a Title IV-C grant, this woman sought to use a three-acre organic garden planted in herbs, flowers, vegetables and fruit trees as a way of teaching elementary science, nutrition and gardening all in one.

Intrigued by pesticide problems and interested in learning pest management, Ms. Cadoux went back to school at Santa Cruz to take the science courses she had missed in her undergraduate program. She returned to the east to study for a master's degree in plant protection at Cornell's School of Agriculture, graduating this past April. Through the network of organic farmers she learned of the position at the Watersheds and was promptly hired. She moved in May 1.

Role as Farm Manager. Ms. Cadoux sees her role as creating "a functioning, commercially feasible organic farm, incorporating the principles and practices of organic farming in a way that makes economic sense." She also has been hired to develop the educational potential of the farm, using interns and volunteers where feasible, bringing school children by busload to visit, and setting up experiments for educators from agricultural and community colleges in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

"My vision is that this should be a good community resource," she says in her straight-forward way. "We want to emphasize the importance of farmland being right next to large population centers — not having cities in one place and farms in another, requiring transportation to link the two.

"We need to farm in such a way that it is not threatening," she continues, "and farming is threatening to people. Spray drifts across the land, nitrates get in the water. We want to show that this type of farming is very healthy for the environment, and not just the produce."

In the six weeks since her arrival, Ms. Cadoux has a garden underway. She started flats of basil, parsley, dill, lettuce and lots of flowers from seed. Laying on manure, rock phosphate, bone meal and blood meal, she rototilled a large area in which she direct-seeded carrots, beets, golden zucchini, melons, corn (both sweet and ornamental) and sunflowers as a barrier between the two types of corn. She will do foliar feeding with kelp and supplement this with fish emulsion to the base of the plants.

Long Range Plans. Simultaneously she plans and plots for the future. Across Wargo Road is a 14-acre tract that will become the real centerpiece of the organic farm, but first it must be fenced against deer. Ms. Cadoux has in mind a four-foot high, seven-strand fence that is angled out 45-degrees and is electrified on its top and bottom strands.

Buzzed as they approach the fence, deer attempt to crawl under and are buzzed again. Confused, they leave without attempting to jump over what may be the first truly deer-proof fence. If it is built the way she suggests, it will be a first for New Jersey as well, Ms. Cadoux says.

Within the enclosure, she will begin with two acres of vegetables and two acres planted in fruit trees. As the farm grows, so will the acreage under cultivation. Next summer, the farm will operate a farm stand to sell the produce, which Ms. Cadoux also plans to peddle to those area restaurants that insist on the freshest available ingredients in their cuisine.

Apprentice Program Instituted By Princeton Summer Theatre

For the first time in a decade or more of summer theater at Theatre Intime's Murray Theatre, there is an apprentice program.

Seven young people from area high schools who are drawn irresistably to the smell of greasepaint and the hard work and cameraderie of working on a stage production have been accepted. According to Meg Patterson, artistic director of Summer Theatre '84 and apprentice coordinator, interviewing is still taking place for one or two more young people of high school and college age for what is essentially a training program.

The work is unpaid and demands a major time commitment, Ms. Patterson points out, but the training for anyone seriously considering a career in theater is invaluable. And the rewards of being part of the process that brings four shows — a farce, a contemporary play, a comedy and a musical — to the stage in 10 weeks are incalculable.

News of The THEATRES

As Ms. Patterson sees the program evolving over the season, each apprentice will be assigned to a staff member for the duration of a show, from rehearsal through production. While one show is in production, the next is in rehearsal. The Summer Theatre company is a cooperative mix of undergraduate and graduate students with a few professionals from McCarter.

Rehearsal Crew. While a show is in rehearsal, apprentices will find themselves building and painting sets as part of the set construction crew; finding and sewing costumes with the costume crew; and searching out or making props for the props crew.

One apprentice, as production assistant, will assist the artistic director in making out the rehearsal schedules and in running the theater. Another will solicit ads from area businesses for the program and place theater ads in newspapers and radio. And everyone will take a stint selling tickets in the box office.

This week, as final and technical dress rehearsals are under way for the first show, Larry Gelbert's Sly Fox, which opens Thursday, June 21, at 8 p.m., everything shifts into high gear. Apprentices become set change crew, or dressers, or involved in hanging, focusing and running the light board. One will be designated assistant stage manager, in charge of the back stage crew and on a head set to the stage manager who is calling cues from the lighting booth behind the audience.

As Sly Fox settles into its eight-performance run, Lanford Wilson's Angels will be in rehearsal for a July 5 opening. Apprentices who worked on sets for Sly Fox may switch to costumes or publicity for Angels, for the purpose of an apprentice program is to gain first-hand experience and training in all aspects of technical theatre production, stage management, communications and the organization of a theater.

Experiential Learning. As Ms. Patterson points out, there are no classes, no formal academic structure to an apprenticeship. Instead, instruction takes place as part of a working relationship with the staff. "Apprentices will be treated as valuable and vital members of the staff," she says, "and given as much resposibility as they can handle."

Days will generally be spent one half in the scene shop, one half working on the upcoming production in one or another area of interest or assignment. Evenings of performance, apprentices form the backstage running crew for the show. To stick to such an intense schedule, they must be seriously committed and have stamina and a sense of humor, Ms. Patterson says.

The rewards are multiple. Through a summer season, an apprentice will gain the equivalent of a year in a college theatre program and develop a sense of responsibility, discipline and comradeship. Being an apprentice is also a good way to start in the theatre, Ms. Patterson notes. "You find out quickly if you've got what it takes. It is a good testing ground, because you are involved in so many different things."

A 1983 graduate of Princeton University who majored in sociology and theatre and stayed on this year to work for the Program in Theatre and Dance, Ms. Patterson was herself an apprentice at Trinity Square Theatre in Providence, R.I., during high school. Her second summer, she had graduated to the journeyman status of wardrobe mistress.

Teaching Staff. Having taken every class the Program in Theatre and Dance offers, she has her heart set on becoming a director. She stage managed Oedipus this year and directed Good Person of Szechuan and American Days at 185 Nassau Street. She is enthusiastic about the idea of having an apprenticeship program and says the staff that she and co-director David Hlavsa, Princeton '84, have assembled are equally interested in being teachers.

"It creates a real group feeling to have people around who are learning," Ms. Patterson says. "There is something about the enthusiasm students bring. When you are involved in four shows in 10 weeks, you need that enthusiasm."

Although Ms. Patterson stresses the need for commitment, she is willing to accommodate the part-time outside jobs that apprentices may be involved in. She is also willing to consider apprenticeships of a certain number of weeks rather than the whole season. For information call her at 452-8181.

SEASON'S OPENER AT OPEN AIR: Tom Moffit and Maureen West wage the classic "battle of the sexes" in Shakespeare's comedy, "Taming of the Shrew" which opens the season June 20 at The Open Air Theatre in Washington Crossing Park.

SHAKESPEARE FIRST

In Park Season. William Shakespeare's classic comedy "Taming of the Shrew" will open the season at The Open Air Theatre of Washington Crossing State Park in Titusville. The production is by the Shakespeare '70 company.

"Shrew" will star Tom Moffit as Petruchio and Maureen West as Kate. John F. Erath, a professor of English at Trenton State College, who specializes in Shakespeare, Renaissance and Restoration drama, will direct. Gail Erath, his wife, designed and executed the costumes, and Gerald E. Guarnieri, Trenton's Arts Commission Chairman, designed the scenery. Sharon Starling is the stage manager.

Also in the cast are Lee Harrod and Howard Goldstein, both professors at Trenton State, John Anastasio, station manager at radio station WHWH, and two Pennsylvania attorneys, Colin Jeni and David Friedman. Each has appeared in area productions. The cast also includes John Erath III, Chris Erath, Wendy Yazujian, Tom Curbishley, Tom Causey, David Geisler, Ileen Freedman, Jon Harrod, Jesse Sheppard and Robin Hunt.

The show will run Wednesday through Saturday, June 20 to 23. Tickets are at the box office. The curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

ITALIAN DUO NEXT

In Summer Cinema. The Night of the Shooting Stars and Amarcord, two classics in contemporary Italian cinema, will open the second week of Summer Cinema '84. They will be shown Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 7:30 and 9:30, respectively, at Kresge Auditorium, Washington Road.

Set in a Tuscan village and its environs during the closing days of the war in Italy in 1944, The Night of the Shooting Stars is a series of vignettes and anecdotes filtered through the memory of a woman who was six at the time and is now telling the story to her daughter. Comedy, tragedy, vaudeville and melodrama interminglе; terrible atrocities appear side by side with magical visions.

The program's co-feature, Amarcord, is Frederico Fellini's reminiscence of his youth in a small town in facist Italy. The film combines the concerns of his early neo-realist comedies with the fantastic style of his later films. Full of tales — some romantic, some slapstick, some bawdy, some elegiacal — the movie is a funny and moving evocation of life itself.

Beginning Saturday, June 23, and running through Monday, June 25, Summer Cinema will show two domestic dramas whose common subject is divorce and its effect upon the modern family. The first, Shoot the Moon, showing at 7:30 each night, stars Albert Finney and Diane Keaton as the Dunlaps, who live outside San Francisco with their four daughters. Despite their seemingly idyllic life, their 15-year marriage is about to end, for George Dunlap is seeing another woman and walks out on his wife. The script deals with the intense emotional dislocation that follows.

Kramer vs. Kramer also deals with the "death of a family." Dustin Hoffman plays Ted Kramer, a self-absorbed executive insensitive to the needs of his wife (Meryl Streep). He is stunned one day when she walks out on him and their seven-year old son (Justin Henry). Now compelled to concentrate on his son, Ted puts enormous energy and love into being a father, only to have his wife return after 18 months to claim custody. Kramer vs. Kramer may be seen at 9:45 June 23-25.

Double feature admission is $3.50 at the door. Discount coupon books are still available at a cost of $35 for 12 admissions. For information or a coupon book, call the McCarter Theatre subscription office at 452-4242.

COMEDY PLANNED

In Franklin. "More Than Meets the Eye," a comedy suitable for the whole family, is in rehearsal with the Franklin Community Players.

The play, written by Fred Carmichael, is about an author who writes children's stories under the name of Grandma Letty, and is filled with disguises and mistaken identities. It will be performed Fridays and Saturdays, June 22, 23, 29 and 30. The curtain rises at 8 p.m. at Sampson G. Smith School, Amwell Road (near DeMott Lane) in Somerset.

The cast stars Elliott Merrill as Stanley Nichols; Rosemary Sarafian, Maude the maid; Holly Hamilton, Peggy the niece; Joe Freeman, as Christine Nichols; Molly Nanasy as Nora, a neighbor; Andy Parks as Bradley, Peggy's boyfriend;

Also, Lori Kanter, Prudence, a reporter; Rus Smith, a cameraman; Howard Altschul as Cyril B. Hoskins, a magazine publisher; Cindy Nacson as Ms. Jenkins, a news media person.

Directing the cast is Suzanne Ferris-Hammer. Assistant director-producer is Noreen Parks; assistant producer is Molly Nanasy. Pat Yacone is the stage manager; Jim Parks is the set designer; John Phillips, the set builder; Chris Parks is in charge of sound effects; Camille Cusimano, costumes.

June Opera Festival Produces Splendid 'Marriage of Figaro'

For the past few years, Michael Pratt and Peter Westergaard have teamed up to produce some fine operas with the Princeton University Opera Theatre. This summer they have transcended that role and have obtained a sizable grant from Merrill Lynch and Co., Inc., to give the Princeton area what it has long desired — a completely professional opera festival.

The June Opera Festival of New Jersey began its opening season on Friday evening at the Kirby Arts Center, Lawrenceville School, with the first performance of its splendid production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." With the combined forces of members of the New Jersey Symphony and professional vocalists from this region, Messrs. Pratt and Westergaard have mounted a production which rivals those of the great music festivals of this country.

The performance of the opera heard on Sunday by this writer was magnificent in every way.

The singers assembled for the festival are most extraordinary. Individually they are gifted artists of high calibre without a weak voice among them.

Matthew Lau played a strong Figaro, and his solid baritone voice was uniformly powerful throughout his range. Martha Elliot's Susanna was colorful, warm, and very expressive. Cherubino was charmingly portrayed by Meredith Stone. Her aria early in Act II elicited the first of several shouts of "brava" from the audience. Both Barry Ellison (Count Almaviva) and Linda Wall (the Countess) sang strikingly beautiful arias in the third act, and Mark Cleveland gave a humorous touch to the role of Antonio.

If a weakness were to be found in the vocal work, it lay in the many ensemble pieces. While these were generally well done, the singers would occasionally get slightly behind the beat, causing some choppiness in the vocal lines and blurring of the text. Invariably these moments passed quickly, thanks to Mr. Pratt's indefatigable concentration and the clarity of his conducting.

Under Mr. Pratt's baton, the members of the New Jersey Symphony gave a virtually flawless reading of a long and arduous score. Intonation and ensemble were perfect throughout, though the zeal of the orchestra's playing occasionally overbalanced the singers.

Mr. Westergaard's English translation of the Italian libretto was witty and very accurately phrased with the music. His stage direction revealed his uncanny ability to make visual sense out of an incredibly convoluted plot.

Set designs by Alan Muraoka gave an impression of stateliness without being overbearing. Consequently, scene changes were done efficiently, helping to move the pace of the opera. Period costumes by Gregg Barnes and wigs by Charles Elsen Associates added greatly to the 18th-century flavor of the production. Rick Butler's lighting, though occasionally spotty, highlighted the subdued colors of the set and included some stunning sunlight effects.

In addition to the opera (which can be heard again June 22, 24, 27 and 30), the Festival will feature three concerts of vocal and orchestra music. If the reader has not already purchased tickets for any of these fine musical events, it is strongly suggested that he do so. This marvelous festival is too good to miss.

—Lynn Arthur Koch

MUSIC

NEW POST FOR PRATT

At New England Conservatory. Michael Pratt, co-founder and music director of the June Opera Festival of New Jersey, has been appointed to the conducting faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass. The appointment begins in September.

Mr. Pratt has been conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra since 1977. He will remain in his post as conductor and director of the June Opera Festival. "It was a difficult decision to leave Princeton and the university. So, I will look forward each summer to the June Opera Festival — to come back to an area and to audiences that I hold in high esteem," he said.

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York, the 35-year-old conductor has studied under Otto Werner Mueller at Yale, Franco Ferrara and Gunther Schuller at the Berkshire Music Center, Gustav Meier at the Eastman School of Music, and others. In the past few years he has conducted the Cathedral Concert Orchestra in Newark, the Aspen Opera Theatre at the Aspen Music Festival, and orchestras at the Manhattan School of Music.

In his new position, Mr. Pratt will conduct the Conservatory Repertory Orchestra, one of the wind ensembles and will teach an undergraduate and a graduate conducting course.

CELLIST, PIANIST

In Choir College Concert. The Westminster Summer Music Series will present the Gabriel Morales - Rena Fruchter Cello and Piano Duo on Thursday, June 21, at 8:30 in Bristol Chapel. The duo was recently featured in performance on New Jersey Network's "State of the Arts."

Cellist Gabriel Morales and pianist Rena Fruchter will perform a program of works which include J.S. Bach's Sonata for Cello and Harpsichord No. 2 in D Major; Schumann's "Fantasy Pieces," Op. 73 for Cello and Piano; the Debussy Sonata for Cello and Piano; Four Allegri by American composer Seymour Barab, and the Sonata for Cello and Piano by English composer Frank Bridge.

Admission to this concert is free. Call 921-3202 for a complete listing of free summer music events at Westminster Choir College.

HYMN SINGS PLANNED

At Choir College. Every Monday evening through July, Westminster Choir College sponsors a Hymn Sing and welcomes everyone to join the singing.

The hymns are selected along a central theme, by a different guest conductor each week. The music begins at 8:30 in Bristol Chapel on the Westminter campus and admission is free.

The first will be led by David Weadon, director of music at Princeton Theological Seminary. The following week, Helen Kemp, an authority on children's choirs, will conduct "Hymns for the Young at Heart." John Kemp will lead "A Tribute to Hymnologist Erik Routley," on July 9.

OPERA MEZZO HERE

In Benefit for PCDI. Preparations are underway by the benefit committee of the Princeton Child Development Institute for a fall concert featuring Frederica von Stade and her husband peter Elkus.

Called "An Evening of Song," the concert will take place on Saturday, November 17, at the Institute for Advanced Study.

The event will include a reception for supporting sponsors following the concert. Opera buffs and music lovers may wish to mark their calendars now.

This is the second time that the mezzo soprano, raised in the Bernardsville area, has given her time and talent to benefit the Princeton Child Development Institute, the first being in April, 1981. For more information, call the Institute at 924-6280.

TWO VIOLIN RECITALS

At Choir College. Violinists Junko Ota and Mark Zaki will present solo recitals on two consecutive nights next week, as part of the Summer String Festival '84 at Westminster Conservatory.

Miss Ota will perform Wednesday, June 27, at 7, and Mr. Zaki on Thursday, June 28, at 8:30. Both concerts will be in the Bristol Chapel on the Westminster Choir College campus.

Miss Ota will be accompanied by pianist Ena Bronstein. They will perform Mozart's Sonata No. 17, Schubert's Fantasia in C Major, Opus 159, and Strauss's Sonata in E-flat Major.

Mr. Zaki who plays with New Jersey orchestras and the Nassau String Quartet will begin his program with three pieces for violin and piano. They are Fritz Kreisler's "Preludium and Allegro," Mozart's E Minor Sonata and the Haydn G Major Sonata. He will be accompanied by David Davis, who, like Mr. Zaki, hold's a master's degree from Rutgers University's Mason Gross School of the Arts.

Mr. Zaki will then perform two unaccompanied works in contrasting styles, the Bach Chaconne and the premiere performance of a work by John Welsh entitled "Crossover with Coda." Mr. Welsh is also a graduate of the master's program at Mason Gross School of the Arts. Mr. Zaki will then be joined by his fellow violinist from the Nassau String Quartet, Katherine Hannauer.

For information on these or any of Westminster Conservatory's summer programs, call 921-7104 or 924-6359.

POPS CONCERT PLANNED

For July 4. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will present the annual Pops Concert with fireworks on Wednesday, July 4, at the Princeton University playing fields.

The soloist for the event will be baritone David Arnold, who made his Metropolitan Opera debut this season. Mr. Arnold is an area resident who has been heard in concert on several occasions in the Princeton community as well.

Advance tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children and seniors. Tickets may be purchased by calling 924-6168.

ART

EXHIBIT TO OPEN

On MCCC Campus. The Mercer County Artists '84 Exhibit will open with a free public reception in the library gallery on Mercer County Community College's West Windsor Campus Friday, June 22, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The exhibit, funded by a grant from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission, will continue through Thursday, August 16. Gallery hours are 8 to 10, Mondays through Thursdays, and 9 to 4 Fridays and Saturdays. Admission is free.

This juried event was open to artists 18 years of age or older who are currently living, in school or employed in Mercer County. Purchase awards have been granted to winning artists and their art work will be added to the permanent collection of the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission.

Information on this and future exhibits in MCCC's library gallery may be obtained by calling MCCC's cultural events office, 586-4800, extension 588.

ON EXHIBIT AT FULL HOUSE: "Painting of Flowers," a watercolor by Princeton artist Robert Raphael, is one of many works by area artists on display at the Full House Gallery through August 4.

EXHIBIT AT RUTGERS

Honors Women Artists. Princeton artists Naomi Boretz and Judith Brodsky are among 30 women artists whose work is included in "Representative Works, 1971-1984, Women Artists Series," a group show on view through June at Rutgers University's Mabel Smith Douglass Library.

The exhibition at the State University of New Jersey celebrates one of the longest running art series in the nation devoted solely to the work of women. It coincides with the sixth annual conference of the National Women's Studies Association, to be held from June 24-28 at Douglass College.

The show, which is free and open to the public, is co-sponsored by the National Women's Studies Association and the Women Artists Series of Douglass College. The library is open Mondays through Fridays during June from 8 to 5. It is closed weekends.

AT FULL HOUSE...

Paintings of Flowers. Eleven Princeton area artists will have their works featured in an exhibit, "Paintings of Flowers," at the Full House Gallery in Kingston.

A reception, open to the public, will be held from 4 to 6 p.m., Saturday, June 30. Artists participating in the show are Joanne Augustine, Anna Continos, Helen Gallagher, Irma Holland, Trudy Kraft, Sylvette Krause, Yvonne Mahru, Kristin Naumann, Dorothy W. Patton, Robert Raphael and Gloria Wiernik.

The exhibit will run through August 4. Gallery hours are 10-5:30 Monday through Saturday.

IT'S NEW TO US

QUALITY IN LUGGAGE

At Luttmann's. Exquisite taste pervades a shop on Witherspoon Street where the finest quality leather goods are sold. Word has travelled that Luttmann's Luggage has one of the best selections of fine luggage, ladies handbags by famous designers, attache cases, hundreds of leather gift items, and everything necessary for a discriminating traveller. Customers come from all over this state, and even from New York City, to choose their leather at prices which are more competitive than those found in the well known city stores.

"My customers go for quality; that is what sells; nothing can replace it," states the owner of the shop, Bruce Crandall, who moved to Witherspoon Street three years ago. Luttmann's has been a familiar sight here for more than 80 years. Mr. Crandall clearly enjoys showing his clients the hundreds of top grain leather cases, passport cases, billfolds, credit card cases, and a number of address and other books for business use in varying sizes.

Travellers from Princeton will go in style this summer with a gift from Luttmann's. Hanging travel bags for quick arrivals, totes, under-the-seat sized luggage, travel kits which include an alarm clock, jewel cases, and diaries to jot down special moments of the trip, are available here as well as convenient items such as a travel iron, electrical converters, steamers, and two types of money belts, one of which also hides that vital passport case.

There is a beautiful leather-bound book for every interest at Luttmann's, beginning with a ship's log (Mr. Crandall is an avid yachtsman). One can also find stunning wine albums, visitor's books, photograph albums which are personally gold-lettered by the owner, a guest register, and handsome leather folders made of U.S. steerhide (five ounce weight) which have inside pockets for bits and pieces of papers, letters and reports as well as a full sized pad of legal paper and which are especially made for Luttmann's.

Gifts for Men. Gifts for men are often the most difficult to find. Gifts of leather, masculine in feeling, durable, and useful, found at Luttmann's include good looking brush sets, a travel case for neckties, pocket-size note pads set in leather, and a large executive companion which features a calendar, note pads and pockets to file papers.

A beautiful bright red Tuscan calf letter case will make a thoughtful gift for anyone special. Attache and briefcases for men and women begin at $140 and are seen in calf, belting and harness leather to mention a few. Stunning imports from Germany are exquisitely crafted. A custom-made case from England has kidskin on the inside and leather throughout (no cardboard or vinyl!)

Ladies will delight in the new collection of handbags for fall, many of which have arrived already. Dooney and Bourke coach bags, Ghurka all-leather or twill and leather, a glorious selection of imported bags from Germany, Morris Moscovitz, and Leplat bags in black, burgundy, brown, navy or taupe are accessories which will last for many years. Mr. Crandall promises a collection of some more exotic evening and dress bags in unusual skins for the fall season.

German boxed calf luggage made for Luttmann's for ladies and gentlemen, Valorso, Halliburton, Hartman, and Lark luggage are found in the shop.

"Our new imports are among the finest leathergoods I've seen so far and I've seen a lot of beautiful leather!" says Mr. Crandall with enthusiasm. Store hours are from 10 to 6 daily except for Friday when the shop is open until 8.

GOAL IS NEAR

For Forest Jewelers. Mitchell Forest has almost achieved a goal which he set for himself when he opened his jewelry store at Nassau Street a few years ago. His philosophy of "old world excellence" has attracted a number of steady customers who are looking for one-on-one service, a quality the owner views as essential to a successful business.

"The shop is becoming just what I wanted it to be, a quality neighborhood store where people feel comfortable about coming in just to look at our jewelry and chat about everything in general. We have made a lot of good friends so far," says Mr. Forest. Although he has a teaching degree and taught for some years, the fine art of jewelry making has always fascinated Mr. Forest, who learned his trade from the age of 18 as an apprentice to a famous Argentinian goldsmith considered to be one of the world's master coppersmiths.

"If you take time with people, listen to their concerns, a business such as ours based on service can be very satisfying," says the owner. In the past two years in Princeton Mr. Forest has designed hundreds of beautifully crafted gold pins, pendants, earrings, bracelets, necklaces and rings set with dazzling stones. Settings range from the most contemporary angular lines to the classic and more traditional.

While some goldsmiths jealously guard their design prerogatives, Mitchell Forest welcomes his customers' input.

"The shared experience of working on a piece of jewelry together is what I enjoy most. I act as their hands," says the jeweler who has a poetic way of looking at things. His volume of business attests to the town's favorable reaction to his work, much of which can be seen in handsome display cases or on Mr. Forest's workbench which is the nucleus of the small shop.

Looks the Part. Leather apron and all, Mr. Forest looks the part of an old world goldsmith although he is only in his early thirties. Tiny bits and pieces of gold, precious stones (most of which are in the vault), and precise tools are a familiar sight on his workbench.

"It might seem chaotic but I know where every single piece lies. If anything is moved, I know!" continues the jeweler. He has just finished an impressive cornucopia, set with gorgeous stones, representing more than 40 hours of work, and fashioned from a flat sheet of gold!

There is good news at Forest Jewelers. The shop will reset and redesign old pieces which may be out of style for its customers. So check in your jewelry drawer or in the bank to see what might be transformed into something more wearable. Estate jewelry, art nouveau and Victorian pieces are also available here.

Mr. Forest spent several years learning lapidary work. He cuts, polishes, and appraises fine stones. Those looking for the perfect diamond will be pleased to know that the shop has a fine selection of unmounted diamonds from which to choose. Several beautiful settings are on display including those featuring blue topaz, emeralds, rubies, and tanzinite.

Fourteen and eighteen carat gold earrings with pearls and diamonds, designer earrings, as well as one-of-a-kind pairs made by the shop are popular choices. An unusual pair of Mobe pearl earrings are stunning.

Wedding rings, original designs, have been in the spotlight at Forest Jewelers recently. Handsome Florentine gold, wide bands for men, and unusual contemporary designs will catch the bridegroom's eye.

To Tell Time. Bulova clocks, wooden wall and desk models, and watches are sold here for men and women. Other brands by Citizen, Pulsar, and a new company called Jaz, French designs using Seiko movements, have received a good amount of attention of late.

Fresh water pearls and gem quality cultured pearls are available in the shop, as are several lovely necklaces of precious beads with stones such as garnet and amethyst. Add-a-pearl necklaces, keepsakes for little girls, are wonderful gifts.

Father's Day was an especially happy occasion for Mr. Forest, who is celebrating the birth of his second child and first daughter, Rebecca. At three weeks her father has already set aside a string of pearls and diamond stud earrings for his pride and joy.

A talented young apprentice, Ruth von Goeler, has joined Forest Jewlers for the summer. Described by her employer as "outstanding," she came to the shop through a cooperative program with Princeton High School and the town's merchants. Fortunately for the shop, Miss von Goeler will be attending Princeton University in the fall.

Manager Pearl Owen, who enjoys the atmosphere of personal commitment at Forest Jewelers, says Miss von Goeler is doing a "terrific" job. Store hours are from 9:30 to 5:30 Monday through Saturday.

TENNIS WINNERS: More than 50 teams played in the Princeton Tennis Classic last Thursday, split into men's doubles A and B divisions and mixed doubles A and B divisions. Above, Woody and Laura von Seldeneck (right) won the mixed A division, beating Al Hollander and Dede Webster. Below, Peter O'Neill and Bob Willis (right) defeated Gene Spitz and Frank McDougald to capture the men's B division.

Lew Brewer and Bob Callahan finished atop the men's A division with a victory over Dave Haggarty and Marty Devlin. The mixed B division was won by Jim Alu and Libby Chapman over May Papastephanou and Steve Jenkins. The event was held to raise funds for the Princeton Community Tennis program. Photos by Betty Cleveland

Although Post 76 finally got some key hits against Trenton, including triples by Dave Arendas and Darren Villani, it had already been in a 7-0 hole after three innings.

The Schroths won their first game when they capitalized on some wildness by starter Mike Walker and reliefer Scott Pierson, who issued five free passes. "Pierson was all over the place," said Bender.

Post 76 fought back with four runs in the fourth and two more in the eighth. "We did make a good comeback but we blew it in the end," agreed Bender.

In the ninth, trailing by two, Brian Lenox led off for Princeton with a walk. With two out, and after Craig Ender had reached base on a fielder's choice, Gavin Hulsman doubled home Lenox, but Ender, who would have tied the game, was cut

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

John Bernard — Jay Bernard

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

Want some good advice to give to youngsters who are learning to play baseball? ... Joe McCarthy, who managed the Yankees to 8 pennants in the 1930s and 1940s, once listed these classic proverbs as important for good baseball players ... (1) Take your bat off your shoulder if you want to become a .300 hitter ... (2) Don't alibi on the bad hops; anybody can stop the good ones ... (3) Outfielders who throw the ball behind the runner lock the barn after the horse is gone ... (4) When you start to slide, slide; those who change their mind may change a good leg for a broken leg ... (5) Don't try to throw the ball before you catch it ... (6) Hustle; you never know what may happen ... (7) Don't find too many faults with the umpire; you can't expect him to be as perfect as you are.

I bet you didn't know ... Many health insurance plans do not cover children after age 19; or, if attending school, age 25 or diploma, whichever comes first.

Here's a surprising fact ... Although Ty Cobb and Pete Rose are the only players in baseball history to have made over 4,000 hits in their big league careers, neither of them — oddly enough — holds the record for most hits in one season ... That record is held by George Sisler who made 257 hits in 1920 — and no one has ever topped that record in all the years since then.

SPORTS

POST 76 IS 2-3

In Legion Baseball, Five games into a 27-game season, Princeton Post 76 has won two and lost three and is in a good position to make a run for the playoffs if the hitting starts to come around.

"We have three goals," said second-year manager Larry Bender. "To finish over .500, to make the playoffs and once in the playoffs to win some games.

———

"It's not that bad of a start," continued Bender. "Four of our first five games were away. The next five are at home and I'm hoping the home field will be an advantage for us." Post 76 plays its home games at Strubing Field on the Princeton University campus.

"We're a young team but I think we could surprise some people." Bender pointed out that he loses only five, including two starters from this year's squad at the end of the season.

In those first five games, Post 76 has batted .170 as a team. That's been a disappointment. "The pitchers," commented Bender, "are going to throw strikes. That's been the surprise," Bender added.

In its most recent start, an 8-7 loss to Trenton, "We finally got some hits with men on base," noted Bender. "I knew we were not a .170 hitting club. We aren't going to be overpowering at the plate but we should be about a .250 club."

down at the plate on a fine relay from left fielder John Nalbone to shortstop Alan Soltez to catcher Charles Whited.

Pierson took the loss, his first, while Anthony Bucci got the win.

Hamilton Has Lead. So far, form has held up in the Legion standings. Hamilton, one of the pre-season favorites, leads with a 5-0 record, while Ewing, another pre-season choice to capture the league crown, is a game back at 4-1.

Bordentown, Hopewell and Broad St. Park are all bunched at 3-2, while Princeton and Mitchell Davis are knotted at 2-3. Hightstown, Lawrence and Trenton are all 1-4.

The second, third, fourth and fifth-place teams will compete in a double elimination playoff starting August 2 at Mercer Park for a berth in the state tournament. The league champion earns an automatic berth in the state competition.

In earlier games last week, Post 76 bowed to Hopewell, 10-1, and defeated Hightstown, 5-3.

Hopewell scored three runs in the first on two Post 76 errors and Pete Engels' double. Engels went on to destroy the losers by adding a single in the fifth and belting a three-run homer in the seventh.

Princeton's only run came in the fifth on a homer by Walker. Arendas who was reached for nine hits, including another homer by Hopewell's Frank Schermerhorn, was charged with the loss.

Against Hightstown, Princeton got only four hits but it took advantage of five errors by Post 148 for its win. Pierson got the win.

Until Saturday's game, Bender commented that his squad had been stealing most of its runs, taking advantage of errors, walks and passed balls to push a run across the plate.

"I've done a lot of giving everybody a shot in the beginning," said Bender who reported he has had five different lineups for the first five games. "But the lineup is starting to settle down; I know who is going to be playing where."

Bender is counting on a settled lineup, a home field advantage and possibly some more timely hits to add up to a string of victories for his young club.

TEEVENS IS PICKED
As Higgins' Assistant. Shaun D. Teevens, a standout performer at Dartmouth in both football and hockey, has been appointed assistant coach of men's ice hockey at Princeton. Teevens will replace Bruce Delventhal who recently accepted the head coaching position at Rochester Institute of Technology.

The younger of a pair of brothers who produced outstanding careers in both football and hockey at Dartmouth, Teevens comes to Princeton from Union College where he has been pursuing graduate work while serving as assistant coach of both hockey and baseball. In addition, Teevens was responsible for a segment of the hocky recruiting, team travel, and public use of the Achilles Rink at Union.

A native of Pembroke, Mass., Teevens attended Deerfield Academy before matriculating at Dartmouth. As a speedy wide receiver, he set a number of Big Green records and currently ranks sixth on Dartmouth's list of all-time receivers in yardage gained.

Teevens played four years of varsity hockey at Dartmouth, serving as captain in his senior season. He was named to the coaches' All-Ivy second team as a wing and received the Martha M. Phelan Award as the team's most valuable player. In football, Teevens was freshman co-captain and earned All-Ivy second team honors. He was the recipient of the Alfred W. Watson Trophy as the outstanding male athlete on campus.

Tigers 3rd in Ivy Results

Princeton University men's athletic teams compiled a winning percentage of .577 during 1983-84, placing the Tigers third in overall Ivy League competition.

The Orange and Black competed in 17 sports, and achieved a record of 143 victories, 104 losses and six ties. Harvard finished first and Columbia, second with winning percentages of .651 and .615, respectively.

Following the Tigers were: Cornell, .534; Penn, .531, Yale, .488; Brown, .463 and Dartmouth, .412.

In formal round-robin league play, which includes nine sports, football, basketball, soccer, fencing, wrestling, swimming, baseball and tennis, Princeton finished fourth with a percentage of .523 (45-41-1), behind Harvard, Columbia and Cornell.

over the past two seasons to 36 games.

Last week, the Princeton-based team, coached by Robert O. Smyth and managed by Steven S. Cohen, edged T&A Olden Paint, 6-5, and routed Chambersburg Eyeglass Center, 12-0. Clare Baxter was the winning pitcher in both games.

In its next start, SJC will oppose Larry's Corner Tavern Thursday at 6:30 at Mercer County Park.

Andrea Perrine's grand slam powered the Corn to its win over Olden Paint. Perrine also had two other hits in the game and catcher Grace Durland batted 3-for-3.

Everybody joined in the offensive attack against Chambersburg. Kim Cominski and Baxter each rapped three hits while Beth Muzyka, Carol Knapp, Dee Vertucci and Debbie Smyth each had two hits. One of Smyth's went for a triple.

PIERSON IS VICTOR
In Springdale Tournament. In a close match at Springdale Golf Club last week, Debbe Pierson defeated Liz Fernandez, 2 and 1, to win the annual spring Handicap Tournament. Dolores Allaire defeated Jean Petrone in the "beaten eight."

Others qualifying for the championship flight were Dorothy Schoch, medalist; Ruth Shaw, Jean Brown, Nancy Ford, Rose Johnson, Irene Daubert, Jeanne Silvester, Sheila Leyton, Jan Hollister, Sybil Hargrave, Janet Judge and Beverly Crane.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED
To Soccer Association. New officers have been elected to serve the Princeton Soccer Association for the 1984-85 season.

They are Jean Taber, president; Ted Terpstra, league coordinator; Bob Callen, traveling team coordinator; Susan Hahn, treasurer; Marsha Wood, secretary, and Ellen Kemp, Registrar. Kurt Vandervoort will continue as fields manager and Patty Soffronoff and Tina Kinney will be in charge of sponsors. Retiring officers are Mimi Ballard, Bill Fogler and Joanne Rumsey.

On the final day of play in the Bantam League, FMC tied Audrey Short, 2-2, in the championship game. It was directed by Harry and Ellen Levine, while the Cub League directors were Bob Johnson and Terri Heron.

In the Junior League where three Most Valuable Player awards were presented and Andy Keno was named the season's best goalie, Kopp's Cycle emerged as the top team. Alan Bilanin was the league diector.

The Senior League for sixth through eighth graders was organized by Penny Baskerville and Betty David.

The Association needs a coach for its 1976 traveling team. Those interested should call Mr. Callen, 683-0607, or Mrs. Taber, 921-0442.

Tennis Tournament Set

The Mercer County Park Commission will once again sponsor a men's doubles tournament at the Outdoor Tennis Center in Mercer County Park.

This year, the tournament will have an A Division for doubles teams with a 4.5 and above rating. There will also be a B Division for all 4.0 and under teams. Trophies will be awarded to the winning teams and finalists in both divisions.

The tournament will begin Saturday, July 7 and run throughout the week with the finals held Friday evening, July 13.

All county residents are eligible for the tournament. Non-residents who have a 1984 season pass for the tennis center will be eligible as well. The entry fee will be $6 per team plus one can of new Dunlop balls.

Applications are available at the Outdoor Tennis Center during regular hours, 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. or by calling 989-6533. Deadline for submitting your application is Thursday, July 5 at noon.

For further information, call the tennis center at 586-9850.

Organic Farm

There is one territorially insistent rooster that came with the farm, but plans call for hens (chicken droppings are more highly prized than horse manure on an organic farm), a couple of pigs, maybe some ducks and geese. "Low maintenance animals," Ms. Cadoux points out. "We really want to focus on the crops."

Greenhouse, Too. Another project for the immediate future is a greenhouse, which she hopes to have finished in time for seeding next year's crops in flats during the late winter months. There are also plans to spruce up the farm, re-roofing and re-siding some of the buildings this summer, installing plumbing and electricity.

"This is a great setting," Ms. Cadoux says, gazing happily out her kitchen window. "I just love being here and I want to create a nice kind of feeling for everyone who comes here."

A four-wheel drive tractor with front-end loader, bush-hog and rototiller is on order, but there are a number of other items of farm equipment that Ms. Cadoux needs. A Troy-built push rototiller, for instance, as a tax-deduction to the Watersheds; a chisel plow; a tractor-trailer on which to cart the tractor; a manure spreader and more manure, especially poultry droppings; a good truck, either estate body or full size; and interesting seed varieties, or suggestions from knowledgeable gardeners as to what varieties work well in New Jersey clay soils.

The new farm is the most extensive project ever launched by the Watersheds Association. As Director Jim Gaffney points out the Watersheds' Reserve has always been a model for land use management of foresis, meadows and migratory flyways. "We would like to extend that model to include appropriate agricultural use as well," he says.

Standing Her Ground. Ms. Cadoux says she admires the Watersheds for hiring her. Raised in an atmosphere in which boys and girls were treated equally, she finds that there is about a 30-second interval in which a man, perhaps another farmer, meeting her for the first time says in surprise, "You're the farmer?"

"You've got to say 'yes', meet their eyes and stand your ground. If you don't cower in those first few seconds, you can continue as equals and go about your business," she says. The Watersheds has its new farmer. That she's a woman is irrelevant.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

At Canal House. To celebrate the 150th Anniversary of the Delaware and Raritan Canal, the Lawrence Historical Society will hold a Strawberry Festival at the canal house on Quakerbridge Road on Saturday, June 23, from 12 to 4 p.m.

Strawberries, ice cream, lemonade and chocolate covered strawberries will be for sale as well as gift items, such as D&R canal mugs and D&R books. There will be music and free balloons. Tours of the canal house will also be available. Proceeds will be used for future projects of the Historical Society.

NATURE WALKS OFFERED

Along Canal. Three nature walks will be offered in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Delaware and Raritan Canal. The natural history of the area and the importance of the canal in New Jersey's past will be the themes of these walks on Saturday and Sunday, June 23 and 24.

A naturalist from the Stony Brook - Millstone Watersheds Association will conduct an easy hike along the towpath of the Delaware and Raritan Canal in Blackwells Mills on Saturday, June 23 at 8 a.m.

On Sunday, June 24, the Sierra Club and the Stony Brook - Millstone Watersheds Association are jointly sponsoring two interpretive hikes along the towpath and in the Institute Woods. Hikes will be held at 10 a.m. and again at 2 p.m., starting at Turning Basin Park on Alexander Road in Princeton.

For more information and reservations, call the Stony Brook - Millstone Watersheds Association at 737-3735.

HIKES, BIKE RIDES

Along Canal. The Central Jersey Group of the Sierra Club will conduct a number of outdoor activities on Saturday and Sunday, June 23 and 24, to help mark the observance of the Delaware and Raritan Canal's 150th anniversary.

Two excursions will be held on Saturday, a 20-mile round trip bicycle trip and a nature hike along the Canal towpath. Both activities will center around the Blackwells Mills Canal Days Festival which is also being held on June 23 at the Delaware and Raritan Canal State Park in Blackwells Mills.

The nature hike will start at 10 a.m. at the festival site, and will last three to four hours. Participants are encouraged to bring water, snacks, binoculars and field guides, if possible, for the identification of fauna and flora. For more informaton call Jose Garcia at 799-4205.

A bike trip from Kingston to the festival site and back to Kingston will also take place on Saturday. Bill Dix will lead the 20-mile road trip at a moderate pace, starting at noon from the parking area adjacent to the Canal off Route 27 in Kingston. Call Mr. Dix at 924-3390 for additional details.

The third activity is an interpretive nature walk along the Canal on Sunday, June 24. This two to three hour walk will start at 10:30 a.m. at Princeton's Turning Basin Park. Warren Elmer will lead the walk rain or shine, and he can be reached at 737-8581 if further information is needed.

What Happens in Town Before You Get Up? Take a Walk with Our Early Rising Observer

Notes from the journal of the longest day:

4:06 a.m.: The clock radio begins to blare the hard rock of WAPP-FM — it's too early for WPRB, which normally occupies this frequency. I am preparing to chart the movements of Princeton's morning people, and I have chosen to do it Thursday, June 21, the summer solstice.

4:28 a.m.: Except for the newspaper delivery vans and the droning Elgin White Wing street cleaner, a lonely pedestrian has Nassau Street to himself. The first good morning of the day goes to Donald Thompson, who works the graveyard shift at the gazebo in the University driveway adjacent to Nassau Presbyterian. He expects little traffic until 6:30 or so, when workmen begin to arrive. Administrators are late risers — the first of them won't arrive until about 7:30.

4:34 a.m.: The first sound of birds chirping. Their tone seems less lyrical than at night, more nervous, reminiscent of a Planning Board meeting.

4:40 a.m.: The first cup of coffee of the day, preceded by the first entertaining remark of the day. Both are provided by the WaWa market on University Place, the only place in town at this time of day. We ask if the coffee is fresh. "Everything at WaWa is fresh," responds night manager Lisa Wanzor, a University student, "including the employees."

4:45 a.m.: Stanley Sadovy, a driver for Princeton-Windsor News Service, arrives at WaWa with several bundles of papers. He starts his days at 3:15, except on Saturdays and Sundays, when he sleeps in until 4:45 a.m. He loves it. "It takes a certain breed to do this. I haven't missed a day it'll be six years in August." The enthusiasm of Mr. Sadovy, 67, is not shared by his younger colleague, Gary Alexander, whose route takes him over to the Princeton Shopping Center at this hour. "Socially the world's set for 9 to 5, and you have to take your old lady out once in a while. You never fall into a pattern."

Sigmund's Proposal for Affordable Housing Would Minimize Density and Tax Increases

Mayor Barbara Sigmund has proposed a two-pronged plan by which the Borough could provide housing opportunities for low and moderate income residents without significant density increases and without raising property taxes.

Mayor Sigmund called a press conference Monday to outline her proposal which uses an innovative lease/purchase mechanism to build new units and a housing trust for "shoring up" the remaining low and moderate income housing in the Borough against what she called "galloping gentrification."

The lease/purchase housing program, devised by Homeownership Group of Wilmington, Del., that she proposes is structured around the sale of a tax-exempt short term (2½ year) revenue bond issued by the Borough or a housing authority and backed by pre-sold mortgages. As a revenue bond it would not have an impact on the taxpayer, Mayor Sigmund pointed out, and could have a rate as low as 7½ percent.

A pre-determined number of units would be under contract to tenants/homebuyers who are approved for mortgages before the bond is marketed. Houses are then constructed under a turnkey arrangement with a builder. Tenants are required to put up an initial deposit of $1,000.

During the lease phase, rent payments are sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds while allowing equity of from $6,000-$8,000 to be built up for the tenants to use as a down payment at final settlement. At the end of the lease period, tenants settle on their properties, using the initial deposit, the equity generated through the rents and the mortgage proceeds. The bonds are paid off using these proceeds, and the Borough or housing authority has no further obligation.

Homeownership Group of Wilmington, which has implemented similar programs in New Brunswick and other cities, says that the initial development and construction costs for each unit could be 10 to 15 percent

Borough Landmarks Ordinance May Be Revived

Old ordinances in Princeton never die. They do fade away — for years sometimes — until they are brought forward again at a time deemed propitious by their proponents.

And now appears to be the time for a re-entry of the Landmarks Ordinance, whose most recent appearance was in the Township in 1982. This past Tuesday, a bus left Borough Hall at 8 a.m. for a tour of historic landmark districts in Burlington City and Haddonfield Borough.

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund and Joint Historic Sites Commission Chairman Charles St. John were the "tour leaders;" both are strongly in favor of a Borough Landmarks Ordinance. The invitation list also included members of Borough Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Planning Board, governing boards, and Borough officials.

In addition, representatives of bodies previously opposed to such an ordinance were asked to come along. These include Princeton University, the Princeton Theological Seminary, and the real estate industry.

The group toured historic landmark districts in Burlington and Haddonfield, towns that are said to have experienced a good deal of success with such ordinances.

Why has the Joint Historic Sites Committee picked this time to approach Borough Council for a Landmarks Ordinance? It has been six years since Council withdrew such an ordinance before it reached a vote. The reason: heavy opposition from many quarters.

Mr. St. John feels it is more important below conventional housing costs because of the reduction in financing costs, low marketing expenses and the minimal risk to the developer.

Mayor Sigmund said the program can be used to produce housing at the low, moderate or middle income levels, and it can be "paired" with a straight market project whose profits can be used to bring down the costs of the low and moderate income units even further. Under such a program, the density levels of the high income houses do not have to be substantially increased in order to generate an "internal subsidy" for the lower income units, she added.

"I would propose that the Borough enter into a contract with the Homeownership Group for development of at least 50 units, not necessarily on one site, as soon as a feasible site or sites are identified and secured for lease-purchasing housing," Mayor Sigmund said. She preferred not to identify the sites she had in mind — in municipal as well as private ownership — "for obvious reasons — to do so would drive the price up."

Mayor Sigmund said the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation could be designated as the non-profit developer and owner of the projects and in fact had offered that option during the negotiations with Collins Development. The option will remain open if WJDC drops its suit against the Borough, she remarked.

Township Invited. One advantage to a locally developed and controlled program, the mayor suggested, is the opportunity it gives the Borough and Township to work together on a housing program that need not increase the density levels in the Township to the large numbers contemplated by the proposed Township Affordable Housing ordinance. Mayor Sigmund will meet with Mayor Winthrop S. Pike and other Township officials this Wednesday to discuss the possibilities not only of a joint program but a joint conference before Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli.

Another advantage to the lease/purchase program is that a certain percentage of the units could be specified for public employees, such as policemen, firemen and teachers. The mayor noted that a bill requiring a municipality to mandate residency for its policemen and firemen had recently been released from committee at the state legislature.

In addition to the 50 units sought under the lease/purchase program, the Borough Mayor is hoping that an application by the Princeton Housing Authority for dwindling federal funds will permit the construction of up to 20 rental units immediately adjacent to the Clay Street project for low-income housing. If the Housing Authority fails to obtain the grant, the land could be used as part of the lease/purchase program, she said.

Maintaining Present Stock. It makes sense for the whole town, Mayor Sigmund pointed out, to maintain as much of the low and moderate income housing stock in the Borough as possible, because each of the 200 houses in the John-Witherspoon area that "gentrifies" out of the low and moderate income category increases the Mt. Laurel obligation. In order to finance the "buy down" of housing stock so that an organization such as the JWDC can buy at market value and sell at affordable rates, the mayor proposes a housing trust fund to be utilized by JWDC.

The "easiest" source of funding, she suggested, would be the $100,000 from Collins Development Corp. for air rights to the fourth story bridge addition to the Nassau Inn, but that issue is presently in litigation. Other possible monetary sources for a trust fund she listed include a surcharge on new building in the Borough; a bond floated by the Housing Authority; contributions from individuals in return for a tax credit against the state income tax (which would require a state statute), and grants from various sources, including state.

Possible and Essential. Speaking of the twin goals of her proposal, and the mechanisms to put such programs in place, Mayor Sigmund said, "I am convinced that such mechanisms are not only possible but absolutely essential if the Borough is to retain not only its mixture of income groups, but also the quality of life that all of these groups enjoy."

Pointing out that many New Jersey municipalities — including Princeton Township — have been attempting to meet their Mt. Laurel obligation through ordinance revision, Mayor Sigmund said the enactment of a significant density bonus provision or zone would be particularly onerous to the infrastructure of "the tight little Borough."

In addition she is dismayed by "the overall horrendous projections for new housing that the density bonus concept will produce." Mayor Sigmund cites a figure of four to five market units for each affordable housing unit produced under the bonus concept.

MASTODON ON VIEW

In Rocky Hill. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present an exhibit of a 10,000-year-old New Jersey mastodon from Monday, July 2, through Friday, July 27. The exhibit, which was loaned through the New Jersey State Museum's traveling exhibition service, shows a palate with four teeth, part of a fibula, a tusk fragment, a cervical vertebra, and a pelvis section which includes a hip socket. The fossilized remains were discovered in 1972 near Sparta in Sussex County. Photographs taken during the excavation process are included in the exhibition to show the care that is required in recovery projects of this kind.

The exhibit is free and open to the public. For further information, call 924-7073.

Proposed Amendments, Discussion, Expected to Postpone Township Committee Vote on Affordable Housing Ordinance

A number of amendments to the Township Affordable Housing ordinance are likely when Township Committee meets Monday, July 2, at 8 in the Valley Road building.

All five members of Committee are expected to be on hand for the meeting, which means that the controversial ordinance, which was introduced May 21 and was the subject of lengthy public hearing June 11 and 18, could be voted. However, Mayor Winthrop S. Pike says he "doubts" that a vote will be taken, because the agenda for the evening is a long one and there are several amendments he wishes to propose.

Based on recommendations from housing consultants hired by the the Planning Board, the ordinance gives optional bonus density to developers in return for the construction of low and moderate income housing. It has been criticized by residents and Committee members alike for the windfall it might give developers and for the strain on infrastructure that such high density would create.

Residents have also criticized Committee for not having and disseminating facts on how many Mt. Laurel units are needed, how many overall units would be created, how many people and car trips would be generated. Figures from two sources, a citizens' group and the housing consultants, are expected to be produced at Monday night's meeting. The agenda for Monday also includes the "jogging" and sump pump ordinances.

Changes. Among the changes that Mayor Pike would like to see in the Affordable Housing ordinance as presently constituted is a return to the site-specific concept of the Master Plan. Instead of creating a broad affordable housing district throughout most of the Township, as the housing consultants propose, certain sites would be selected specifically for low and moderate income housing.

Mayor Pike acknowledges difficulties in the concept. For one thing, two of the sites originally proposed by the Planning Board because they were of sufficient size and well buffered (the Russell property and the White Farm) have already been snapped up by developers.

TOPICS Of The Town

For another, there has always been a hue and cry from neighbors about putting low cost housing next door — the struggle by Princeton Community Housing to locate 100 units for the elderly is a recent example. But the sobering reality of Mt. Laurel and the alternatives of high density by ordinance or "builder's remedy" may force the community to change its thinking.

"If we only knew, more specifically, how many units are going to be necessary, it would help us in knowing how to choose sites, and how large a site to select," Mayor Pike points out. He would also limit the size of the small lots on which builders could exercise bonus density options. He agrees with the suggestion that the committee to appoint the housing trust be appointed by Township Committee rather than by the mayor alone and the wisdom of having the Township issue bonds rather than the housing trust — a suggestion made by former Committeeman Abbot Moffat.

From the Citizens. Amendments to the ordinance are likely from citizens as well. Elizabeth Hutter and a group not yet fully identified are known to favor requiring contributions from commercial developers as well as residential. Mrs. Hutter believes that the potential in the OR1 and OR 2 zones is great enough to yield "several million dollars" toward an affordable housing program, and at the same time "not use up so much land" as might take place in the present plan.

She feels the Mt. Laurel decisions make a "strong connection" between the development of new business and generation of employment, and housing needs, and therefore contribution from commercial developers "on an equitable formula" would be not only appropriate but highly desireable.

Another group likely to be heard from is the Friends of Princeton Open Space. Their spokesman, R. William Potter of Edgerstoune Road, an assistant commissioner in the Public Advocate's office, has discussed with Mayor Arthur Holland of Trenton the possibility of having local towns satisfy some of their Mt. Laurel obligation by putting money towards the creation of low and moderate income housing in Trenton.

The Friends favor a bond issue as the most direct approach to creating affordable housing without the densities that would disturb the environment.

In addition to all these and other potential changes in the proposed ordinance, Mayor Pike and Township Committee will consider the proposal for a joint lease/purchase program to build new units that has been proposed by Borough Mayor Sigmund (see page one).

They will also mull over the results of the "judicial conference" with Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli on the Calton Homes suit inspired by Mt. Laurel that is scheduled to take place this Thursday, June 28, in Toms River.

Figures. Meanwhile, three residents, Margen Penick and Elizabeth Hutter of the Planning Board and Sheila Seiderman, a mathematician, have made some housing projections of their own. Assuming a need for 600 new units and 1,250 acres of existing vacant land (zoned residential) in the Township, they find that 1,070 acres will be needed for the affordable housing program, using the lowest large lot proposed density of 2.75 units an acre.

housing units in the Township, plus 248 approvals issued up through July '83, not all of which are built yet, they project (again at a 2.75 unit per acre density) an additional 2,943 units or an increase of 83 percent.

The current Township population of 13,683 would be increased by the housing program by more than one half, they say, or 7,946, and these people would make 26,487 additional car trips per day. Interestingly, taking the higher large lot densities proposed in the ordinance of 3.75 units and 5 units per acre results in a marked decrease in the projections for acreage, units, population and car trips.

And it should also be noted that the large lot program is but one aspect of the proposals, now in ordinance form, by housing consultants Alan Mallack and John Nolon, who are expected to have their own set of numbers in hand Monday night.

Tour Drumthwacket

Drumthwacket, the official residence of New Jersey governors on Stockton Street, is now open to the public on Wednesdays from noon to 2 p.m. Group tours will be available starting in the fall.

Drumthwacket was designated the official governor's residence in 1981 in a swap which gave Morven, the former home of New Jersey governors, to the New Jersey Historical Society. The Society spent a reported $1.7 million refurbishing the mansion in Empire-style furnishings, only to discover that Governor Kean and his wife did not care for that period furniture and preferred to remain in their own home in northern New Jersey.

The Empire-style furnishings were sold to help recoup part of the cost of the renovation, and a new committee was formed to seek quality antiques of the Queen Anne period. Drumthwacket is used for receptions and official state functions and is occasionally rented out for fund-raising purposes to groups such as the New Jersey State Opera.

TOWNSHIP IS HIT

With 2nd Mt. Laurel Suit. Princeton Township, scrambling to formulate a response to the Calton Homes suit, has been slapped with a second Mt. Laurel action — and Calton Homes is indirectly implicated.

Princeton Ridge, Inc., an engineering and construction firm in Pittsburgh, Pa., with a long-time interest in developing land in the vicinity of Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road, has filed a Mt. Laurel suit against both the Township and the Planning Board. Alleging that the Township ordinances don't meet Mt. Laurel II standards, the plaintiff seeks the remedy of being allowed to develop at densities that will meet the standards.

Princeton Ridge, a subsidiary of Dravo Corp. of Pittsburgh, has sought unsuccessfully since the 1970s for permission to develop a 230-acre tract that was originally zoned for approximately 100 single family units on lots of 1½-2 acres. Following the adoption of the Master Plan in 1980, revisions to the Township code created new RA and RB zones in environmentally sensitive ridge areas that lowered the density in those areas 50 percent. Princeton Ridge subsequently sued the Township and the Planning Board for their action which lowered the developmental potential of the property.

A year ago in July, Calton Homes, the Freehold developer which brought the first Mt. Laurel suit against the Township in March, entered into contract with Princeton Ridge to purchase the 230 acres for $3,425,000 and to benefit from any final resolution of the dispute between Princeton Ridge, the Township and the Planning Board.

Contract Terminated. During negotiations for resolving the suit, the Township, on advice of Attorney Edwin C. Schmierer, required that Calton Homes be "severed" from all interest in the property in order that an agreement could be reached with the original litigant. Princeton Ridge terminated its contract with Calton and returned the developer's $50,000 deposit with "appropriate liquidated damages."

Calton subsequently filed a $5 million civil suit against Mayor Winthrop Pike, Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer, Dravo Corp, and Princeton Ridge Inc. for interfering in its contract to purchase the land. Township Committee recently appointed attorney John S. Fitzpatrick of the firm Haggerty and Donohue in Union to defend it against the civil suit. Mr. Fitzpatrick's fees, not to exceed $30,000, will be paid by the Township's insurance carrier.

Now comes a new suit by Princeton Ridge, which apparently believes that a Mt.

Mexican Spa Hopping

Moctezuma, the 16th-century Aztec emperor, was one of Mexico's earliest spa enthusiasts. In fact, three of the mineral baths that Moctezuma visited — in Tenochtitlan, Ixtapan de la Sal, and Oaxtepec — are still in use today. A number of Mexican spas (balnearios) are true resorts, with swimming, tennis, horseback riding, and hiking available. Spas with these facilities are the most expensive. Others are mainly places to "take the waters," either outside in natural mineral springs or inside in spring-fed pools.

As more Americans discover the pleasures and benefits of mineral baths (whether or not they really do cure rheumatism, arthritis, or any other aches and pains), the number of spas continues to grow. And Mexico's spa potential is formidable — there are more than 570 known warmwater mineral springs in the country.

Most mineral waters contain a mixture of sulfate of soda, sulfate of lime, carbonate of lime, sodium chloride, magnesium, and some sulfuric acid. This may not sound appetizing, and it certainly doesn't look appetizing (the mineral waters are usually a murky brown color), but for most people the waters feel good and are amazingly soothing.

Laurel action will be more effective in obtaining the developmental density it has long sought than will a straight zoning suit. Township Attorney is more sanguine about the outcome of this Mt. Laurel dispute, however, because the property on the environmentally sensitive ridge has been designated for "limited growth" on the State Development Guide Plan.

The Mt. Laurel II decision, handed down by the New Jersey Supreme Court in January, 1983, requires growth communities to provide their fair share of regional low and moderate-income housing as well as to meet indigenous needs. Mr. Schmierer says, "We think we have a valid position (before the judge in regard to this new Mt. Laurel suit) as long as we create and adopt an ordinance that allows us to meet our Mt. Laurel obligations."

The Princeton Ridge suit will not be discussed this Thursday when Mr. Schmierer and Planning Board attorney Gerald Muller meet in "judicial conference" on the Calton Homes suit with Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli in Toms River. A separate meeting will have to be scheduled.

BANK WINS APPROVAL

From Planning Board. The Howard Savings Bank, said to be New Jersey's largest savings bank company, will open a drive-in facility at the intersection of Mt. Lucas Road, Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road.

In a special session Monday night to accommodate the applicant, the Planning Board gave approval to One Cherry Hill Associates for the renovation and partial destruction of an office building on the one-acre site that has been vacant for two years. The approval follows a decision last Thursday allowing Church and Dwight, new owner of the American Can Building at the corner of Harrison Street and Bunn Drive, an addition and renovation.

Don't Forget to Dial '1'

Beginning Sunday, July 1, customers of New Jersey Bell will have to first dial "1" when placing telephone calls outside their area code.

The new dialing procedure will be in effect statewide for the company's three million residence and business customers. Customers who do not dial "1" will hear a recorded announcement telling them to dial again using the new procedure.

One-Plus dialing also applies when placing calls to directory assistance in another area code and for all toll-free "800" numbers. One-Plus is needed when using custom calling services such as call forwarding, three-way calling and speed calling to call another area code.

Customers do not have to dial "1" when placing collect, third number billed and person-to-person calls, or for calling card calls. They will continue to first dial "0" for operator when placing operator-assisted or calling card calls.

The One Cherry Hill Associates application was initially heard the previous week and continued to Monday because of Planning Board quorum difficulties. The plan calls for the removal of 4,000 square feet in the mid-section of a structure that had been used as a laboratory and more recently as an architects' office. Razing the mid-section leaves a two-story structure that would be used for 8,000 square feet of office space and a 1,800 square foot one-story building that would become the drive-in bank.

Neighbors were concerned about federally imposed lighting conditions required for an all-night automated teller machine to be located on a corner of the building as an additional service to customers. The Planning Board decided that site plan approval would not include approval of such a machine, and that the Howard Savings Bank would have to come in with a new application when it had more figures on the intensity and type of lights required.

Traffic. Traffic congestion on Mt. Lucas Road and on Route 206 was another concern of neighbors. The applicant agreed to reduce the number of exits/entrances on Mt. Lucas from two to one and will widen the street to two lanes above the stop sign at Mt. Lucas and Cherry Hill Roads. Parallel parking on Mt. Lucas, a practice of previous tenants to which neighbors object, is not necessary to meet parking needs, it was pointed out.

Traffic consultant Harvey Yessowitz argued that making a left-hand turn into the facility from Route 206 would be no worse than at any point along the highway, and perhaps less difficult because of the traffic light which would create gaps in the traffic. Planning Board member Margen Penick raised the possibility of the Department of Transportation deciding to widen 206 to four lanes in Princeton if it saw that there were numerous instances of cars passing on the right of other cars stopped for a left hand turn.

The concerns of the Township engineer in regard to storm water drainage proved to be more difficult to resolve. At issue was the inadequacy of a pipe carrying storm water away from the site under Route 206. Frank Quimby, engineer for One Cherry Hill Associates, voiced objection, in terms of cost and potential delay because of approvals needed from the state, to digging up 206 to put in a new pipe, preferring instead to contain storm water in an on-site underground detention basin.

The Township engineer said this solution would only partially help the problem of "water pooling" on Route 206, a hazard in winter. All agreed that the Route 206, Mt. Lucas and Cherry Hill intersection will need attention in the future, and a compromise was struck. One Cherry Hill Associates agreed to contribute $10,000 to the improvement of the intersection, no matter what the source of the recommendation, whether from the DOT or the Township engineer. A requirement for curbing along Cherry Hill and Route 206, to which the applicant objected, was waived, unless it is deemed necessary for drainage.

Also Approved. Across town, at another "bad" intersection and at another office site which is being upgraded, Church and Dwight received permission to put up a 13,000-square-foot addition to the former American Can building. Church and Dwight manufacture Arm and Hammer baking soda and other household products, but intend to use the site primarily as corporate headquarters for the Arm and Hammer Division and Chemicals Division.

There will be some consumer products research and development in the refurbished laboratories of the existing building, as well as a pilot plant. Planning Board members were assured by the applicant that noxious substances will not be used — the primary raw material is sodium bicarbonate from the west — although "a minor amount of chemicals" will go into the sewer system. State regulations governing such things as ventiliation will have to be met.

The location is 22 heavily wooded acres at the corner of North Harrison and Bunn Drive. Church and Dwight will double the number of employees from 85 under American Can ownership to 190. Planning Board member Margen Penick commented that 400 vehicle trips per day estimated to be generated by the increase was "quite a lot" to add to a road on which some 700 cars per hour pass at peak hours. She asked whether the company had considered offset hours.

The Church and Dwight plan calls for a new parking lot on the east and a new driveway from Bunn Drive. Approval was conditional on employees exiting onto Bunn Drive rather than Harrison Street. The existing Harrison Street driveway is to be used only for employee entrance and by the few trucks that will make deliveries to the site, and then only between 9:30 and 2:30.

OPPOSITION CONTINUES

By Greenholm Residents. Residents of Greenholm, the private enclave of expensive houses located between Bayard Lane and the Chambers Street side of the proposed Collins Development project, have joined the list of Collins opponents continuing their fight in the courts.

Greenholm resident Lynn T. White III said that he and his neighbors believe that the proposed development violates a provision of the Borough's zoning ordinance requiring developers to "minimize any nuisance, particularly on nearby residences. The loading zone on Chambers Street," said Mr. White, referring to the principal point of contention between Greenholm residents and Collins, "does not minimize the nuisance. There are other ways of handling loading that would be less of a nuisance — including putting it on Hulfish or underground."

Collins, meanwhile, will have at least one ally in the court fight. The Regional Planning Board, which approved the proposed condominium and office-retail project after lengthy hearings last winter, had yet another protracted and somewhat heated discussion last week and finally voted 6-5 to send its attorney to represent its position in the case.

All parties may meet in Superior Court this Friday, when Judge Paul G. Levy is scheduled to consider motions from Greenholm and from the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation, another Collins opponent, exempting them from the 45-day limit for appeals. Both groups had filed successful protests with Borough Council within the time limit, but the court later ruled that the Council did not have jurisdiction.

The Greenholm suit thus becomes the second obstacle to Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund's plan for a negotiated settlement with Collins. Last month, after the court affirmed the Planning Board approval, Mrs. Sigmund and Collins officials proposed a settlement that addressed some of the concerns of both the Greenholm and Witherspoon Jackson residents. The settlement was proposed by Collins, however, only on the condition that all litigants drop their suits.

'Very Much Together.' The proposed agreement would have reduced the number of bays in the Chambers Street loading dock from two to one, and would have provided for a loading zone to be added to the north side of Hulfish Street, thereby diverting some traffic from Chambers.

Mr. White of the Greenholm group said that proposal was a step in the right direction but not far enough for him and his neighbors, who are pooling their funds to pay the legal fees. "We're very much together on this," he said.

As for the concerns of low and moderate income housing, the proposed settlement with Collins would have increased the amount of money it would pay the Borough for the air rights over Palmer Square East to $120,000 and would have earmarked another $100,000 contribution to be used to support such housing. That money would have been donated on a per unit basis as each of the 140 proposed condominiums was completed.

But the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation was unmoved by that Collins concession. What it was seeking, according to former president Walton Johnson, was not more money but rather at least some low and moderate income housing on the site, which once was part of the Witherspoon Jackson neighbborhood.

"What Collins is talking about is a payoff, hush money," said Mr. Johnson.

No Junk Food Here

No soda...no gum...no candies...no problem. That pretty much describes Princeton Regional Schools' position regarding the recent state senate ban on selling "junk food" in schools before or during the lunch period.

Princeton does sell pretzels (unsalted at John Witherspoon), potato chips and corn chips in the middle and high schools, but not in the elementary schools. School Food Service Director Barbara Walsh explained that the decision to sell these items — plus ice cream — was made because funds were needed to support the lunch program.

Otherwise, Princeton does all its own baking (except for bread for sandwiches) and avoids additives and artificial colorings and flavorings as much as possible. The rolls, corn bread and cookies often utilize agricultural commodity items, such as flour, corn meal, and dry milk, to help keep expenses down. A minimum amount of salt is used in cooking and baking.

Peanut butter, oatmeal raisin and chocolate chip cookies (made with real chocolate) are available to satisfy the urge for sweets. Fresh fruit is always on the counter and, instead of soda, students can buy fruit juice or milk.

BY-PASS IS SEALED

On Mountain Brook Line. One of the two remaining bypass points that act as a safety valve for the sewer system when it gets too full has been eliminated.

In one of his final acts before leaving his post as Borough Engineer and Sanitary Engineer for the Sewer Operating Committee, George C. Olexa Jr., with the approval of the SOC, ordered the sealing over of "infamous" bypass 24F off Elm Road. Mr. Olexa has resigned after 15 years with the Borough and the SOC to take a post with the Forrestal Center on Route 1.

He acknowledges that closing the bypass may result in some bubbling manholes along the Mountain Brook line in the vicinity of bypass 24F during periods of heavy rain. But he points out that overflowing sewerage will not be directly piped into the stream, as was the case when 24F was allowed under a permit with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The permit, due to expire July 1, 1985, stipulated that the bypass points were only allowed until the infiltration and inflow evaluation work had been completed.

Since the majority of the I and I work was undertaken and completed by the SOC during 1983 and 1984, Mr. Olexa felt justified in closing this "last direct bypass into the community's waterways." The other bypass point, still in existence, is the one on River Road that prevents flooding of the pumping station at the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority treatment plant. Because of the proximity and impact on the treatment plant, Mr. Olexa feels that closing this bypass is better left to the SBSRA rather than the SOC.

A small menu but each dish is a delight

From cooking classes in her home to La Cuisine, that fine little gourmet carry-out shop on Nassau Street, to, at last, her wished-for good French restaurant in Princeton — and Roberta Churchill is doing it without a liquor license.

By the looks of business the other night, she isn't going to need one. Everyone brought his own bottle (or bottles) of wine which is marked and then corked and poured for a $2 fee per bottle. Seems excessive, but no one seemed to mind. Some even brought wines for each course.

And such courses! From a small menu that changes monthly to reflect "fresh seasonal foods," we could have chosen from the Appetizers or Accompaniments category: Asparagus Tips in Puff Pastry with a Tarragon Cream Sauce, $5.25; Baked Goat Cheese, Watercress and Spinach Sauce, $3.95; the soup of the day, Cold Cream of Sorrel, $2.50; or Artichoke bottoms, Duck Liver Mousse, Sun Dried Tomato Sauce, $4.95. (Trenton Times food editor Daisy Fitch raves about the sun-dried tomato's flavor, "essence of sunshine," she says.)

Handsome Taster chose the Baked Goat Cheese, a 50-cent-piece cylinder sitting in a discreet creamy puddle of sauces. First impressions can be deceiving: what we thought was a tiny portion, Roberta knew better. The flavors of the cheese and the sauces were intense and definitely appetite provoking. We noshed through our allotment of French bread in a wink and broke into the homemade croissants as vehicles for the cheese. A wonderful appetizer.

BUT JUST AS delicious — and icy cold, to boot — was the Cold Cream of Sorrel soup. The flavor was subtle as was the color — somewhat like a pale green-tinged celery — and it was smooth as whipping cream. I wanted the little glass cup to be bottomless.

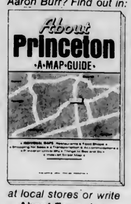
From the main courses that included Sauteed Chicken with Wild Mushroom Sauce, $12.95, and Scallops and Ginger in Puff Pastry, $17.50, HT selected Catalpiana — Portuguese Stew of Cherrystone Clams and Marinated Pork, $13.50; and I the Veal and Asparagus en Papillote, $18.75.

The Catalpiana was beautifully served in a copper pot containing four large tender clams in their shells and cubes of just-cooked-through pork and peppers in a sauce that nipped oh-so-subtly at the tongue, but never overpowered.

When the parchment envelope containing my veal and asparagus was slit and placed before me, the aroma rising from it was so heady that I needn't have eaten a morsel. But I'm glad I did, for the veal was wonderfully tender and white and the asparagus firm and moist and bright green. A fontina cheese lay glistening between the meat and vegetable, lending both body and nourishment for the soul.

Vegetables of the evening were crisp green beans, cherry tomato halves bathed in pesto (outrageously good) and rice. Again small portions that were just right.

WHILE WE MIGHT have chosen a cheese tray with fruit at $3.75 or assorted Bassett ice creams, $1.95, we went to the pastry cart instead where HT selected a hazelnut cake, very rich and moist and almost nut-oily. I ordered a Strawberry Shortcake from the kitchen when I heard that a homemade buttermilk biscuit was the underpinning.



Great, short biscuit, with fresh berries that were too warm — only glitch in the evening — topped with freshly whipped cream. Each dessert was $3.75.

I cannot fault Roberta for not having my grandmother's strawberry shortcake: one-half a baking powder biscuit, hot from the oven, slathered with butter, topped with cold, cold berries mashed with her potato masher, topped with the lid to the biscuit and then more berries and whipped cream. Her shortcake was marvelous and so was Roberta's.

Don't miss the fine food prepared with care by Roberta and Brian Dodge, served lovingly — and in a most unlikely spot: tucked away in the center court of a shopping center. Just think, you can eat at Roberta's once a month and never eat the same thing twice. That's stuff to dream on.

Increased Sewer Charges Comprise Large Part of This Year's Tax Bill

If your Borough tax bill appears high, blame it, at least in part, on the sewers. The tax bills that have gone out from Borough Hall include a 75 percent increase in the sewer rate, from $15.50 to $27.10 per 1000 cubic feet. (The sewer charge also relates to water consumption, so if you see more than a 75 percent increase, check the shower takers in your household.)

This increase reflects the beginnings of the payback to the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority necessitated by the Authority's underbilling. But don't think that once the debt to Stony Brook is paid, sewer bills will dip down. Bills will remain high to help finance expensive sewer repairs.

This year — the first in which reassessment was done via computerization — the Borough experienced an increase of approximately 15 percent in residential assessed value. This increase is reflected in tax bills, too, although tax rates themselves have actually gone down.

In 1981, the tree streets showed the greatest increase in assessed value. This year, reassessment was highest in the western section.

Not only have the generally more expensive houses of this section been assessed at a higher amount, but many have been selling for sums even greater than the new assessed value.

$14,515 RAISED SO FAR

For Senior Housing. In the three weeks since launching its $66,792 drive for the Elm Court apartments for moderate-income elderly and handicapped, Princeton Community Housing has received donations totaling $14,515. This figure includes an anonymous gift of $10,000 from a Princeton resident.

The amount targeted represents the budget cutting and compromises in design and environmental and construction considerations that were necessary to bring the building within the dollar limits set by HUD (the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.) PCH President Harriet Bryan explained that present specifications for the building, as funded by HUD, meet only the minimum requirements.

Safety and energy efficiency are priorities on PCH's "shopping list." For example, attic insulation, increased from six to nine inches at a cost of $8,320, would save energy. And so would the installation of heat-glazing film between double-glazed windows. This would cost $153 a unit, for a total of $13,617.

For $90 a unit, the builder can install a thermal break in the aluminum windows to prevent ice or condensation; and for another $90 a unit, PCH can provide separate doors for freezer and refigerator compartments.

Because most tenants will be elderly, and many will be handicapped, PCH would like to install ceiling lights in all bathrooms. Their present design calls for no windows and a single light over the washbasin.

More than 3000 letters appealing for funds were sent to members of PCH's sponsoring organizations. So far, some 60 donations have come in from throughout the area, and have ranged from $5 to $500.

Contributions, which are tax-deductible, should be sent to Golda Gottlieb, 14 Mershon Drive, Princeton, N.J. 08540 and checks made payable to PCH, Inc.

HOPEWELL GIRL KILLED

In Bicycle Accident. The day after she had spent her last day as a freshman at Hopewell Valley High School, 15-year-old Joanne M. Davison of 345 Carter Road, riding her bicycle, collided head on with a car near her home and was killed instantly.

No charges have been filed against the driver, Katharine Holcombe, 58, of Province Line Road, Hopewell Township.

The accident occurred Thursday around 1 p.m. The victim had ridden out of the driveway of her home into the path of the Holcombe car which was traveling South on Carter Road toward the nearby AT&T Research Center where Mrs. Holcombe is employed.

The victim was transported by the Lawrence Life Mobile to the Princeton Medical Center where she was pronouced dead of her injuries.

A member of the Hopewell Methodist Church and the Hopewell Girl Scouts, Miss Davison is survived by her parents, Barry and Barbara L. Davison; a sister, Nancy, at home; her paternal grandparents, William and Jane Davison of Hamilton Square; her maternal grandparents, Robert and Lillian Lanning of Fort Myers, Fla., formerly of Cranbury, and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Hopewell Methodist Church, the Rev. Michael Smith officiating. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Contributions in Joanne's memory may be made to the Hopewell Methodist Church.

There were two accidents Saturday involving a small child and a car.

Two-and-a-half-year-old Claudia Yu of 41 Hamilton Lane, Plainsboro, escaped serious injury when she darted between two parked cars on Nassau Street and ran into the passenger side of a car operated by Roger E. Hernandez, 29, of 16 Hunters Glen, Plainsboro.

She was taken by the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad to the Medical Center where she was treated for slight abrasions to her left arm and face. No charges have been made against the driver.

According to Ptl. David Alston, the child, accompanied by her grandmother, was watching her aunt cross Nassau Street near Tulane. As the aunt came close to the south side of Nassau, the child ran out between two cars to greet her. Mr. Hernandez told Ptl. Alston that he swerved to the left when he saw the child run from the curb into the street. The mishap took place at 2:47 p.m.

A few minutes earlier at 2:35, Township police were investigating a similar accident when six-year-old Oliver Hak, 1245 Stuart Road, had run across the Stuart roadway into the path of a car operated by Mary L. Zega, 56, of Hunt House Cottage, Hopewell.

Mrs. Zega told Ptl. Renn Kaminski that she had braked and swerved her car but could not avoid striking the child with the side of her car. Her report that the victim was not watching when he crossed the roadway in front of her car was confirmed by a witness.

The child was treated by a family doctor for a minor head injury. There were no charges against the driver following the accident, which took place 100 yards from the intersection of the Great Road East.

Schedule Revamped

In an effort to cut long lines at state motor vehicle inspection stations, the state has decided that half the motorists whose cars are due for inspection during a specific month will be assigned to come the first two weeks. This new ruling will go into effect in September.

However, failure to meet the two-week deadline will not result in penalties. "We believe that most individuals obey the law and will be willing to follow the instructions, particularly when they realize the change is intended to reduce long waits at our inspection stations," said Clifford W. Snedeker, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles.

The longest waiting times are at the beginning and end of each month. The lines are shorter during the middle of the month, and the best days are Tuesday and Thursday. The best times are mid-morning and mid-afternoon, according to Mr. Snedeker.

THEFT REPORT

Cable Equipment Stolen. A box containing various pieces of cable television equipment was reported stolen last week.

The box was taken during a three-hour period earlier in the month from Clarke Field on the Princeton University campus where Capt. Jack Petrone reported he believed that a college all-star baseball game was being televised. The victim, Suburban Cablevision Co. of Avenel, listed the value of the stolen equipment at $3,104.

A metal cash box containing $112 was stolen between 5:30 Friday afternoon and 8 the next morning from an office at Coventry Farm, 549 The Great Road. Police report the office had been forced open.

A metal post and basketball backboard and rim valued at $200 were stolen during the weekend from a home on Beech Hill Court located in the Herrontown Road section of the Township. Police said that the post had been broken off.

Three shrubs valued at $25 each were dug up and stolen last week from a property on Littlebrook Road where police said some landscaping work had been done.

A case containing approximately 20 class rings, left at the jewelry section of the University Store, was stolen between 11:30 and 3:30 Monday. Police report that a salesman representing a Minnesota firm had left the case for display. They described the rings as imitation gold.

A van owned by a Princeton resident was forced open some time last week while it was parked in the rear lot of a Wiggins Street home. A vent window was forced open, police said. Taken were tools and clothing valued at $650.

A locked office in the Engineering Quadrangle was Senior Olympics a Success.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Hats off to AMF-Head Racquet Sports, Landau's, Princeton Bank-Horizon and Princeton Caterers for sponsoring the 1984 Princeton Senior Olympics, held on Tuesday, June 19.

Organizers of the event were the Recreation Department, the Senior Resource Center and the YWCA. On behalf of the organizers of the Senior Olympics, we wish to give the sponsors and the Planning Committee, as well as all helping friends, a hearty round of applause and our most appreciative thanks for making the First Annual Senior Olympics such a happy and memorable event.

As a result of this day, there were many seniors who tried activities new to them such as bocce ball, horseshoes, frisbees, softball, golf and swimming. These experiments on their part produced such enthusiasm that several participants now want to pursue their new interests further.

The Planning Committee was headed by Kathy Clarkson, Barbara Daume and Jocelyn Helm. Additional members of the Committee were Sue Fremon, Bayard Jordan, Sister Maggie Kilduff, Bob Sinkler and Eleanor Speers.

Generous on-site help was given by Hanneke Calmon, Pat Di Cocco, Georgine Hall Freedman, Margaret Goheen, Joan Hill, Greg Jones, Dot Kruger, Ann Marie Nestor, Jackie Stacy, and Kathryn Tracy. The active support of the staff members of all three of the organizing agencies was important in making the event a success, and we wish to publicly thank them all for their skilled back-up efforts.

One final note of thanks should go to the media for their warm promotion and enthusiastic coverage of the actual event.

entered Sunday by a thief who took an AM-FM stereo valued at $125 and owned by a Graduate School student. Although the office was locked, police report there was no forced enty.

Wallet Stolen. Someone entered an office on Bank Street Friday and removed a wallet from a purse on a desk. The wallet was later recovered on the corner of Stockton Street and Library Place, minus the $76 and a check book it had contained. The victim is a Princeton resident.

An electric lawn mower valued at $25 was taken during the weekend from a locked garage on Murray Place which was entered through a window, and a hubcap was stolen Saturday from a 1973 Plymouth while it wa parked in a rear lot at 126 John Street. Chief Michael Carnevale said police have a suspect in the theft.

More Bike Thefts. Five more bicycles were stolen last week in the Borough and one in the Township.

An unlocked, 10-speed Bianchi model valued at $450 was taken Monday from in front of Kopp's Cycle Shop on Witherspoon Street — it is owned by Kopp's — and a boy's 10-speed valued at $250 was stolen last week from a Lafayette Road W. driveway where it had been left unlocked.

Taken Thursday were a $150 unlocked bicycle from a side yard of a John Street home and an unlocked bike valued at $100 from in front of the Frick Building off Washington Road where it had been left between 9:35 and 11:30 in the evening. A student's bike left unlocked and unattended was stolen the previous day from Princeton High School. It is valued at $254.

Township police report a $400 black Schwinn 12-speed was taken from the back yard of a Western Way home.

added to funds pledged by the Greenacres program and by Princeton Township to dredge the basin, represents the Historical Society's continuing interest and involvement in the preservation of this historic area. An environmental study of the area was financed by the Society in 1975 and was followed by the rehabilitation of several 19th-century basin houses.

In celebration of the canal's sesquicentennial, the Historical Society has prepared a permanent interpretive sign describing the history of the canal and life in the basin area during its heyday in the 1870s. At the presentation of the sign, Lewis B. Cuyler, board trustee and former president of the Historical Society, indicated in his remarks the interest on the part of the society in developing the route of the canal into a park.

Six or seven years ago the Society decided that the whole area of the Canal was an important historic site and could well be used as a recreational park by all the communities built on its banks. Accordingly, the Society engaged Zion and Breen landscapers to study and present a plan of what might be useful to this end. The plan was presented to other communities as well as government authorities and the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission.

The Society also made studies of the history of the basin community and took steps to renovate and improve the few buildings remaining from what was a very active commercial community during most of the 19th century. The Society financed the moving of an historic house, probably built by Charles Steadman, Princeton's noted architect-builder of the early 19th century, from upper Alexander Street to a site adjacent to the houses that still remain from the original basin settlement. It also helped finance the restoration of the old bottling factory which is still part of the row of houses.

Mr. Cuyler spoke of the importance of the Canal, the last link in an inland waterway from the St. Lawrence River in Canada through Lake Champlain, through the tributaries of the Hudson River to New York Harbor, to Raritan Bay to New Brunswick and to the Delaware at Trenton.

LOAN OFFICE ENTERED

On Nassau Street. The Security Savings & Loan Association branch office at 132 Nassau Street was entered last week.

The front door of the bank was shattered with a rock some time between 7:30 Friday evening and 10 the next morning. Chief Michael Carnevale commented that there is evidence that an intruder did get inside and enter several offices. It has not been determined yet if any office equipment was stolen, Chief Carnevale added. No money was taken, he said.

The rock used to shatter the door was recovered inside the bank. The police investigation is continuing.

A locked office in Eno Hall on the Princeton University campus was entered last week without force. Taken, police said, was a $128 stereo owned by a university employee.

Township police report an apparent attempt to enter an Oakland Road home last week. Police report a 16-year-old member of the family was watching televison at 10:45 in the evening when he heard a noise from a rear porch with a sliding door. He investigated but saw no one and police said that no entry was made.

DRIVER IS CHARGED

With Cocaine Possession. A Lawrenceville resident, Christopher J. Doherty, 20, 37 West Long Drive, has been charged by Township police with possession of a small amount of cocaine. He was later released when his cash bail of $500 — originally set at $1,000 by Judge Sydney Souter — was paid.

Doherty's car was the target of a motor vehicle check by Ptl. Robert Buchanan, after the officer had observed a car parked on the side of Drake's Corner Road at one o'clock Saturday morning. The officer noticed a white substance in a small plastic container on the front seat of the car. After a further investigation, Doherty allegedly admitted that the substance, believed to be cocaine, was his. Two passengers in the car were not charged.

been charged with attempting to shoplift $130.38 worth of film from the Acme Market in the Princeton Shopping Center. A complaint summons was signed by store manager Gerald Rockhill who detained the suspect in the store until police arrived Thursday afternoon. She is scheduled to appear July 3 in Township court.

It marked the second time that film had been shoplifted from the store. In February more than $100 worth of Polaroid film was taken.

PARKED CAR GUTTED

By Fire. A 1977 Ford was destroyed last week after it caught fire while parked in the pool lot at Community Park.

By the time Township police next door could arrive, the car, owned by Donald V. Shipley, 290 Snowden Lane, was engulfed in flames. The interior of the car was totally gutted by the fire, police said. The cause has not been determined.

Capt. John Petrone reported that heat from the fire was so intense that another car parked along the side were singed and suffered minor damage.

TRACTOR IS DAMAGED

By Vandals. A tractor owned by Stevens Landscaping of Sicklerville sustained an "extensive amount of damage" last week when it was the target of vandals.

The tractor was parked overnight behind Community Park School where police said the firm has been engaged in landscaping the playground area.

Wiring was pulled from the motor, gauges smashed, a filter and oil stick damaged, police said. The vandalism was discovered Thursday morning.

EIGHT ARE FINED

In Traffic Court. Eight area residents were fined Monday in Borough traffic court.

Two received stiff sentences for driving while their licenses were suspended. Albert E. Lee of Hightstown was fined $1,015, sentenced to 10 days in the Mercer County Workhouse and had his license revoked for 30 days; George T. Clark of Trenton was fined $515 and had his license revocation extended for one year. He also received a 30-day suspended sentence to the Workhouse.

Speeding cost A.K. Blissit of Devonshire Drive, Cranbury, $70, while Theresa M. Stevens, RFD 4, Princeton, paid $60 for careless driving. Robert Groer, 2886 Princeton Pike, Lawrenceville, paid two fines of $25 each for noisy muffler and failure to display approval certificate.

Others: Timothy A. Sullivan, 14 Benford Drive, Princeton Junction, $25, no license or registration in possession; Nancy M. Epstein, 30 Tupelo Row, $25, overdue inspection; and Douglas W. Griggs, 216 Witherspoon Street, $40, unlicensed driver.

In Township court last week, John S. Rounds, 166½ Pennington-Harbourton Road, Pennington, was fined $65 for speeding and John F. Cook Jr., Fairfield Road, Kingston, was fined $65 for a stop sign violation.

In criminal court, Nocholas Marosy of Trenton was fined $525 and an additional $25 for the Violent Crime Compensation Board for harassment. He also placed on a year's probation and received a suspended 30-day jail sentence on the condition that he undergo intensive psychiatric counselling.

MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS

On Week's Birthlist. In the week ending June 21, there were 17 boys and 13 girls born at Princeton Medical Center.

Sons were born to Harley and Kwai Fong Tse, 11 Dana Court; John and Jean Bowman, 3465 Quakerbridge, Mercerville; Richard and Celeste Wizeman, 436 Lenape Lane, Yardley, Pa., all on June 15; Tim and Julie Mar-

FUNDING INCREASED

By United Way. The United Way board of trustees approved new allocations to its member agencies, representing the highest level of allocations ever approved to the largest number of agencies.

This year the United Way is providing funding totalling $1,175,624, for 28 agencies, including its partner, the Red Cross. Two agencies — Deaf Contact and Jewish Community Center of the Delaware Valley — were recently accepted as new member agencies and they will receive their first allocations in July when all agencies begin receiving funds.

Twenty-six of the agencies were thoroughly reviewed by the United Way's volunteer budget committee to determine how large an allocation each should and could receive. The other two agencies, Princeton Area Council of Community Services and the Red Cross, were reviewed by different volunteer committees.

This is where the allocations are going:

The American Red Cross, Princeton Area Chapter, $183,795; Association for Advancement of Mental Health, $36,438; Better Beginnings Child Development Center, $41,166; Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Mercer County, $21,000; Boy Scouts of America - George Washington Council, $45,760; Catholic Welfare Bureau - Child Abuse Program, $17,142; Children's Home Society of New Jersey, $10,000; Community Guidance Center of Mercer County, $93,099; Crawford House, $5,000; Deaf Contact, $5,544; Delaware-Raritan Girl Scout Council, $31,000; Eden Institute, $12,734; Family Counseling Service of Somerset County, $3,838; Family Service Agency of Princeton, $146,600; Florence Crittenton Home, $11,000;

WINNERS ANNOUNCED

In Senior Olympics. Three participants in the first annual Princeton Senior Olympics won four first-place medals each. The Olympic competition for older adults was held last Tuesday, after rain on Monday forced a postponement, at the Community Park pool complex.

The three four-medal winners were Thyra Hernquist, Donald Snyder and Lillian Black. Ms. Hernquist won her medals in bocce and backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle swimming. Ms. Black also won three in swimming and one in tennis, while Mr. Snyder won two swimming medals and one each in softball throw and golf.

Competitors were divided into age groups — 60 through 64 years old, 65 through 69 and 70 and over — with first-place medals given in all events in each age group.

Debbie Haimo and Olga Kornichuk swept three events each: Ms. Haimo in tennis, walking and horseshoes and Ms. Kornichuk in golf, softball throw and frisbee throw.

Participants who won two first-place medals each were Reeves Black in tennis and horseshoes, T.M. Liu in tennis and bocce, Else Schmidtke in walking and softball, Cynthia Synder in bocce and walking and Louie Spender in basketball toss and softball throw.

Single-medal winners were May Daly in frisbee throw, Dick Gilbert in freestyle swimming, Robert Halliez in breaststroke, Bill Haupt and Rhoda Haupt in horseshoes, Helen Swody in frisbee throw and Fred Wetzel in softball throw.

Other participants were Marian Fedorke, Sarah Forsyth, Odette Halliez, Edythe Harmon, Marie Kann, Betty Moore, Doris Peskin, Rosina Polumbo, Katie Rich, Zelma Riess, Carol Taraschi, Emma Thompson, Vimala Varma and Rose Wetzel.

Parking Shuffle Ends

There will be no more parking shuffle on Birch Avenue.

The Township ordinance that required car owners to park on the north side of Birch on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the South side on Tuesday and Thursday has been changed.

Effective now, parking all the time will be limited to the north side only. Capt. John Petrone said this week that Township police will give out warnings to violators the first week before enforcing the new ordinance.

The sports events were preceded by lighting of a torch by the oldest participants, Sarah Forsyth, aged 83, and Fred Wetzel, aged 79. Ann Marie Nestor, a student at Stuart Country Day School, then sang The Star Spangled Banner.

Sponsors of the Senior Olympics, who contributed tee-shirts, hats and lunches for all participants and officials, were AMF-Head Racquet Sports, Landau's, Princeton Bank-Horizon, and Princeton Caterers.

Organizers were the Senior Resource Center, the Recreation Department and the YWCA.

MAKE YOUR OWN PASTA

From "Scratch." The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present an adult craft program, "Homemade Pasta Workshop," on Monday, July 2, at 10 a.m. Participants will learn to make a basic noodle dough and to use a hand crank pasta machine. There will be a 75 cent fee for materials, and registration is required.

For registration or further informaton, call the library at 924-7073.

Booklet Available

The 1984-85 Princeton Area Guide Book, an official publication of the Chamber of Commerce, is available at the Chamber office, 32 Nassau Street.

The booklet includes profiles of the 14 communities in the Princeton area and takes note of the explosion of commercial and residential growth taking place. The center pull-out is a map showing main arteries, streets, and locations of some points of interest.

John Messeroll, president of Community Pride Publications, and Christopher Tarr, chairman of the Chamber board, were instrumental in bringing the book to publication. Discounts are available for quantity orders. For information call 921-7676.

SUMMER AEROBICS SET

At PHS Gym. The summer session of Aerobic Expression, sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department, will begin the week of July 2. Classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the Princeton High School gymnasium.

Classes will begin Monday, July 2 and conclude Friday, August 17. The cost is $15 for Princeton residents. $30 for non-residents For additional information call 921-9480.

SIGN UP NOW

For Senior Trips. There is still room for seniors to sign up with the Princeton Recreation Department to see Perry Como at the Garden State Arts Center on July 12, and to go to Lovey's Showcase on August 15.

A bus will leave the Community Park Pool parking area at 7 p.m. to arrive for the Perry Como show at 8:30. Cost is $22. The cost of the trip to Lovey's is $16, including lunch and entertainment. (The waiters and waitresses are the entertainment.)

For additional information, call 921-9480.

SPLASHERCISE BEGINS

For Seniors. Splashercise, an adapted water exercise program for senior citizens, will begin on Saturday, June 30, at Community Park Pool. The class will meet until August 18 on Saturdays from 10 to 11. The cost is $8. For additional information, call 921-9480.

FARMING IS TOPIC

Of Network Meeting. The New Jersey Cornucopia Network will hold a meeting Saturday, June 30, at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association headquarters.

The Network is concerned with preserving New Jersey's farms and the quality of food products. The organization is a local chapter of the National Cornucopia Project, created by Rodale Press, publishers of Organic Gardening and other magazines and books.

The meeting will feature two slide presentations: "The New Jersey Food System: Cultivating the Garden State," and "Empty Breadbasket," which examines the national farming and food supply system.

Following the slide show, participants will be given a tour of the Watersheds Farm, a new organic agriculture project. This meeting is open to all, and admission is free. Please call 737-3735 for further details and directions.

RESEARCH GRANT SET

For Junior Faculty. The Continental Group Inc., a Connecticut-based company, has given Princeton University $50,000 toward support of summer research by junior faculty in Princeton's Economics Department.

The gift is part of a new program by Continental Group to support higher education. Continental Group's Excellence in Education Program, started this year, has made grants to nine colleges and universities totalling $559,000.

The company hopes that the research of Princeton economists supported by the grant will provide intellectual leadership in areas directly related to national economic policy.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

ROOTS DO KILL

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

A tree fails to leaf out on the first two or three feet of branches around the perimeter. One half of a tree from top to bottom has the foliage wilting. Is it a strange disease or should an accusing finger be pointed towards the ground?

Girdling roots frequently cut into the base of a tree and choke it, much like a noose around a person's neck. The damage in many cases is irreversible because the visible symptoms of it above ground do not show up right away. By the time large sections of the tree begin dying, removal of the strangling root is impractical.

The best indication of girdling roots is examination of the trunk at the soil line. If this area does not flare out but goes straight into the ground, be suspicious of roots underground growing across and against the trunk.

If the crown of the tree is not too far gone, cut the troublesome roots or root with a sharp chisel. Although removal of some roots reduces the amount of water and nutrients previously supplied to the tree, the loss is small compared to the restored capacity of the entire circumference of the trunk to function in the uptake of liquids to foliage. FEEDING the tree heavily to restore vigor and to promote healing is most important. Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) with any of your tree care questions.

Longest Day

5 a.m.: Looking east from the Graduate School, the sky over the campus has been engulfed by a sunrise that will defy the old saying about "red sky in the morning, sailors take warning."

5:10 a.m.: The first dog of the day doesn't respond to my greeting. Maybe he's not a morning person.

5:15 a.m.: A second cup of coffee, this time at the Carousel luncheonette at the corner of Nassau and Pine. John Ijames opened up this morning at 5 o'clock sharp, as he has for the past 19 years. He only rarely oversleeps: "If you oversleep you never get caught up all day." A customer picks up a morning newspaper. After he leaves, a man at the counter observes that few people take the first paper off the stack; they usually reach underneath for the second one.

5:24 a.m.: The sun rises. About time — it's been light for the past half hour.

5:25 a.m.: The first jogger is sighted, on Nassau Street.

5:36 a.m.: The first honking horn of the day, from a car on the University campus near Palmer Square.

5:45 a.m.: The first window shopper, a woman checking out some items at H. P. Clayton's.

5:55 a.m.: The sun finally shows its face over the treetops. It is expected to be around until 8:31 tonight.

6 a.m.: The first New York commuter. Alan Williams of Maple Street, editorial director of Viking Press, waits for the 6:05 express bus to New York. He expects to arrive at his office on 23rd Street in Manhattan a little before 8. "That gives me an hour before the phones start ringing." Enroute he will peruse the as yet unpublished works in his blue canvas book bag. "If a manuscript keeps me awake at this hour," he promises, "I'll publish it."

6:15 a.m.: The food crates are being hauled into Davidson's supermarket and the flower displays are being put out at Cox's store. Cox's doesn't open officially until 6:30 but customers are welcomed earlier — and often treated to a few pieces of pastry set out by the coffee urns. Davidson's, though not open until 8, takes care of customers as early as 7 o'clock, as soon as manager Lou Funk turns on the cash register. Further down the street, Hinkson's, officially open to sell newspapers at 6:30, has been known to unlock the doors at 5:15

6:18 a.m.: The first physicist. Walter Apel of Park Place crosses the courtyard next to Thomas Sweet's enroute to his office in Jadwin Hall. Mr. Apel is a postdoctoral fellow in physics from Hannover, West Germany. This is the moment to tell him everything he needs to know about how to thrive in the United States: "Early to bed, early to rise; work like hell, and advertise."

6:19 a.m.: The first quality control specialist. Ginny Wittorff of Downington, Pennsylvania, a representative of a croissant dough manufacturer, arrives at La Cuisine to supervise the preparations there. "The French won't eat a croissant over four hours old," says Ms. Wittorf, who gives high marks to La Cuisine.

6:20 a.m.: The first Dinky leaves Princeton for Princeton Junction. The ticket office officially opens at 6:30 but the manager there — obviously another morning person — usually opens the window at around 6.

6:35 a.m.: Chuck McVicker of Willow Street squires his dog up Nassau Street. "After the Army I vowed I'd never get up early again," says Mr. McVicker, a professional artist. "Then I commuted for 25 years. Now I haven't been commuting for two years but I still can't get out of the habit." Even some good habits die hard.

7 a.m.: By now the morning people are out in force. At this hour you have at least five places to go for breakfast: the Carousel; Vesuvio's, next door on Nassau Street; the Nassau Inn's Greenhouse; Harry's Luncheonette on Witherspoon Street; and Cenerino's on Leigh Avenue. An early morning tip: the grits are good at Cenerino's.

7:02 a.m.: Two painters have spread their drop cloths under the marquee of the Garden Theater and prepare to paint the trim in deep green.

7:05 a.m.: Nick Armenante has just made his daily stop for juice and a newspaper at Cox's store. Later in the day, in the afternoon, Mr. Armenante, who works at the Alchemist & Barrister, will think nothing of running from Princeton to Kingston and back, and then making a second round trip if he is in the mood. But at this time of day Mr. Armenante drives the 150 yards or so from his apartment to Cox's. He is not a morning person, but a night person — the first one spotted and a clear signal that the longest day is about to enter a new phase.

7:10 a.m.: My work is done for today. I read the papers and begin to do some heavy yard work. In a little while I might be in the mood for a beer. Cenerino's bar will begin serving at 8 a.m.

than ever to protect and preserve what we have. "People come to Princeton because they like what's here."

He points to the fast-moving rate of change on Route 1, and says that Princeton residents, aware of this, will be more inclined to preserve what they have. He also feels that the town can "cash in" on an atmosphere that attracts people.

The Commission's 20-page ordinance would have certain areas designated "historic sites." There would then be restrictions applied on demolition and alteration of exteriors. In order to make exterior alterations, owners would need a "certificate of appropriateness" from the Princeton Borough Landmarks Commission, a group composed of five members appointed by mayor and council.

You Can't Say 'No.' Interestingly, the 1982 Landmarks Ordinance prepared for the Township allowed a "voluntary" listing of property. The owner would be allowed to decline the designation. Once declined, the matter would be dropped.

The current ordinance, in line with the 1978 one, allows no such voluntary provision. An appeal, yes, but an outright refusal, no. It is, however, a little easier to avoid being listed in the 1982 version.

In 1978, one objection voiced was that the definition of what was and was not historic was fuzzy. Mr. St. John feels that the Princeton Architectural Survey, completed in 1981, "definitely pinned down what was historic.".

To date, opponents of a Landmarks Ordinance for Princeton have prevailed. These opponents have included Princeton University, the Princeton Theological Seminary, the merchants association, the real estate industry and some private property owners.

We don't want to cause a tempest in a teapot before the tea is brewed: one bus trip does not an ordinance make. However, when asked for the University's position on the Landmarks Ordinance, Caroline Dinsmore, director of real estate for the University, responded:

"Our understanding is that the ordinance they are considering is exactly the same [as the previous ones]. None of the things we felt were inherent weakness have changed. Our position hasn't changed."

COUNCIL GETS COMPUTER

From Princeton Firm. The Mercer Council on Alcoholism has a new Apple computer thanks to a partial contribution from Clancy-Paul computer store.

The computer will be used by the council to keep its mailing and membership lists up-to-date. From its offices at 408 Bellevue Avenue in Trenton, the nonprofit council provides professional training, public education and public awareness on alcoholism and alcohol abuse to schools, business organizations, community groups and the general public.

It has initiated special student assistance programs in area schools, conducted teacher trainings in alcohol awareness and presented programs on prevention to business and civic groups around the country. For employers in Mercer County, the council sponsors the Mercer Employee Assistance Service, a supportive program to help business supervisors identify and assist troubled employees.

Clancy-Paul, started in 1981 by Princeton graduates Bob Clancy and Glenn Paul, is one of the larger Apple dealers in the state with stores and services in the Princeton Shopping Center, the new Ferren Mall in New Brunswick and the Princeton University Store.

"We are indeed grateful to Clancy-Paul for recognizing our needs and for making it possible for us to finally own a computer," stated Ms. McGrath in accepting the computer for the council.

CARD EXCHANGE SET

By Chamber. A Business/Corporate Contacts Reception (better known as a business card exchange) will be held Thursday, June 28, from 5 to 7 at The Office Center at Princeton Meadows.

These monthly receptions, which are sponsored by the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, are a vehicle for bringing business people together for the purpose of generating new business, clients and sales.

The reception will be open to 450 people. For reservations or additional information, call the Chamber at 921-7676.

OBITUARIES

Martin Clark, 55, a former curate at Trinity Church, died June 19 at his home in Huntingdon, Pa., following a brief illness. He was an associate professor of sociology and religion at Juniata College in Huntingdon.

Dr. Clark was born in London, England, the son of Sir George Clark, historian, and Lady Clark. He was educated at Marlborough College and Trinity College, Cambridge. He spent four years as an employeee in the Bank of England and a year as a teacher at an English school before becoming a novice in the Anglican order, the Society of the Resurrection.

He studied for the priesthood and was ordained at York Minster before taking on the duties of curate in the slum parish of Middlesborough, Yorkshire. As a curate at Trinity Church, Princeton, in the 1960s, he became a citizen of the United States. After receiving a Ph.D. from Harvard University, he taught at Western Connecticut College before joining the faculty at Juniata College in 1973.

At the time of his death, Dr. Clark was a member of the Society of Friends and a number of religious, sociological and peace organizations.

He is survived by a daughter, Jennifer F. Clark of Duncansville, Pa., and a sister in England.

A memorial service was held in the State College, Pa., Friends Meeting House with burial in the Friends Cemetery, Half Moon Valley, Pa. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Juniata College in memory of Martin Clark, or to the State College Society of Friends, 611 East Prospect Avenue, State College, Pa.

Helen G. Robinson, 90, formerly of Princeton, died June 23 at Foothill Acres Nursing Home in Neshanic.

Born in Ingram, Pa., Mrs. Robinson had lived in the Princeton area since 1964. She was a member of the Class of 1915 at Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pa. She was also a member of the Nassau Presbyterian Church and the Present Day Club.

Wife of the late Ellsworth D. Robinson, she is survived by a son, James G. Robinson of Princeton. A graveside service was held in Coraopolis, Pa. Arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association, 3940 U.S. Route 1, Princeton 08540.

Elizabeth T. Anderson, 78, of Quarry Street, died June 21 at the Princeton Nursing Home.

Born in Trenton, Mrs. Anderson lived for many years in Hopewell.

Surviving are three daughters, Elizabeth Anderson of Trenton, Dorothy Kettenburg of Fishtail, Mont., and Helen Leming of Bensalem, Pa.; nine grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren; and four sisters, Anna Allen of Hopewell, Barbara Shilling and Mary Churchman, both of Trenton, and Theresa Hildebrand of Beach Haven.

A memorial service was held in the Hopewell Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Highland Cemetery, Hopewell. Memorial contributions may be made to the Hopewell Presbyterian Church Memorial Fund.

Elinore Morris Du Vivier, 75, of Battle Road, died June 19 at Princeton Medical Center.

Born in New York City, she lived in Princeton prior to her marriage to David Du Vivier in 1956. With her husband, she lived in Paris from 1960-68 and in London from 1968-75, before returning to Princeton. Mrs. Du Vivier was formerly co-owner of the Princeton Decorating Shop and then was self-employed as a decorator in Princeton and New York City.

She was a member of the Cosmopolitan Club of New York City.

She is survived by her husband, two grandchildren and two nephews. She was the mother of the late Thomas R. Montgomery and sister of the late Dudley Morris of Princeton.

A memorial service was held in the Marquand Transept of Princeton University Chapel. Burial will take place in Lakeview Cemetery, Burlington, Vt. Memorial contributions may be made to the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, PO Box 529, Princeton 08542.

RELIGION

BIBLE SCHOOL PLANNED

By Plainsboro Church. The First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro will hold Vacation Bible School Wednesday nights beginning July 18 and continuing through August 29. Sessions will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m., and all ages are invited, including adults.

The theme of the seven-week session is "Share the Good News of God's Love." The movie, The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe, will be shown in four parts, beginning July 18. The movie is based on the book by C.S. Lewis. The program will also include Bible study, crafts, music, games and dramatics.

A brown bag picnic will begin each evening at 6:30. A donation of 50 cents will be asked each evening to cover costs. A mission project that will benefit CROP/Church World Service will also be a part of the program, and a hunger dinner will be held at the end of Bible School, on August 29 in the church's Fellowship Hall, to raise funds to help the hungry of the world.

For more information, or to register, call the church at 799-0855.

BULLETIN NOTES

Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church will hold a Fish Dinner Saturday, June 30, at 1 at the church, 170 Wiggins Street. The donation is $5.

Summer Breeze

At Clancy-Paul's Apple Computer Camp, your children will learn that programming an Apple IIe is a breeze. This gives them a head start in understanding the world of computer technology that they will be living in.

The program is divided into three independent, yet progressive, sessions—each leading to a more complete understanding of computer technology.

Religion in Princeton

Nassau Street, will be held at 10 instead of 10:30 during the summer.

Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers, a Christian singing group from Visalia, Calif., will present a concert of contemporary Gospel music on Sunday, July 1, at 6:30 at Nassau Christian Center, Nassau and Chamber Streets.

The two-hour presentation entitled "Give Him Praise" includes choral selections, gospel songs, hymn arrangements, praise songs and worship choruses. The group is composed of 10 singers and a 10-piece orchestra.

All are welcome.

The guest preacher Sunday at 10 in the chancel of the Princeton University Chapel will be the Rev. William J. Carl III, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Tex.

Dr. Carl is an alumnus of the University of Tulsa, Okla., Louisville Theological Seminary and the graduate school of the University of Pittsburgh. From 1976-83 he served as professor of preaching at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia. He is the author of several books as well as numerous articles and reviews in professional journals.

His sermon topic will be "Jonah."

The Rev. Stephen C. Williams will be installed as the new associate pastor for Christian education at Nassau Presbyterian Church Sunday, July 1, at the 10 a.m. worship service.

The Rev. James Harris has been reappointed at the Southern New Jersey Conference for his fourth year as senior pastor of Princeton United Methodist Church.

Princeton Jewish Singles will celebrate July 4 together. Those who are interested should meet Wednesday, July 4, in the parking lot at the Jewish Center, 457 Nassau Street. Admission is $5.

The Jewish Community Center of Belle Mead has installed its new board of directors for the 1984-85 year.

Robert Fass is the Center's second president. Alan Hitt assumed the role of vice-president and president-elect. Also installed were Lewis Wolkofsky as treasurer and Eleanor Tillman as secretary. Rabbi Susan Schnur officiated at the installation and Harvey Tesser, outgoing president, received an engraved gavel.

New Jersey is driving to STS

More and more New Jerseyans are driving to STS for all their car care needs. We're delighted but not surprised. We're an employee-owned company – so our managers and mechanics have a special stake in doing the job right. And as we've believed all along: If you give better service, charge fair prices and do great work, you're going to win over New Jersey.
Drive to STS for tune-ups and tires, batteries and brakes, wheel alignment, front-end work, shocks –whatever it takes to keep your car running smoothly.
STS SOMERSET TIRE SERVICE
We guarantee: We're going to win you over, too.

PRIME HAMILTON LOCATION

A lovely colonial featuring 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, living room, formal dining room, eat-in kitchen and adjacent family room with full width brick fireplace. Many nice extras include two fully finished basement rooms, oversize 2 car garage, central air conditioning and a partially wooded yard. Offered at $124,900

ONE OF A KIND - Post modernist architect designed residence, 6 plus wooded acres. Light, airy, air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000

CHARMING OLD/NEW FARMHOUSE

On Cherry Valley Road, just ten minutes to Palmer Square! The original section dates back to pre-Revolutionary times, 1765, the restoration and new addition to 1977. Brick floored entry hall and modernized country kitchen with corner fireplace, lovely new living room and master bedroom, formal dining room, library, all with fireplaces! Three other bedrooms, 2 family baths. Beamed ceilings, wide floor boards - and a walled brick terrace opening to both living room and kitchen.

Two serenely private acres, with eminently rentable 2 bedroom apartment above a 4 car garage, and other outbuildings. This is just the property you have been looking for - and so rarely find - at only $375,000 and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.

NOW $142,500!

WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF PALMER SQUARE

and all of downtown Princeton, we offer an expansive frame house with large living and entertaining areas and numerous bedrooms and baths. Set on almost an acre, this new listing on Bayard Lane has a location well worth exploring for its many future potentials and present possibilities. Call for further information.

CLOSE BY A BABBLING BROOK

on over 2½ acres in a rural section of Princeton Township, we present a beautifully kept ranch. Living room with energy efficient heatolator fireplace, large step-down dining room, excellent kitchen with Quaker Maid cabinets and pleasant breakfast area. Three bedrooms, den or fourth bedroom and 1½ baths. A real plus is the separate auxiliary building - with large studio, office or recreation room, kitchenette and its own heating system.

A pretty place to call home! A BUY AT $199,500

REALTOR MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE MLS

HUN ROAD

A gently sloping hillside in Edgerstoune allows this attractive one floor house to have a lower level above ground. On street level the foyer opens to a spacious 30 foot living/dining room with fireplace, a wall of bookshelves and a windowed wall overlooking the wooded rear yard which is bordered by historic Stony Brook. Two corner bedrooms, two baths and the kitchen complete the main floor. Three bedrooms and bath and family room on the lower level. $273,000

LINDEN LANE

A good investment whether you rent both sides or live in one with income from the other, this brick duplex centrally located offers two units consisting of living room, dining room and kitchen on first floor, two bedrooms and bath on second. $160,000

LOVER'S LANE

Not just for lovers - this is an ideal location for a family of all ages! Enhanced by azaleas, dogwood and professional landscaping, this Colonial, big and beautiful, is traditional in appearance but has some delightful surprises. A unique doorway leads to a dramatic two story foyer with a view, through the French doors of the living room, of the garden and two magnificent specimen trees, the oldest of their kind in the State. The gracious 32 foot living room lends itself to formal or casual entertaining and opens to a panelled den as well as the formal dining room. A jalousied breezeway off the eat-in kitchen is perfect for summer dining. Six bedrooms and 3½ baths. $395,000

TOWNSHIP LINE ROAD

The charm of New England has been captured in this delightful Colonial on one plus acres in Montgomery Township. The exterior shingles have weathered to that beautiful gray often brought about by the salt air of breezes from the sea. Foyer, powder room, living room with marble fireplace, formal dining room, exceptional kitchen with dining area and study on first floor. Three bedrooms, two baths and sewing room on second. Bedroom and bath on third. Lower level has family room with fireplace, playroom and workshop. $248,500

CONSTITUTION HILL

Better than new, this handsome brick townhouse, two years young, has many extras to offer its fortunate new owner. The location is near the formal gardens of the Mansion as well as the swimming pool and tennis court. The floors of both the foyer and kitchen are ceramic tile. The first floor includes the dramatic living/dining room with cathedral ceiling, study with bookshelves, master bedroom and bath. Each of the two spacious bedrooms on second floor has a vanity with basin in addition to the hall bath. $325,000

HAMILTON AVENUE

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Announcing the arrival on the market of a turn of the century Stillwell-built house. A four square house of quality construction it offers: foyer, 30 foot living room, formal dining room, eat-in kitchen and bath on first floor. Four corner bedrooms, "pilot's room" and bath on second floor. Two rooms and bath on third. The room arrangement on first floor has the potential for having a rental unit. Distinctive features include high ceilings in the living areas, finely detailed woodwork and three working fireplaces. Sylvan pool with spacious deck. New Price $229,000

WESTERN SECTION - PRINCETON TOWNSHIP

On an acre lot just off The Great Road, we are planning a spec house with one of Princeton's most reputable builders of traditionally designed houses. We have a plan with four bedrooms, a spacious family room, deck, etc., but you may want to add your own custom features or perhaps your own complete design. Let us arrange a conference with the builder and go from there.

PROGRESS AT "THE GLEN"

We are delighted to report that the first house on Glen Drive at "The Glen" is now having bathroom and kitchen cabinets installed, the trim is being worked on at this time and the tile work will start very soon.

It is so exciting to see this beautiful house nearing completion. Other houses being built on James Court are progressing very well. One house has brick and roof work essentially completed. Another house has the walls framed and a third one has foundation work going on.

We will soon be starting on Florence Lane; two houses are under contract on that street - so watch for digging.

Keep up to date by driving through the area. We will be delighted to have you see our progress.

"The Glen" is located on Mountain Avenue at the Great Road.

A FINE GEORGIAN MANOR HOME

2 Elm Road, Princeton

We are pleased to present for your personal consideration one of Princeton's finest Georgian Manor Homes situated on expansive, beautifully maintained grounds within walking distance of the Town and University.

Built of the finest materials, this elegant home features a spacious sunken living room with double French doors, a dramatic curved staircase, a library with hand-rubbed cherry cabinets and bookcases, and a graciously proportioned formal dining room with hand-carved marble fireplace from France. The floor plan is classic Georgian with spacious rooms off a central foyer, worthy of a statesman's penchant for formal entertaining.

The property includes a lovely circular swimming pool and a guest or pool house in the same Georgian style as the main house.

There are 3.50 beautifully landscaped acres with terraces and formal gardens, brick garden walls and iron gates. A 1.35 acre sub-divided building lot lies to the right of the main house.

All in all, a beautifully maintained, tastefully decorated estate in an incomparable Princeton location.

CELEBRATE WITH HENDERSON

SET OFF THE FIREWORKS! THIS HOUSE IS A BLAST!

NELSON RIDGE WITH A PRINCETON ADDRESS and the Hopewell Schools, a gracious Williamsburg cape colonial with many facets of living offered! Three levels if you need them, bedroom suites, informal family areas and understated entertaining rooms. Lovely surprises like a fabulous wine cellar, a wonderful wet bar, studio room, in-law wing, but there's so much more. $259,500

HOW ABOUT A LOVE MATCH?

THE TENNIS COURT THAT ACCOMPANIES THIS REALLY SLEEK CONTEMPORARY WILL BRING ACES YOUR WAY! A wonderful situation with a Princeton address in Hopewell Township...perfect for the short drive to ETS, Western Electric, Mobil and Squibb! The house divided into wonderful living spaces with nooks and corners for a busy family, including a separate apartment area for a live-in or in-law! Wonderful woods, tiles and overall feeling. It's like Arizona living in Princeton! Gracious circular drive, and professional landscaping for privacy. $259,500

MARCEL BREUER...IN PRINCETON NEED WE SAY MORE?

Yes, we must because while the master architect put his very special stamp on the basic house, it took two very special people, new to our area, but totally involved in the Breuer philosophy, to take this MOMA house a step beyond! Given the totally secluded spot of almost five acres, they added on, they enlarged, they enlivened -- and to this discerning eye, they even improved! The outdoors come in! The artwork is nature itself, in every season, extremely brilliant while at the same time, very restful. The house must be seen. It is really splendid. Do call Peggy Hughes for the particulars!

A PRINCETON BONANZA!

This very special Princeton colonial is a super value. Designed for an active family with lots of nooks, corners and custom features among the five bedrooms, 3½ baths, it is situated on a fabulous two-acre fenced lot with tall trees, pool, cabana, terraces and splendid plantings for total privacy. All on Fairway Drive, just a short jog to Palmer Square. Priced to sell at $395,000

NEED THE JUST-RIGHT HOUSE IN PRINCETON?

THIS THREE-LEVEL FLOOR PLAN offers peace and privacy for different ages in this active family of today! There's a wonderful country feeling on the main floor with easy, manageable rooms, including a bedroom and full bath. Upstairs has a master and guest suite with wonderful large bath accommodations. Then to everyone's surprise (cause you can't see it from the road!) there's a lower level with bedroom, bath, and family room or study ... all with its own entrance! Storage galore and the most beautiful grounds around ... lots of woods, not much lawn, lovely shrubs and a path to the brook. In Brookstone, just a bike ride from Palmer Square. MAKE OFFER!

WHY DON'T YOU COME AND LOOK AT WOODMONT IN LAWRENCE?

Here's a resale...one of the first! Dramatically designed a bit like California living with three bedrooms and many extras. This townhouse boasts living room with fireplace, formal dining room, kitchen/family combination, quarry floors and counters, 2½ baths and much more. Deck and two-car garage. It's carefree, convenient living. Pool, tennis and a golf course, nearby! Asking: $156,000 Call Florence Dawes for all the details.

Fresh Air Fund Experience Is Rewarding For Both City Children and Host Families

ON AN OUTING: Raymond, top, and Troy, Fresh Air Fund visitors to the home of Maggie and Dale Anderson, enjoy a visit to Sesame Place.

For Maricella, there will be several new toys waiting on her bed.

For Raymond, there will be the chance to hold and hug a new baby.

And for Marcos, there will be the prospect of an extra-long visit and a vacation trip.

These are three of the 25 Fresh Air Fund Fund children who will be coming to the Princeton area this summer. Some, such as Maricella, Raymond and Marcos, will be making repeat visits; others will be stepping off the chartered Fresh Air Fund bus for the first time.

The Fresh Air Fund effort in this area is chaired by Maggie Anderson, Bayard Lane, and Helene Opolski of Plainsboro. The Andersons and Opolskis are also host families.

When the Andersons moved from Manhattan to Princeton three years ago, Mrs. Anderson, with a 10-year-old and an infant, decided that she wanted to share part of her summer with two Fresh Air Fund children. But, for whatever reason, only one arrived.

A quick call arranged for the second child, and Mrs. Anderson's husband, Dale, was assigned to pick him up at Penn Station.

"When my husband arrived, there was 10-year-old Raymond, plus his mother, his father, his stepfather, two sets of grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins — about 25 in all. My husband said that he had never had such a thorough interrogation — not even for a job interview."

Some Repeat, Some Don't. Raymond will be back this summer for his third year with the Andersons. But Mrs. Anderson notes that it's not necessary to schedule repeat visits. Some people, she said, prefer to get to know a different child each summer.

It is also not necessary to plan a nonstop two weeks of fun and games for the visitor. Most children find the change of environment sufficient entertainment, and visits to the pool and library are always a treat.

A question that troubles some potential Fresh Air host families is how the children will cope with a style of life so different from their own.

Some are overwhelmed at first, but most children are simply accepting of the differences. Most of the youngsters come from families where they receive a great deal of love, and they are not intimidated by a different way of life.

Helene Opolski, in her family's 13 years as host, has found that the children, accustomed to being treated with love by their families, responded to the love within the Opolski family.

"One year, however, we had a very young child who needed a great deal of love, hugs and kisses. He would often come to me while I was nursing my baby and sit on my lap, and that was fine".

Advantages to Hosts. Hosting a Fresh Air youngster isn't a one-way street. The children have fun, but all the parents we talked with mentioned the advantages to their own families.

Joan and Michael Gottfried, Woodside Lane, are looking forward to 10-year-old Maricella's fourth visit

"There was some adjustment the first year," said Mrs. Gottfried, "but each year it has gotten better. Maricella fits in very well. She's a very sharing person and plays nicely with our two daughters (Elizabeth, 8, and Jackie, 4). She takes them under her wing and acts like a big sister."

LaRhonda, who visited Lynn and Howard Maher, Red Hill Road, for two years, was also described by Mrs. Maher as being "deeply generous."

"Whatever she came with she shared totally with our daughter. She is also an extremely self-reliant child who, after waking in the morning, would make her bed, take out her freshly ironed clothes, and tidy the room. Meghan, who was just 5 when LaRhonda first visited, was very impressed.

Often the youngsters will act in ways that are endearing, even though at times their responses are astounding to someone living in a place like Princeton.

"Raymond," said Mrs. Anderson, would come downstairs every morning, walk over to me, ceremoniously kiss my cheek and ask me how my night had been.

But, on the other hand, we were quite startled when, during his first visit, he proceeded to close every window in our house at nightfall. He explained that it was to prevent people from coming in."

The advice parents often give children about homesickness — wait until tomorrow and see if the ache goes away — is true of the Fresh Air Fund experience. Youngsters who feel homesick generally feel just fine the next day.

Host families are invited to call with any problems, however, and, should a serious one arise, the child will be brought home. If things don't work out, the child will not be expected to stay.

Nothing Special Needed. Mrs. Anderson points out that no special accommodations are needed ("When we lived in a small bungalow on Linden Lane we just tossed sleeping bags on the basement floor and called it the 'boys' dorm' — everyone loved it."), and also that non-nuclear families are welcome as hosts.

"Fresh Air visitors often go to single people, grandparents, and older couples

FOR YOUR NEXT GREAT ADVENTURE

AT OPEN AIR THEATRE: Jan Moule of Yardley, Jim Kennedy of Hopewell and Charlie Krasner of Ewing have the leads in the Pennington Players production of "Li'l Abner," which opens Thursday at the Open Air Theatre in Washington Crossing State Park for seven performances. Curtain time is 8:30 Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and again July 4, 5, 6 and 7.

News of The THEATRES

'HOW TO SUCCEED' In Bucks County. The musical comedy, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, will be the next presentation at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope, Pa.

A two-week engagement will open this Wednesday, June 27, at 8:30 and continue through Sunday, July 8. It will star Ron Palillo, presently heard as the voices of Saturday morning cartoon personalities such as Squealy the Pig, Rubik the Amazing Cube and the new Shoe. He has made TV appearances on "Love Boat," spent a year in the off-Broadway production of "Hot'L Baltimore," and has numerous other stage and screen credits.

Mr. Palillo plays the part of J. Pierpont Finch, the eager-beaver window washer whose ambitious climb towards the executive suite is the focus of the story. Abe Burrows wrote the libretto, in collaboration with Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert. Frank Loesser wrote the music and lyrics. How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying is a song and dance spoof on moneymaking, lovemaking and upward mobility in the corporate jungle.

It will be performed eight times a week. Performance times are 8:30 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; Saturday at 5 and 9, and Sunday at 6. Matinees are at 2 on Wednesday and Thursday.

Group rates are available, and there is still time to subscribe for season benefits. Call the Bucks County Playhouse box-office for details at (215) 862-2041.

Princeton Summer Theatre Opens Its Season With Uneven, but Lively 'Sly Fox' Production

COURTROOM TACTICS: Brian Grady, center, as the crooked lawyer Craven, explains to Mark Schaeffer, left, playing Jethro Crouch, ancient miser, and Neal Cronce, cast as Mr. Truckle, an accountant, how they will fix the courtroom proceedings against Foxwell Sly to their advantage. The scene is from the Larry Gelbart farce, "Sly Fox," the first Summer Theatre offering at Murray Theatre. "Sly Fox" is in its second week and may be seen this Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m.

Greed and the debasement of man in its service are the subjects of Larry Gelbart's "Sly Fox," the first show of Princeton Summer Theatre's fifteenth season, which opened this past weekend in air-conditioned Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus.

Set in the 1890's in San Francisco, "Sly Fox" is a farce in the tradition of Moliere's "Miser" and "Misanthrope." That is, the characters are somewhat two-dimensional and one-track, and are made to look rather ridiculous in their pursuit of a single aim.

To heighten this sense of the ridiculous and simple, each character is named after his most outstanding characteristic; thus the lawyer is named Craven, the old man Crouch, the leading conniver Foxwell J. Sly, his hard-working servant Able, and so on.

Simply put, "Sly Fox" is about gold-diggers who are also eager to be gravediggers, men who, in Sly's words, worship "God with an ol-gold." Foxwell J. Sly (Ray H. McCard) is very rich, but of course would like to be richer still. So with the help of able servant Able (Kevin Groome), he pretends to be a sick man on the verge of death.

His three greedy "friends," Lawyer Craven (Mark Schaeffer), Jethro Crouch (Brian Grady), and Abner Truckle (Neal Cronce), all try to do everything they can -- including bringing expensive gifts -- in the hopes that they will be named his sole heir and be repaid in full in a matter of days.

How Low Will They Go? We learn that Sly and Able have been at this dirty milking game for some time now; but the situation deteriorates when Sly decides to test how low his "friends" will go. He is determined to have a woman, and only Truckle's beautiful wife (Heather Farrell), the object of her husband's insane jealousy, will do. Furthermore, he wants Crouch to disinherit his son (Tom Reed) in his favor as a show of his "true" friendship.

As directed by Roberto Rossi, a 1984 graduate of Princeton, "Sly Fox" moves along swimmingly enough, though the manic quality of good farce isn't hit upon or sustained until the courtroom scene that opens the second act, and there, some of the quips get lost in the general shuffle. The play is filled with double entendres and sexual jokes that do not great literature make -- though they do provide titters and laughs.

"Sly Fox" also, however, has some more serious and grim tidings, such as "Never think too little of people, there's always a little less to be thought," and "There's no bottom to greed." In this production, however, the irony of who is pronouncing these solemnly moralistic aphorisms -- the master connivers Sly and Able themselves -- is not amply highlighted.

Cast Somewhat Uneven. The large cast is somewhat uneven in tone, though their delight in the proceedings tends to be contagious and spread to the audience. Stumbled-over lines are something of a problem, as are lines lost to hysteria, as in

Mrs. Truckle's case. On the other end of the scale, Neal Cronce's booming delivery as Abner Truckle was more suited to a big stage than to little old Murray Theatre.

Particularly worthy of note are David Hlavsa as Judge Bastardson, Rob Greenberg as the hilariously slow Court Clerk, Mark Schaeffer as Lawyer Craven, and Heather Farrell as the "pleasure engineer" Miss Merrily Fancy.

As for the two leads, both seemed rather unfortunately miscast to me: Ray McCard has too much 1920's and Noel Coward in him for the gold-digging San Franciscan Sly, while Kevin Groome's Able servant seemed rather too strong and able to be servile.

But for all these gripes, Princeton Summer Theatre's production of "Sly Fox" does have its lively and amusing moments – plus such virtues as Douglas B. Lidz's set and light design as well as some good Scott Joplin rags to set the mood. The show continues through July 1.

TWO DOUBLE BILLS

In Summer Cinema. Women — and men — in love is the subject of the current Summer Cinema double feature now playing through Friday, June 29, at Kresge Auditorium. The two movies are Ken Russell's Women in Love and Mike Nichols' Carnal Knowledge.

Women in Love, showing at 7:30 each night, is an adaptation of the D.H. Lawrence novel of the same title. Glenda Jackson and Jennie Linden play two sexually mature and intellectually alive sisters struggling against the confines of a rural English mining town. Alan Bates and Oliver Reed are the men in their lives.

Carnal Knowledge, made in 1971, was the first and most mature American movie to attempt to deal with sex in the modern, liberated cinema. Written by humorist Jules Feiffer and directed by Mike Nichols, it spans over two decades, from the 1940s to the 1970s, in the lives of two friends, played by Art Garfunkel and Jack Nicholson, recording their progress from sex-starved college students to sexually bewildered adults. Candice Bergen and Ann-Margret play the two women in their lives.

Beginning Saturday, June 30, and continuing through Monday, July 2, Summer Cinema will pair Tender Mercies and Local Hero. The first American film by Australian director Bruce Beresford (Breaker Morant), Tender Mercies features an Oscar-winning performance by Robert Duvall as a boozy, burned-out country and western singer-songwriter trying to make it back into music and into life itself. His salvation is the love of a widow (Tess Harper) who runs a shabby motel and gas station in rural Texas with the aid of her young son.

In Local Hero, directed by Bill Forsythe, Peter Reigert plays the front man for a Texas oil magnate (Burt Lancaster) who is sent to the tiny Scottish fishing village of Ferness to sweet-talk its residents into selling the drilling rights to their land for an oil refinery. The town soon casts its spell over Reigert, and in the end it is the outsider who ends up defending the village against everyone's greedy impulses.

Beginning Tuesday, July 3 and continuing through Sunday, July 8, Summer Cinema's double feature for the Independence Day holiday week will combine War Games with The Empire Strikes Back. War Games features Matthew Broderick as a 17-year old computer jock who accidentally taps into the Defense Department's supersecret early warning system and innocently begins matching sites with the government's master computer in a video game called "Global Thermonuclear War."

The second installment in the "Star Wars" trilogy, The Empire Strikes Back stars Harrison Ford as Han Solo, Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher, Billy Dee Williams and Anthony Daniels.

Admission to double features in $3.50. The Kresge Auditorium is located in the Frick Chemical Building, Washington Road. For information or to charge a discount coupon book ($35 for 12 admissions) call the McCarter Theatre subscription office at 452-4242.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Eight years ago, citizens' protests that a community resource was becoming swallowed up in a national chain combined with the new management's lack of knowledge of the Borough building code to keep the word "Eric" off the marquee of the Playhouse and Garden Theatres. This week, with approval by the Borough Building Inspector, a new apple-green, gilt-edged sign was installed above a new movie-title marquee, back-lit for greater visibility.

SUMMER OFFERING

In Somerville. The Penguin Players, the summer theatre group at Somerset County College, will present Cole, an entertainment based on the words and music of Cole Porter, and part two of the Allan Ayckbourne comedy, The Norman Conquests, entitled "Living Together."

Cole features 10 singers and dancers who will perform many of the composer's classic standards as well as some of his lesser known gems. Cole performances will be at 8 in the College's outdoor amphitheatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 26-28, and on August 2, 3 and 4. Tickets are $4 general admission, $3 for students and senior citizens. For ticket information call (201) 536-1200, extension 364.

"Living Together" will be performed by the cast of last summer's "Table Manners," part one of the three part series, each of which is a separate entity. "Living Together" continues the saga of Norman Dewar's attempts to "conquer" all of his wife's sisters. The series features the same characters on the same weekend in three areas of the same country home — in the living room, in the dining room and in the garden.

Directed by Stanford Kopit, performances of "Living Together" will be on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 13-14 at 8, and again July 19, 20 and 21. Tickets are $4 general admission and $2 for students and senior citizens.

'GUYS AND DOLLS' SET

In Middlesex County Park. The summer Plays-in-the-Park series, sponsored by Middlesex County, has opened with Guys and Dolls, a musical fable of Broadway.

Performances are Wednesday through Saturday, June 27-30, at 8:40 in the Roosevelt Park Amphitheatre, Route 1 South, Edison, and again Monday-Saturday, July 2-7, also at 8:40.

Adapted from Damon Runyon's wry stories of shady bookies, sharpies and horse gamblers, Guys and Dolls tells the story of how Sky Masterson makes a bet with Nathan Detroit that he can swiftly take away Sarah Brown, a Salvation Army officer, for a night with him in Havana. Frank Loesser's music includes such tunes as "A Bushel and a Peck" and "Take Back Your Mink."

Plays-in-the-Park are produced and directed by Ernest Albrecht.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

For Summer Sounds. The Arts Council and the Recreation Department have announced the schedule for the 1984 Summer Sounds concert series in Community Park North.

The concerts will begin on Thursday, June 28, at 7:30 with a group from Philadelphia called Impossible Years. The following week, the Three Colors from Boston, will perform Thursday, July 5, and The Rettmans and The Cucumbers on July 12. Jazz with the John Biancull Quintet will be on July 19, and Mojo Bone will complete the season on July 26.

The series, directed by Anne LoMonico, is made possible by a grant from the Princeton Youth Fund. Community Park North is located off Mountain Avenue and Route 206. Parking is available at the Community Park tennis courts and swimming pool, the Recreation Deparatment and the Township Police Station. Alcohol is not permitted in the park.

For further information call Ms. LoMonico at 924-8777.

JAZZ VOCALIST SET

At Trenton Playhouse. The jazz vocalist, actor, dancer and lyricist George V. Johnson Jr. will perform with his "Your Majesty" Quintet Sunday, July 1, at 7:30 at the Mill Hill Playhouse, Front and Montgomery Streets, Trenton.

Mr. Johnson recently appeared in the Broadway musical, "Raisin," in which he toured Switzerland, Germany and Paris. While on tour he appeared in night clubs, leading a jazz quartet made up of musicians from various cities of these countries.

For the past several years, Mr. Johnson has performed and travelled with the James Moody Quartet, appearing on TV and in radio broadcasts, as well as at such places as the Carnegie Hall Kool Jazz Festival and the Brooklyn Academy. His biggest influences were Charlie Parker, James Moody, Dizzy Gillespie and Eddie Jefferson with whom Mr. Johnson travelled, studied and sang duets with for three years.

Performing with Mr. Johnson will be Arnold Sterling on alto and tenor sax; Mark Cohen, piano; Billy Johnson on bass and his brother, Mark, on drums.

Tickets are $6 general admission and $4 for students and senior citizens. For tickets and information call the Mill Hill Playhouse box office, 989-3038. Free parking is available across the street from the playhouse.

FIREWORKS PLANNED

With Pops Concert. The Princeton Pops Concert and Fireworks will be held again this year in celebration of Independence Day.

On Wednesday, July 4, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, with guest conductor Michel Sasson, will perform at the Princeton University Fields. The program includes popular classics by Rossini, Mendelssohn, Offenbach, and Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture. Baritone David Arnold is guest soloist for this year's performance.

The concert, which will conclude with a display of fireworks, will begin at 7:30. Gates will open at 5:30 for picnickers. Sodapop and popsicles will be sold on the field. Tickets are available at most area banks, Palmer Square Kiosk, Princeton University Store, Titles Unlimited, Cox's, and other area businesses.

Prices are $5 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens, and $1 for children under 18. The proceeds from this concert go toward a New Jersey Symphony Orchestra youth concert in the Princeton-Mercer area. For more information call 921-7676.

FREE CONCERTS SET

Sundays at State Museum. Waterloo Sampler concerts will be presented in the auditorium of the New Jersey State Museum at 3 p.m. Sunday, July 8, July 22, and August 5. Admission is free.

The programs, presented by the Waterloo Festival and School of Music, are miniseries of the "Best of Waterloo." The Waterloo School of Music is a fellowship program designed for young artists who are beginning their professional careers and admittance is by fellowship only.

This year approximately 85 young artists will join the faculty in an intensive program of performance and study. All members of the festival collaborate in a wide range of musical performances which include the Waterloo Festival Orchestra, nine string quartets, four woodwind quartets, two brass quintets, percussion ensembles and piano chamber music.

The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 to 4:45 and Sundays from noon to 5. Ample weekend parking is available behind the Museum, located at 205 West State Street, Trenton.

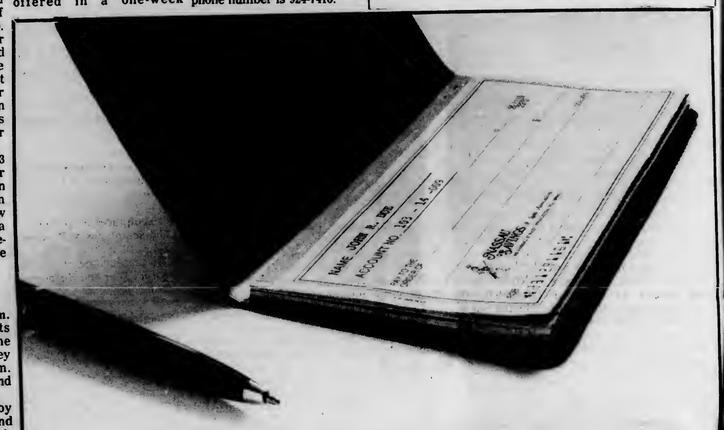
WORKSHOP PLANNED

On Performance Tensions. Techniques to control the physical and psychological tensions encountered in the performance of music will be offered in a one-week workshop starting Saturday, June 30, at Westminster Choir College.

The workshop is being coordinated by Phyllis A. Lehrer, head of the Westminster Piano Department, and Samuel Lehrer, author of Piano Playing as a Martial Art, as part of the Choir College summer session. How to conquer stage fright, the stresses of sight reading, the prevention and care of injuries and other practical approaches of dealing with the tensions of performance will be addresssed.

The 20 sessions will include research reports on stress among orchestral players, the relationship of mind, muscle and music, and life-history approaches to performances. Psychologists, dancers, singers and instrumentalists will be involved. The course will be of interest to performing artists, music teachers and managers.



Enrollment is limited and applications are available through the Westminster Summer Session office, Hamilton Avenue and Walnut Lane. The phone number is 924-7416.

ART

AROUND TOWN...

...A Summer Pot Pourri. Alexander Wilson was one of the earliest and most prolific recorders of birds in this country. Eclipsed by the younger Audubon, Wilson's fine engravings never received the attention they deserved.

A sampling of prints from his nine-volume opus, American Ornithology (1871), makes clear the fact that Wilson's work is worthy of much more attention than it has received, as both scholarship and art, and is currently on display at the Eye for Art.

For the Record. Protective Coloring: Painting Birds to Life; a fine exhibit of the work of modern masters of bird illustration and conservation including some by the famed Roger Tory Peterson, is on display at the Rare Books Collection at Firestone Library.

Due to repairs to the lobby ceiling, however, the main doors are closed to the public, and, as a result, access to the splendid display is limited to those in possession of the magic card.

At the ETS Conference Center. Stephen MacKenzie's collection of prints is a good example of what happens to little boys who like to draw when they grow up and learn how to be artists. More than a dozen images — silk screen and lithographs — resemble the kind of pictures that are common among the more gifted younger set; elaborate war scenes chock-a-block with squadrons of lollipop colored airplanes, fleets of tiny warships, whizzing bullets and projectiles that are often arranged in an astral setting including beaming sun, rainbow and clouds.

AT THE EYE FOR ART: A sampling of hand colored plates from American Ornithology, a nine-volume 19th century series by Alexander Wilson, can be seen together with other bird prints from the same period at The Eye For Art.

Described as an attempt "to move from the cerebral, intellectual level to that which is intuitional and spontaneous," the double series, "War Games" and "The Rainbow Squadron," must be considered successful.

The grown up part — the use of artist's tools, application of media and implementation of ideas are certainly creditable. And, clearly the intent is adult if we are to judge by sardonic titles such as: The Boys Are Back in Town; What a Splendid Day for a Picnic on the Beach; and Sunday Sortie - Moving Out with the Boys.

What is more, the collection is fun to look at. Busy pictures with the air of somewhat primitive cartoons give the eye a lot to do and offer something to think about as well.

At Western Electric. "Artists' League - On Line" includes work by 39 artists — all members of the Artists' League of Central New Jersey. The varied display includes almost everything that artists in Central New Jersey might do: wood carving, photography, painting in oils, watercolor and acrylic, and drawing and ceramics as well.

Style too is varied, but most of the included work leans toward the more conservative end of the artistic scale. There is quite a bit of traditional realism in all media, some interpretive work and a few that are a bit more daring in concept.

Nearly all are competent and there are a few that are especially interesting and deserve careful study. Eiko Kahn's watercolors are exceptional efforts: paintings that exhibit mastery over the painterly and conceptual demands of a difficult medium.

Doris Auxier's pastel drawing, Summer Shower, is an impressive bit of realism in which space is handled well, color is pleasing and the chalks — another difficult medium — are well used. Sherl Perry's muted oil and pastel study, the Bridge, and Richard Stambaugh works also merit special attention, as do Vallerie Bowe's powerful, well-balanced abstractions.

There are photographs here, too, and several of them are quite interesting. The entire labelling process, however, presents a real challenge to the viewer, especially in the case of the photographs, which are not signed, and, consequently, are difficulty to identify.

At Art Masters. A display of work by gallery artists provides pleasant views of lighthouses, sailboats, beaches and other seasonal fare. Oils, watercolors, acrylics and graphics. The collection offers a variety of style and a timely respite from Princeton's increasingly urban scene.

At Full House. Also in a season mood, a collection of flower paintings — the work of 11 area artists — bring the vibrant array of summer color indoors. Although essentially traditional, many of the included works go a few steps beyond nature and capture the affect of the almost voluptuous forms and riot of color that characterizes the blossoms at this time.

In some of Helen Gallagher's paintings, for example, we are made especially conscious of the rhythms and patterns that are often obscured in floral studies. And, Anna Continos uses watercolor with incredible deftness to develop ure, resonant color combinations in paintings that do more than justice to their subject.

—Helen Schwartz

MURAL UNVEILED

At MCCC. Six area students contributed to the new, vividly colored mural recently unveiled at the James Kerney Campus of Mercer County Community College.

Described as an unusual combination of ceramic tiles and oil paintings, the mural has a brotherhood/sisterhood theme. It covers the staircase wall and is meant to be viewed as a walking experience, according to Mel Leipzig, MCCC professor who, with James Colavita, also of Mercer, supervised the mural's production.

Among those contributing the mural were Jeff Durham and Michelle Wood of Hopewell, Michael Welliver, Theresa Keenan and Judith Bozarth of Pennington, and Jean Huff of Princeton.

BOOKLET PUBLISHED

On Sculptures at Princeton. The Office of Communications and Publications at Princeton University has published a booklet that describes the outdoor sculptures on campus.

The Sculptures of Princeton University is the third in a series that includes Trees: An Arboreal Tour and Gargoyles: A Grotesque Tour.

Sculptures features drawings and descriptions of 14 pieces in the John B. Putnam Jr. Memorial Collection. The text gives anecdotes and brief histories of both artwork and artist and is based on the book, Living with Modern Sculpture by Patrick J. Kelleher. Alexander Calder, Sir Henry Moore, Louise Nevelson and Pablo Picasso are a few of the sculptors whose works are on campus.

The booklet includes a map and detailed directions for a tour of the sculptures that leads through the university's plazas and courtyards from

IT'S NEW TO US

FRESH FOOD ABOUNDS

At Plentiful Acres. Warm summer days and soft evenings turn thoughts to menus which are cool and less time consuming to prepare. It is a happy time when entertaining can be informal and more spur-of-the-moment. There are several food shops in the Princeton area which help take the work out of summer meals so their customers can enjoy eating well without the hassle of long hours spent in the kitchen!

Plentiful Acres is aptly named because the produce, natural foods, fresh fish market, and super deli and meat shop provide a bountiful example of just how delicious fresh food can be. Trucks full of sumptuous fruits and vegetables arrive daily from points as far away as Hawaii and Mexico to be unloaded at the market's large new loading dock. The dock was added recently to accommodate Plentiful Acres' growing wholesale business. More than 160 accounts are supplied with fresh meats, fish and produce from the shop, which gathers its food from the large city markets such as Hunt's Point in New York, the Philadelphia markets and from New Jersey farmers.

"We try to carry whatever our customers desire. If we don't have it we'll surely get it within a few days — even the more exotic fruits and vegetables," says Bob Alper, manager of the wholesale business side of the operation.

Donald Salvia, owner of Plentiful Acres, located in Kingston on Route 27, is an enterprising young man who has big plans for the nine-acre property which he bought seven years ago. Beginning next spring, Plentiful Acres will be the focal point of a new village which will house small businesses committed to the holistic health point of view.

A bakery, featuring all natural ingredients, a 15,000-square-foot building filled with health foods, a theater and lecture hall for the purpose of promulgating healthy eating habits, offices for doctors and dentists who espouse a holistic health doctrine in their practices, a natural clothing store, and a New Age book store are among the shops which will comprise Mr. Salvia's new "town."

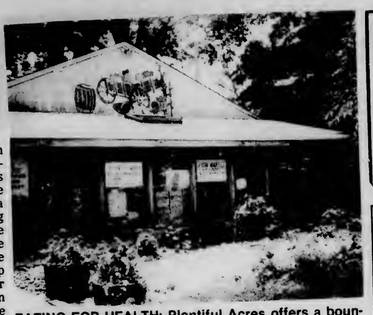
'Thought I Was Crazy.' The joint project with Bernie Seaman, who owns the Marketplace, will be designed by a renowned architect, Bruno Freschi, who designed the 1986 World's Fair in Canada.

"My father thought I was crazy when I bought this property. I was only 27, but I just knew it was the right thing to do," explains the energetic Mr. Salvia, whose day begins at around 4 a.m. when he sends off his drivers in search of the best produce around. He himself frequents the markets to insure the best quality for his customers.

"We don't have any set hours here; we finish when we are finished, and sometimes that's around 7 at night. It is a demanding business but it's worth it," says Mr. Salvia, whose home adjoins the market. Plentiful Acres ships top-quality food out every day and will not sell even one-day-old corn.

Variety is the spice of life, according to the owner of this wonderful market where the unusual is the norm. Several different kinds of mushrooms, peppers of all colors, such as yellow, purple and white, chirmoya fruit which makes the "best pie in the world," alfalfa sprouts, fresh herbs of all kinds, coffees, teas, honeys, and natural breads are only a few of the hundreds of delicious items offered here.

"I have had a lot of good luck; people have been good to us. Our new project will please our customers. I'm sure it will be awesome!" Mr. Salvia says with enthusiasm.



Country Meats 'n' Things, housed in the Plentiful Acres Market, is owned by Anthony Cardello. Fresh quiche, barbecue sauce, oven roasted chickens, hot lunches, cold sandwiches and heroes and special party platters are daily fare in this superb meat market.

Large orders of meat to stock a freezer for a summer full of pleasant and tasty barbecues are available upon request. A full line of fresh prime meat is prepared by experienced butchers. Specials are run weekly to accommodate food budgets. Free delivery is offered for orders over $25. Catering for all occasions is a convenient service for the summer months. Party platters might include ham, roast beef, salami, roast turkey breast, ham capicolla, selected cheeses, pepperoni, salads, bread and relishes.

Growing Expectations, a florist and flower design business next door, lends another touch of natural beauty to the center.

Hours at Plentiful Acres are from 10 to 6 daily, except Friday when the shops stay open until 7.

FOR FINE FISH...

...Nassau Seafood. Another hard-working businessman arises in the early morning hours to accommodate his customers in Princeton. Jack Morrison, owner of the Nassau Seafood Company, gets up at 2:15 in the morning, drops by his fish shop around 3 to call in his fillet orders, and then takes off around 4 for the Fulton Street fish market in New York, or sometimes to the one in Philadelphia, at least four times a week.

"The response to our fish market has been super. We are very appreciative of all of the support our customers show us and we won't take it for granted," says Mr. Morrison, who seems to have boundless energy despite his demanding schedule and a teething baby at home.

It is obvious that shoppers who frequent Nassau Seafood Company appreciate the shop's style of business. More than 14 employees now comprise the staff, including a former Navy captain's chef, Mitch Drozdek, who has hundreds of delicious recipes up his sleeve. Mr. Morrison and his staff are always happy to take the time to explain the best way to prepare the fish and seafood they sell, although there are plenty of delectable salads and fish dishes prepared and ready to cook from which to choose.

Stuffed crab au gratin, crab cakes ready to fry, paella, a gumbo, salmon or sole mousse, and several fresh seafood salads are only a few of the dishes available. Take-out orders can be called in for any number, so enjoy late afternoon tennis and stay out of the kitchen! French fried shrimp orders in baskets with cole slaw and french fries are tasty and convenient for picnics.

Box Lunches. Nassau Seafood Company has a different box lunch prepared every day for only $2.99. The salad menus include pasta primavera, mussels and scallops, fresh lobster and shrimp.

Although business is booming in this relatively new shop, there is still time for catering. What could be more simple than a well prepared poached salmon, a baked fish glazed and decorated, stuffed whitefish, or a platter full of freshly cleaned shrimp? Bring in your own silver platter or use one of the shop's. Hors d'oeuvre, such as clams casino, oysters Rockefeller or smoked salmon canapes, will make summer entertaining a snap.

Each Monday and Thursday, a Japanese sushi chef comes to the Nassau Seafood Company to prepare more than 70 take-out orders for sushi for $6.95 each. His work is "almost ritualistic" according to David Chrissafis, one of the shop's salesmen. The technique of cutting the fish, tuna, shrimp, and sea trout, is extremely difficult and interesting to witness. A tiny egg omelette and a perfectly formed rice patty attached to a piece of fish make the dish unusual fare in Princeton.

Most of us enjoy outdoor grilling during the warmer months. The shop offers savory swordfish, tuna, and salmon steaks, striped bass, fish kabobs, and mussels marinara, all ideal for the charcoal grill.

Hours at the Nassau Seafood Company, located at 256 Nassau Street, are from 9 to 7:30 Monday through Thursday, until 8 on Fridays, and until 6 on Saturdays.

—Susan Trowbridge

SUSHI SPECIALIST: Shini Chi Fuka comes from New York twice a week on Monday and Thursday to make take-out orders of Sushi for the Nassau St. Seafood Co. Shini rolls pieces of raw tuna, fluke and shrimp in rice and wraps it in seaweed.

Cyclists Are Looking Forward to August 4th, Date of Annual Free Wheeler's Touring Event

Saturday, August 4, 1984.

Bicycling enthusiasts, and those who have wanted to try bicycle touring but have never gotten around to it, should set aside this date. That is the day of the Princeton Free Wheelers' fourth annual bicycling event, a touring extravaganza that draws cyclists of all ages from eastern United States and as far away as Canada.

More than 600 cyclists participated in the Free Wheelers' third annual event last year. Even more are expected this year, according to Wayne Taylor, director of publicity for the Free Wheelers, who says he has learned more about Princeton by riding thorugh its streets since joining the club two years ago than he had in all his previous years.

Participants can make their day as easy or challenging as they wish. Beginners can choose from a 15-mile historic loop around Princeton or a 25-mile tour. For the more advanced cyclists there are two 50-mile tours, one over hilly and one over flat terrain and two 100-mile tours for strong cyclists.

All routes start from Princeton University's Palmer Stadium — 8 a.m. for the 100 milers, 9 for the 50s and 10 for the 15-and 20-milers. You can go by yourself or make up your own groups," says Mr. Taylor. "If you are alone and would like to join a group you will always be paired up with someone. Cyclists are very congenial."

CYCLING CATALYST: Wayne Taylor wants to stir up a lot of interest in the Princeton Free Wheelers' 4th annual bicycling event which will be held next month and is described in an article this page.

Fifteen Miles is Nothing. Fifteen miles is really nothing on a bicycle, insists Mr. Taylor. "We've never had a beginning cyclist who was not able to ride 15 miles. Usually, within a month beginners have graduated to longer rides."

Still apprehensive? Beginners are never left to fend for themselves, assures Mr. Taylor. "There is always one person in the ride who is a group leader and is responsible for every one. If we start out with 10, we come back with 10."

At the end of each route, vans will "clear" each route to make sure no one is left behind or lost, and the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad will be on call.

The six new routes for this year have been designed by Tom Burns, who is, reports Mr. Taylor, familiar with the topography of the region and who plans routes for a bicycle magazine. All are well marked with road signs. Every rider will receive six maps showing each route.

Bike Tours for Cyclists of All Abilities

Among the more than 20 rides scheduled by the Princeton Free Wheelers next month that might be of interest to area cyclists are ones listed below. Complete information about each is available by calling the tour leader.

This Saturday, there will be a 30-40 mile country ramble led by Wayne Taylor (587-9297) and a Tour de France-Pine Barrens version covering 65 miles led by Rich Ehala (654-0417). A 25 to 40-mile ride will leave Tuesday, July 3 and July 10 from the Princeton High School parking lot at 6 p.m. under tour leader Norman Muller.

On Sunday, July 1, Gaby and John Espenshade (921-2653) will lead a 50 to 60-mile tour of Hunterdon and Bucks County, and on Saturday, July 7, Frank Stanski (201-359-6264) will lead a Bucks County Winery Ride for 55 miles. Joe Sapia (655-5467) will lead a 35-mile tour, "A Not Too Great Adventure for 35 Miles," for average riders on Sunday, July 8, and beginners can get their feet wet with a 23-mile Bicyclists' Delight on Saturday, July 14. The leader is Diane Kendra (443-8178).

SPORTS

In the morning before the tours begin, members of Kopp's Cycle Shop and Jay's Cycle will be present to conduct inspections and to make minor adjustments and repairs. On the road, a mobile repair service will assist riders.

If You're Hungry... An option will be deciding whether to eat a hearty breakfast at P.J.'s Pancake House, 154 Nassau Street. P.J.'s and Kopp's Cycle are the two major sponsors of the event.

P.J.'s will be open from 6:30 to 9:30 in the morning to serve a special breakfast to cyclists including juice, coffee and all the buckwheat or buttermilk pancakes one can eat. The cost is $3.50 in advance, $4.50 at the door.

Registration fee for bicycling events is $6.50 ($9 after July 27). The first 500 to register will receive a free T-shirt with a picture of P.J.s on the front and Kopp's bicycle wheel logo on the back.

A free lunch and beverage will also be provided. Riders may choose to have it packed to take along to eat on the road or to share with other biking friends at Palmer Stadium.

In addition, all riders registered by 11 a.m. will share in random drawings for door prizes donated by contributing merchants. Among them are Jay's Cycle, Footworks, Thomas Sweet Shops, Princeton Free Wheelers, Inc. and the Source Bicycle Shop in Lambertville. The J.B. Winberie Restaurant on Palmer Square has paid for all printing costs and will donate a number of dinners for two as door prizes.

Application forms for the event may be obtained at Kopp's or P.J.s Pancake House. Those under 18 must have their parents' permission. If it rains, the event will be held the next day.

Sports Fans! I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
John Bernard — Jay Bernard
STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

Surprisingly, the fastest fastball pitchers in baseball don't throw as fast as the fastest fastball pitchers in softball ... Nolan Ryan's fastball was once timed at 101 miles per hour, which is regarded as the record for major league baseball pitchers — but several softball pitchers, including Eddie Feigner and ty Stofflet, have had their pitches timed at 104 miles per hour.
+++
I bet you didn't know ... Many health insurance plans do not cover children after age 19; or, if attending school, age 25 or diploma, whichever comes first.
+++
Amazingly, there's been only ONE nine-inning game in the entire history of big league baseball in which a home run was hit in every inning ... It happened in a game between the Phils and Pirates on July 10, 1929 ... You'd think it would have happened more often, but it hasn't.
What's the highest fly ball any baseball player ever caught? ... The world record is held by two former Cleveland Indian catchers, Frankie Pytlak and Henry Helf, who caught balls dropped from the 708-feet-high Terminal Tower in Cleveland in 1938 ... The balls were traveling about 140 miles per hour when Pytlak and Helf caught them!

The Club Itself. "The good thing about it all, is the club itself," commented Mr. Taylor. "I started last fall. I had never been into touring but I fell in love with riding. The people are so congenial, so friendly ... they made it so easy."

Two weeks ago, he reported, some club members drove to Sea Girt and then toured the Monmouth Battleground and the Jersey shore and had lunch. (Bikers are very sociable; they like to stop and eat, said Mr. Taylor.) Upcoming trips have been scheduled for the Maryland coastline, Vermont and a tour of Europe.

"It's a nice way to meet people," Mr. Taylor stated. "Quite a few of our members are single and marriages have developed out of rides — hopefully no divorces." Some members have tandem bikes, he said."

As for himself, Mr. Taylor listed some of the benefits of cycling. Improved circulation, loss of excess weight and improved muscle tone ... the general well being of communing with nature and riding in the air, summed Mr. Taylor, who will be 39 next month but looks ten years younger.

A jogger after 10 to 15 years will probably have trouble with his legs. Biking, in contrast, claims Mr. Taylor, is less stressful and offers less danger of injury. "Fifty miles on a bike is a comfortable ride; you would never jog 50 miles."

"After a hard day at the office, a bike ride relieves all the pressure. It's a cheap psychiatrist. "It's like riding in a convertible only you don't have to listen to the motor hiss or put gas in the engine."

Four Years Old. Conceived as a recreational group for touring the Princeton area, the club was founded four years ago by Dick Bograd, then an accountant who had rediscovered the joy of cyling. A Princeton resident, Bograd posted 25 notices in the area advertising for a riding companion. He received 43 replies.

Today the club has nearly 300 members, ranging from a file clerk to a corporate president. One member, reports Mr. Taylor, is William H. Feldman, who works for the Department of Transportation under the Commissioner of the N.J. Highway Department. The latter, says Mr. Taylor, is responsible for all bicycle safety factors and makes sure all roads are "bicycle compatible" when state funds are involved.

According to Mr. Taylor, the state now mandates that a storm drain can not be placed where a bicyle wheel might fall through.

The Princeton Free Wheelers meet monthly at the Mary Jacobs Memorial Library on Route 518 in Rocky Hill. Individual memberships cost $10 per year, $15 for family. Additional information may be obtained by writing the club at P.O. Box, 1204, Princeton.

"We're considering offering corporations in the area group discount memberships to promote cycling among their employees," Mr. Taylor revealed. The club would welcome any inquiries, he said.

The original founder, Dick Bograd, has since opened a sales and service shop in Lambertville, The Source Bicycle Shop.

Returning to the Free Wheelers' event in August, Mr. Taylor (who grew up in the Chambersburg section of Trenton, graduated from Hamilton High School and Rider College and is now self-employed in the insurance business) said that he hopes it can be expanded to include more of the Princeton community.

"Get the stores involved, have cyclists from all around visit Princeton restaurants, see the sights. There's no reason why it couldn't become a community event."

A QUESTION OF TIME

Can Post 76 Get It Together? The goals remain the same: to play .500 ball and make the playoffs. But in losing two of three last week to fall to 3-5, and now virtually one-third into its 27-game season, the Princeton Post 76 Legion team increased the pressure on itself by one more turn of the screw.

"We're sitting in sixth place. We only need fifth to get in the playoffs," observed Post 76 coach Larry Bender.

"This is a new, young team. I didn't know how soon we would jell but it's obvious we need a lot of work."

At the end of play last week, Bordentown, Broad St. Park, Ewing and Hamilton were bunched on top with 6-2 records. Hopewell was a game back at 5-3 while Princeton and Hightstown are tied for sixth at 3-5.

Three of Princeton's next four games will be played at its home diamond, Princeton University's Strubing Field. After a scheduled game here Tuesday against Hamilton, Post 76 will entertain Broad St. Park this Wednesday and Hightstown on Saturday. Friday it will oppose Mitchell Davis in Trenton.

The game with Broad St. Park will mark the end of the first round of play, and Post 76 will begin playing teams lower in the standings for the second time. Bender hopes his squad can smooth out its ragged play in the field in time and take advantage of the schedule to climb in the standings.

Errors, Errors, Errors. In its most recent start, a 9-5 loss to Bordentown, Post 76 was officially charged with two errors, but Bender's critical eye saw more. "We had six mental errors and four physical errors; we gave away seven runs."

Twice, Post 76 scored a pair of runs but each time Bordentown countered with two of its own in the next inning. In the sixth, the 76ers plated two runs but failed to score again after loading the bases with one out. Again in the eighth, they left three stranded with one out after scoring a pair of runs.

"Errors killed us ... we had a guy picked off, throwing to the wrong base ... you can't do that," Bender continued. "We have a rough road ahead of us. We have our work cut out for us."

Darren Villani had two hits and drove in a pair of runs to pace Princeton at the plate.

Mullin, Ryan Chosen in NBA Draft

Billy Ryan — Kevin Mullin

Two members of Princeton University's Ivy League basketball champions have been selected in the National Basketball Association's annual draft of the top collegiate players held a week ago Tuesday.

If they decide to attend tryouts, forward Kevin "Moon" Mullin and guard Billy Ryan will both get a shot at making the roster of professional teams in training camps this summer. Mullin was chosen higher than had been expected, going to the world champion Boston Celtics in the fourth round, while Ryan was selected in the ninth round by the New Jersey Nets.

After three years of reserve duty, Mullin came into his own as a senior, averaging more than 17 points per game. He was the first Tiger player in more than a decade to score 30 points in a game, hitting that many against Yale in Jadwin, and then canning 38 against the University of San Diego. He was also Princeton's leading rebounder.

Ryan was the team's playmaker for the last four years, and broke the Princeton mark for assists in a game (12), season (161), and career (411). He was also the league leader in this department. Both players were first team all-Ivy selections last season.

Mullin, who majored in economics here, had reportedly accepted a position as a Westinghouse trainee, a one-year program in Bala Cynwyd, while waiting to see how he fared in the draft. Ryan has been looking toward playing in the European basketball leagues, specifically the Irish league, where he is hoping to spend the year. If that did not work out, he would begin work with a brokerage firm.

Each team had 10 hits. Also driving in runs for the losers were Dave Arendas, Craig Ender and Mike Petrone. Mike Walker, who was relieved by Gavin Hulsman, took the loss.

Bender singled out the play of 15-year-old Villani at third base as one of the few bright spots on the team. "He's been amazing. He's been our 'superstar' so far," said Bender.

"We had 30 errors last year at third base and he has not made an error this year, and he's handled two to seven chances a game. At the plate, he's been batting clean up and hitting around .300. He had two RBIs in the last game and he's been hitting well with men on base."

Bender also cited pitcher Dave Arendas, 16, who, like Villani, is a junior at West Windsor High. "He's really good," said Bender. "He's 0-2 but both of those losses have come about on account of errors."

3-Hit Victim. Friday, Post 76 faced one of the best pitchers in the county and fell to Ewing's Len Navarro. Navarro limited Post 76 to three hits and struck out nine as Ewing coasted to an 11-0 win.

The victors were sparked at the plate by a pair of base-loaded singles by catcher Scott Patterson. Princeton's Bill Feus took the loss.

Post 76 began the week with a 5-2 victory over Lawrence to even its record at the time to 3-3.

With the score tied at 1, Post 76 scored four runs in the fifth to break the game open.

Jason Petrone led off with a double and, after an error, Hulsman ripped a run-scoring single. But the rest was all largesse from Lawrence. It included a mixture of errors, walks, wild pitches and balks from starter Jay Furtick and reliefers Mark Osowick and Scott Oshel. Jamie Taylor got the win in relief of Arendas.

whose children are grown. Even parents who both work outside the home can host a child, providing there is someone over 18 at hand."

"Fun" was the word most often used to describe what host families wanted for their visitor, and fun was what the children — and the families — clearly experienced. Fun and some unforgettable moments.

Howard Maher tells about the time he took LaRhonda and Meghan to the drive-in bank. He placed his check in the canister and the girls watched it go up. When it returned, it was filled with money, lollipops and dog biscuits.

An amazed LaRhonda exclaimed, "What a world this is!"

The Fresh Air Fund has been providing summer vacations for youngsters from inner-city neighborhoods since 1877. If you would like more information, or would like to sign up to be a host family for next year, please call Maggie Anderson at 921-6004.

Also, if you are a member of a club that would like to "adopt" the Fresh Air Fund as a project, as the Lion's Club has done with great success in Flemington, please contact Mrs. Anderson.

Sports in Princeton

Corn, it seems, is not when it will win the league title in the Mercer County Women's A League, but who will ever hand the Princeton-based team its first loss.

The Corn ran its record this season to 12-0, and 38 straight over the past two years, with two more victories last week. It shut out Grove Plumbing, 7-0, and defeated Larry's Corner Tavern, 9-1.

In its next start, the Corn will play a double header Thursday evening against Dot's Girls at Mercer County Park. Starting time is 6:15.

In the victory over Grove last week, Debbie Smyth batted 3-for-4 and Donna Nicholson counted a homer in her two hits. Clare Baxter was the winning pitcher.

Against Larry's, Sweet Jersey Corn unleashed a 22-hit attack. It was paced by Smyth (4-for-5), Dot Krumpfer (3-for-4), Beth Muzyka (3-for-5), Nicholson (2-for-3, including another homer) and Doreen Ragazzo (2-for-4). Winning pitcher Louann Slocum also contributed two hits.

FINAL TRIALS HERE

For Olympic Rowing Team. The main set of trials for the Olympic Rowing Team will be held this Friday through Sunday on Lake Carnegie. The classes which will be contested are the men's double and quadruple sculls, four with coxswain, and both men's and women's pairs without coxswain.

The final set of trials will take place the following weekend, July 7-8, also here. The final boat, the men's pair with coxswain, will be chosen at that time. Some boats have already been selected through trials or selection camps, including men's and women's single scullers, and men's and women's eights.

U.S. Olympic coaches have put together entries for all of the events open to trials, but they will be challenged by a number of club crews from all over the country.

Olympic men's sweep rowing coach Kris Korzeniowski has entered a four with coxswain which has been competing in Europe for the last month, and which finished second behind the victorious East German crew at the Lucerne International Regatta. That boat is made up of Kevin Still, Los Angeles, Cal., Bob Espeseth, Champaign, Ill., Chris Huntington, New York, N.Y., Mike Teti, Upper Darby, Pa., and coxswain Seth Bauer, New Haven, Conn.

Coach Harry Parker, in charge of men's sculling, has entered boats in both the double and quadruple sculls. The double, which finished fifth at Lucerne, is composed of Joe Bouscaren, Syracuse, N.Y. and Charles Altekruse, Columbia, S.C.

Several women's pairs, made up of alternates from the eight selection camp, will compete. Competitors will include two-time Olympians Carol Brown, Seattle, Wash., and Liz O'Leary, Hingham, Mass.

Coach Korzeniowski has entered a pair without coxswain, consisting of the alternates from the eight and four selection camp. They are Kurt Bausback, San Diego, Calif., and John Everett, Cambridge, Mass. Bausback's only U.S. Team experience has been in the Pan Am four with coxswain last year, while Everett is a two-time Olympian who has been on nine U.S. teams.

Other races which will be held this weekend will be trials for the U.S. Men's and Women's lightweight teams which will compete at the FISA (international rowing federation) Lightweight Championships in Montreal, August 22-26. Weight limits for these races are 154 pounds average for competitors in the men's boats (159.5 maximum) and 127.6 pounds maximum for the women (no average).

Races will begin at 5 p.m. on Friday with heats. They will continue on Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m. and finals are scheduled on Sunday at 10.

SHOWDOWN TUESDAY

In Men's Softball League. In a game that could decide the regular season championship of the Princeton Recreation Men's Softball League, Princeton Nautilus (8-1) will oppose league-leading Mike's Tavern (10-1). The game will be played Tuesday evening at Community Park's Field No. 2.

Other teams still in the race are Conte's and Princeton Italian-American Sportsmen Club. Both have 7-2 records.

Nautilus won all three of its games last week for its fifth in a row, routing Micawber Books, 15-1, PIASC, 15-3, and Princeton Medical Center, 6-0. En route to its three wins, Nautilus banged out 56 hits, four homers, two triples and seven doubles, raising its team batting average, in the process, to over .400.

Pitcher Jim Lennon yielded only four singles in blanking the Medical Center and also helped his own cause with two hits and two runs batted in. Kevin Phox went 3-for-3 and Ken Bruvik had two hits in four appearances, including a four-bagger.

Dave and Mike Shillaber, Al Kandell and Judd Petrone each batted 3-for-4 in the win over PIASC while Pat Kahny, Steve Simcox, Ron Kane and Phox each added two hits apiece. Judd Petrone scored four runs as Jeff Grover got the win.

Grover was again the benefactor in the rout of Micawber Books. The Shillaber brothers led the onslaught at the plate as Dave rapped four hits in four at bats, scored four runs and drove in three. Brother Mike batted 3-for-3, including a home run, scored twice and had two RBIs.

Pat Kahny belted two doubles among his three hits and drove in a pair of runs. Contributing two hits each were Scott Porreca, Phox, Bruvik, Kane and Judd Petrone.

SIX GOLD MEDALS

For Jr. Olympic Team. The Princeton team won six gold medals at the AAU State Track and Field Meet held this month at New Providence High School.

Brian Perone, Judd O'Sullivan, Doug Bougher and Justin Bougher captured the 400-meter relay run in the Bantam division with a time of 1:02.35. Erin Irving outraced her competitors in the Midget girls 800-meter run in 2.39, and also won a bronze medal in the 100-meter dash.

In the junior division, John Thompson broke the previous high jump record of 5'7" set in 1983 with a jump of 5'8". Gail Hughes won the girls 100-meter dash in 13.2 and finished second in the long jump. Karen Swartz won the 400-meter and awas a member of the victorious 400-meter relay team along with Gail Hughes, Kartasia Merrill and Vanessa Thomas. They won the race in 55 seconds.

Others with strong performances include Brook and Brian Perone, 800 meter run; Damion Tucker, long jump; Anthony White and Kesti Ringland, 100 meter dash; and Jennifer Wolinetz, Lea Moore, and Ashante Thompson.
